taynes alſo ⁊ rewlers of his countreyes were before hym, ⁊ he ſhewed the riches and

and glory of hys kyngdome, and the glorious worſhippe of his greatnes manye dayes long: euen an. C. and. lxxx. dayes.
And when theſe dayes were expired, the B king made a feaſte to all the people that were in Suſan the chiefe citie, bothe vnto great and ſmall. vii. dayes long, in the court of the garden by the kinges palace: where there hanged whyte, grene and ye-low clothes, faſtened with cordes of fine ſylke, and purple, in ſyluer rynges, vpon pillers of marble ſtone. The benches alſo were of golde and ſyluer, made vpon a pauemente of greene, whyte, yelowe, and blacke marble. And they dranke in veſſels of golde. And changed veſſel after veſſel. And yͤ kinges wine was much according to the power of the kyng. And the drinke was ſo appoynted, that none ſhould compel any manne: for ſo the king had commaunded by the officers of hys houſe, that euery one ſhould doe, as it liked hym. And the Quene Vaſthi made a feaſt alſo for the weomen in the palace of Ahaſuerus. And on the ſeuenth day whē the king was mery after the wyne, he cō-maunded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, zethar, and Carchas, the. vii. chamberleynes (that dyd ſeruice C in the preſēce of king Ahaſuerus) to fetch Vaſthi with the crowne regall into the kinges preſence, that he might ſhewe the people and princes her fayrenes, for ſhe was beautifull. But the Queene Vaſthi would not come at the kynges word, by hys chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng very wroth, and his indignacion kindled in hym. And the kyng ſpake to the wyſemen, that had vnderſtanding in the ordinaunces of the lande: for the kinges matters muſt be handled before all ſuche as haue knowledge of the lawe and iudge-mente: and the (chiefe and) nexte vnto hym, were Carſena, Sethar, Admata, Tharſis, Mares, Marcena and Mamucan, the ſeauen princes of Perſia and Media, which ſaw the kinges face, ⁊ ſatte aboue in the kingdom. What law (ſaith yͤ king) ſhould be executed vpon yͤ quene Vaſthi beecauſe ſhe dydde not accordyng to the woorde of the kyng Ahaſuerus, whiche he commaunded by hys chaūberlaynes.
D And Memucan aunſwered beefore the kyng and the Princes: The quene Vaſthi hath not onely doone euyll agaynſte the kyng, but alſo agaynſte all the Prynces, and agaynſt all the people that are in all the landes of King Ahaſuerus: for thys dede of the quene ſhal come abroade vnto all weomen, ſo that they ſhall deſpyſe theyr huſbandes, beefore theyr eyes, and ſhal ſay: the king Ahaſuerus commaunded Vaſthi the quene to bee broughte in beefore hym, but ſhe woulde not come.
And ſo ſhall the Princeſſes in Perſia and Media, ſaye lykewiſe vnto al the kinges Princes, when they heare of this dede of the Quene: thus ſhal there ariſe to much deſpytefulneſſe and wrathe. If it pleaſe the kyng therfore, lette there goe a com-maundemente from hym, and lette it bee written accordynge to the lawes of the Perſians, and Medians (and not to bee E tranſgreſſed) that Vaſthi come no more before king Ahaſuerus: and let the kyng geue her kingdome vnto an other that is better then ſhe. And when this commaūdement of the kyng (which ſhal be made) is publiſhed thorowout all his empire, (whiche is great) al weomen ſhall holde theyr huſbandes in honour both among greate and ſmall. Thys pleaſed the king and the Princes, and the kyng dyd accordynge to the woorde of Memucan. For he ſent letters foorth into all the kynges landes, into euerye lande accordyng to the wrytyng thereof, and to euerye people after theyr language, that euery man ſhoulde be lorde in his owne houſe. And this cauſed he to be ſpoken after the language of hys people.

The. ii. Chapter.

After the Quene is putte awaye, certayne goodly young damoſelles are ſearched out. Ediſſa, otherwyſe called Eſther, pleaſeth the king, and is made Quene. Mardocheus openeth vnto the kyng thoſe that woulde betray hym.

After theſe actes, when the diſ- A pleaſure of Kyng Ahaſuerus was nowe layde, he thoughte vpon Vaſthi, and what ſhe had doone, and what was concluded againſt her. Then ſayde the kynges ſeruauntes that minyſtred vnto hym: Lette there be fayre young virgins ſought for the king: and the kyng appoynted certayne menne in all the landes of hys empyre, whome he charged that they ſhoulde bring together all the fayre younge vyrgyns vnto Suſan the head citie, to the weomennes buildinge, vnder the hande of Hagei the Kynges chaumberlayne, that kepte the weomenne to geue them theyr apparell, (and

(and other thinges neceſſarye to bee had.) And that the damſell whiche pleaſed the king ſhould be in quene Vaſthis ſtead. And this pleaſed the kyng: and he dyd ſo. In the citie of Su-ſan there was a Iewe, whoſe name was Mardocheus the ſonne of Iair, the ſonne of Semei, the ſonne of Cis a mā of Iemini, whiche was caryed away from Ieru-i.Re,24.c ſalem * when Iekonia the Kynge of Iuda Ier,24.a. was led away, (whom Nabuchodonozor the kinge of Babilon caryed thence) and he nouriſhed Hadaſſa (yͭ is Eſther) his vncles daughter: for ſhe hadde neyther father nor mother, and ſhe was a fayre beutiful damſel: whom Mardocheus (when her father and mother was deade) receyued for hys B owne daughter. So it fortuned, that whē the kinges commaundemente and commiſſion was publiſhed, and manye damſelles were brought together in the citie of Su-ſan, vnder the hand of Hagei: Eſther was brought alſo vnto the kinges houſe, vnder the hand of Hagei the keper of the wemen, and the damſell pleaſed him, and ſhe found fauoure in his ſighte. And he cauſed orna-mentes to be geuen her, and ſuche thynges as belonged to her, and appointed her ſeuē comely damſels out of the kinges houſe, & fauoured bothe her and her gentil wemen ſyngularly in the houſe of the women. But Eſther ſhewed not her people and her kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, that ſhee ſhoulde not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the courte of the womens houſe, that he myght know how Eſther dyd, & what ſhould become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of e-uerye damſell came, that ſhe ſhoulde goe in to the kyng Ahaſuerus, after that ſhe had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the women (for theyr deckynge muſt haue ſo muche tyme, namelye, ſyxe monethes wyth balme and myrre, and ſixe monethes wyth good ſpyces, ſo were the wemenne beutyfyed) then wente there one damſel vnto the king, and whatſoeuer ſhe required (ſo that it were comelye) that muſte bee geuen her, to goe with her oute of the womens buyldynge vnto the kynges palace. In the euenyng ſhe wente, and on the morowe again into the ſeconde houſe of the women, aby-C dynge vnder the hande of Saaſgas the kynges chamberlayne, whiche kepte the concubines.

And ſhe came in vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleaſed the kyng to haue her, and that he called her by name. Nowe when the tyme came of Eſther the daughter of Abihan the vncle of Mardocheus (whiche hadde receyued her as his own daughter) that ſhe ſhoulde come in to the kyng, ſhe deſyred nothinge, but what Hagei the kinges chamberlaine the keper of the wemen, ſaid.

And Eſther founde fauoure in the ſyght of al them that loked vpon her. And Eſther was taken vnto kinge Ahaſuerus into his houſe royal in yͤ .x. moneth, which is the moneth * Tebeth, in the ſeuenth yere Decēber. of his reygne. And the kyng loued Eſther aboue all the wemen, and ſhe founde grace and fauoure in hys ſyght before al the vir-gins: ſo that he ſet the crowne of the kyngdome vpon her heade, and made her quene in ſteade of Vaſthi. And the kynge made a greate feaſte vnto all his Princes and ſer- D uauntes (whiche feaſt was becauſe of Eſther) and cauſed the landes to bee in quieteneſſe, and gaue giftes, as became the royaltye of a kynge.

And when the vyrgyns were gathered together the ſeconde tyme, Mardoche-us ſate in the kinges gate. And as yet had not Eſther ſhewed her kynred and her people, according as Mardocheus had bidden her: for Eſther did after the word of Mar-docheus, lyke as yf ſhe had bene yet vnder his gouernaunce. At the ſame tyme whyle Mardocheus ſat in the kynges gate, two of the kinges chamberlaynes, Bigthan & Theres, whych kept the dore, wer wroth, and ſoughte to laye theyr handes on the Kynge Ahaſuerus: whereof alſo Mar-docheus gatte knoweledge * and tolde Eſth.6.a it vnto Quene Eſther, and Eſther certifyed the Kynge thereof in Mardocheus name. And when inquyſycion was made, it was foūd ſo. And they wer both hanged on tre: and it was written in the chronicles before the Kynge.

The.iii. Chapter.

Haman the Macedonian, after he was exalted obtayned of the kynge, that all the Iewes ſhoulde bee putte to deathe, becauſe Mardocheus hadde not doone hym worſhyppe as other hadde.

AFTER theſe Actes did the Kynge Ahaſuerus promote A Haman the ſonne of Amadatha the Agagite, and ſette hym on hye, and ſette his ſeat aboue al the prynces that he had with him.
And al the kinges ſeruauntes that were in the Kynges gate, bowed theyr knees, and worſhipped Haman: for the king had ſo cō-maunded concerninge him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worſhypped him not. Then the kinges ſeruauntes whiche were in the kinges gate, ſayd vnto Mardocheus: why tranſgreſſeſt thou the kynges commaundement? And when they ſpake this dayly vnto hym, he folowed thē not, and they told Haman: that they might ſee how Mardocheus matters would endure: for he had tolde them, that he was a B Iewe. And when Haman ſaw yͭ Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto hym, nor worſhipped him, he was full of indignacion, and thoughte it to litle to laye handes only on Mardocheus: for they had ſhewed him the nacion of Mardocheus, wherfore he ſought to deſtroye al the Iewes, yͭ were throughout the whole empire of Ahaſue-rus, and that were of the nacion of Mar-docheus. In the fyrſte moneth (that is the moneth Niſan) in the twelueth yeare of king Ahaſuerus, they caſt Phur (that is a lot) before Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the.xii. moneth, that is yͤ moneth Ader. And Haman ſayd vnto kyng Ahaſuerus: Ther is here a people ſcatered abrode, and diſperſed amonge C al people in all the landes of thyne empyre, and they haue theyr lawes contrary from all people, and dooe not after the kynges lawes: neyther is it the kynges profyte to ſuffer them after thys maner. Yf it pleaſe the kynge, let it be wrytten that they may be deſtroyed, and ſo will I wey downe ten thouſande talentes of ſyluer by the handes of the workemen, to bee broughte into the kynges treaſure. And the kynge tooke his rynge from his hand, and gaue it vnto Haman the ſonne of Amidatha the Agagite the Iewes enemye. And the king ſayd vnto Haman: Let the ſiluer be geuen the, and dooe with that people as it pleaſeth thee.

D Then were the kinges ſcribes called on the Marche. thirtēth day of the firſt moneth* (Niſā) and there was written (accordyng as Haman commaunded) vnto al the kinges officers, and to the captaynes that wer in al landes, and to yͤ rulers of euery people in the coūtryes on euery ſyde, accordinge to the wri-tyng of euery nacion, and after theyr language: in yͤ name of kyng Ahaſuerus was it written, and ſealed with yͤ kynges ring.
And the writinges were ſente by poſtes in to al the kynges landes, to roote out, to kil, and to deſtroy al Iewes, both younge and old, children and women, in one day (namely, vpon the thirtenth day of the twelueth moneth, whiche is the moneth* Ader) and februarij to ſpoile theyr goodes. This was yͤ ſūme of the writing, that there ſhould be a commaundement geuen in al landes, and publiſhed vnto all people, that they ſhould bee ready againſt the ſame day. And the poſtes went in al the haſte, according to yͤ kinges commaundemente. And in Suſan yͤ chiefe citye was the commaundemente deuiſed.
And the king and Haman ſat and dranke, when in the meane time the cyty of Suſan was diſquieted.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Mardocheus geueth the Quene knowlage of the cruell decre of the kynge agaynſt the Iewes.

WHEN Mardocheus perceyued A all that was done, he rente hys clothes, and putte on ſackecloth with aſſhes, and went out into yͤ myddes of the cytye, and cryed loude, and lamentablye, and came before the kynges gate, but he myghte not enter wythin the kynges gate, becauſe he hadde ſackecloth on.

And in al landes, countreyes and places, as farre as the kynges woorde and com-maundemente extended, there was great lamentacion amonge the Iewes, faſting, wepynge and mournynge, and manye lay in ſackeclothes and in aſſhes. So Eſthers damſels and her chamberlaynes came and told it her. Then was the Quene exceedyng-lye aſtonied. And ſhe ſente raymente, that Mardocheus ſhould put on, & lay yͤ ſacke- B cloth from him. But Mardocheus would not take them. Thē called Eſther Hathath one of the kinges chamberlaines (whyche ſtode before her) and gaue him a commaūdement vnto Mardocheus, that he might knowe what it were, wherefore he dyd ſo.
So Hathath went forth to Mardocheus vnto the ſtrete of the citye, whiche was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde hym of al that hadde happened vnto hym, and of the ſumme of ſyluer that Haman hadde promyſed to weye downe into the kynges treaſurye becauſe of the Iewes, yf he woulde deſtroye them (and he gaue hym the copye of the kynges commaundemente that was deuyſed at Suſan, to deſtroy them, that he myghte ſhewe it vnto Eſther) and to ſpeake to her, and charge her, that ſhe ſhoulde gooe in to the kynge, and make her prayer and ſupplicaciō vnto him for her people.

And when Hathath came in, he tolde Eſther C the woordes of Mardocheus. And agayne Eſther ſpake vnto Hathath, and cōmaunded him to ſaye vnto Mardocheus: al the kinges ſeruauntes and the people in the landes of the kyng, knowe that whoſoeuer commeth within the courte vnto the kinge, whether it be manne or womanne, whiche is not called, the commaundemente is, that the ſame ſhall dye: excepte the kinge holde out the golden ſceptre vnto him, (in token of graciouſnes) for then he ſhal liue. As for me, I haue not beene called to come in to the king nowe this thyrty dayes. And they certified Mardocheus of Eſthers wordes: and Mardocheus badde ſaye agayne vnto Eſther: thinke not to ſaue thyne owne life, while thou art in the kinges houſe, before all Iewes: for if thou holdeſte thy peace at this tyme, then ſhal the Iewes haue helpe and deliueraunce out of an other place, and D thou and thy fathers houſe ſhalbe deſtroyed.
And who knoweth whether thou arte come to the kingdom, for this cauſes ſake?
Eſther bad them geue Mardocheus this anſwere: Goe thou thy waye, and gather all the Iewes together that are founde at Suſan, and faſt ye for me, that ye eate not and drinke not in thre daies, neither day nor nyghte. I and my damſels will faſte likewiſe, and ſo wil I go in to the kyng, which thyng is yet contrary to the commaundemente: and yf I periſh I periſh. So Mardocheus wente his waye, and dyd all that Eſther had commaunded hym.

The. v. Chapter.

Eſther entreth in to the kynge, and byddeth hym and Haman to a feaſt. Haman prepareth a gallous for Mardocheus.

A AND on the thyrde daye it fortuned that Eſther putte on her royall apparell, and ſtoode in the courte of the kynges palace within, ouer againſt the kinges houſe. And the king ſat vpon his roial ſeat in yͤ kinges palace ouer agaynſt the gate of the houſe.
And when the king ſawe Eſther the quene ſtandinge in the courte, ſhe founde grace in his ſighte. And the kinge helde out the golden ſcepter that was in his hande toward Eſther. So Eſther ſtept foorth, ⁊ touched the top of the ſceptre. Then ſayde the king B vnto her. What wilt thou Quene Eſther? and what requireſte thou? aſke euen the halfe of the empire, and it ſhall bee geuen thee. And Eſther anſwered: yf it pleaſe the kyng, let yͤ king and Haman come this day vnto the banket, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kynge ſayd: cauſe Haman to make haſte that he may do as Eſther hath ſayde. So the kinge and Haman came to the bankette that Eſther had prepared, and the kynge ſayde vnto Eſther at the banket of wine: what is thy peticion, that it maye be geuen thee? And what requireſte thou? yf it bee euen the halfe of the empyre, it ſhall bee done.

Then anſwered Eſther, ⁊ ſaid: my peticion and deſyre is, yf I haue found grace in the C ſighte of the kyng, and yf it pleaſe the king to geue me my petycion, ⁊ to fulfill my requeſt, than let the kyng and Haman come to the banket that I ſhal prepare for them, and ſo wyll I do to morowe, as the kyng hath ſayde.

Then wente Haman forthe the ſame daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And when the ſame Haman ſawe Mardocheus in the kynges gate, that he ſtode not vp and kneled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuertheleſſe, Haman reſtrained himſelfe: and when he came home, he ſente, and called for his frendes, and zares his wife, and Haman tolde them of the glorye of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and altogether howe the king had promoted him ſo greatelye, and howe that he had ſette him aboue the princes and D ſeruauntes of the king. Haman ſaid moreouer: Yea, and Eſther the quene dyd let no man come in with the king vnto the banket that ſhe had prepared, excepte me. And to morowe am I bidden vnto her alſo wyth the king. But in all this am I not ſatiſfied, as long as I ſe Mardocheus the Iew ſitting at the kinges gate. Then ſayde zares his wife, and all his frendes vnto him: Let them make a galous of fiftye cubites hye, and to morowe ſpeake thou vnto the kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon: and goe thou in merelye with the kyng vnto the bankette And Haman was well contente wythall, and cauſed the galous to bee made.

The. vi. Chapter.

The kyng turneth ouer the Chronicles, and fyndeth the fidelitye of Mardocheus: and then to the confuſion of Haman, commaundeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

THE ſame nyghte coulde not the king A ſlepe, and he commaunded to bringe the Chronicles and ſtoryes: whiche whē they wer read before yͤ king, thei happened on yͤ place, wher it was writtē how Mardocheus

Eſth.2.d. *Mardocheus had tolde that Bigthana, and Theres the kinges two chamberlains (whiche kept the threſholdes) ſought to lay handes on the kynge Ahaſuerus. And the king ſaide: What worſhip and good haue we done to Mardocheus therefore? Then ſayde the kynges ſeruauntes that mynyſtred vnto hym: There is nothynge at all done for hym. And the kyng ſayd: Who is B in the courte? (for Haman was gone into the courte wythoute before the kynges houſe, that he myght ſpeake vnto the king to hange Mardocheus on the tree that he had prepared for him.) And the kinges ſeruauntes ſayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman ſtandeth wythoute in the courte. And the king ſaied: let hym come in. And when Hamã came in, the king ſaid vnto hym: What ſhall bee done vnto the manne whome the kyng woulde faine bryng vnto worſhyp?
Haman thoughte in his hearte: whom deſyreth C the kyng to bryng vnto woorſhippe more then me? And Haman aunſwered the king: Let the man whome the kynge pleaſeth to brynge vnto worſhyp, be broughte hither: yͤ he may be arayed with the royall garmentes which the king vſeth to weare, and the horſe that the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye bee ſette vpon his heade. And let this raimente and horſe bee delyuered vnder the hande of one of the kinges princes, that they maye aray the man withall (whome the king is diſpoſed to bryng to honoure) and carye him vpon the horſe through the ſtrete of the city, and proclaime before him: thus ſhall it bee done vnto the man whome the kinge pleaſeth to bring to honor. And the kyng ſaid: make haſte, and take as thou haſte ſayd, the raiment and the horſe: and do euen ſo vnto Mardocheus the Iewe, that ſitteth before D the kinges gate, and let nothing fayle of al that thou haſt ſpoken. Then tooke Haman the raimẽt and the horſe, and araied Mardocheus, and broughte him on horſebacke through the ſtrete of the citye, and proclaimed before him: Euen thus ſhall it be done to the man whome the kyng is diſpoſed to honor. And Mardocheus came again to yͤ kinges gate: but Haman gat hym home in all the haſte, mourninge, bareheaded, and tolde zares his wife, and all his frendes, euery thinge that had happened him. Then ſaied his wiſe men, and zares his wife vnto him: yf it be Mardocheus of the ſede of the Iewes, before whome thou haſte begonne to fall, thou ſhalte not preuayle againſte him, but ſhalte ſurelye fall beefore him. And whyle they wer yet talkyng with hym, came the kinges chamberlaines, and cauſed Haman to make haſte, to come vnto the bankette that Eſther hadde prepared.

The quene byddeth the kyng and Haman again, and prayeth for her ſelfe, and for her people. She accuſeth Haman, and he is hanged on the gallous, whyche he had prepared for Mardocheus.

AND the king and Haman came into A the banket that Quene Eſther hadde prepared, and the king ſaid vnto Eſther on the ſeconde daye at the bankette of wine: What is thy peticion, (Quene Eſther) that it maye be geuen thee? And what requireſte thou? yea, aſke euen halfe of the empire, and it ſhall bee doone. And Eſther the Quene anſwered, and ſayd: Yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyght (O kyng) and yf it pleaſe the kinge, then graunt me my lyfe at my deſyre, and my people for my peticions ſake: for we are ſold, I and my people, to bee deſtroyed, to bee ſlayne, and to periſhe.
And woulde God wee were ſolde to bee bondemenne and bondewomen, then B woulde I hold my tounge: For the enemy pondereth not the kynges harme.
The kinge Ahaſuerus anſwered, and ſaide vnto Quene Eſther: Who is he? and wher is he, that dare preſume in his mind to do after that maner? And Eſther ſaide: the enemye and aduerſarye is this wycked Haman.
Haman was exceadingly afrayde before the king and the Quene. And the king aroſe from the banket ⁊ from yͤ wine in his diſpleaſure, ⁊ wente into the palais garden. C And Haman ſtode vp, and beſoughte Quene Eſther for his life: for he ſawe that there was a miſchiefe prepared for hym of the kinge already. And when the king came againe oute of the palace garden, into the place wher they dranke wine, Haman had layde him vpon the bed that Eſther ſat vpon.
Then ſayde the kinge: wil he force the Quene alſo before me in the houſe? As ſone as that woorde wente oute of the kinges D mouthe, they couered Hamans face: and Harbona one of the chamberlains yͤ ſtode before the king, ſaid: behold, there ſtandeth a gallous in Hamans houſe. l. cubites hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, that ſpake good for the kynge. The Kyng ſaid: hange him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galous, that he had made for Mardocheus.

Then was the kynges wrath pacifyed.

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

After the death of Haman, was Mardocheus exalted, and then there are comfortable letters ſente vnto the Iewes.

A THeſame day dyd kyng Ahaſu-erus geue the houſe of Haman the Iewes enemy, vnto Quene Eſther. And Mardocheꝰ came before the kyng: for Eſther tolde howe that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his fynger rynge whiche he had taken from Haman, and gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Eſther ſet Mardocheus ouer the houſe of Hamã. And Eſther ſpake yet before the kyng, and fell downe at his fete weping, and beſought him that he would put away the wycked-neſſe of Haman the Agagite, and hys deuyce that he had ymagined agaynſt the Iewes. And the kyng (according to the maner) helde oute the golden ſcepter towarde Eſther. (whereby was declared a token of gracious- B neſſe.) Then aroſe Eſther, and ſtode before the kyng, and ſayde: yf it pleaſe the kyng, and yf I haue founde grace in hys ſyght, and yf it bee acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wrytten, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the ſõne of Hamadatha the Agagite, may be called agayne: whiche letters he wrote to deſtroy the Iewes, whiche are in all the C kinges landes. For how can I ſuffer and ſee the euyll, that ſhall happen vnto my people? Or how can I loke vpon the de-ſtruccion of my kynred? And the king A-haſuerus ſayde vnto Quene Eſther, ⁊ to Mardocheus the Iewe: Behold, I haue geuen Eſther the houſe of Haman, whom they haue hanged vpon a tree, becauſe he layed hande vpon the Iewes. Wryte ye alſo for the Iewes as it lyketh you, in the kynges name, and ſeale it wyth the kynges rynge, (for the wrytynges that were wrytten in the kynges name, ⁊ ſealed with the kynges rynge, durſt no man diſanull.) Then were the kynges ſcribes called at theſame tyme, euen in the thyrd Maye. moneth, that is the moneth * Siuan, on the.xxiii.daye. And it was wrytten (accor-dyng to all as Mardocheus commaun-D ded) vnto the Iewes and to the prynces, to the deputies ⁊ captaines in the landes whiche are from India vnto Ethiopia, namely an hundred and ſeuen and twen-tye landes, vnto euery one accordyng to the wrytyng thereof, and to euery people after theyr ſpeache, and to the Iewes ac-cordyng to theyr wrytyng and language.

And he wrote in the kyng Ahaſuerus name, and ſealed it with the kinges ring.
And by poſtes that rode vpon horſes, ⁊ ſwyfte younge mules, ſente he the wrytynges wherein the kyng graunted the Iewes (in what cyties ſoeuer they were) to gather themſelues together, and to ſtande for theyr lyfe, ⁊ for to roote out, to ſlay ⁊ to deſtroye all the power of the people ⁊ lande, that would trouble thẽ, with children and wemen, and to ſpoyle theyr good vpon one daye in all the landes of kyng Ahaſuerus, namely, vpon the thyr-tenth daye of the twelueth moneth which is the moneth * Adar. The ſumme of the February.
E wrytynge was, howe there ſhoulde be a commaundemente geuen in all landes, and publyſhed among all people, ⁊ that the Iewes ſhould be ready agaynſt that daye, and to auenge themſelues on theyr enemyes. And ſo yͤ poſtes that rode vpon the ſwyfte horſes and mules, made haſte wyth all ſpede, to execute the kynges worde: and the commaundemente was deuyſed in Suſan the chefe cytie. And Mardocheus went out (from the palace, and) from the king, in royal apparell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garmente of ſylke and purple: and the citie of Suſan reioyſed, and was glad, ⁊ vnto the Iewes there was come (a newe) lyght and gladneſſe, ioy and worſhyp. In al landes and cyties, into what places ſoeuer yͤ kinges worde and commaundemente reached, there was ioy and myrth, proſperitie and good dayes among yͤ Iewes: inſomuche that many of the people of the lande became of the Iewes belefe, and the feare of the Iewes came vpon them.

The.ix.Chapter.

At the commaundemente of the kyng, the Iewes put theyr aduerſaries to death. The ſonnes of Haman are hanged. The Iewes kepe a feaſt daye in remembraunce of theyr delyueraunce.

IN the twelueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the A thyrtenthe daye of theſame, when the kynges worde and commaundemente ſhoulde be done, euen vpon theſame daye that the enemyes ſhould haue deſtroyed yͤ Iewes, to haue oppreſſed them, it turned contrary wyſe, euen that the Iewes ſhould ſubdue their enemyes. For then gathered the Iewes together in theyr cyties, wythin all the landes of kyng Ahaſuerus, to lay hande on ſuche as would do them euill, and no man coulde with ſtand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and prynces and deputies, and officers of the kyng, promoted the Iewes, for yͤ feare of Mardocheus came vpon them. For Mardocheus was greate in the kynges houſe, and the reporte of hym was noyſed in al landes, howe he encreaſed and grewe.

B Thus the Iewes ſmote all theyr enemyes with a ſore ſlaughter, and ſlue and deſtroyed, and dyd after theyr wyll vnto ſuche as were theyr aduerſaryes. And at Suſan the chefe cytie ſlewe the Iewes, and deſtroyed, fyue hundred menne, and ſlewe Pharſandatha, Dalphou, Aſphatha, Phoratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmaſtha, Ariſai, Aridai and Vaizatha the ten ſonnes of Haman, the ſonne of Hamadata the enemy of the Iewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At theſame tyme was the kyng certyfyed of the numbre of thoſe that were ſlayne in the cytie of Suſan. And the kyng ſayde vnto Quene Eſther. The Iewes haue ſlayne and deſtroyed fyue hundred men in the citie of Suſan, and the ten ſonnes of Haman: what haue they done (thinkeſt thou) in yͤ other landes of the kyng? And what is thy peticion, that it maye be geuẽ the? Or what requyreſt thou more to bee done? C Eſther anſwered: yf it pleaſe the kyng, let him ſuffre the Iewes to morow alſo to dooe accordyng vnto this dayes commaundement, that they maye hange Hamans ten ſonnes vpon yͤ tree. And the kyng charged to doe ſo, ⁊ the commaundement was deuyſed at Suſan, and they hanged Hamans tenne ſonnes. For the Iewes that were in Suſã gathered thẽſelues together, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, and ſlue thre hundred men at Suſan, but on theyr goodes they layed no handes. As for the other Iewes that were in the kynges landes, they came together, and ſtode for theyr lyues, that they myght haue reſt from theyr enemies, and ſlew of theyr enemies fyue and ſeuentie thouſande: howbeit, they layed no handes on theyr goodes.

D This they dyd on the thyrtenth daye of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth day of theſame moneth reſted they: which daye they helde with feaſtyng and gladneſſe. But the Iewes which were at Suſan came together, both on the thyrtenth day, ⁊ on the fourtenth, ⁊ on the fyftenth day of theſame they reſted, and held that day with feaſtyng ⁊ gladnes. And therefore yͤ Iewes that dwelt in the vyllages and vnwalled townes, helde the fourtenth day of the moneth Adar with gladneſſe and feaſtyng, and kepte holy daye, and euery one ſent gyftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote theſe actes, ⁊ ſent the wrytynges vnto all the Iewes that were in all the landes of kyng Ahaſuerus, both nye ⁊ farre, that they ſhould make a lawe amonge themſelues, and holde the fourtenth, and fyftenth daye of the moneth Adar, as the dayes wherein E the Iewes came to reſt from theyr enemyes, and as a moneth wherein theyr payne was turned to ioy, and theyr ſorowe into an holy daye: and that in thoſe dayes they ſhould make feaſtes, ⁊ gladneſſe, and one to ſende gyftes vnto another, and to diſtribute vnto the poore.

And the Iewes were contente with th that they had begonne to doe, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: howe that Haman the ſonne of Hadamatha all the Iewes enemye, had deuyſed agaynſt the Iewes, howe he myght deſtroy them, and cauſed to caſt Phur (that is a lot) for to put them in feare, and to bryng them to naught: and howe Eſther wente and ſpake to the kyng, that thorowe letters his wycked deuyſe (whiche he ymagyned againſt the Iewes) might be turned vpon his owne head, and howe he and hys ſonnes were hanged on the tree. For the whiche cauſe they called this daye Phurim, becauſe of the name of the lotte, and becauſe of al the wordes of this wrytyng: and what they themſelues had ſene, and what had happened vnto them. F And the Iewes ſet it vp, and tooke it vpon them and theyr ſede, and vpon al ſuche as ioyned themſelfes vnto thẽ, that they would not myſſe, but obſerue theſe two dayes yearely, accordyng as they were wrytten and appoynted: how that theſe dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kept of childers chyldren among al kynreddes, in al landes and cytyes. They are the dayes of Phurim, which are not to be ouerſlypt among the Iewes, and the memoryall of them ought not to periſh from theyr ſede.

And Quene Eſther the doughter of Abihail, and Mardocheus the Iew, wrote with al authoritie (to confirme the ſecond wrytyng of Phurim) and ſent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred and ſeuen and twentye landes of the empyre of Ahaſuerus, with frendly and faythful wordes, to confyrme theſe dayes of Phurim in theyr tyme appoynted, accordyng as Mardocheus the Jewe, ⁊ Eſther the Quene had appoynted them. And they bounde theyr ſoule and theyr ſede to faſtyng and prayer. And Eſther ſtablyſhed the woordes of theſe lottes, as it is wrytten in the booke. And the kyng Ahaſuerus G layed tribute vpon the land, and vpon the yles of the ſea. And all that he dyd by hys power and authorytie, and the great worſhyppe of Mardocheus, which the kyng gaue hym, be they not wrytten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Media and Perſia? For Mardocheus the Jewe was the ſeconde nexte vnto kyng Ahaſyerus, ⁊ greate among the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multytude of his brethren, as one that ſeketh the welth of his people, and ſpeaketh the beſt for all his ſede.

¶ The booke of Job.

The firſte Chapter.

Job is plaged of God by the loſſe of hys goodes and chyldren.

Gen.22.d IN the lande of * Hus A there was a mã whoſe name was Job: ⁊ the ſame was a perfect and iuſt mã, ſuche a one as feared god, ⁊ eſchewed euil. And he had ſeuen Job.42.d ſonnes, and three daughters. * His ſubſtaunce alſo was ſeuen. M. ſhepe, ⁊ three M. Camels, fyue. C. yoke of oxen, ⁊ fyue C. she aſſes, ⁊ a very great houſeholde, ſo that he was one of the moſt principall mẽ among al them of the Eaſt country. And his ſonnes wente and made bankettes, one day in one houſe, an other day in an other, and ſente for theyr three ſyſters to eate and drynke with them. And it fortuned, that when they had paſſed ouer the tyme of theyr bankettyng rounde about, Job ſente for them, and ſanctyfied them, and gat vp early and offred for euery one a burnt offryng. For Job ſayde: leſte peraduenture my ſonnes haue done ſome offence, ⁊ haue been vnthankfull to God in theyr hertes. Thus dyd Job euery daye:
And vpon a daye when * the children of Job.2.a.
God came and ſtode before the Lorde, it fortuned that Satan came alſo amonge them. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Satan: From whence commeſt thou? Satan anſwered the Lorde, and ſayde: * I haue 1.peter.5.c gone aboute the lande, and walked thorow it. And the Lord ſayde vnto Satan: B Haſte thou not conſydred my ſeruaunte Job, howe that there is none lyke him in the lande? a perfecte and a iuſt manne: ſuche a one as feareth God, ⁊ eſcheweth euyll. Satan anſwered, and ſayde vnto the Lorde: Doeth Job feare God for nought? haſt thou not preſerued him and his houſe, and all that he hath on euery ſyde? Thou haſte bleſſed the workes of his handes, and his poſſeſſion is encreaſed in the land. But lay thyne hand now vpon hym, (a lytle) and touche all that he hath, and he ſhall curſe thee to thy face.
And the Lorde ſayed vnto Satan: loe, all that he hath, be in thy power: onely vpon hymſelfe, ſee that thou laye not thy hande. And Satan went forth from the preſence of the Lorde. And vpon a certayne daye, it fortuned that hys ſonnes C and doughters were eatyng and drynking wyne in theyr eldeſt brothers houſe, and there came a meſſenger vnto Job, and ſayd: Whyle the oxen were a plowing, and the aſſes going in the paſture beſyde them, the Sabees came in vyolently, and tooke them awaye: yea, they haue ſlayne thy ſeruaũtes with the edge of the ſwerd, and I onely ranne my way to tell thee. Whyle he was yet ſpeakyng, there came an other, and ſayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen, ⁊ hath brent vp all thy ſhepe and ſeruauntes, and conſumed them: and I onely ranne away, to tell thee. And whyle he was yet ſpeaking, there came another, and ſayde: The Caldees made three armyes, and fel in vpon the camels, and haue caryed them away: D yea, and ſlayne thy ſeruauntes with the ſweard: and I onely am gotten away to tel thee. And whyle he was yet ſpeaking, there came an other, ⁊ ſayde: Thy ſonnes and thy doughters were eatyng ⁊ drynking wyne in theyr eldeſt brothers houſe:
and beholde, there came a mightye great wynde out of the ſouth, ⁊ ſmote the foure corners of the houſe, which fell vpon thy chyldren, and they are dead: and I am gotten away alone to tell the. Then Job stode vp, and rente his clothes, and ſhaued his head, fell downe vpon the groũd, Eccle.v.c. 1.Ti. 6.b. worſhypped, and ſayde.* Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked ſhall I turne thyther againe. The Lorde gaue, and the Lorde hath taken awaye, (euen as it hath pleaſed the Lorde, ſo is it come to paſſe) Job.2.c. bleſſed be the name of the Lorde.* In all theſe thynges dyd Job not offende, nor murmured folyſhly agaynſt God.

The.ii.Chapter.

Job is plaged with ſore byles, and afterward is mocked of his wyfe. His frendes vyſytte hym, and haue compaſſion on hym.

A AND the chyldren of God came and ſtode before the Lorde, and Satan came alſo amonge them, and ſtode before the Lord. And the Lord ſayde vnto Satan: From whence commeſt thou? Satā anſwered the Lord, ⁊ ſayde: I haue gone about the land, ⁊ walked thorow it. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Satan: haſte thou not conſydred my ſeruaunte Job? for there is none lyke hym in the lande. For he is a perfect and iuſt manne: ſuche a one as feareth God, and eſcheweth euyll, and continueth ſtyll in his godlyneſſe. And thou mouedſt me againſt him, B that I ſhould punyſhe hym for nought. And Satan anſwered the Lorde, ⁊ ſayd: Skynne for ſkynne, yea a man wil geue all that euer he hath for his lyfe. But lay thyne hande nowe vpon him, and touche once his bone and fleſh, and he ſhal curſe the to thy face. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Satan: loe, there haſte thou hym in thy power, but ſpare his lyfe. So went Satan forth from the preſence of the Lorde, and ſmote Job, with maruaylous ſore byles, from the ſole of his fote, vnto his crowne, ſo that he ſat vpon the grounde: in the aſſhes, ⁊ ſcraped of the fylth of hys C ſores with a potſharde. Then ſayde hys Tobi.2.d. wyfe vnto hym:* Doeſt thou continue Job.4.b yet in thy perfectneſſe? curſe God ⁊ dye. But Job ſayde vnto her: thou ſpeakeſt lyke a folyſhe woman. Shall we receyue proſperitie at the hande of God, and not Job.1.d. receyue aduerſytie?* In al theſe thinges dyd not Job ſyn with his lyppes. Nowe when Jobs frendes heard of al the trouble that happened vnto hym, there came three of them, euery one from his owne place, namely, Eliphas the Themanite, Baldad the Suhite, and Zophad the Naamathite. And they were agreed together to come to ſhewe theyr compaſſion D vpon hym, and to comfort hym. So whe they lyfte vp theyr eyes a farre of, they knewe hym not. Then they cryed and wepte, and euery one of them rente his clothes, and ſprynkled duſt vpon theyr heades in the ayre. They ſat them downe by him alſo vpō the ground, ſeuen dayes, and ſeuen nyghtes. Neyther was there any of them that ſpake one woorde vnto hym: for they ſawe, that his payne was very greate.

The woordes of Job, wherein he declareth that this preſent lyfe is myſerable, and that the death of the ryghteous is ioyous and fortunable.

AFTER this opened Job his mouth, and curſed his day. A And Job anſwered, ⁊ ſayde: loſte be that daye, wherin I was borne: and the nyght in the whiche it was ſayd: there is a manchyld conceiued. The ſame daye bee turned to darkeneſſe, and not regarded of God from aboue: neyther let hym ſhyne vpon it with lyght, but let it be ſtayned with darkeneſſe, and the ſhadowe of death. Let the dymme cloud fall vpon it, and lette it be lapped in with ſorowe on the daye tyme. Lette the darke ſtorme ouercome that night, ⁊ let it not be ioyned vnto the dayes of the yeare, nor counted in the monethes. Deſolate bee that nyght, and without gladneſſe: let them that curſe the daye and that be redy to rayſe vp mournyng, geue it alſo theyr curſe. Lette the ſtarres of that nyght be dymme thorowe darkeneſſe of it. Lette it B looke for lyght, but let it ſee none: neither the ryſyng vp of the fayre mornyng, becauſe it ſhut not vp the wombe that bare me. For then ſhould theſe ſorowes haue been hyd from myne eyes.

Alas* why dyed I not in the byrth? Ie why dyd not I peryſh as ſone as I came out of my mothers wombe? Why ſette they me vpō theyr knees? why gaue they me ſoucke wyth theyr breaſtes? Then ſhould I nowe haue lyen ſtyll, I ſhould haue ſlepte, and been at reſt, lyke as the kynges and Lordes of the earth, whiche haue buylded themſelues ſpecial places: Or as the prynces that haue had greate ſubſtaunce of golde, and theyr houſes ful of ſyluer. Or why was I not hyd, as a thyng borne out of tyme, eyther as yong chyldren, whiche neuer ſawe the lyght?

There muſt the wycked ceaſe from theyr C tyrannye, and there ſuche as be ouerlaboured be at reſt: there are thoſe lette out free, whiche haue been in pryſon, ſo that they heare no more the voyce of the oppreſſoure.
There are ſmal and great, and the ſeruaunte is free from his maſter.

Wherefore is the lyght geuen to hym that is in myſerye? and lyfe vnto them that haue heuy heartes? Which long for D death (& though it come not) woulde dyg it out of hyd places, whiche alſo woulde be exceadyng glad and reioyce, yf they could fynde their graue any where. That ſhould be ioy to that man whoſe way is hyd, and God kepeth it backe from hym.
For my ſyghes come before I eate, and my rorynges fall out lyke the water. For the thyng that I feared is come vpon me: and the thyng that I was afrayde of, is happened vnto me: was I not happye?
Had I not quyetneſſe? Was I not in reſt? And nowe commeth ſuche myſerye vpon me.

Job is reprehended of impacience & vniuſtice: and of the preſumpcion of his owne ryghteouſneſſe.

A AND Eliphas yͤ Themanite anſwered, and ſayde: Yf we begyn to commune with the, wylt thou be diſcontente? But who canne withholde hymſelfe from ſpeakyng? Beholde, thou haſte been a chaſtener of manye, & haſte comforted the wery handes.
Thy woordes haue ſette vp thoſe that were fallen, thou haſte refreſhed yͤ weake knees. But nowe that the plage is come vpon the, thou art greued: nowe that it hath touched thy ſelfe thou art faynt herted.
Tobi.2.d. *Is not this thy feare, thy ſtedfaſtneſſe, Job.2.c. thy pacience, and the perfectneſſe of B thy wayes? Conſydre (I praye the) who euer peryſhed beyng an innocente? Or when were the godlye deſtroyed? For (as I haue proued by experyence:) they that lyon, and the teeth of the lyons whelpes are pulled out. The lyon peryſheth for lacke of pray, and the lyons whelpes are ſcatred abrode.

And vnto me came the woorde ſecretlye, and myne eare hath receiued a lytle therof.
In the thoughtes and viſions of the nyght (when ſlepe commeth on mē) feare came vpon me, and drede, which made al my bones to ſhake. The wynde paſſed by, before my preſence, & made the heeres of my fleſhe to ſtande vp. He ſtode there, and I knew not his face: an ymage there was before myne eyes, and in the ſtylnes heard I a voyce. *Shall manne be more Job.25.a. cleane awaye. Then ſhould I haue ſome B comfoꝛte: yea, I would deſyꝛe hym in my payne, that he ſhould not ſpare, foꝛ I wil not be agaynſt ẏ woꝛdes of the holy one.

Foꝛ what power haue I to endure?
And what is myne ende, that my ſoule myght be paciente? Is my ſtrength the ſtrength of ſtones? Oꝛ is my fleſhe made of bꝛaſſe? Is it not ſo, that there is in me no helpe, and that my ſubſtaunce is taken fro me? He that is in trybulacion ought to be comfoꝛted of his neyghbour: but the feare of the Loꝛde is cleane away.
Myne owne bꝛethen paſſe ouer by me as the water bꝛoke, ⁊ as the ryuer of the water, do haſtely goe awaye. But they that feare the hoꝛefroſte, the ſnowe ſhall fall vpon them. When theyꝛ tyme commeth, C they ſhalbe deſtroyed and peryſhe: when they be ſet on fyꝛe, they ſhall be remoued out of their place: foꝛ the pathes that they goe in, are croked, they haſte after vayne thynges, and ſhall peryſhe. They turne them to the pathes of Theman, and to the wayes of Saba, wherein they haue put their truſt. Confounded are they that put any confydence in them. Foꝛ when they come to obtayne the thynges, that they loke foꝛ, they are bꝛought to confuſion.
Euen ſo are ye alſo come vnto me: D but nowe that ye ſee my myſerye, ye are afrayde. Did I deſyꝛe you to bꝛyng vnto me, oꝛ to geue me any of your ſubſtaunce?
To delyuer me from the enemyes hande, oꝛ to ſaue me from the hand of tyꝛaūtes?
Teache me, and I wyll holde my tonge: and when I dooe erre, ſhewe me wherein.
Howe ſtedfaſte are the wooꝛdes of trueth? And whiche of you canne rebuke and repꝛoue them? Do ye take delyberacion to checke mens ſayinges, and iudge a pooꝛe wooꝛde ſpoken in vayne? Ye fall vpon the fatherleſſe, and goe aboute to ouerthꝛowe your owne frende. And therefoꝛe bee contente, and looke nowe vpon me, and I wyll not lye befoꝛe youre face.
Turne (I pꝛaye you) bee indifferent iudges, turne againe, and ye ſhall ſee m vngyltyneſſe, whether there bee any vn ryghteouſneſſe in my tounge, oꝛ vayn wooꝛdes in my mouth.

Job ſheweth that thys lyfe is but a battayle, or warfare.

A Psal.39.b. HA the man any certayne tyme vppon earth? *Are not hys dayes alſo like the dayes of an hyred ſeruaunt? For like as a bonde ſeruaunte deſyreth the ſhadowe, ⁊ as an hyrelinge wolde fayne haue an end of hys worke: Euen ſo haue I laboured whole monethes longe, (but in vayne) ⁊ many a careful night haue I told. *Whē I laye me downe to ſlepe, I ſay: O when ſhall I aryſe? Agayne, I longed ſore for the nyght. And in the meane tyme am I full of ſorowes vntyll the twylyghte. (De.28.g)

B My fleſhe is clothed with wormes and duſte of the earth, my ſkynne is wythered and become horryble, *my dayes paſſe ouer more ſpedely then a weuer can weue out hys web, ⁊ are gone or I am aware. (Job.9.c. and.14.a.) O remember that my lyfe is but a wind, and that myne eye ſhall nomore ſee pleaſures therof: yea, ⁊ that none other mens eye ſhall ſee me any more. For if thou faſten thine eye vpon me, I come to nought. The cloud is conſumed and vanyſhed awaye, euen ſo he that goeth downe to the graue ſhall come nomore vp, nor turne agayne into hys houſe: neyther ſhall hys place knowe hym any more.

C Therfore I wyll not ſpare my mouth, but wyll ſpeake in the trouble of my ſpirite, ⁊ muſe in yͤ bytterneſſe of my mynd. Am I a ſea or a whale fyſſhe, that thou kepeſt me ſo in priſon? When I ſaye: my bed ſhall cumforte me, I ſhall haue ſome refreſſhyng by talkyng to my ſelfe vpon my coutche: *Then troubleſt thou me wͭ dreames, and makeſt me ſo afrayde thorowe viſions, yͭ my ſoule wiſſheth rather to periſh ⁊ die, thē my bones to remaine. (Daní.2.a)

D I can ſe no remedy, I ſhall lyue nomore: O ſpare me than, for my dayes are but vayne: what is man, that thou haſt hym in ſuche reputaciō, and ſetteſt ſo much by hym? Thou viſiteſt hym early and euery daye: ſodainly doeſt thou *trye hym. (Gen.22.a Deu.8.a.) Why goeſt thou not frome, nor letteſt me aloone, ſo long tyl I may ſwalow downe my ſpettle? I haue offēded, and what ſhal I do vnto the, O thou preſeruer of men? Why haſt thou made me to ſtande in thy waye, and am ſo heuy a burden vnto my ſelfe? Why doſte thou not forgeue me my ſynne? wherefore takeſt thou not away my wyckedneſſe? Behold, nowe muſte I ſlepe in the duſte, and yf thou ſekeſt me to morowe in the mornyng, I ſhal be gone.

Job is reprehended and noted to haue deſerued his payne. A deſcripcion of hypocriſie.

A THen anſwered Baldad yͤ Suhite, ⁊ ſayde: Howe longe wylt thou talke of ſuche thynges? Howe long ſhall thy mouth ſpeake ſo proude wordes? Doth god peruert the thing that is lawfull? Or doth the almyghtye deſtroye the thyng, that is ryght? For ſeyng that thy ſonnes ſynned agaynſte hym, dyd not he punyſhe them for theyr wyckedneſſe? yf thou wouldeſt now reſort vnto God bytymes, and make thyne humble prayer to yͤ almyghtye, yf thou woldeſt lyue a pure and a godlye lyfe, ſhoulde he not awake vp vnto the immediatly, and geue thee yͤ beautye of ryghteouſnes agayne? In ſo much, that wherin ſo euer thou haddeſte lytle afore, thou ſhouldeſte nowe haue greate aboundaunce. Enquyre (I praye thee) of them that haue bene before thee,

B *and ſearche diligently among theyr fathers. (De.32.a.) For we are but of yeſterdaye, and conſydre not, that *oure dayes vpō earth are but a very ſhadowe. (Job.7.a. *pſa.39.b) Shall not they ſhew thee ⁊ tell thee, yea and gladly confeſſe yͤ ſame? May a ruſſh be grene without moyſtneſſe? Or may the graſſe grow without water? No, but (or euer it be ſhot forth, ⁊ or euer it bee gathered) it withereth before any other herbe. Euē ſo goeth it with al thē that forgette God, and euē thus alſo ſhall the hypocrites hope come to nought: hys cōfidence ſhall be deſtroyed, and hys truſt ſhal be a ſpiders webbe.

C He ſhall leane vpon hys houſe, but it ſhal not ſtand: he ſhal holde hym faſt by it, yet ſhall it not endure. It is euen as a grene tree before the Sunne, and ſhoteth forth the braunches in hys garden. It taketh many rootes by a well ſyde, in ſo moche that it is lyke an houſe of ſtones. But yf it bee taken out of hys place, euery man denyeth it, ſaying: I knowe thee not. Lo, thus is it with him, that reioyſeth in his owne doynges: and as for other, they

D growe out of the earth. Behold, God wil not caſte awaye a vertuous manne, neyther wyll he helpe the vngodlye. Thy mouth ſhall he fill with laughynge, and thy lyppes with gladneſſe. They alſo that hate the, ſhall bee cōfounded, and the dwellynge of the vngodly ſhall come to nought.

The .ix. Chapter.

Iob declareth the benefites of God: ⁊ that mans ryghteouſneſſe is nothyng.

A IOb anſwered, ⁊ ſayde: I know it is ſo of a trewthe. For howe may a mā (compared vnto god) *be iuſtifyed? yf he wyll argue ſa.144.a Iob.4.c. .a.&.25.a oma.3.c. with him, there is not one among a thouſand that can anſwere hym. Concernyng ſuche as be wyſe of hearte, or myghty in ſtrengthe, who euer proſpered, that toke parte agaynſte hym? He tranſlateth the mountaynes or euer they be aware. It is he that ouerthroweth them in his wrath. He remoueth the earthe out of her place, that the pyllers therof ſhake withall. He comaundeth the ſunne, and it ryſeth not: he cloſeth vp the ſtarres, as it were vnder a ſignet. He him ſelfe alone ſpreadeth out the heauens, ⁊ goeth vpō the waues of the ſea. He maketh ȳ waynes of heauē, Amo.5.b the Orion, *the ſeuen ſtarres, and the ſecrete places of the Southe. He doethe greate thynges, ſuche as are vnſearcheable: yea, and wonders without numbre.

B Lo, when he goeth ouer by me, I ſhall not ſee hym. And when he departethe by me, I ſhall not loke vpon him. I ſhal not perceyue hym. Yf he be haſtye to take any thynge awaye, who wyll make hym reſtore it agayne? Or who wyll ſaye vnto Eccle.8.a. Iere.10.a him: *what doſt thou? ‡He is God, whoſe wrath no man may withſtande, but the proudeſt of all muſte ſtoupe vnder hym. Howe ſhoulde I then anſwere hym? Or what wordes ſhould I finde out againſt hym? yea, though I were ryghteous, yet might I not geue him one word againe, but mekely ſubmit my ſelfe to him as my iudge. Yf I had called vpō hym, ⁊ he had anſwered me, yet woulde I not beleue, that he hearde my voyce. he troubleth me ſo with ȳ tempeſt, and woundeth me out of meaſure without a cauſe. He will not let my ſpirite bee in reſte, but fylleth me with bytterneſſe. Yf menne wil ſpeake of ſtrength, lo, he is ſtrong: yf mē wil ſpeke of righteouſnes, who dare be my record? Yf I mill iuſtifye my ſelfe, myne owne mouth ſhal condemne me: If I will put foorthe my ſelfe for a perfecte manne, he ſhall proue me a wicked dooer. For though I be an innocent, and my conſci- C ence cleare, yet am I wery of my lyfe.

One thyng it is, and therefore I ſayde: He deſtroyeth bothe the ryghteous and vngodlye. And though he ſlaye ſodenlye with the ſcourge, yet will he laugh at the punyſhement of the innocente. As for the worlde, it is geuen ouer into the hand of the wicked, and he ſhal couer the faces of the iudges therof. Is it not ſo? where is there any, but he is ſuch one? *My dayes Iob.7.a are more ſwifte then a runner: they are gone, and haue ſene no good thing. They are paſſed awaye as the ſhyppes that be good vnder ſayle, ⁊ as the Egle that flyeth to the praye. When I am purpoſed to forget my cōplaynyng, to leaue of fro my wrath, and to comforte my ſelfe, then am I afrayd of all my ſorowes: for I know D that thou wilt not iudge me innocent. If I be then a wicked dooer, why labour I in vayne? If I waſhe my ſelfe with ſnow water, and make my handes neuer ſo cleane at the well, yet ſhalt thou dyppe me in the myre, and myne owne clothes ſhal defyle me. For he that I muſt geue aunſwere vnto, and with whō I go to lawe, is not a manne as I am: Neyther is ther any daysman to laye hys hande betwene vs. Let him take his rodde away fro me: yea, let him make me no more afrayde of him, and then ſhal I aunſwere him without anye feare: for as long as it is thus, I can make no aunſwere.

Iob is wery of his lyfe, and ſetteth out his fraglitie before God: He deſyreth the tyme to repente. A deſcription of death.

A IT grieueth my ſoule to lyue: I will make my complaynte, and will ſpeake out of the very heuines of my ſoule. I will ſaye vnto God: O dooe not condemne me, but ſhewe me the cauſe wherfore thou contēdeſt ſo with me? Thynkeſt thou it well doone to oppreſſe me, to caſt me of (being the workes of thy handes) and to maintayne the counſayle of the vngodly? Haſt thou fleſhely eyes? or doeſt thou looke as a manne looketh? Or are thy dayes as the dayes of man, and thy yeres as mans yeares? that thou makeſt ſuche inquiſiciō for my wickedneſſe, and ſearcheſt out my ſynne? Where as (not withſtandynge) B thou knoweſte that I am no wycked Deu.32.d perſon, and that *there is no man able to delyuer me oute of thy hande.

‡Thyne handes haue made me, and ‡Gene.2.d faſhyoned me all together rounde about, wylt thou then deſtroye me ſodeynly? O remember (I beſeche thee) howe that thou madeſte me of the moulde of the earth, earthe, and ſhalte brynge me in to duſte agayne. Haſte thou not turned me, as it were milke, and turned me to cruds like cheſe? Thou haſt couered me with ſkinne and fleſhe, and ioyned me together wyth bones and ſynowes. Thou haſte graunted me life, and done me good: and the dilygente hede that thou tokeſte vpon me, hathe preſerued my ſprite. Thou haſte C hyd theſe thynges in thyne heart. I am ſure that thou remembreſte this thynge. yf I dyd ſynne, thou haddeſt an eye vnto me, and ſhalte not declare me innocente becauſe of myne offence. yf I haue done wyckedly, wo is me therefore: yf I haue done ryghteouſlye, yet dare I not lyfte vp my heade, ſo full am I of confuſyon, and ſee myne owne myſerye. Thou hunteſte me oute (beynge in heuynes) as it were a Lyon, and troubleſte me oute of meaſure. Thou bringeſte freſhe wytneſſe agaynſte me, and thy wrathe increaſeſte thou vpon me, verie many are the plages that I am in. *Wherefore haſte thou brought me out of my mothers wombe?

O that I had peryſhed, and that no eye had ſene me. yf they had caryed me to my graue as ſoone as I was borne, then D ſhoulde I bee nowe as thoughe I had neuer bene. Are not my dayes fewe? Let hym then leaue of fro me and let me alone, that I may eaſe my ſelfe a lytle, afore I go thyther, from whence I ſhall not turne agayne: euē to yͤ land of darkeneſſe and ſhadow of death: yea, into that darke cloudye land and deadlye ſhadow, where as is no ordre, but terryble feare as in the darkeneſſe.

The.xi. Chapter.

Job is vniuſtly reprehended of Sophar. God is incomprehenſyble. He is mercyful to the repentaunt.

A THē anſwered Sophar the Naamathyte, and ſayde: Shoulde not he that maketh manye wordes, be aũſwered? Should he that bablethe muche bee commended therin? Shoulde men geue eare vnto the onely? Thou wylte laughe other menne to ſcorne, and ſhall no body mocke the agayne?
Wylte thou ſaye vnto God? The thyng that I take in hande is perfit, and I am cleane in thy ſyght. O that GOD woulde ſpeake and open hys lyppes agaynſte thee, that he myghte ſhewe thee (oute of hys ſecrete wiſdome) why he rewardeth the double as he was apoynted to doo: then ſhouldeſte thou knowe, that GOD had forgotten thee, becauſe of thy ſynne. Arte thou able to fynde out the ſecretes B of God? Or wylt thou attayne to the perfitnes of the almyghtye? He is hier then heuen, what arte thou able to doe?
Deper then the hell, howe wylt thou then know him? Hys length excedeth yͤ length of the earthe, and hys bredthe the bredthe of the ſea. Thoughe he turne all thynges vp ſide downe, cloſe them in, gather them together, who wyll turne hym, from hys purpoſe? (Or who may ſaye vnto hym, why doſt thou ſo?) *For it is he that knoweth yͤ vanitie 1.Re.15.b of men, he ſeeth theyr wyckedneſſe alſo, Jer.7.b. ſhoulde he not then conſyder it? A vayne Pſal:7.c bodye exaltethe hym ſelfe, and a manne Rom.8.e newe borne is lyke a wylde aſſes colte. C yf thou haddeſte now a right hearte, and lyftedſt vp thyne handes towarde him: yf thou woldeſte put away the wyckedneſſe whych thou haſte in hande, ſo that no vngodlyneſſe dwel in thy houſe, then mighteſt thou lift vp thy face without ſhame, and then ſhouldeſt thou be ſure, and haue no nede to feare. Thē ſhouldeſt thou forget thy myſery, and thynke nomore vpon it, then vpon the waters that runne by.
Then ſhoulde the reſydue of thy lyfe bee D as cleare as the noone daye, and ſprynge forthe as the mornyng. Then myghteſte thou haue comforte, in the hope that thou haſte: and ſlepe quietly, when thou arte buryed. Thē ſhouldeſt thou take thy reſt, and no man to make the afrayd: yea, many one ſhoulde ſet muche by the. As for yͤ eyes of the vngodlye, they ſhalbe conſumed, and not eſcape: theyr hope ſhall bee myſerye, and ſorowe of mynde.

The.xii. Chapter.

Job ſhewynge hys pacyence, declareth the mighe and power of God.

SO Job anſwered, and ſayde: A Then (no doubte) ye are the menne alone, and wyſdome ſhall peryſhe wyth you. But I haue vnderſtandyng aſwel as ye, and am no leſſe then ye. yea, who knoweth not theſe thynges? Thus he that calleth vpon God, and whom God hearethe, is mocked of hys neyghboure: the godly and innocent manne is laughed to ſcorne. Godlynes is a lyghte deſpyſed in the hartes of the ryche, and is ſet for them to ſtomble vpon.

The houſes of robbers are in welth and

He caryeth awaye the wiſe men, C as it were a ſpoyle, and bryngethe the Judges out of theyr wittes. He taketh away the ſubieccyon of the people from theyr kynges: and gyrdeth theyr loynes with a band. He leadeth away the greate men into captiuytie, and turneth yͤ mighty them that haue bene oppeſſed. *Loke Luke.12.a what lieth hyd in darkeneſſe, he declareth Mar.10.c it openly: and the very ſhadowe of deathe bringeth he to lyght. He both increaſeth the people, and deſtroyeth them. He maketh them to multiplye, and dryueth thē awaye. He chaungeth the heartes of thē that rule the people of the earth, and dyſapoynteth thē: ſo that they go wandring oute of the waye, and grope in the darke without lyght: he maketh thē alſo to ſtacker to and fro, lyke dronken men.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Job reproueth hys frendes with theyr owne ſayinges, and condemneth ypocryſye.

A LO, all thys haue I ſene with mine eye, herd with mine eare, and vnderſtande it. Loke what ye know, that ſame do I know alſo, nether am I inferior vnto you.
Neuertheleſſe, I talke with the Almightie, and my deſyre is to comen with God.
As for you ye are workemaiſters of lies, and vnprofitable *phiſicions altogether.
Would God ye kept your tonge, for then myght ye bee taken for wyſe men: Nowe heare my chydynge, and ponder the ſentēce of my lyppes. Do ye ſpeake iniquitie B agaynſte God, and talke agaynſte hym with diſceyte? Wyll ye not accept yͤ perſon of hym? Or wil ye contend with god?
Shal that helpe you when he calleth you to rekenynge? For as one man mocketh an other, ſo do ye mocke hym. He ſhal punyſh you, and reproue you, yf ye do ſecretly accept any perſon: Shall he not make you afrayde, when he ſheweth hym ſelfe?
Shall not hys terryble feare fall vpon you? youre remembraunce is lyke vnto a ſparke, and youre bodyes lyke the claye.

Holde youre tonges, for my ſake, that I alſo maye ſpeake, and my ſorowe ſhal C be yͤ leſſe. Wherefore do I beare my fleſh in my teeth, * and put my ſoule in myne handes? Lo, though he ſlaye me, yet wil I put my truſt in hym. But I *wyl reproue myne owne wayes in hys ſyght, he ſhall make me whole: & there maie no ypocrite come before him. Heare my wordes, and pōder my ſayinges with your eares. Behold, now haue I prepared my iugemēt, & knowe that I ſhal be found ryghteous.
What is he, that wyl go to law with me?
(Let him come) that I maye nowe holde my tong, and dye. Neuertheleſſe, graunt me two thynges, and then wyll I not hyde my ſelfe frō the. Wythdrawe thyne hande from me, and let not the fearfull drede of thee make me afrayde. And then call me, and I wil anſwere: or els let me ſpeake, and geue thou me an anſwere. How many are my myſdedes and ſynnes? Let me knowe my tranſgreſſions and offences?
Wherefore hydeſt thou thy face, and holdeſt me for thyne enemie? Wylt thou be ſo cruell and extreame vnto a flyinge leafe, & folowe vpon drye ſtubble? for thou layeſt ſharpely to my charge, and puniſheſte me * for the ſynnes of my youth. ‡Thou putteſt my fete alſo in yͤ ſtockes: & lookeſt narowly vnto all my pathes, & markeſte yͤ ſteppes of my fete, where as I (not withſtandyng) muſte conſume lyke as a foule caryon, & as a cloth that is motheaten.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

Job deſcribeth the lyfe of man, and propheſyeth of the reſurreccyon. Hope ſuſteyneth the godly, tyll they obteyne that they loke for.

Man

A MAn that is borne of woman, hathe but a ſhorte tyme to liue, and is full of myſerye. He cõ-meth vp and is cut downe like a floure. He flyeth as it were a ſhadowe, and neuer contynueth in one ſtate. Doſte thou open thine eyes vpon ſuche one, and bryngeſt me in thy iudgemente? Who can make it cleane, that commeth of an vn-Job.7.a. cleane thynge? No body. * The dayes of and.9.c. manne ſurelye are determyned, the num-bre of hys monethes are knowẽ only vn-boundes, whiche he can not go beyonde, Go from hym that he maye reſte (a lytle) vntyll hys daye come: whiche he loketh for, lyke as an hyrelynge dothe.

Yf a tree bee cut downe, there is ſome B hope yet that it wyll ſproute, and ſhoote forth the braunches agayne. For though the rote of it be waxen olde, ⁊ the ſtocke thereof bee dead in the grounde, yet when it getteth the ſente of water, it will bud and bryng forthe boughes, lyke as a tree that is planted. But as for manne, when he is dead, peryſhed and cõſumed away, what becommeth of hym? The floudes when they bee dryed vp, and the ryuers when they bee emptye, are fylled agayne

D For now thou numbreſt all my goynges, yet bee not thou to extreame vpon my my wyckednes. The mountaynes fall awaye at the laſt, the rockes are remoued out of theyr place, yͤ waters pearce tho-row the very ſtones by litle and litle, the not tel. And yf they bee men of lowe de-gre, he knoweth not. While he liueth, his fleſhe muſte haue trauayle: and while the ſoule is in hym, he muſt be in ſorowe.

The.xv. Chapter.

¶ Eliphas reprehendeth Iob becauſe he aſcribeth

Iob repetyng his myſerye, ſayeth that he ſuffreth more then his wyckedneſſe hath deſerued.

A IOb anſwered and ſaid: I haue

Or haſte yͧ yet any more to ſaye? I could me into the handes of the wycked. I was in welth, but he hath brought me to nought. He hath taken me by the necke, he hath rente me, and ſette me as a marke and doth not ſpare. My bowels hath he powred vpon the grounde. He hath geuē me one wounde vpon another, and is fallen vpon me lyke a gyaunt. I haue ſowed a ſackeclothe vpon my ſkynne, and lye with my heere in the duſte. My face is ſwollen with wepyng, ⁊ in myne eyes is D no wyckedneſſe in my handes, but my

The .xvii. Chapter.

Iob ſayth that he cõſumeth away, and yet doeth paciently abyde it.

MY breathe ſtynketh, my dayes A

Though I tarye neuer ſo muche, D yet the graue is my houſe, and I haue made my bed in the darke. I call corrupcion

The.xviii.Chapter.

Baldad rehearſeth the paynes of the vnfaythfull and wycked.

A THEN aunſwered Baldad the Suhite, and ſayd: when wil ye

Marke wel, and then we wyll ſpeake. Wherefore are we counted as beaſtes, ⁊ reputed ſo vyle in your ſyght?
He deſtroyed hymſelfe with hys anger.
Shall the earth be forſaken, or any ſtone

B with him. His preſumtuous goinges are kept in, and his owne counſell ſhall caſte hym downe. For his fete are taken, as it were in the nette, and he is at his wyttes ende. His fote ſhalbe holden in the ſnare, and it ſhall catche them that be thyrſty of bloud: The ſnare is layde for hym in the grounde, and a pytfall in the way. Fearfulneſſe ſhall make hym afrayde on euerye C ſyde, that he ſhall not knowe, where to get out. Hunger ſhall be his ſtrength: myſfortune ſhall hange vpon hym. He ſhalt eate the ſtrēgth of his owne ſkynne, euen the fyrſt borne of death ſhal eate his ſtrength. His hope ſhall be rooted out of his dwelling, very fearfulnes ſhal bring him to the king. Other men ſhall dwel in his houſe (but ſhall be none of his) and brimſtone ſhalbe ſcattred vpon his habitacion.
His rootes ſhall be dryed vp byneth, D and aboue ſhall his braunche be cut downe. His remembraunce ſhall peryſhe from the earth, ⁊ he ſhall haue no name in the ſtrete: they ſhall dryue hym from the lyght into darkeneſſe, and caſt hym cleane out of the worlde. He ſhall neyther haue children nor kynſfolkes among his people: no, nor any poſteritie in his dwellynges.
They that come after hym, ſhall be aſtonyed at his daye, and they that go before, ſhall be afrayde. Suche are nowe the dwellynges of the wycked, and this is the place of hym that knoweth not God.

The.xix.Chapter.

Job recyteth his myſeryes and greuous paynes. He prophecyeth of the generall reſurreccion.

IOb anſwered, and ſayde: howe A trouble me with woordes? Lo, tenne tymes haue ye reproued me, and are not aſhamed for to laugh me ſo to ſcorne: if I go wronge, I go wrong to my ſelfe. But yf ye wil enhaunce your ſelues agaynſt me, and accuſe me to be a wycked perſon, becauſe of the ſhame that is come vpon me: knowe this then, that it is God which hath handled me ſo vyolentlye, and hath compaſſed me aboute with his nette. Yf I * complayne of the Abacu.1.a vyolence yͭ is done vnto me, I can not be ſpoyled me of myne honoure, and taken the crowne awaye fro my head. He hath deſtroyed me on euery ſyde, and I am vndone: My hope hath he taken awaye fro me, as it were a tree pluckte vp by the roote. His wrath is kyndled agaynſt me: he taketh me, as though I were hys enemye.

His menne of warre came together, which made theyr waye ouer me, and beſeged my dwellyng rounde aboute. * He *Pſa.38.d hath put my brethren farre awaye from me; and ſuche as were of myne acquayntaunce, are become ſtraungers vnto me.
* Mine owne kynſefolkes haue forſaken Pſal.38.d me, ⁊ my frendes haue put me out of remēbraunce.
The ſeruauntes ⁊ maydens C

⁊ I am become as an aleaũt in their no anſwer: no though I prayed him with my mouth. Mine owne wife might not abyde my breath: I was faine for to ſpeake fayre for the chyldren of myne owne bodye: Yea, the chyldren deſpyſed me. And when I was gone from them, they ſpake euyll euyll vpon me. All ſuche as were my moſte famylyers, abhorred me: and they whom I loued beſt, are turned agaynſt me. My bone hangeth to my ſkynne, and my fleſhe is awaye, onely there is left me D the ſkynne aboute my teth. Haue pytye vpon me, haue pytye vpon me, (O ye my frendes) for the hande of God hath touched me. Why dooe ye perſecute me as God doeth, and are not ſatiſfyed of my fleſhe? O that my woordes were nowe wryttē: O that they were put in a booke: would God they were grauen with an yron pen in leade, or in ſtone, to contynue.

For I am ſure that my redemer lyueth, and that I ſhall ryſe out of the earth in the latter daye: that I ſhall be clothed agayne with this ſkynne, and ſee God in my fleſh. Yea, I my ſelfe ſhal behold him, not with other, but with theſe ſame eyes.
My raynes are conſumed within me, did not ye ſaye: why doeth he ſuffre perſecucion?
Is there founde an occaſion in me?
But beware of the ſweard, for the ſweard wyll be auenged of wyckedneſſe: and be ſure, that there is a iudgement.

The .xx. Chapter.

Sophar ſayth, that the vnfaythful, the couetous, and the wycked ſhall haue a ſhorte ende.

A THEN anſwered Sophar the Naamathite, and ſayde: For yͤ ſame cauſe do my thoughtes compell me to aunſwere. And why? my mynde is ready within me. I haue ſuffiently hearde thy checkyng and reprofe, therfore am I purpoſed to make anſwere after my vnderſtanding. Knoweſt thou not this, namelye, that from the begynnynge (euer ſence the creacion of man vpon earth) the gladneſſe of the vngodlye hath been ſhorte, & that the ioy of ypocrytes contynued but the twynklyng of an eye? Though he be magnified vp to the heauen, ſo that his head reacheth vnto the cloudes, yet at a turne he periſheth for euer, in ſo muche that they whiche B haue ſene hym, ſhall ſaye: Where is he?
He ſhall vanyſhe as a dreame: ſo that he can nomore be founde, and ſhall paſſe awaye as a vyſion in the nyght. So that the eye which ſawe hym before, ſhal haue nomore ſyght of hym, and his place ſhall knowe hym nomore. Hys chyldren ſhall be fayne to agree with the poore, and his handes ſhall reſtore them theyr goodes.

From his youth his bones are full of pleaſures, but nowe ſhall it lye downe within hym in the earth. When wyckedneſſe was ſwete in his mouth, he hyd it vnder his tonge. That he fauoured, that would he not forſake, but kepte it cloſe in his throte. The breade that he dyd C eate, is turned to the poyſon of ſerpentes within his body. The rycheſſe that he deuoured, ſhall he perbrake agayne, for God ſhall drawe them out of his bellye: he ſhall ſucke the gall of ſerpentes, and the adders tonge ſhall ſlaye hym: ſo that he ſhall nomore ſee the ryuers & brookes of honye & butter. The thyng that other menne haue laboured for, ſhall he reſtore agayne, and ſhall not eate it vp.

Greate trauayle ſhall he make for rycheſſe, but he ſhall not enioy them. And why? He hath oppreſſed the poore, and not helped them: houſes hath he ſpoyled, and not buylded them. His bellye coulde neuer be fylled, therefore ſhall he periſhe in hys couetouſneſſe. There ſhall none of hys meate be lefte behynde, therefore ſhall no manne looke for his proſperitie.
When he hadde plenteouſneſſe of euery thyng, yet was he poore, though he was helped on euery ſyde.

For though the wycked haue neuer ſo D muche to fyll hys bellye, yet God ſhall ſende his wrath vpon hym, and cauſe his indignacion to raygne ouer hym: ſo that yf he flye the yron weapons, he ſhall be ſhotte with the ſtele bowe. The arowe is taken forth, & gone out of the quyuer, and a glyſteryng ſwearde thorowe the gall of hym, feare ſhall come vpon hym.
There ſhal no darkeneſſe be able to hyde hym. An vnkyndled fyre ſhall conſume hym, and looke what remayneth in hys houſe, it ſhall be deſtroyed. The heauen ſhall declare hys wyckedneſſe, and the earth ſhall take parte agaynſt him. The ſubſtaunce that he hathe in hys houſe, ſhall be taken awaye and peryſhe, in the daye of the Lordes wrath. * This is the Iob. porcion that the wycked man ſhall haue of God, and the herytage that he maye looke for of God, becauſe of his wordes.

The .xxi. Chapter.

Iob recyteth the proſperitie of the wycked, and after deſcrybeth theyr ſodayne ruyne and deſtruccion.

IOb anſwered & ſayde: O heare A Marke me wel, and be abaſſhed, and lay your hande vpon your mouth. For when I conſyder my ſelfe, I am afrayde, and my fleſh is ſmytten with

Psa.73.a feare. * Wherfore do wycked menne lyue Iere.12.a. in health and proſperitie, come to theyr olde age, and increaſe in ryches? Theyr children lyue in theyr ſight, and theyr generacion before theyr eyes. Theyr houſes are ſafe from all feare, and the rodde of God doeth not ſmyte them. Theyr bullocke gendreth, and that not out of tyme: theyr cowe calueth, and is not vnfrutefull. Esay.5.c * They beare with them tabrettes and harpes, and haue inſtrumentes of muſycke at theyr pleaſure. They ſpēde theyr dayes in welthyneſſe: but ſodaynly they goe downe to hell. They ſaye alſo vnto God, goe frō vs: we deſyre not the knowledge of thy wayes.

Exo.5.a * Who is the Almyghtye, that we ſhould ſerue hym? And what profyte ſhould we haue to ſubmyt our ſelues vnto hym? Loe, there is vtterlye no goodneſſe in them, therefore will not I haue to do with the counſayle of the vngodlye. Howe ofte ſhall the candell of the wycked be put out? howe ofte commeth theyr deſtruccion vpon them? O what ſorowe ſhall God geue them for theyr parte in his wrathe? Yea, they ſhall bee euen as haye before the wynde, and Psal.1.b * as chaffe that the ſtorme caryeth away.

C And though God saue theyr chyldren from ſuche ſorowe, yet wyll he ſo reward themſelues, that they ſhall knowe it. Theyr owne deſtruccion & myſerye ſhall they ſee with theyr eyes, and drynke of the fearfull wrathe of the Almyghty. For what careth he what becommeth of hys houſeholde after hys deathe, when the numbre of hys monethes is cutte ſhorte? In as muche then as God hath the hyeſt power of all, who canne teache hym any knowledge? One dyeth nowe when he is myghtye, & at his beſt, riche, and in proſperytie, euen when hys bowels are at the fatteſt, and hys bones full of marye. An other dyeth in ſorowe and heuyneſſe, and neuer had good dayes.

D They ſhall ſlepe bothe alyke in the earth, and the wormes ſhall couer them. Beholde, I knowe what ye thynke: yea, and the ſubtyltye that ye ymagyne agaynſt me. For ye ſay: where is the prynces palace? and where is the dwellyng of the vngodly? haue ye not aſked them that goe by the waye? Doubtleſſe, ye canne not denye theyr

Who wyll reward hym, for the vngracіouſneſſe that he doeth? Yet ſhall he bee brought to hys graue, and dwell among the heape of the dead. Then ſhall he be fayne to be buried among the ſtones of the playne. All men alſo muſt folowe hym, and there are innumerable gone before hym. How vayne then is the comforte that ye geue me? The.xxii. Chapter.

Eliphas reprehendeth Iob of vnmercyfulneſſe.

SO Eliphas the Themanyte gaue anſwere, and ſayd: May A a manne bee profytable vnto God, as he that is wyſe maye be profytable to hymſelfe? Is it any auauntage vnto the Almightye, that thou art ryghteous? Or ſhall it profyte hym, that thou makeſt thy wayes perfyte? Is he afrayde to reproue thee, and to ſteppe forth with the into iudgemente? Is not thy wyckedneſſe greate, and thyne vngracyous dedes innumerable? For thou haſte taken the pledge from thy brother for nought, & robbed the naked of theyr clothyng: To ſuche as were werye, haſte thou geuen no water to drynke, and haſte wythdrawen breade from the hongrye. B

Should ſuche one then as vſeth violēce, wronge and oppreſſyon (doyng all thyng of parcialitie, and hauing reſpect of perſons) dwell in the lande? Thou haſte ſent wydowes away empty, and oppreſſed the poore fatherleſſe. Therfore art thou compaſſed aboute with ſnares on euery ſyde, and ſodenly vexed with feare: ſhouldeſt thou then ſee no darkeneſſe? Should not the water floud runne ouer thee? Nowe * becauſe that God is hyer then the heauens, & becauſe thou ſeeſt that the ſtarres are ſo hye, wylt thou therfore ſay: Tuſhe, how ſhould God know? Doth his dominiō reache beyond the cloudes? kepe

C kepe the olde waye that vayne men haue gone? which were cut downe out of time, and whoſe foundacion was a runnyng water? whiche ſayde vnto God: go from vs, and what dyd the almyghtye wyth them? He fylled theyr houſes with good thynges. But the counſayle of the vngodlye is farre fro me. The ryghteous ſawe it, and were glad, and the innocent laughed them to ſcorne. Is our encreaſe hewen downe? As for the remnaunte of them, the fyre hath conſumed it. Therefore reconcyle the vnto God, and be content, ſo ſhall al thinges proſpere with the right wel. Receyue the law at his mouth, and laye vp hys woordes in thyne harte.

Deu.30.b. For * yf thou wylt turne to the almighty, D thou ſhalt ſtande faſt, & put all vnrighteouſneſſe from thy dwellyng: Thou ſhalt make golde as plentifull as the duſt, and the golde of Ophir as the flyntes of the ryuers. Yea, almyghtye God his owne ſelfe ſhall be thy defence, and thou ſhalt haue plentye of ſyluer. Then ſhalt thou haue thy delyte in the Almighty, and lyft vp thy face vnto God. Then ſhalt thou make thy prayer vnto hym, and he ſhall heare the, and thou ſhalt kepe thy promyſſes. Then looke what thou takeſt in hande, he ſhall make it to proſpere with thee: & the light ſhall ſhyne in thy wayes.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

Iob affirmeth that he both knoweth and feareth the power and ſentence of the iudge, and ſayth that he hath walked in his ryghteouſneſſe.

A IOb anſwered, and ſayde: My ſaying is yet this daye in bytterneſſe, and my hande heauy, because of my groning. O that I myght ſee him, and fynde him, O that I myght come before hys ſeate to plede my cauſe before hym, & to fyll my mouth with argumentes. That I might know, what anſwer he would geue me: and that I might vnderſtand what he would ſay vnto me. Wyll he pleate agaynſte me with his great power and ſtrength? No, B but he wil make me the ſtronger. He that is iuſt, ſhall enter diſputacion with hym, and my iudge ſhall delyuer me for euer. Beholde, though I goe before, I fynde him not: If I come behynd, I can get no knowledge of hym. If I goe on the lefte ſyde, where he doth his worke, I cannot attaine vnto him. Agayn, yf I go on the ryght ſyde, he hydeth himſelfe, yͤ I cānot ſee hym. But as for my way, he knoweth it, and * tryeth me as the golde in the fyre.

C My fote doeth kepe his path, his hye waye haue I holden, and wyll not goe out of it. I wyll not forſake the commaūdement of hys lyppes, but looke what he charged me with his mouth, that haue I ſhutte vp in my harte. He is ſtyll at one poynte, and who wyll turne hym backe? He doeth as hym luſteth, and bryngeth to paſſe what he wyll. He perfourmeth the thyng that is appoynted for me, and ma-D ny ſuche thynges doeth he. This is the cauſe that I ſhrynke at hys preſence, ſo that when I conſyder him, I am afrayd of hym. For in ſomuche as he is God, he maketh my harte ſofte: & ſeyng that he is Almightye, he putteth me in feare. Thus cannot I get out of darkeneſſe, neyther hath he couered the cloude fro my face.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

Iob deſcrybeth the wyckedneſſe of men, and ſheweth what curſe belongeth to the wycked.

A COnſyderyng then, that there is no time hyd frō the Almightye, howe happeneth it, that they which knowe hym, do not regarde his dayes? For ſome mē there be, that * remoue other mens land markes: that robbe them of theyr catell, and kepe the ſame for theyr owne: * that dryue awaye the aſſe of the fatherleſſe: that take yͤ wyddowes oxe for a pledge: that thruſt the poore out of the waye, and oppreſſe the ſymple of the worlde together. Beholde, euen as the wylde aſſes in the deſerte, goe they forth to theyr worke, & ryſe by tymes to ſpoyle: Yea, the very wylderneſſe mynyſtreth foode for theyr chylden.
B They reape the corne fielde that is not theyr owne: and let the vyneyarde of the vngodlye alone. They are the cauſe that ſo many men are naked and bare, hauing no clothes to couer them, and to kepe thē from colde. So that when the ſhowres in the mountaynes haue rayned vpon thē, and they be all wet, they haue none other ſuccoure, but to kepe them amonge the rockes. They ſpoyle the ſuckyng fatherleſſe chylde, and take the pledge from the poore. In ſomuche, that they let him go naked wythout clothyng: and haue taken awaye the ſheafe of the hongry.

The poore are fayne to labour in their oyle milles: yea, & to treade in their wynepreſſes, & yet to ſuffre thirſt. The men of yͤ Citie crye aryſe, to murther the ſimple and poore: and in the nyght they go a ſtealynge. The eye of the aduoutrer wayteth for the darckenes, & ſayth thus in hym ſelfe: Tuſh, there ſhall no eye ſe me: and ſo he diſguyſeth hys face.

In the nyght ſeaſon they ſearche the houſes and hyde them ſelues in the daye tyme, but will not knowe the light. For aſſoone as the daye breaketh, the ſhadow of death cõmeth vpõ them, and they go in horrible darknes.
The vngodly is ſwyfter then yͤ water: their not beholde the waye of the vyneyardes.

O that they (for the wyckednes whiche they

O that al compaſſyon vpon them were forgotten, D that their dayntyes were wormes, yͤ they were cleane put out of remembraunce, & vngodlynes vtterly hewen downe lyke as a tree. He hath oppreſſed the barren, that he can not beare: and vnto the wyddowe hath he done no good. He drewe the myghtye after him with his power, and when he was gotten vp, no man was without feare, as longe as he lyued. And though they myght be ſafe, yet they will not receyue it, for theyr eyes loke vpõ their owne wayes. They are exalted for a lytle, but ſhortly are they gone, brought to extreme pouerty, and taken out of the waye: yea, and vtterly plucte of, as the eares of corne. Is it not ſo? Who will then reproue me as a lyar, and ſaye that my wordes are nothyng worth.

Doeth God heare hym the ſooner, when he cryeth vnto hym in his neceſſity? Hath he ſuche pleaſure and delyte in the Almyghtye, that he darre alwaye call vpon God? I wyll teach you in the name of God, and ẏ thyng that I haue of the Almyghtye, wil I not kepe from you. Beholde, ye ſtande in your owne conceyte, as though ye knewe all thynges. Wherfore C then do ye go about wᵗ ſuch vayne wordes, Job.20.d. ſayinge? * This is the porcion that the wycked ſhall haue of God, and the heritage that tyrauntes ſhall receyue of the Almyghtye. Yf he get many children, they ſhall periſſhe with the ſwearde, ⁊ his poſteritie ſhall haue ſcarceneſſe of bread. Loke whom he leaueth behynde hym, they ſhall dye and be buryed: and no man ſhall haue pitye of his wydowes. Though he haue as muche money as the duſt of the earth, ⁊ rayment as readye as the claye, he maye well prepare it: but the godly ſhall put it vpon hym, and the innocent ſhall deale out the money. His houſe D ſhall endure as the moth, and as a booth ẏ Psal.49.b the watchman maketh. * When the ryche Luke.12.c man dyeth, he caryeth nothynge wyth hym: he is gone in the twynkelynge of an eye, and hath nothing. Deſtruccion taketh hold vpō him as a water floude: and the tempeſt ſteleth hym awaye, in the nyght ſeaſon. A vehement eaſt wynde caryeth hym hence, and departeth: a ſtorme plucketh hym out of his place. It ruſſheth in vpon hym, and ſpareth him not, he may not eſcape from the power therof. Then clap men their handes at him: yea, and ieſt of hym, when they loke vpon his place.

The.xxviii. Chapter.

Job ſheweth that the wiſedome of God is vnſearcheable.

A THere is a place where ſiluer is brought oute of, and where gold Deu.8.d is tryed * where yron is dygged out of the grounde, and ſtones reſolued to metalle. The darkeneſſe ſhall once come to an ende: he can ſeke out the grounde of al thinges, the ſtones, the darke, and the ſhadowe of deathe. With the ryuer of water parteth he a ſonder the ſtraunge people, that know no good neighbourhead: ſuche as are rude, vnmanerly and boyſtreous. He bringeth foode out of ẏ earthe, and that which is vnder, conſumeth he with fire. There is founde a place, whoſe ſtones are cleane Saphirs, and where the clottes of the earth are golde. There is a waye alſo B that the birdes knowe not, that no vulturs eye hath ſene, wherein the Lyons whelpes walke not, and where no Lyon commeth. There putteth he his hande vpon the ſtony rockes, and ouerthroweth the mountaynes. Ryuers flowe out of the rockes: ⁊ loke what is pleaſaũt, his eye ſeeth it. Out of droppes bryngeth he greate floudes together, ⁊ the thynge that is hyd, bryngeth he to lyght. Howe commeth a man then by wiſedome? There is nothynge ſo worthye, or ſo excellente, as once to be named vnto her: for perfite wyſedome goeth farre beyonde them al. The Topas that commeth out of Inde, may in no wyſe be likened vnto her: yea, no maner of apparell how pleaſaunt and faire ſo euer it be. From whence then commeth wyſedome? and where is the place of vnder- D ſtandynge? She is hyd from the eyes of all men liuynge: yea, and from the foules of the ayre. And why? I put vpon me ryghteouſnes,

The.xxx. Chapter.

The great deſpiſing of men, and curſe of God that Iob ſuffreth.

A But now they that are yonger thē I, haue me in deriſion: yea, euen they whoſe fathers I wolde haue thought ſcorne to haue ſet with yͤ dogges of my cattel. The power ⁊ ſtrēgth of theyr handes myghte do me no good, for the tyme is but loſte amonge them. For very myſery and honger they fled into the wyldernesse, a darke place, horrible ⁊ waſt, pluckyng vp nettels among the buſhes, and yͤ Juniper rotes for theyr meate. And whē they were driuen forth, men cried after thē, as it had ben after a thefe. Theyr dwelling was beſyde foule brookes: yea, in yͤ caues and dennes of the earth. Among yͤ buſches wente they aboute, crying: and vnder the thornes they gathered thē ſelues together.
They were yͤ chyldrē of fooles ⁊ villaines, which are vexed out of the worlde. *Now B am I theyr ſonge, and am become theyr Thre.3.c ieſtynge ſtocke: they abhorre me, and flye Psal.69.c farre from me, and ſtayne my face wyth ſpetle. For the lord hath leuſed the ſtrength of my bodye, and broughte me lowe: The brydle haue they caſt out of my ſyght. Upō my ryght hande ryſe the yonge mē againſte me, they haue hurt my fete treadynge vpon me, as vpon the wayes that they woulde deſtroye. My pathes haue they cleane marred.
It was ſo eaſie for thē to do me harme, that they neded no man to helpe thē. They fell vpon me as it had bene the breakyng in of waters, ⁊ came in by heapes to deſtroye me. Fearfulneſſe is tourned agaynſte me.

Myne honoure vanyſched awaye more ſwyftly then the wynde, ⁊ my proſperitie C departeth hence lyke as it were a cloude.
Therefore is my mynde poured ful of heuineſſe, and the daies of my trouble haue takē thorowe in the night ſeaſon, ⁊ my ſinewes take no reſt. For the vehemencie of ſorowe, is my garment chaunged, and accordyng to the deuerſitie of heuyneſſe, am I gyrded with my coate. He hath caſt me into yͤ mire, and I am become lyke aſſhes and duſte.

When I crie vnto the, thou doeſt not heare me: ⁊ thoughe I ſtande before the, yet thou regardeſt me not. Thou arte become myne enemye, and wyth thy violent hande thou takeſt parte agaynſte me. In tymes paſte thou dyddeſt ſet me vp on hye, as it were aboue the wynde, but nowe haſt thou giuē me a very ſore fall. Sure I am that thou wylte delyuer me vnto death, euen to the D lodgyng that is due vnto all men lyuyng.
Now vſe not men to do violence vnto thē, that are deſtroyed already: but where hurt is done, there vſe they to helpe. Dyd not I wepe wͭ him yͭ was in trouble? had not my ſoule cōpaſſion vpon the poore? Yet neuertheleſſe, theleſſe, where as I loked for good, euyll happened vnto me: and wher as I wayted for light, ther came darkeneſſe. My bowels ſethe within me, and take no reſte, for the dayes of my trouble are come vpon me. Mekely and lowly came I in: yea, and without any diſpleaſure: I ſtode vp in the congregacyō, and communed wyth them: But nowe I am a companion of dragons, and a felow of Eſtriches. My ſkynne vpon me is turned to blacke, and my bones are brent with heate: my harpe is turned to ſorowe, and my pype to wepynge.

A Eccle.41.c Mat.5.b. I Made a couenaunt with mine eyes * that I woulde not loke vpō a damſell. For how great a porcion ſhal I haue of God? and what enherytaunce from the almyghty on hye? As for the vngodlye & he that ioyneth hym ſelfe to the company of wicked doers, ſhal not deſtruccion & miſery come vpon hym? * Doth not he ſe my waies Job.34.c Prou.5.d & tell all my goinges? yf I haue walked in vanitie, or yf my feete haue rūne to diſceiue: let me be wayed in an euen balaunce, that God may ſe myne innocencye. * Yf ſo be that Psa.7.a. I haue withdrawē my foote out of yͤ right waye, and yf my hert hath folowed myne eyeſyghte: yf I haue ſtained or defyled my handes, than ſhall I ſowe, & an other eat: yea, my generacion and poſteritie ſhall be cleane rooted out. Yf myne hert hath luſted after my neyghbours wyfe, or if I haue layed wayte at his dore: O then let my wife B grynde vnto an other man, & let other mē Deu.22.c lie with her. * For this is a wickedneſſe and ſynne, that is worthy to be punyſhed: yea, a fyre yͭ vtterly ſhoulde conſume and roote out all my ſubſtaunce. Dyd I euer thynke ſcorne to do ryght vnto my ſeruauntes and maidens, whē they had any matter againſt me? But ſeing yͭ God wil ſyt in iudgement, what ſhal I do? And forſomuche as he wil nedes vyſet me, what anſwere ſhal I gyue hym? He that faſhioned me in my mothers wombe, made he not hym alſo? were we not bothe ſhapen alyke in oure mothers bodyes? When the poore deſyred anye thynge at me, haue I denyed it them? Haue I cauſed the widdowe to ſtande waiting for me in vayne? Haue I eaten my porcyon alone, that the fatherleſſe hath had no part wyth me? for mercy grewe vp with me fro my youth, and compaſſion frō my mothers wombe. Haue I ſene any mā periſh thorow nakedneſſe, and want of clothyng? Or any poore mā for lacke of rayment, whoſe ſides C thanked me not, becauſe he was warmed wyth the wol of my ſhepe? Dyd I euer lyft vp mine hand to hurt yͤ fatherleſſe? yea, in the gate where I ſawe my ſelfe to be in aucthoritie: then let mine arme fal from my ſhouldre, & myne arme holes be broken frō yͤ ioyntes. For I haue euer feared yͤ vengeaunce & puniſhment of God, and knew very wel, yͭ I was not able to beare his burthē. Haue I put my truſte in golde? Or haue I ſayde to the fyneſt golde of all: thou art my confydence? Haue I reioyſed becauſe my power was great, & becauſe my hande gat ſo much? * Dyd I euer greatly regarde the De and Sap ryſynge of the Sunne? Or had I yͤ goinge downe of the Moone in great reputacion? Hath my hert medled priuely wͭ any deceit? Or did I euer kiſſe myne owne hande? that were a wickedneſſe worthy to be puniſhed, for thē ſhould I haue denied yͤ God that is aboue. * Haue I euer reioiſed at the hurte Ps of myne enemye? Or was I euer glad that any harme happened vnto hym? Oh no: I neuer ſuffered my mouth to do ſuch a ſinne, as to wyſhe hym euel. Dyd not the men of D myne owne houſholde ſay: who ſhall let vs to haue our bely ful of his fleſh? I haue not ſuffered a ſtraunger to lye without, but I opened my dores vnto him, that went by yͤ waye. Haue I kept ſecret my ſinne, and hid mine iniquitie, as Adā did? Haue I feared any greate multitude of people? or if I had bene deſpiſed of the ſimple, O thē ſhould I haue bene afrayed. Thus haue I quietly ſpent my life, & not gone out at the dore: O that I had one which wolde heare me. Lo, this is my cauſe, In yͤ which the almightie ſhall anſwere for me: thoughe he that is my cōtrary party, hath writtē a booke againſt me: Yet wyl I take him vpō my ſhulder, & as a garlande about my head. I wil tel him the numbre of my goinges, & go vnto him as to a prince. But yf caſe be, yͭ my lande crie againſt me, or that yͤ forowes therof make any complaint: Yf I haue eaten the frutes therof vnpayed for: yea, yf I haue greued any of yͤ plowmen: thē let thiſtles growe in ſteade of my wheat, & cockle for my barlye.

The.xxxii.Chapter.

Elihu after the other had fynyſhed theyr cōmunicacion, repreueth them of folyſhneſſe. Age maketh not a man wyſe, but the ſprite of God. A

SO theſe thre mē wolde ſtriue nomore with Job, becauſe he helde him ſelf a ryghteous mā. But Elihu the ſonne of Barachell, the Buſſyte, of the kynred of Ram, was verye ſore diſpleaſed at Job, becauſe he called him ſelf iuſt before God. And wt Jobs thre frendes he was angry alſo, becauſe they had foũd no reſonable aũſwer to ouercome Job. Now taried Elihu, til they had ended their comunicaciõ wt Job, for why: they were elder B then he. So whẽ Elihu the ſonne of Barachel the Buſſite, ſaw that theſe thre mẽ were not able to make Job anſwere, he was miſcontent: Elihu the ſonne of Barachel the Buſſite aunſwered him ſelfe, & ſaid: *Conſidering that J am yong, and ye be mẽ of age: J was afrayd and durſt not ſhew forth my minde. For J thought thus within my ſelfe. Jt becometh olde men to ſpeake, & the aged to teache wiſdom. Euery mã (no doubt) hath a mynde, *but it is the inſpiraciõ of the Almyghtye that gyueth vnderſtandynge. Greate men are not alway wyſe, neyther doth euery aged man vnderſtand yͤ thinge yͭ is lawfull. Therefore will J ſpeake alſo C (heare me) & J wil ſhewe you alſo myne vnderſtandynge. For whẽ J had wayted til ye made an ende of your talkyng, and hearde your wiſedom, what argumẽtes ye made in your cõmunicaciõ: yea, when J had diligently pondred what ye ſayde, J found not one of you yͭ made any good argument agaynſte Job, that directlye could make aunſwere vnto his wordes: leſt ye ſhoulde ſaye: We haue foũde oute wyſedom: God ſhal caſt him downe, & no

He hath not ſpokẽ vnto me, & J will not ãſwere him as ye haue done (for they were ſo abaſhed, yͭ they coulde not make aũſwere, nor ſpeake one worde) but in ſo much as ye wil not ſpeake, ſtandyng ſtill lyke dõme men, & makynge no anſwere: J haue a good hope for my part, to ſhape him an aũſwere, & to ſhew hym my meanyng: For J am ful of wordes, & yͤ ſprite that is within me, cõpelleth me. Behold, my belly is as the wyne, whiche hath no vent, and burſteth the newe veſſelles in ſonder. Therfore will J ſpeke, yͭ J maye haue a vent: J will open my lippes, and make aũſwere. J wil regarde no maner of perſone, no man will J ſpare. For *yf J would go about to pleaſe mẽ, J know not howe ſoone my maker woulde take me awaye.

The.xxxiii.Chapter.

Elihu ſheweth wherein Job offendeth, with God may we not ſtryue, nor curiouſly ſearche out hys workes.

A Wherfore, heare my wordes (O Job) and herken vnto me all yͭ J will ſaye: Beholde, J haue nowe opened my mouthe, my tõge hath ſpokẽ in my throte: My hearte doth ordre my wordes aryght, and my lyppes talke of pure wiſedome. The ſprite of God hath made me, & *yͤ breath of the almightye hath geuen me my lyfe. Yf thou canſte, then gyue me aunſwere: prepare thy ſelf to ſtande before me, face to face. Beholde, before God am J euen as thou, for J am faſhioned & made euẽ of yͤ ſame moulde. Therfore, thou nedeſt not to be afrayed of me, neyther nedeſt yͧ to feare yͭ my authoritie ſhalbe to heuye

But lo, he hath picked a quarel agaynſt me, & taketh me for hys enemye: *he hath put my foote in the ſtockes, and loketh narowlye vnto al my pathes. Beholde, in this haſt thou not done ryght. J wil make anſwere vnto the, that God is more then man. And why doeſt thou thẽ ſtryue agaynſt him: for he ſhall not geue the accomptes of all his wordes. For whẽ God doth once cõmaunde a thynge, there
C ſhoulde no mã be curious to ſearch whether it be ryght. *Jn dreames & viſions of the nyght (when ſlombrynge commeth vpon men, that they fall a ſleape in theyr beddes) he roũdeth them in the eares, he informeth thẽ, & ſheweth thẽ plainly that it is he, which withdraweth mã frõ euel, deliuereth him frõ pryde, kepeth him frõ the graue, and his life from the ſwearde. He chaſteneth hym wt ſyckenes, & bryngeth hym to hys bed: he layeth ſore puniſhment vpon his bones, ſo that his life maye away with no breade, & hys ſoule abhorreth to eat any daynty meate: in ſo muche yͭ his body is cleane conſumed awaye, & his bones appeare nomore. His life draweth on to the graue, & his life to death. The. xxxiiii. Chapter.

Elihu prayſeth the iuſtice of God, which iudgeth

The. xxxv. Chapter.

Neither doeth godlynes profite, or vngodlyneſſe hurte to God, but to man.

A Elihu ſpake moreouer, ⁊ ſaid: Thinkeſt thou it ryght, that thou ſayeſt: I am ryghteous before God? For thou ſayeſt. What aduauntage will it be vnto the, and what profyte ſhalte ẏ haue of my ſynne? Therefore will I gyue anſwere vnto the, ⁊ to thy companions wᵗ the: loke vnto the heauen, and beholde it: conſider the cloudes, which are hier then thou. Yf thou haſt ſynned, what haſt thou B done agaynſt hym? yf thyne offences be many, what haſt thou done vnto hym? yf thou be righteous, what gyueſt ẏ him? Or what will he receiue of thyne hande? Of ſuche an vngodlye perſonne as thou, and of the ſonne of man that is righteous as thou pretendeſt to be: there is a great crye and cōplaint made by them ẏ are oppreſſed with violence: yea, euery mā complayneth vpon the cruelty of tyrauntes. For ſuche a one neuer ſayeth: C Where is God ẏ made me? and that geueth vs occaſiō to praiſe him in ẏ night? Which geueth vs more vnderſtandynge then he doth the beaſtes of the earth, and teacheth vs more then he doth ẏ foules of heauen. Yf any ſuche complayne, no man gyueth anſwere, and that bycauſe of the wyckednes of proude tyrauntes. D But yf a man call vpō God, doth not he heare him? Doeth not the Almightye accepte his crye? When thou ſpekeſt then, ſhoulde not he pardone the, yf thou open thy ſelfe before hym, and put thy truſt in him? Then vſeth he no violence in his wrath, nether hath he pleaſure in curious ⁊ depe inquiſicions. Therefore doth Job opē his mouth but in vayne, ⁊ fooliſhly doth he make ſo many wordes.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

Elihu ſheweth wherfore God puniſheth and correcteth.

A Elihu proceaded forth in his talkyng, ⁊ ſayd: Holde the ſtill a litle, ⁊ I ſhal ſhew the what I haue yet to ſpeke on Gods behalfe. I wil opē vnto the yet more of myne vnderſtādynge: ⁊ proue my matter righteous. And truely, my wordes ſhall not be vayne, ſeynge he is with the ẏ is perfite in knowlege: behold, the great God caſteth awaye no mā, for he him ſelfe is myghty in power ⁊ wiſedom. As for ẏ vngodly, he ſhal not perſerue him, but ſhal helpe the poore to their ryght. He ſhal turne his eyes away frō the on ryghteous, but as kynges ſhall they be in their trone: he ſhal ſtabliſh thē for euer, and they ſhalbe exalted. But yf they be layed in prieſon and chaynes, or bound with the bondes of trouble, then wil he ſhew thē their worke, ⁊ the ſynnes wherwith they haue vſed cruell violēce. B He with puniſhyng ⁊ nurtrynge of them roūdeth thē in the eares, warneth thē to leaue of frō their wickednes, ⁊ to amēde. *Yf they now wil take hede ⁊ ſerue him, *Eſay.i.c they ſhall weare out their dayes in ꝓſperitie, ⁊ their yeares in pleaſure, and ioye. But yf they will not herkē, they ſhall go thorow ẏ ſwerde, ⁊ periſh for euer; they be aware. As for ſuche as be fained ypocrites, they ſhal heap vp wrath for them ſelues: for they cal not vpō him, though they be his prieſoners. Thus ſhall their ſoule periſhe in fooliſheneſſe, ⁊ their life ſhalbe cōdemned among the fornicatours. The poore ſhall he deliuer out of his afflicciō, ⁊ rounde thē in the eare when they be in trouble. Euen ſo ſhal he kepe the (yf thou wylt be contente) frō the bottomleſſe pyt that is beneth: ⁊ yf thou wylte holde the quiete, he ſhall fyll thy table with plenteouſneſſe. C Neuertheleſſe, thou haſt cōdēned the iudgememēt of the vngodly: yea, euen ſuche a iudgement ⁊ ſentence ſhalt thou ſuffre. For thē ſhall not thy cauſe be ſtilled with crueltye, nor pacifyed with many gyftes. Thinkeſt thou, that he wil regarde thy rycheſſe? he ſhall not care for golde, nor for all them ẏ excel in ſtrēgth. Prolonge not thē ẏ time, till there come a nyght for the, to ſet other people in thy ſteade. But beware that thou turne not aſyde to wyckednes ⁊ ſynne, whiche hitherto thou haſt choſen more then mekenes. Beholde, God is of a myghtye hye power: Where is ther ſuche a guyde and law geuer as he? Who will reproue hym of his way? Who wil ſay vnto him: thou haſt done wronge. D O cōſider how great ⁊ excellent his workes be, whom al men loue ⁊ praiſe: yea, wōder at him, and yet they ſe him but afarre of. Beholde, ſo great is God, that he paſſeth out knowlege, neither are we able to come to ẏ expiēce of his yeares. Deu.11.b. and.28.b, *He turneh ẏ water to ſmall droppes, he driueth his cloudes together for to rayne, ſo that they poure down ⁊ drop vpō mē. He cā ſprede out ẏ cloudes (a coueryng of his Tabernacle) ⁊ cauſe his light to ſhyne vpō them, ⁊ to couer ẏ botome of ẏ ſea. By theſe thiges gouerneth he his people, ⁊ gyueth thē aboūdaunce of meate. With the cloudes he hydeth the light: ⁊ at his cõmaundemẽt it cõmeth agayn. The ryſynge vp therof ſheweth he to his frẽdes, ⁊ to the catell.

The.xxxvii. Chapter.

Elihu proueth that the wyſedome of God his vnſercheable.

A AT this my hearte is aſtonnyed, and moued out of his place. Heare then the ſounde of his voyce, and yͤ noyſe that goeth oute of his mouth. He gouerneth euery thing vnder the heauen, and his lyghte reacheth vnto the ende of the worlde. A roaryng voyce foloweth him: for his glorious maieſtie gyueth ſuche a thondre clappe, that (thoughe a man heare it) yet may he not perceiue it afterwarde. It gyueth an horrible ſoũde whẽ God ſendeth out his voyce: greate thynges doeth he which we can not comprehende psa.147.b. * When he cõmaundeth the ſnow, it falleth vpon the earth: As ſoone as he gyueth the rayne a charge, immediatlye the ſhowers haue their ſtrength, ⁊ fall downe. He ſendeth feare vpon euery mã, that they myght know their owne workes. B The beaſtes crepe into their dẽnes, and take their reſt: out of the South cõmeth the tẽpeſt, ⁊ cold out of the North. At the breath of God the froſt cõmeth, ⁊ the waters are ſhed abrode. He maketh the cloudes to do theyr labour, in geuig moyſtneſſe: and agayne with hys lyghte he dryueth awaye the cloudes. He dyſtrybuteth alſo on euery ſide, accordyng as it pleaſeth hym to deale oute hys workes: that they maye doe whatſoeuer he commaundeth thẽ thorow the whole world: C whether it be to puniſhe any lande, or to do good vnto them that ſeke him. Herkẽ vnto this (O Job) ſtand ſtill, and conſidre the wõderous workes of God. Arte thou of coũſaile with God, when he doth theſe thynges? When he cauſeth yͤ lyght to come forth of his cloudes? Art thou of his counſayle, when he ſpreadeth out the cloudes? Haſt thou yͤ perfect knowledge of his wonders? And howe thy clothes are warme, whẽ the lande is ſtil thorow the South wynde? For euerye man ſeeth not the lyghte yͭ he kepeth cleare in the cloudes, whiche he clenſeth when he maketh the wynde to blow. Golde is brought out of the north, but the prayſe and honour of Gods feare commeth frõ God him ſelfe. It is not we that can fynde out the almighty: for in power, equitie ⁊ rightouſnes, he is hier then can be expreſſed. Let men therfore feare him, for there ſhal no mã ſe him, yͭ is wiſe in his owne cõceyt.

whiche were yet vnborne. To thintente that when they came vp, they might ſhew B theyr childrẽ the ſame. That they might putte theyr truſte in God, and not to forget the workes of God, but to kepe hys 3e.20.f commaundementes. And not to bee e.32.a. * as theyr forefathers ‡ a faythleſſe and ſtubburne generacion: a generacion that ſette not theyr hearte a ryghte, and whoſe ſpirite cleaued not ſtedfaſtely vnto God.
Like as the children of Ephraim, which beyng harneſſed and carying bowes, turned themſelues backe in the daye of bat-tayle. They kepte not the couenaunte of God, and woulde not walke in his law.
But forgat what he hadde done, and the wonderfull workes that he hadde ſhewed for them. Meruailous thinges dyd he in the ſyghte of oure fathers in the land of Egypt, euen in the fyelde of Zoan.

Lorde heard this, he was wroth: ſo the fyre was kindled in Jacob, and there came vp heauye dyſpleaſure againſte Iſrael.
Becauſe thei beleued not in god, and put not theyr truſte in hys helpe. So he cõ-

But as for his own people, he led them to dwel in their tentes. So thei tempted and diſpleaſed the moſt hye God, and kept not his teſtimonies. But turned theyr backes, and fell awaye lyke theyr forefathers: ſtarting aſide, like a broken bowe.

For they greued hym with their hyll altars, & prouoked hym to diſpleaſure with theyr images. When God heard this, he was wroth, and toke ſore diſpleaſure at Iſrael. So that he forſoke the tabernacle in Silo, euen the tent that he hadde pitched among menne. He deliuered their power into captyuitye, and theyr beautye into the enemyes hande. He gaue hys people ouer alſo into the ſwearde, & was wrothe wyth his enheritaunce. The fyre conſumed theyr younge menne: and theyr maydens were not geuen to maryage.
Theyr prieſtes were ſlayne with the ſweard, and there were no widdowes to make lamentacyon. So the Lorde awaked as one out of ſlepe, and lyke a giaunte refreſhed with wyne. *He ſmote 1.Reg. his enemies in the hinder partes, and putte them to a perpetuall ſhame. He refuſed the Tabernacle of Joſeph, and choſe not the trybe of Ephraim. *But choſe Pſal. the trybe of Juda, euen the hyll of Syon whiche he loued. And there he builded his temple on hye, and layed the foundacion of it, lyke the grounde whiche he hathe alſo hys ſeruaunte, and tooke hym awaye from the ſhepefoldes. As he was folowyng the ewes greate wyth yong ones he tooke hym: that he myghte feede Jacob hys people, and Iſraell hys inherytaunce.

So he fed them wyth a faythefull and true hearte, and ruled them prudentelye wyth all hys power.

fleſhe trembleth for feare of the: and I am afrayed of thy iudgemẽtes. I deale with O the thyng that is lawful and righte: O gyue me not ouer vnto myne oppreſſours.

Make thou thy ſeruaunt to delyte in that whyche is good: that the proude do me no am thy ſeruaunt, O graunte me vnderſtandyng, that I maye knowe thy teſtymonies.

It is tyme for thee Lorde to laye to thyne hande, for they haue deſtroyed thy lawe.
For I loue thy commaundementes aboue golde ⁊ precious ſtone. Therfore holde I ſtreyghte all thy commaundementes, and R all falſe wayes I vtterly abhorre. Thy teſtimonyes are wonderful: therfore dothe my ſoule kepe them. When thy worde goeth forth, it geueth lyght and vnderſtanding, euen vnto the ſymple. I opened my Thou haſt faſhioned me behinde and before, and layd thyne hand vpon me.

Suche knowledge is to wonderfull and excellent for me: I can not attayne vnto Amos.9.c it. * Whyther ſhall I go then from thy B ſpyrite, or whither ſhall I go then from thy preſence? Yf I clime vp into heauen, thou art there: Yf I go downe to hell, thou art there alſo. Yf I take the wynges of the mornyng, and remayne in the vttermooſte partes of the ſea. Euen there alſo ſhal thy hande leade me: and thy ryghte hande ſhall holde me. Yf I ſaye, paraduenture the darckeneſſe ſhall couer me: then ſhall my night be turned to day. Yea, the darknes is no darkneſſe with the, but the nyghte is all cleare as the daye: the darknes and C lighte (to the) are bothe alyke. For my reynes are thyne, thou haſte couered me in my mothers wombe. I wil geue thankes vnto the, for I am fearfully and wonderouſly made: marueلous are thy workes, & that my ſoule knoweth ryght well. My bones are not hyd from the, thoughe I be made ſecretlye, and faſhioned beneth in the earth. Thyne eyes dyd ſe my ſubſtaunce, yet beyng vnperfecte: and in thy boke were all my members wrytten. Whych day by daye were faſhioned, when as yet ther was none of thē. Howe dere are thy councels vnto me, O God? O howe greate is the D ſumme of them? Yf I tel thē, they are moe in numbre then the ſand: when I wake vp, I am preſente wyth the. Wylte thou not ſlay the wycked, O God? departe from me ye bloude thurſty men. For they ſpeake vnryghteouſlye agaynſte the, and thyne enemyes take thy name in vayne. Do not I hate them, O Lorde, that hate the? and am not I greued with thoſe that ryſe vp againſt thee? Yea, I hate thē right ſore, euen as thoughe they wer myne enemies. Pſal.26.a * Trye me, O God, and ſeke the grounde of myne herte: proue me and examen my thoughtes. Loke well yf there be anye waye of wyckedneſſe in me, and leade me in the waye euerlaſtyng.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme of Dauid.

Delyuer me, O Lorde, from the A euell man, and preſerue me from the wycked man. Whyche imagine miſchefe in their hertes: and ſtirre vp ſtrife al the daye long. They haue ſharpened theyr tonges like a ſerpēt: * Ro.iii.c Adders poyſon is vnder their lyppes. Sela. A Proue.1.c Doeth not * wyſedome crye? doeth not vnderſtandyng put foorthe her voyce? Standeth ſhe not in the hye places, in the ſtretes and wayes? doeth ſhe not crye before the whole cytie, and in the gates where menne gooe oute and in? It is you, O ye menne (ſayeth ſhe) whome I call. Unto (the chyldren of menne) doe I lyfte vp my voyce. Take hede vnto knowledge, O ye ignoraunte: bee wyſe in herte, O ye fooles. Geue eare, for I wyll ſpeake of great matters, and open my lyppes to tell thynges that be ryght. For my throte ſhalbe talking of the trueth, and my lyppes abhorre vnB godlyneſſe. All the wordes of my mouthe are ryghteous, there is no frowardneſſe nor falſhed therein. They are all playne to ſuche as will vnderſtande, ⁊ ryght to them that fynde knowledge. Receyue my doctrine, ⁊ not ſiluer: and my knowledge more then fyne golde. * For wyſedome is more worthe then precious ſtones: yea, al thynges that thou canſte deſyre, may not bee compared vnto it. I wyſedome haue my dwellyng wyth knowlage, and prudent counſayle is myne owne. The feare of the Lord abhorreth wickednes, pryde, dyſdayne, and the euyll waye: and a mouthe that ſpeaketh wycked thynges, I vtterlye abhorre. I canne geue counſayle, and I conferre thynges: I haue C vnderſtadyng, I haue ſtrength. * Thorowe me, kynges raygne: thorowe me, counſaylers make iuſt lawes. Thorowe me, doe prynces beare rule: and all iudges of the earthe execute iudgemente. I am louyng vnto thoſe that loue me: and * they that ſeeke me early ſhall fynde me. The earth and all that is vpon the earthe was not yet made, noe, not the grounde it E ſelfe. * For when he made the heauens, I was preſente: when he ſette vp the depthes in ordre, when he hanged the cloudes aboue, when he faſtened the ſprynges of the depe. When he ſhut the ſea within * certayne boundes, that the waters ſhoulde not goe ouer theyr markes that he commaunded. When he layed the foundacions of the earthe I was wyth hym, ordryng all thynges: delytynge daylye, and reioyſynge alwaye before hym. As for the rounde compaſſe of thys worlde, I make it ioyfull: for my delyte is to bee among the chyldren of menne. Therfore herken vnto me, O ye chyldren, bleſſed are they that kepe my wayes. O geue eare vnto nurtoure, be wyſe and refuſe it not. Bleſſed is the man that heareth me: watchinge dayly at my gates, and geuing attẽdaunce at the poſtes of my doores. hath God geuen vnto the children of men, D to exerciſe themſelues therein. Thus haue I conſydered all the thynges that come to paſſe vnder the ſunne: and loe, they are al but vanitye, and vexacion of mind. The crocked can not bee made ſtreyght, nor the thynge that is vnperfecte, cannot bee accompted with thynges that are perfecte. I communed with mine owne heart, ſaying: loe, I am come to a great eſtate, and haue gotten more wiſedome, then all they that haue been before me in Ieruſalem. Yea, my heart had great experience of wiſedom and knoweledge, for therevnto I applyed my mynde, that I myghte knowe what were wyſedom and vnderſtanding: what were erroure and foolyſheneſſe: and I perceiued, that this alſo was but a vexaciō of mind: for where muche wiſedome is, there is alſo great trauayle and diſquietneſſe: and the more knoweledge a manne hath, the more is his care.

The .ii. Chapter.

Aboundaunce of ryches, of pleaſure, and of buyldyng, are vayne thynges.

Then ſayde I thus in my hearte: A Nowe goe to, I wyl take mine eaſe, and haue good dayes. But loe, that is vanitie alſo: inſomuch that I ſayd vnto the man geuen to laughter: thou art mad, and to mirth: what doeſt thou? So I thoughte in my hearte, to geue my fleſhe vnto wyne, and agayne to applye my mynde vnto wyſedome, and to comprehende foolyſheneſſe, vntyl the tyme that (amonge all the thynges whiche are trees wythall. I boughte ſeruauntes and maydens: and had a greate houſholde. As for cattell and ſheepe, I hadde more ſubſtaunce of them, then all they that were before me in Ieruſalem. I gathered ſyluer & gold together, euen a treaſure of kinges and landes. I prouided me ſingers, & women, which coulde playe on inſtrumentes, to make men myrth and paſtyme. I gatte me pſalteries and ſonges of muſycke. And I was greater, and in more woorſhyppe thē all my predeceſſours in Ieruſalem. For wyſedome remayned wyth me: and looke whatſoeuer myne eyes deſyred, I let them haue it: and wherein ſoeuer my hearte delyted or had anye pleaſure, I withhelde it not from it. Thus my hearte reioyſed in all yͭ I did: and thys was my porciō of al my trauayle. But when I conſydered all the workes that my handes had wroughte, & all the labour that I had taken therein: lo, al was but vanitye and vexacion of mind, & nothyng of any value vnder the Sunne.

Then turned I me to cōſider wiſedom, ererroure and fooliſheneſſe: (for what is he C amonge menne that mighte bee compared to me the kinge in ſuche woorkes?) and I ſawe that wiſedome excelleth fooliſhenes, as farre as lighte doeth darkeneſſe. For a wiſe manne hath his eyes in his head, but the foole goeth in the darkeneſſe: I perceiued alſo that they both had one ende. Thẽ thoughte I in my minde: yf it happen vnto the foole as it doeth vnto me, what nedeth me then to laboure any more for wiſedome?

So I confeſſed within my hearte, that this alſo was but vanitye. For the wiſe are euer as litle in remembraunce as the fooliſhe, for the dayes ſhall come when all ſhalbee forgotten: yea, the wyſe manne dyeth as wel as the foole. Thus beganne I to be werye of my lyfe, inſomuch that I could away with nothing yͭ is done vnder the Sunne, for all was but vanitye and vexacion of minde: yea I was wery of all my laboures, which I had taken vnder the ſunne, becauſe I ſhoulde be faine to leaue them vnto another manne that commeth after me: And who knoweth whether he ſhalbee a wiſe manne or a foole? And yet ſhall he bee Lorde of al my labours, which I with ſuche wiſedome haue taken vnder the ſunne. This is alſo a vaine thynge.
D So I turned me to refraine my minde frõ al ſuch trauaile, as I toke vnder the ſunne: forſomuche as a manne ſhould werie himſelfe with wiſedom, with vnderſtanding, and oportunitie, and yet bee faine to leaue his laboures vnto another, yͭ neuer ſwet for them. This is alſo a vayne thynge and greate myſery. For what getteth a manne of all the laboure and trauayle of hys mynde, that he taketh vnder the Sunne, but heauineſſe, ſorowe, and diſquietnes all the dayes of hys lyfe? Inſomuche, that hys hearte can not reſte in the nighte: thys is alſo a vayne thynge. * Is it not Eccle.5.d better then for a manne to eate and drinke, and hys ſoule to bee merye in his laboure? yea, I ſawe that thys alſo was a gyfte of God.

For who will eate or goe more luſtelye to hys woorke then I? And why? God geueth to the manne that is good beefore hym, wyſedome, vnderſtanding and gladneſſe: but vnto the ſynner he geueth weryneſſe (and ſuperfluous care,) that he maye gather, and heape together the thynge that afterwarde ſhalbe geuen vnto him, whom it pleaſeth God. Thys is nowe a vayne thinge: yea a very diſquietneſſe and vexacion of mynde.

The .iii. Chapter.

All thynges come in theyr time, and paſſe awaye in theyr tyme.

Euerye thynge hathe a tyme: yea, all that is vnder the heauen A hathe hys conueniente ſeaſon.
There is a tyme to bee borne, and a time to dye.
There is a tyme to plante, and a tyme to plucke vp the thing that is planted. A time to ſlaye, and a time to make hoole. A time to breake downe, and a tyme to builde vp.
A tyme to weepe, and a time to laughe. A tyme to mourne, and a time to daunce. A tyme to caſte awaye ſtones, and a tyme to gather ſtones together. A time to embrace, and a tyme to refrayne from embracinge.
A tyme to winne, and a time to loſe. A time to ſpare, and a time to ſpende. A time to cutte in pieces, and a tyme to ſowe together. B
.* A tyme to keepe ſcilence, and a tyme Eccle. to ſpeake. A tyme to loue, and a tyme to E.3.b hate. A time of warre, and a time of peace.
What hathe a manne elles (that dothe any thinge) but werineſſe and laboure? For as touchynge the trauayle and carefulnes, whiche God hathe geuen vnto menne, I ſee that he hathe geuen it them, to bee exercised in it. All this hath he ordeyned marueylous goodlye, to euerye thynge hys due tyme. He hath planted ignoraunce alſo in the heartes of menne, that they ſhoulde not comprehend the groũd of his workes, whiche he dothe from the begynnynge to the ende. So I perceyued, that in theſe thynges there is nothyng better for a mã, C then to bee merye, and to doe wel ſo longe as he liueth. For all that a manne eateth and drynketh: yea, whatſoeuer a manne enioyeth of all hys laboure, that ſame is a gyfte of God. I conſydered alſo that whatſoeuer God doeth, it continueth for euer. And that nothynge can bee putte vnto it, nor taken from it: and that God doeth it to thentente that menne ſhould feare hym. * The thynge that hathe beene, is Eccle nowe: and the thinge that is for to come, hathe beene afore tyme, for God reſtoreth agayne the thynge that was paſte.
Moreouer, I ſawe vnder the Sunne vngodlines in the ſtead of iudgement, and iniquitye, in ſteade of ryghteouſneſſe. Then thought I in my minde: God ſhal ſeperate the righteous from the vngodly, and then ſhalbe the time and iudgement of al counſailes and workes. I cõmuned with mine owne

own heart alſo, concerning the children of men: how God hath choſen them, and D yet letteth thē appeare, as though they were beaſtes: for it happeneth vnto men as it doeth vnto beaſtes: and as the one dyeth, ſo dyeth the other: yea, they haue both one maner of breth: ſo that (in this) a man hath no preeminence aboue a beaſt, but all are ſubdued vnto vanitye. They go al vnto one place, for as they be all of duſt, ſo ſhall they all turne vnto duſte again. *Who knoweth the ſpirit of man ȳ goeth vpward, & the breth of the beaſt ȳ goeth down into the earth? Wherfore I perceiue that there is nothing better for a man, then to be ioyful in hys labor: for that is hys porcion. But who wil bring him to ſee the thing that ſhal come after hym?

SO I turned me, and *cōſidred all the violente wrong that is done vnder the ſunne: and behold, ȳ teares of ſuch as wer oppreſſed, and there was no man to confort them, or that would deliuer and defend them from the violence of their oppreſſors. Wherfore I iudged thoſe that are dead, to be more happy then thoſe ȳ be alyue: yea, hym ȳ is yet vnborne to be better at eaſe then they both, becauſe he ſeeth not the miſerable workes that are done vnder the ſunne. Again, I ſaw that B all trauaile and diligence of labour that euery man taketh in hande, was done of enuy agaynſt hys neighbour. This is alſo a vaine thing, and a vexacion of minde. The foole foldeth hys handes together and eateth vp his own fleſhe. One handfull (ſayeth he) is better with reſte, then both the handes full with laboure and trauayle of mynde. Moreouer, I turned me, and beholde yet another vanitye vnder the Sunne. There is one manne, no moe but hymſelfe alone, hauyng neyther chylde nor brother: yet is there no ende of hys carefull trauayle: hys eyes cannot bee ſatyſfyed with rycheſſe, (yet doeth C he not remembre himſelfe, and ſay:) For whome doe I take ſuche trauayle? For whoſe pleaſure doe I thus conſume awaye my lyfe? This is alſo a vayne and miſerable thyng. Therefore two are better then one: for they may wel enioy the profit of theyr labour. For if one of them fal, hys companyon helpeth hym vp agayne: But woe is hym that is alone: for if he fal, he hath not another to helpe him vp. Again whē two ſlepe together they are warme: but howe can a bodye be warme alone? One may bee ouercome, but two maye make reſyſtaunce. A three folde gable is not lyghtely broken. A poore chylde beyng wyſe is better then an olde king that doteth, and cannot beware in tyme to D come. *Some one cummeth out of priſon, and is made a kyng: and another whiche is borne in the kyngdome cummeth vnto pouertye. And I perceyued that all menne liuyng vnder the Sunne, goe with the ſeconde chylde, that ſhall ſtande vp in the ſtede of the other. As for the people that haue beene before hym, and that come after hym, they are innumerable. And they that come after hym ſhall not reioyce of hym. Thys is alſo a vayne thyng and vexacyon of mynde. When thou cummeſte into the houſe of God, kepe thy foote, and draw nye, that God which is at hande may heare: *that thou geue not the offringes of foles: for they knowe naughte but to doe euil.

gayne, there be vngodly, with whome D it goeth as though they had the workes of the righteous. This haue I called alſo a vayne thyng. Therfore I commende gladneſſe, becauſe a man hath no better thyng vnder the ſunne, then to eate and drynke, and to be mery: for that ſhall he haue of hys labour all the dayes of hys lyfe, whiche God geueth hym vnder the Sunne. And ſo I applied my mynde to learne wyſedome, and to knowe the trauayle that is in the worlde (and that of ſuche a faſhyon that I ſuffered not mine eies to ſlepe, neither day nor night:) I vnderſtode of all the workes of god, but it is not poſſible for a man to attayn vnto the woorkes that are done vnder the Sunne: and though he beſtowe hys laboure to ſeeke them out, yet can he not reache vnto them: yea, though a wyſemã woulde vndertake to knowe them, yet ſhall he not fynde them.

A manne wotteth not by the righteouſnes of hys owne woorkes, whether he bee worthye of loue or hate. A manne ought to liue merily with his wife. A prayſe of wiſedome.

A FOr al theſe thynges purpoſed I in my minde to ſeke out. The ryghteous and wyſe, yea, and theyr ſeruantes alſo, are in the hande of God: and there is no manne that knoweth eyther loue or hate, but al thynges are before them. It happeneth vnto one as vnto an other: it goeth with the ryghteous as with the vngodlye: * Job.9.c with the good and cleane, as with the vncleane: with him that offreth, as with hym that offereth not: lyke as it goeth with the verteous, ſo goeth it alſo with the ſinner. As it happeneth vnto the periured, ſo happeneth it alſo to hym that is afrayde to bee forſworne. Among all thynges that come to paſſe vnder the Sunne, thys is a miſerye, that it happeneth vnto all alyke. Thys is the cauſe alſo that the heartes of menne are ful of wickedneſſe, and madde foolyſheneſſe is in theyr heartes, as longe as they lyue, vntyll they dye.

B And why? as long as a manne liueth he hath an hope: for a quicke dogge (ſay they) is better thẽ a dead Lyon: for they that bee liuynge, knowe that they ſhall dye: but they that bee deade, knowe nothyng, neyther deſerue they anye more. For theyr memoryall is forgotten, ſo that they bee neyther loued, hated, nor enuyed: neyther haue they any more part in the world, in al that is done vnder the ſunne. Goe thou thy waye then, eate thy bread with ioy, & drynke thy wyne with a glad heart, for thy workes pleaſe god. Let thy garmentes be alwaye whyte, * Mat.6. and lette thyne head lacke no oyntment. * Vſe thy ſelfe to lyue ioyfully with thy Prou.5.c wyfe whome thou loueſt, all the dayes of thy lyfe, which is but vayne, that god geueth thee vnder the ſunne, al the dayes of thy vanitye: for that is thy porcion in thys lyfe, of al thy labour and trauayle that thou takeſt vnder the Sũne. What ſoeuer thou takeſt in hande to dooe, that C dooe with al thy power, for in the graue that thou goeſte vnto, there is neyther woorke, counſayl, knowledge, nor wiſedome. So I turned me vnto other thinges vnder the Sunne, and I ſawe, that in runnyng, it helpeth not to bee ſwifte: in battayle, it helpeth not to bee ſtrong: to feedyng, it helpeth not to be wyſe: to rycheſſe, it helpeth not to bee ſubtyll: to be hadde in fauour, it helpeth not to bee cunnyng: but that all lyeth in tyme and fortune. * For a manne knoweth not hys Luk.12.d tyme, but lyke as the fyſhes are taken with the Angle, and as the byrdes are caughte with the ſnare: Euen ſo are men taken in the perilous tyme, when it cummeth ſodenlye vpon them.

Thys wyſedome haue I ſene alſo vnder yͤ Sunne, and me thought it a great D thing. There was a litle citye, and a few menne within it: ſo there came a greate Kyng and beſieged it, and made greate bulwoorkes agaynſte it. And in the citie there was founde a poore manne (but he was wyſe) whiche with hys wiſedome delyuered the citye: yet was there no body that had anye reſpect to ſuch a ſimple manne. Then ſayd I: Wiſedome is better then ſtrength. Neuertheles a ſymple mannes wyſedome is deſpyſed, and his woordes are not hearde. A wyſe mans counſayle that is folowed in ſcilence, is farre aboue the crying of a capitayne among fooles. * For wiſedome is better Sapi.6.a 1.Re.17 2.Re.20 then harneſſe: but one vnthryft alone deſtroyeth much good.

The.x. Chapter.

The dyfference betwixte a foole and a wyſe manne. Fortunate and happye is that Realme, whiche hath a wyſe prynce.

A dead

A A Dead flye doth corrupt ſwete oyntmente, and maketh it to ſtynke: Euen ſo ofte tymes he that is made for wiſedome and honour, is abhorred becauſe of a litle foolyſheneſſe. A wyſe mannes hearte is vpon the ryghthande, but a fooles heart vpon the left. A foole will ſhewe hymſelfe when he goeth by the way: yet thynketh he that euerye man dooeth as foolyſhelye as hymſelfe. If a pryncypall ſpiryte bee geuen thee to Rom 12.b beare rule, *bee not neglygente then in thyne offyce: for he that can take cure of B hymſelfe auoydeth great offences. Another plague is there, whiche I haue ſene vnder the Sunne: namelye, the ignoraunce that is commenlye among prynces, in that a foole ſytteth in great dygnitye, and the ryche are ſette downe beneath.
I haue ſeene ſeruauntes ryde vpon horſes, ⁊ princes goyng vpon theyr Pro.26.d Eccl.27.d feete as it wer ſeruauntes. *But he that dyggeth vp a pyt ſhal fal therin himſelf, and whoſo breaketh downe the hedge, a ſerpent ſhal byte him. Whoſo remoueth he that heweth wood, ſhalbe hurt therewith.

When an yron is blũt, ⁊ the poynt not ſharpened, it muſt be whet agayne, ⁊ that with might: Euen ſo doth wiſedom C folow diligence. A babler of his tong is no better then a ſerpent yͭ ſtingeth without hyſſing. The wordes out of a wyſe mans mouth, are gracious: but yͤ lippes of a foole wil deſtroye himſelfe. The beginning of his talking is fooliſheneſſe, ⁊ the laſt worde of his mouthe is ſtarke madnes. A foole is ful of wordes, and a man cãnot tel what ſhal come to paſſe, who will then warne him of it that ſhal folow after him? The labour of the foolyſhe is grieuous vnto them, while they know not how to goe into the citie. Woe be vnto thee (O thou lande) whoſe king is but a chylde, ⁊ whoſe princes are early at theyr bankets. But well is thee (O D thou lande) whoſe Kyng is come of nobles, ⁊ whoſe princes eate in due ſeaſon, for neceſſitie and not for luſte. Thorowe ſlouthfulnes yͤ balkes fal downe, ⁊ thorow ydle handes it raineth in at yͤ houſe. pſa.104.b Meate maketh mẽ to laugh, ⁊ *wine maketh them mery: but vnto money are all thinges obedient. Wiſhe the king no euil in thy thought, and ſpeake no hurt of the riche in thy prieuy chambre: for a byrde of the ayre ſhall betraye thy voyce, and with her fethers ſhall ſhe bewraye thy wordes.

The.xi. Chapter.

Riches ought to be diſtributed vnto the nedye:

Lay thy bread vpon wete faces, ⁊ ſo A ſhalt thou fynde after many dayes.
Geue parte ſeuen dayes, ⁊ alſo vpon the.viii. for thou knoweſte not what miſery ſhal come vpon earthe. When the cloudes are ful, they powre out rayne vpon yͤ earth. And when the tree falleth (whether it be toward yͤ ſouth or north) in what place ſoeuer it fal, there it lyeth.
He that regardeth yͤ wind, ſhal not ſow: B and he that hath reſpect vnto the cloudes, ſhall not reape. Nowe, lyke as thou knoweſt not the waye of the ſpirite how it entreth into the litle body, being yet in the mothers wombe: Euen ſo thou knoweſt not the workes of God, which is the workemaiſter of all.

Ceaſe not thou therfore with thy handes to ſowe thy ſeede, whether it bee in the mornyng or in the euenyng: for thou knoweſt not whether thys or that ſhall proſpere: and if they bothe take, it is the better. The lyghte is ſwete, and a pleaſaunte thyng is it for the eyes to looke C vpon the Sunne. If a manne lyue many yeres, and bee gladde in them all, lette hym remembre the dayes of darkeneſſe, whiche ſhalbe many: and that foloweth, all thynges ſhall bee but vanytye. Bee gladde then (O thou younge manne) in thy youth, and let thy hearte be merye in thy yonge dayes: folowe the wayes of thyne owne heart, and the luſte of thyne eyes, but be thou ſure, yͭ God ſhall bring thee into iudgement for al theſe thinges.

The.xii. Chapter.

From our youth ought we to conſidre, and regarde the goodnes of God.

Put awaye dyſpleaſure out of A thyne heart, ⁊ remoue euill frõ thy body: for childehood, and youth is but vanitie. Remembre thy maker yͤ ſoner in thy youth, or euer the dayes of aduerſitie come, ⁊ or the yeres drawe nye, whẽ thou ſhalt ſaye: I haue not pleſure in thẽ: before the ſunne, the light, the mone ⁊ ſtarres be darkned, and or the cloudes turne agayne after yͤ rayne, when yͤ kepers of yͤ houſe ſhal trẽble, and when the ſtrong men ſhal bowe themſelues, when the mylners ſtande ſtyl, becauſe they bee ſo fewe, and when B the ſyghte of the wyndowes ſhall waxe dymme, when the doores in the ſtretes ſhalbe ſhut, ⁊ when the voyce of the mylner ſhalbe layed downe: when men ſhall ryſe vp at the voyce of the birde, ⁊ when al ẏ daughters of muſik ſhalbe brought low: when men ſhal feare in hye places, and be afrayde in the ſtretes: when ẏ Almond tree ſhall floryſhe, ⁊ be laden with C the greſſehopper, ⁊ whē al luſt ſhal paſſe (becauſe man goeth to hys long home: ⁊ the mourners goe about ẏ ſtretes.) Or euer the ſiluer lace be taken away, ⁊ or the golden wel be brokē. Or the pot be broken at the wel, ⁊ the whele vpon ẏ ceſterne. Then ſhal the duſt be turned again vnto earth, from whence it came: and the ſpirit ſhal returne vnto god, which gaue it. *Al is but vanitie, (ſayth ẏ preacher) Eccleſ.1.a al is but playne vanitye. The preacher was yet more wyſe, and taught the people knoweledge: he gaue good heede, ſought out the groūd, and ſet furth ma- D ny parables: His diligence was to finde out acceptable wordes, right ſcripture, Hebre.4.c and the woordes of truethe. For *the woordes of the wyſe are lyke prickes ⁊ nayles, that goe thorow, wherwith the ſtuffe gathered is holden vp: for they are geuen of one ſhepeheard onelye. Therfore beware (my ſonne) of that doctryne that is beſyde thys: for to make manye bookes, it is an endeleſſe woorke: and to loude crying werieth the body. Lette vs heare the concluſion of al thynges: Feare God, and kepe hys commaundementes: For that toucheth all menne. For God ſhall iudge al workes and ſecrete thynges, whether they be good or euil.

The Ballet of Ballettes of Salomō: called in Latin, Canticum Canticorum.

A miſtical ſong of the ſpirituall and godlye loue betwene Chriſte the ſpouſe, and the churche or congregacion his ſpouſeſſe.

A O That he woulde kyſſe me ẇ the kiſſes of his mouth: for thy loue is more pleaſaunte then wyne, and that beecauſe of the good and pleaſaunte ſauoure of thy moſte precious balmes. Thy name is* Eccl.7.a a ſwete ſmellyng oyntmente when it is ſhed furth: therfore do the maidens loue thee, drawe thou me vnto thee, we will runne after thee. The king hath brought me into his priuie chambres. We wil be glad and reioyce in thee: we thinke more of thy loue then of wyne. They that bee righteous loue thee. I am blacke (O ye B daughters of Jeruſalem) lyke as * the Gen.25. tentes of the Cedarenes, and †as the hanginges of Salomon, but yet am I fayre and wel fauoured withal. Marueil not at me that I am ſo blacke: for why, the ſūne hath ſhyned vpon me. My mothers chyldren had euill wil at me, they made me the keper of ẏ vineyardes, but myne owne vineyard haue I not kept. Tel me of hym whome my ſoule loueth where thou feedeſte the ſhepe, where thou makeſt them reſt at the noone daye: for why ſhall I be lyke him that goeth wrong about the flockes of thy companions? If thou know not thy ſelfe (O thou fayreſt C among weomen) then go thy way furth after the footeſteppes of the ſhepe, and fede thy goates beſyde the ſhepheardes tentes. Unto *the hooſt of Pharaos charettes, Exo.14. haue I compared thee, O my loue. Thy chekes and thy necke is beautyfull as the turtles, and hanged with ſpanges, and goodly Jewelles: a neckebande of golde will we make thee with ſyluer buttons. When the king ſitteth at the table, he ſhall ſmell my Nardus: a bondle of myrre is my loue vnto me, he will lye betwixt my breſtes: a cluſtre of D Camphore in the vineyardes of Engaddye is my loue vnto me. *O howe fayre Cant.4. arte thou (my loue,) Oh how fayre arte thou? thou haſt doues eies. O how faire art thou (my beloued,) how wel fauored art thou? Our bed is dect with floures, the ſylynges of oure houſe are of Cedre tree, and our croſſe ioyntes of Cipreſſe.

The .ii. Chapter.

I Am the lilye of ẏ field, ⁊ roſe A of ẏ valleyes: as ẏ roſe among ẏ thornes, ſo is my loue amōg the daughters. Like as the apple tree amōg the trees of ẏ wood, ſo is my beloued among the ſōnes. My delite is to ſit vnder his ſhadow, for hys fruit is ſwete vnto my throte. He bryngeth me into his wineſeller, his banner ſpred ouer me, is loue. Sette aboute me cuppes of wyne, cōfort me with apples: for

B of Ieruſalem) by the roes ⁊ hindes of the fielde, that ye wake not vp my loue, nor touche her: til ſhe be contēt her ſelfe. Me thinke I heare the voice of my beloued: lo, there cummeth he hoppyng vpon the mountaynes, and leaping ouer the litle hilles. My beloued is lyke a roe or a young hart. Behold, he ſtandeth behind our wal, he loketh in at yͤ window, ⁊ pepeth thorowe the grate. My beloued anſwered and ſaid vnto me: O ſtand vp my loue, my beautiful, ⁊ goe to thine C owne: for loe, the winter is now paſt, the rayne is awaye ⁊ gone. The floures are come vp in the fielde, the time of the birdes ſinging is come, ⁊ the voice of yͤ turtle doue is hearde in our lande. The figtre brigeth furth her figges, ⁊ the vines beare bloſſomes, and haue a good ſmell.
O ſtande vp then, and come my loue, my beautiful, ⁊ come I ſay (o my doue) out of the caues of yͤ rockes, out of the holes of the wal: O let me ſe thy countenance, ⁊ heare thy voice, for ſwete is thy voice, ⁊ fayre is thy face. Get vs yͤ foxes, yea the litle foxes that hurt yͤ vines, for our vynes beare bloſſomes. * My loue is Cant.6.a mine, ⁊ I am his, whiche feedeth among the roſes, vntill the day breake: and til yͤ ſhadowes be gone. Come againe (O my beloued) and be lyke as a Roe, or a yong heart vpon the wide mountaynes.

The.iii. Chapter.

A By nyght in my bed I ſoughte hym, whome my ſoule loueth: yea dilygently ſoughte I hym, but I found hym not. I will gette vp (thoughte I) and goe aboute the citie, in the wayes, in all the ſtretes will I ſeeke hym whome my ſoule loueth: but when I ſoughte hym, I founde hym not. The watchmen alſo that goe about the citie founde me.
B Sawe ye not hym whome my ſoule loueth?
So when I was a litle paſt them, I founde hym whome my ſoule loueth.
I haue gotten holde vpon hym, and will not lette hym goe, vntyll I bryng hym into my mothers houſe, ⁊ into her chambre Canti.2.b that bare me. *I charge you, O ye daughters of Ieruſalem, by the Roes and Hyndes of the fielde, that ye wake cummeth vp out of the wilderneſſe, lyke vapours of ſmoke, as it were a ſmell of myrre, frankenſence, and al maner ſpices of the Apoticary? Behold, about Salomons bedſtede there ſtand thre ſcore valeant men of the moſt mighty in Iſrael.

They hold ſweordes euery one, and are expert in warre. Euery manne alſo hath his ſweord vpon his thygh, becauſe of feare in the nighte. Kyng Salomon had D made hymſelfe a palace of the wood of Libanus, the pillers are of ſiluer, the coueryng of golde, the ſeate of purple, the grounde is pleaſantly paued with loue, for the daughters of Ieruſalem. Goe furth, O ye daughters of Sion, and behold king Salomon in the croune wherwith his mother crouned him in yͤ day of his mariage, and in the daye of the gladnes of his heart.

The.iiii. Chapter.

O *Howe fayre arte thou my loue, A Canti.1.b howe fayre arte thou? thou haſt doues eyes, beſyde that which lyeth hid within. * Thy heery lockes are Canti.6.a lyke the wool of a flocke of goates that bee ſhorne vpon mounte Gilead: Thy teeth are lyke ſhepe of the ſame bygnes, which went vp from the waſhing place: where euery one beareth two twinnes, ⁊ not one vnfruictful among them. Thy lippes are like a roſecolored riband, thy wordes are louely, thy chekes are lyke a piece of a pōgranat within thine heeres, thy necke is lyke the tower of Dauyd builded with coſtly ſtones, lying out on yͤ ſides, wherupō ther hāg a. M. ſhildes, yea, al the weapōs of yͤ Gyantes. *Thy Canti.7.a two breaſtes are lyke two twynnes of young Roes, which feede among roſes.
O that I might goe to the mountayn of B myrre, and to the hyll of frankenſence: tyll the day breake, and til the ſhadowes be paſte away. Thou art al fayre, (O my loue) and no ſpot is there in thee. Come to me from Libanus (O my ſpouſe) come to me from Lybanus, looke from the toppe of Amana, from the toppe of Sanyr, and Hermon, from the Lyons dennes, and from the mountaynes of the Leopardes. Thou haſt with loue bewitched my hert, O my ſiſter, my ſpouſe, thou haſte bewitched myne hearte with one of thine eyes, and with one chayne of thy necke. O howe fayre are thy breſtes, my ſyſter, my ſpouſe? Thy breaſtes are more pleaſaunt then wyne, and the ſmell of thyne oyntmentes paſſeth al ſpyces.

Thy lyppes, O my ſpouſe, drop as the hony combe: yea, mylke and hony is vnder thy tounge, and the ſmell of thy garmentes, is lyke the ſmell of Libanus. A gardē wel locked is my ſiſter, my ſpouſe, a garden wel locked, and a ſealed well.
C The fruites that are planted in thee, are lyke a very paradyſe of pomgranates, with ſwete fruites: as Camphore, Nardus, ⁊ Saffrō, Calamus, ⁊ Sinamon, with all ſwete ſmellyng trees: Myrre, Aloes, and all the beſte ſpyces: a wel of gardens, a wel of liuing waters, which runne downe from Libanus. Up thou northwinde, come thou ſouthwinde, and blow vpon my garden, ỹ the ſmel therof may be caried on euery ſide: yea, that my beloued may come into his gardē ⁊ eate of the ſwete fruites that growe therin.

The. v. Chapter.

A I Am come into my garden, O my ſyſter, my ſpouſe: I haue gathered my Myrre with my ſpyce. I haue eaten hony with my hony combe, I haue dronke my wine with my milke. Eate, O ye frēdes, drink and be merye, O ye beloued. As I am a ſlepe, and my hearte is waking, I heare the voyce of my beloued, when he knocketh.
Open to me, O my ſyſter, my loue, my dooue, my darlynge, for my head is full of dewe, and the lockes of my heere are full of the nyghte droppes. I haue putte of my coate, howe can I dooe it B on agayn? I haue waſhed my fete, how ſhal I fyle them agayne? My loue put in his hand at the hole, ⁊ my hert was moued within me. I ſtoode vp to open vnto my beloued, ⁊ my handes dropped with Myrre, and the Myrre ranne downe my fyngers vpon the locke. I opened vnto my beloued, but he was departed and gone his way. Nowe when he ſpake, my hearte was gone: I ſoughte hym, but I coulde not fynde him: I cryed vpon him, neuertheleſſe he gaue me no aunſwere.
So the watchemenne that wente about the citie, found me: ſmote me, and wounded me: yea, they that kepte the walles, C toke away my kercheafe fro me.
I charge you therfore, O ye daughters of Ieruſalem, if ye fynde my beloued, that ye tell hym how that I am ſicke for loue. What maner of man is thy loue aboue other louers, O thou faireſt amōg women? Or what can thy loue do more then other louers, that thou chargeſt vs ſo ſtraitly? As for my loue he is white, ⁊ red coloured, a goodly perſon among .x. thouſande: his head is as the moſte fyne gold, ỹ lockes of his heere are buſhed, ⁊ blacke as a crow. His eyes are as ỹ eyes of doues by ỹ water brokes, as though they were waſhed with mylke, ⁊ are ſet lyke pearles in gold. His chekes are lyke D a garden bed, wherein the Apoticaryes plante all maner of ſwete thynges. Hys lippes are lyke roſes that droppe ſwete ſmellyng Myrre. Hys handes are lyke golde ringes, hauing incloſed the precyous ſtone of Tharſys. Hys bodye is as the pure yuery, decté ouer with Saphires: Hys legges are as the pyllers of Marble, ſet vpon ſockets of golde. Hys face is as Libanus, ⁊ as the bewty of ỹ Cedre trees. The wordes of his mouth are ſwete: yea, he is altogether louelye.
Suche one is my loue, O ye daughters Cant.4. of Ieruſalem, ſuche one is my loue.

The. vi. Chapter.

Whither is thy loue gone then (O thou fayreſte among weomen) whither A is thy loue departed? We will ſeeke hym with thee. My loue is gone downe into hys garden, vnto the ſwete ſmellyng beddes, that he maye refreſhe himſelfe in the garden and gather roſes.
My loue is myne and I am hys, whiche feedeth among the roſes. Thou arte beautyfull, O my loue, as is the place B of Thirza: thou art fayre as Ieruſalem, fearefull as an army of men, with theyr baners. Turne away thyne eyes fro me, for they haue ſette me on fyre. *Thy Canti. heery lockes are lyke a flocke of goates, ſhorne vpon the mounte of Gilead. Thy teeth are lyke a flocke of ſhorne ſhepe, whiche goe oute of the waſhyng place, where euerye one beareth twynnes, and not one vnfruitfull among them. Thy chekes are lyke a piece of a pomgranate, within thy volupers. There are *.lx. 3.Reg.
Quenes .lxxx. wyues, and damoſelles withoute noumbre: one is my doue, one is my darling. She is the onely beloued of her mother, and deare vnto her that C bare her. When the daughters ſawe her they ſayd ſhe was bleſſed: yea, ỹ quenes and wiues praiſed her. What is ſhe this that loketh forth as the mornyng? fayre as the moone, cleare as the Sunne, and
banners? I went down into the nut garden to ſee what grew by the brokes, and to

to looke yf the vyneyarde floriſhed, or yf ŷ D pomgranates were ſhot foorth. I knewe not that my ſoule had made me the chariot of the people that be vnder tribute. Turne againe, turne agayne, O thou perfecte one turne agayne, turne agayne and wee wyl looke vpon thee. What wyll ye ſee in the Sulamite? She is lyke menne of warre ſyngyng in a coumpanye.

The .vii. Chapter.

A O How pleaſaunte are thy treadinges ŵ thy ſhoes, thou princes daughter? Thy thighes are lyke a fayre Jewell, which is wrought by a connyng workemayſter.
Thy nauell is lyke a round goblet, which is neuer without drynke. Thy wombe is lyke a heape of wheate that is ſette aboute ŵ roſes. * Thy two breſtes are lyke two Cant.4.a twins of younge roes. Thy necke is as it were a tower of yuery: thine eyes alſo are lyke the water pooles that are in Heſebon, beſide the porte of Bathrabim: thy noſe is B like the tower of Libanus, whiche loketh toward Damaſcus. That head that ſtandeth vpon thee, is lyke Carmell: & the heare of thy heade is lyke purple, and lyke a kyng going forth with his gard aboute hym. O how fayre & louely art thou my derlyng in pleaſures? Thy ſtature is lyke a palme tree, and thy breſtes like the grapes. I ſaid: I wil clime vppe into the Palme tree, and take hold of his hie braūches. Thy breſtes C alſo ſhalbee as the vine cluſters, the ſmel of thy noſtrelles like as the ſmel of apples, and thy iawes like the beſte wyne. Which gooeth ſtraite vnto my beloued, & bruſteth forth by the lyppes of the auncient elders.
There will I turne me vnto my loue, and he ſhall turne hym vnto me. O come on my D loue, we wyll go forth into the fielde, and take oure lodgynge in the villages. In the mornyng will we goe ſe the vineyarde: we wyll ſee yf the vyne bee ſpronge foorth, yf the grapes be growen, and if the pomgranates be ſhot out. There wyll I geue thee my breſtes: the Mandragoras geue their ſwete ſmel, and beſide our dores are al maner of pleaſaunt fruites, both new & olde: which I haue kept for the, O my beloued.

The .viii. Chapter.

A O That I myght finde the without, and kiſſe the, whom I loue as my brother whiche ſucke my mothers breſtes: and that thou ſhalt not be deſpiſed, I wyll leade thee and bringe thee into my mothers houſe: that thou mighteſte teache me, and ŷ I myght geue the drinke of ſpiced wine, and of the ſwete ſappe of my pomgranates. * Hys Canti.2.a lefte hand ſhall bee vnder my head, and his ryghte hande ſhall embrace me. I charge B you, O ye daughters of Jeruſalem, that ye wake not vp my loue, nor touche her, tyl ſhe bee contente her ſelfe. What is ſhe this, that commeth vp from the wildernes, and leaneth vpon her loue? I waked the vp among the appell trees, where thy mother conceyued the, where thy mother (I ſaye) brought the into the worlde. O ſet me as a ſeale vpon thyne heart, and as a ſeale vpon thine arme: for loue is mightye as the death, and gelouſye as the hell. Her coles are of fyer, and a very flame of the Lorde: ſo ŷ many waters are not able to quenche loue, neyther may the ſtremes drowne it.
Yea, if a man woulde geue all the good of C his houſe for loue, he ſhoulde counte it nothing.
Our ſiſter is but younge, and hath no breſtes, what ſhal we do for our ſiſter, when ſhe ſhall bee ſpoken for? yf ſhe bee a wal, we ſhal build a ſiluer bulwarke there vpon: yf ſhe be an open dore, we ſhal faſtē her ŵ borders of Cedre tree. I am a wall, and my breſtes lyke towres, then was I as one that hathe founde fauoure in hys ſight. Salomon hath a vineyard at Baal Hamon, and this vineyarde deliuered he vnto the kepers: that euery one for ŷ fruite D thereof ſhoulde geue hym a thouſande peces of ſiluer. My vineyard is in my ſight: ŷ (O Salomon) muſte haue a thouſande, & the kepers two hundreth wyth the fruit.

Thou that dwelleſte in the gardins, O let me heare thy voice, that my companyons maye hearken to ŷ ſame. O get the away, my loue, & be as a Roe, or a yonge heart vpō the ſwete ſmellyng mountaynes.

The

The booke of the Prophete Eſay.

The fyrſte Chapter.

Eſay prophecieth that the anger of God ſhall come vpon Ieruſalem, becauſe of theyr ſynnes.

A The viſion of Eſay the ſōne of Amos, which he ſawe vpon Iuda & Ieruſalem: in yͤ dayes of Vzia, and Ioathā, Ahaz and Iehezikiah kynges of Iuda. Heare, O heauen, and herken O earth. For the Lorde hathe ſpoken. I haue nouriſhed and broughte vppe children, but they haue done wyckedlye againſt me. The oxe hath knowen hys owner, and the aſſe his mayſters cryb: but Iſraell hathe receyued no knowledge, my people hath no B vnderſtandyng. Alas for this ſinful nacion, a people of greate iniquitye: a frowarde generaciō, vnnaturall children. They haue forſaken the Lord, they haue prouoked the holy one of Iſraell vnto anger, and are gone backewarde. Whereby ſhould ye be plaged anye more? For ye are euer falling awaye. The whole head is ſicke, and the heart is heauy. From the ſole of the foote vnto the heade, there is no whole part in al your body, but al are woundes, botches, ſores, and ſtripes whiche can neyther be helped, bounde vp, C mollifyed, nor eaſed with anye oyntmente. Your lande lyeth waſte, youre cityes are burnt vp, your enemies deuour your lāde, and ye muſte bee fayne to ſtand, and looke vpon it: and it is deſolate, as it were with enemies in a battaile. Moreouer, yͤ daughter of Syon is lefte alone like a cotage in a vineyarde, like a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, lyke a beſeged cytye. And except the Lord of hoſtes had left vs a few aliue: we ſhould haue bene as Sodoma, & like vnto Gomorra. Heare yͤ word of the lord, ye Lordes of Sodoma, and hearken vnto the lawe of oure God, thou people of Gomorra Why offer ye ſo many ſacrifices vnto D me? I am full of yͤ burnt offerynges of wethers, and of the fatnes of fed beaſtes. I haue no pleaſure in the bloude of bullockes, lambes, and goates. When ye appeare beefore me, who requireth you to tread within my porches? Offre me no mo oblacions, for it is but loſte laboure. Inſence is an abominable thynge vnto me. I may not away with your new Moones, your Sabbothes, and ſolemne dayes. Your feaſtynges are alſo in vayne. I hate youre newe holye dayes and feaſtinges, euen fro my very heart. They make me wery, I cannot abyde them. When you holde out your handes, I wyll turne mine eyes frō you. And though ye make many prayers, yet wyll I heare nothynge at all, ſeeyng your handes are full of bloude. Waſh you, make you cleane, put awaye youre euill E thoughtes out of my ſyght, ceaſe from doyng of euil. Learne to do ryght, applye youre ſelues to equitye, deliuer the oppreſſed, helpe the fatherleſſe to hys ryghte, let the widdowes complainte come before you. Nowe go to (ſayeth the Lord) let vs talke together. Thoughe youre ſynnes bee as red as ſcarlet, they ſhalbee as whyte as ſnowe. And though they were like purple, they ſhalbee as white as woll. Yf ye be louinge and obediente, ye ſhall enioy the beſt thinge that groweth in the lande. But yf ye bee obſtinate and rebellious, ye ſhalbee deuoured with the ſweorde: for thus the lorde hath promiſed with his own mouth. How happeneth it then that the righteous cytye (which was full of equity) is become F vnfaythfull as an whore? Ryghteouſneſſe dwelt in it, but nowe murtherers. The ſiluer is turned to droſſe, and thy wyne mixt with water. Thy princes are wycked and companyons of theues: They loue gyftes altogether, & gape for rewardes. As for yͤ fatherles, they helpe him not to hys right, neyther wyll they lette the widowes cauſes come before them. Therefore ſaieth the lorde God of hooſtes, the mightye one of Iſraell: Ah, I muſte eaſe me of mine enemies, and auenge me of mine aduerſaries. I ſhall laye my hande vpon the, and burne out thy droſſe from the fineſt and pureſte, and put out all thy tyme, and ſette thy iudges againe as they wer ſometime, and thy Senatoures as they wer from the beginning. Then ſhalt thou be called the righteous citie, the faithful citie. Sion ſhalbee redemed with equitie, and they ſhall turne again vnto her in righteouſnes. For yͤ trāſgreſſours & vngodly, & ſuch as are become vnfaythful vnto the Lorde, muſte altogether bee vtterlye deſtroyed. And excepte ye bee aſhamed of the oke trees wherein ye haue ſo delited, and of the gardens that ye haue choſen, ye ſhalbee as an oke whoſe leaues are fallen awaye: and as a garden yͤ hath no moiſtnes. And as for the glorye of theſe thynges, it ſhalbee turned to drye ſtraw, and he that made them to a ſparke.

And they ſhall bothe burne together, ſo that no manne ſhall bee able to quenche them.

The.ii.Chapter.

Of the commyng and deathe of Chriſte, and of the callynge of the Heathen.

A THis is the woorde that was opened vnto Eſaye the ſonne of Amoz vpon Juda and Jeruſalem.
It wyll bee alſo in the laſte day, that the hil where the houſe of ẏ lord is builded, ſhalbee the chiefe among hilles, and exalted aboue al litle hilles. And al nacions ſhall preace vnto hym, and the multitude of people ſhall goe, ſpeakynge thus pſal.31.a one to another: vp, *let vs goe to the hyl of mich.4.a. the Lorde, and to the houſe of the God of Jacob: that he maye ſhewe vs hys waye, and that we may walke in his pathes. For the lawe ſhall come oute of Sion, and the worde of the Lorde from Jeruſalem, and ſhal geue ſentence amõge the Heathen, and ſhall reforme the multitude of people: they ſhall breake theyr ſweordes alſo into mattockes, and theyr ſpeares to make ſythes.
And one people ſhall not lyfte vppe a weapon againſte another, neither ſhal they B learne to fyghte from thence furth. Come ye (O houſe of Jacob) let vs walke in the lyght of the Lord. But thou haſt forſaken thy people the houſe of Jacob, becauſe they gooe farre beyonde theyr fathers in Sorceries (whom they haue as the Philiſtines hadde) and in ſtraunge children they thinke themſelues to haue ynough. Their land is full of ſiluer and gold, neither is there any ende of their treaſure: Their lande is alſo full of horſes, and no ende is there of theyr charrettes. Their lande alſo is full of vaine Goddes, and beefore the woorke of theyr own handes haue they bowed themſelues, yea euen before the thynge that their owne fingers haue made. There kneleth the mã, there falleth the man down before them, ſo that thou canſte not bring him away from C thẽce. And therfore get the into ſome rocke, and hide the in the grounde for feare of the Lorde, and for the glory of hys maieſtye: Whiche caſteth downe the high lookes of preſumpteous perſonnes, and bringeth lowe the pride of man, and the Lorde onlye ſhalbee exalted in that daye. For the daye of the Lorde of Hooſtes ſhall gooe ouer all pride and preſumpcion, vpon al thẽ that exalt thẽmſelues, ⁊ ſhal bring them al down: vpon al high and ſtout Cedretrees of Libanus, and vpõ al the okes of Baſã, vpon all highe hilles, and vpon all ſtoute Mountaynes, vpon all coſtelye towres, ⁊ vpon al ſtronge walles, vpon al ſhippes of the ſea, and vpon euerye thynge that is glorious and pleaſaunte to looke vpon.
And it ſhall bring downe the pride of man, D and lay mans preſumpteouſneſſe ful low, and the Lorde ſhall onely haue the victory in that daye. But the idols ſhall vtterly be roted out. Menne ſhal crepe into holes of ſtone, and into caues of the earth, for feare of ẏ lord, and for the glory of his maieſty: what time as he ſhall wake him vp to condemne ẏ earth. Thẽ ſhal mã caſt away his goddes of ſiluer, and his goddes of golde, (which he neuertheles had made to honour them) vnto Moles and Battes. And they ſhal crepe into the caues and rockes, ⁊ into the cliftes of hard ſtones, for feare of god, ⁊ for the glory of his maieſtie, when he ryſeth to condemne the yearth. Feare not ye then any man, whoſe breth is in his noſetrels.
For what is he of reputacion?

The.iii. Chapter.

He prophecieth that at the comming of Chriſt al ſtrength and power ſhalbee put forth of Jury.

FOr loe, the Lord god of Hoſtes A doth take away from Jeruſalẽ, ⁊ Juda, al poſſeſſions ⁊ power, al meat and drinke, the captain ⁊ the ſouldyer, ẏ iudge ⁊ the prophet, ẏ wiſe and the aged man, the prynce of fiftye yere old, ⁊ the honorable: the Senatours ⁊ men of vnderſtanding, the maiſters of craftes, and oratours. And I ſhall geue them children to bee theyr princes, and babes ſhall haue the rule of you. The people alſo ſhall bee pylled and polled, and one ſhall euer be doyng violence and wrong to another.
The boye ſhall preſume againſte the elder, and the vyle perſone agaynſte the honorable.
Yea, one ſhall take a frende of his own kynred by the boſome, and ſaye: thou haſte clothynge, thou ſhalt be our head, for thou mayeſt kepe vs from this fall and parell.

Then ſhall he ſweare and ſaye: I cannot B helpe you. Moreouer, there is neither meat nor clothyng in my houſe, make me no ruler of the people. For Jeruſalem and Juda muſte decaye, becauſe that bothe theyr woordes and counſayles are againſte the Lorde, to prouoke the preſence of his maieſtye vnto anger. The chaungyng of their countenaunce bewrayeth them, yea they declare theyr owne ſynnes themſelues, as the Sodomites, and hyde them not. Woe be vnto their ſoules, for they haue rewarded euell vnto themſelues. Byd the ryghteous do well for they ſhal enioy the fruites of theyr ſtudies. But woe be to the vngodlye and vnrighteous, for they ſhalbee rewarded after theyr workes. Children are extorcyoners of my people, ⁊ wemen haue rule of thē. O my people, yͤ leaders deceaue C the, and depraue yͤ way of thy fote ſteppes. The Lorde is here to commen of the matter, and ſtandeth to geue iudgement of the people. The Lorde ſhall come forth to reaſon wyth the Senatours and Princes of his people. It is ye that haue burnt vp my vyneyarde, the poore is in youre houſes.

Wherefore do ye oppreſſe my people, and marre the faces of the poore, ſayeth the Lorde God of hooſtes. Moreouer, thus ſayeth the Lorde: Seeyng the daughters of Sion are become ſo proud, and come in with ſtretched out neckes, and with vaine wanton eyes: ſeeyng they come in tripping ſo nicelye with theyr feete: Therefore ſhall the Lorde ſhaue the heades of the daughters of Sion, ⁊ ſhall diſcouer their ſhame. In that daye ſhall the Lorde take awaye the gorgeouſneſſe of theyr apparell, and ſpanges, cheines, partelets, ⁊ colars, bracelettes, and hooues, the goodlye floured, wide and broydred raymente, brooches, and headebandes, rynges and garlandes, holye day clothes and vales, kerchefes and pinnes, glaſſes and cipreſſes, bonets, and taches.

And in ſteade of good ſmel, there ſhalbe ſtinke among them. And for theyr girdles, there ſhalbee looce bandes. And for wel ſet heere there ſhalbee baldnes. In ſteade of a ſtomacher, a ſacke clothe, ⁊ for theyr bewtye wytherdnes, and ſunne burnyng. Your houſebandes and mightye menne ſhal peryſhe with the ſwearde in battayle. At that time ſhal their gates mourne ⁊ complaine, and they ſhall ſit as deſolate folke vpon the yearth.

The. iiii. Chapter.

For want of menne, ſeuen women deſyre to haue one manne.

A THen ſhall ſeuen wiues take holde of one man: and ſaye, we wyll laye all our meat ⁊ clothing together in cōmen: onelye that we maye be called thy wiues, and that this ſhamefull reprofe maye bee taken from vs. After that tyme ſhall the braunche of the Lorde bee bewtifull and mightye, and the fruit of the earth ſhalbe faire and pleaſaūt, for thoſe Iſraelites that ſhall ſpring thereof. Then ſhal the remnaunte in Sion, and the remnaunte at Ieruſalem bee called holy: Namely all ſuche as are written among the lyuing at Ieruſalem: what tyme as yͤ Lorde ſhall waſhe away the filthineſſe of the daughters of Syon, and pourge the B bloud out from Ieruſalem with the wind of his iudgemente, and with fyre. Moreouer, vpon all the dwellynges of the hyll of Sion, and vpō their whole congregaciō, ſhall the Lord prouide a cloude and ſmoke by daye, and the ſhining of a flamyng fyre by night, for al theyr glorye ſhalbee preſerued. And Ieruſalem ſhalbee a tabernacle for a ſhadowe, becauſe of heate in the daye tyme: a place and refuge where a manne maye kepe hym from wether and rayne.

The. v. Chapter.

Of Chriſt and his vineyarde, with an execracion of coueteouſnes and dronkennes.

NOwe wyll I ſynge my beloued frende a ſonge of my frendes, becauſe of hys vineyarde. My beloued frende hath a vineyarde in a verye fruitefull plenteous grounde. This he hedged, this he walled rounde about, and planted it with goodly grapes. In the middeſt of it builded he a towre, ⁊ made a winepreſſe therin: And afterwarde when he loked that it ſhoulde bringe hym grapes: it brought forth thornes. Nowe therfore (O ye Citeſens of Ieruſalem and whole Iuda:) Iudge I pray you betwixt me ⁊ my vineyard. What more could haue ben done for it, yͭ I haue not done. Wherfore then hath it geuen thornes, where I B loked to haue had grapes of it. Wel, now I ſhall tell you howe I wyll doe with my vyneyarde. I wyll take the hedge from it, that it maye periſhe, and breake downe the wal, that it maye be troden vnder foote. I wyll laye it waſte, that it ſhall neither bee dygged nor cutte, but beare thornes and bryers: I wyll alſo forbydde the cloudes that they ſhall not rayne vpon it. As for yͤ vyneyard of the lord of Hooſtes: it is the houſe of Iſrael, and whole Iuda his fayre planting. Of theſe he loked for equitie, but ſe there is wronge: for ryghteouſnes, lo, it is but myſerye.

C Woe vnto them that ioyne one houſe to another, ⁊ brynge one lande ſo nygh vnto another, that the poore can gette no more grounde,and that ye maye dwell vpon the earth alone. Theſe thynges are in the eares of the lorde of Hoſtes:ſhall not many greater ⁊ more gorgeous houſes be ſo waſte,that no man ſhall dwell in them? And ten akers of vynes ſhal geue but a quarte,and thyrty buſhels of ſede ſhal geue but an Epha.

Woe be vnto them that ryſe vp earlye to folowe dronkennes, ⁊ to them that continue ſo vntyl nyghte,and tyll they be ſette on fire with wyne. In thoſe companyes are harpes and lutes, tabrettes ⁊ pypes,and wyne. But they regarde not the worke of the Lorde, ⁊ conſydre not the operacion of hys handes.
Therfore commeth my folke alſo into captiuitie, D becauſe they haue no vnderſtanding.
Theyr glory is famyſhed wyth hunger,and theyr pryde is marred for thyrſte. Therfore gapeth Hel,and openeth her mouth maruelous wyde: that their pryde,boaſtynge,and welth,wyth ſuche as reioyſe therin,may deſcēd into it. Thus hath mā a fal, ⁊ is brought lowe,and the hygh loke of yͤ proude ſhalbe layde downe. But the lorde of Hoſtes is exalted in iudgemente, and God that is holye, is prayſed in righteouſneſſe: Then ſhall the ſhepe eate in order,and the ryche mens landes that wer laid waſt,ſhall ſtraungers deuoure. Woe be vnto thē, that drawe wickednes vnto them with cordes of vanitye: ⁊ ſynne,as it were with a carte rope. Whyche E vſe to ſpeake on thys maner: let hym make haſte nowe,and goe forth wyth hys worke, that we maye ſe it. Let the counſel of the holye one of Iſrael come,and drawe nye,that we maye knowe it. Woe be vnto them that cal euell good,and good euell,whych make darckeneſſe lyght,and light darkeneſſe,that make ſowre ſwete,and ſwete ſowre. Woe be vnto them that are wiſe in theyr owne ſight, and thynke them ſelues to haue vnderſtanding.
Woe be vnto them that are ſtronge to ſuppe out wyne, and experte men to ſet vp dronkennes. Theſe geue ſentence wyth the vngodly for rewardes, but condemne the iuſt cauſe of the ryghteous. Therfore lyke as fyre lycketh vp the ſtrawe, and as the flame conſumeth the ſtubble: Euen ſo theyr roote ſhalbe as corrupcion, and theyr bloſſome ſhal vanyſhe away lyke duſt: for they haue caſt away yͤ lawe of yͤ lord of Hoſtes, ⁊ blaſphemed the worde of the holy maker F of Iſrael. Therfore is the wrath of the lord kyndled alſo agaynſt hys people, ⁊ he ſhaketh hys hande at them: yea, he hath ſmytten ſo that the hylles dyd tremble.
And their karcaſes did lye in yͤ open ſtretes lyke myer. And in all thys the wrath of God hath not ceaſſed,but his hande is ſtretched out ſtyll. And he ſhall geue a token vnto a ſtraunge people, and call vnto them in a farre countrie: and beholde,they ſhall come haſtelye with ſpede. There ſhall not be one faynte nor feble amonge them, no not a ſluggiſh nor ſlepery perſonne. There ſhall not one of them put of the gyrdle from hys loynes, nor leuſe the latchet of hys ſhooe.
His arowes are ſharpe, and all hys bowes bent. His horſe hoofes are like flint,and his carte wheles lyke a ſtormy wynde. His crye is as it were of a lyon, and he roareth lyke lyons whelpes. They ſhall roare, ⁊ hantche vp the praye, and no man ſhall recouer it, or gette it from thē. In that daye they ſhalbe ſo fearce vpon them, as the ſea. And yf we loke vnto the lande, beholde, it ſhalbe all darkneſſe and ſorowe. Yf we loke towarde heauen,behold,it ſhalbe darcke.

The. vi. Chapter.

Eſay ſawe the glory of the Lord,and was ſente to prophecye the deſolacion of Iurye.

IN the ſame yeare that kynge Oziah A dyed, I ſawe the lorde ſitting vpon an hygh and gloryous ſeate, and hys traine fylled the temple.
And about hym ſtode Seraphins, whereof euery one had ſyxe wynges. Wyth twayne eche couered his face,wyth twayne his fete, and wyth twayne dyd he flye. They cryed alſo eche one to another on this maner:holy, holy,holy,is the lorde of Hoſtes. The whole world is full of hys glorye. Yea,the geaſtes and dorechekes moued at his cryinge, ⁊ the houſe was full of ſmoke. Then I ſayde: O B woe is me, for I am loſt:in as muche as I am a man of vncleane lyppes, and dwel amonge people that hath vncleane lyppes alſo: for myne eyes haue ſene the kyng and Lorde of hoſtes. Then flewe one of the Seraphyns vnto me hauynge a hote cole in hys hande, whyche he had taken from the aulter with the tonges, ⁊ touched my mouth and ſayd:lo,thys hath touched thy lyppes, ⁊ thyne vnryghteouſneſſe is taken away,and thy ſynne forgeuen. Alſo,I heard the voice C of the lorde,ſaying on thys maner: Whom ſhal I ſend,and who wyl be our meſſāger?
Then I ſayde:here am I,ſende me. And he ſayd:go,and tell thys people: *ye ſhal heare Mat.13.b in dede,but ye ſhall not vnderſtande:ye ſhal Mar.4.b plainly ſe and not perceaue. Hardē the heart Luke.8.b of thys people,ſtoppe their eares, and ſhut Acte.28.f
theyr eyes, that they ſe not wyth theyr eyes, John.12.f Rom.11.b

heare not wyth their eares, & vnderſtande not wyth their hertes, and conuerte, and be healed. Then ſpake I: lord, howe longe? he anſwered: vntyl the cyties be vtterly waſted without inhabitours, & the houſes without men, tyll the lande be alſo deſolate, and lye vnbuylded. For the Lorde ſhal take the mẽ farre away, ſo that the lande ſhall lye waſte a longe ſeaſon, yet in it ſhall ſuccede ten kynges, and the lande ſhall retourne and be layd waſte. And as the Terebint tree and oke in wynter caſt their leaues, and yet haue theyr ſappe in them: ſo ſhall the holye ſede continue in their ſubſtaunce.

The. vii. Chapter.

The Sirians moue batayle agaynſte Ieruſalem. A virgyne ſhal beare a chylde.

A IT happened in the tyme of Ahaz the ſonne of Iotham, whych was the ſõne of Uziah King of Iuda: that * Razin the kynge of Siria, 4.Re.16.a 2.par.28.a and Pechah the ſonne of Romeliah, King of Iſraell, went vp toward Ieruſalem to beſeege it: but Razin was not able to winne it. Nowe when the houſe of Dauid (that is Ahaz) hearde worde therof, that Sirya and Ephraim were cõfederate together, his herte quaked (yea & the hertes alſo of hys people) lyke as when a tree in the feldes is moued with the wynd. Then ſayd God vnto Eſay: go mete Ahaz (thou and thy ſonne Sear Iaſub) at the head of the ouerpoole, in the fote path by the fullers grounde, and ſaye vnto hym: take hede to thy ſelf, and be ſtyl, but feare not, neyther be faynte herted, for theſe two tayles: yͭ is for theſe two ſmoking fyrebrandes, the wrath and furyouſnes of Razin the Siryan, and Romelyes ſonne: becauſe that the kynge of Sirya Ephraim & Romelyes ſonne haue wyckedly conſpired B againſt the, ſayinge: We wyl go vp againſt Iuda, vexe them, and bring them vnder vs, & ſet a kyng there, euen the ſonne of Tabeel.

For thus ſayth the Lorde God therto: It ſhal not ſo go forth: nether come ſo to paſſe: for the heade cytie of the Siryans is Damaſcus, but the head of Damaſcus is Razin. And after fiue & thre ſcore year ſhall Ephraim be nomore a people. And yͤ chief cytie of Ephraim is Samaria, but the head of Samaria is Romelies ſonne. Yf ye beleue not, it cõmeth of this: that ye are vnfaythful to God. Moreouer + God ſpake once again vnto Ahaz, ſaying: require a token of yͤ lord thy God, whither it be toward the depth beneth, or toward the heygthe aboue. Then ſayde Ahaz: I wyll requyre none, neyther wyll I tempte the Lorde. The lord anſwered: Then heare to, ye of the houſe of Dauid: is it not ynoughe for you that ye be greuous vnto men, but ye muſte greue my God alſo? And therfore the Lorde ſhal geue you a tokẽ: Beholde, a virgyne ſhal cõceaue C and beare a ſonne, and (thou hys mother) ſhalte call his name Emanuel. Butter and hony ſhall he eate, that he maye knowe to refuſe the euell, and choſe the good. + For or euer the chyld come to knowledge, to eſchue the euell, and choſe the good: the lande (that thou ſo abhorreſte) ſhalbe deſolate of bothe her kynges. The Lorde alſo ſhall ſende a tyme vpon the, vpon thy people, and vpon thy fathers houſe (ſuch as neuer came ſence the tyme that Ephraim departed frõ Iuda) thorowe the kynge of the Aſſyrians. For at the ſame tyme ſhall the Lorde whyſtle for the flyes that are about the water of Egipt, & for the Bees in the Aſſirians lande. Theſe ſhal come and ſhal lyghte all in the deſolate valeies, in the holes of ſtones, vpõ al thorny and buſhy places. At the ſame tyme ſhall D the Lorde ſhaue the heere of the head, and the feete, and the bearde cleane of, wyth the raſour yͭ he ſhal hyer beiõd yͤ water: namely, wyth the kyng of the Aſſirians. At the ſame time ſhal a man lyue with a cowe, and two ſhepe. Then becauſe of the aboundaunce of milke, he ſhall make butter and eate it.

So that euery one whych remayneth in the lande, ſhall eate butter and hony. At the ſame tyme al vineyardes (thoughe there be a thouſande vynes in one, and were ſolde for a thouſande ſyluerlynges) ſhalbe turned to breares and thornes. Lyke as they ſhall come into the lande with arowes & bowes, ſo ſhal al the land become brears & thornes. And as for al hylles that are hewen downe, there ſhall not come vpon them any feare of brears and thornes. But the cattel ſhal be dryuẽ thyther, and the ſhepe ſhal fede there.

The. viii. Chapter.

The delyueraunce of the lande by Emanuell. The ſtone of offence, at whych many ſhall ſtumble.

MOreouer, the Lorde ſayde vnto me: Take the a greate leafe, and A wryte in it, as mẽ do with a penne: make haſty ſpede to robbe, and haſte to the ſpoyle. And I called vnto me faithful witneſſes to recorde. Uriah yͤ preſt, & zachariah the ſonne of Barachiah. After that wente I vnto the prophetiſſe, that had conceaued and borne a ſonne.

Then ſayd the lorde to me:geue him this name:a ſpedie robber , an haſty ſpoyler.
For why,or euer the chyld ſhal haue knowledge to crye father , and mother : ſhall the riches of Damaſcus and the ſubſtaunce of Samaria be taken awaye by the ſpoyler, before the kinge of the Aſſirians.The lorde B ſpake alſo vnto me, ſayinge:for ſo much as this people refuſeth the ſtyll renning water of Silo, and put their delyte in Razin and Romelies ſonne: Beholde, the Lorde ſhall bring myghty and greate floudes of water vpõ them:namely, yͤ kyng of the Aſſirians with all his power:Whyche ſhall clyme vp vpon all hys floudes, and renne ouer all their bãkes . And ſhal breake in vpõ Juda, flowyng ⁊ encreaſing in power,tyl he gette him by the necke.He ſhall fyl alſo the widenes of thy lande wyth hys brode wynges, O Emanuel.Breake downe(o ye people of Aſſur)and ye ſhalbe broken downe: herken to all ye of farre countries . Muſter you,⁊ ye ſhalbe brokẽ downe: prepare you to battel, and you ſhalbe torne in peces:take your counſell together, yet muſte youre counſell come to naught:go in hand withal,yet ſhall it not proſpere,for God is wyth vs.For the C Lorde ſpake thus to me in the power of his hande, and warned me, ſayinge vnto me : that I ſhould not walke in the way of this people .He ſayde moreouer : rounde wyth none of them whoſoeuer ſay,yonder people are bounde together:feare them not,neither be afrayed of them,but ſanctifye the lord of hoſtes, let hym be youre feare and dreade.
For he ſhalbe the holy place to flye to , and ſtone to ſtomble at , the rocke to fall vpon, a ſnare and net to both yͤ houſes of Iſraell, and the inhabitours of Jeruſalem . And many ſhall ſtomble, fal,and be broken vpõ hym:yea, they ſhalbe ſnared and taken.

D Nowe laye the wytneſſes together,and ſeale the lawe wyth my diſciples.Thus wil I wayt vpon the lord that hath turned his face from the houſe of Jacob,and I wyll loke for him.But lo,as for me and the children whyche the Lorde hath geuen me:we are a token and a wonder in Iſrael,for the Lorde of hoſtes ſake,whyche dwelleth vpõ the hyll of Syon.

And yf they ſaye vnto you: aſke counſell at the Sothſayers, Wytches, charmers, ⁊ coniurers,then make them thys anſwere: Luk.24.a Is there a people any where , yͭ aſketh not counſell at hys God?*Should men runne vnto the deade for the lyuynge ? Yf any man wante lyghte ,let hym loke vpon the lawe,⁊ the teſtymonye,whether they ſpeake not after thys meaning.Yf he do not thys, he ſtumbleth and ſuffreth hunger . And yf he ſuffre hunger he is out of pacience, and blaſphemeth hys kynge and hys god.Thẽ loketh he vpwarde,and downeward to the earthe: and beholde, there is trouble and darkenes, vexacion is rounde about him, and the cloude of erroure. And out of ſuche aduerſytie ſhal he not eſcape. Euen lyke as in tyme paſte, it hathe bene well ſene, that the lande of zabulon,⁊ yͤ land of Nephtaly (where thorowe yͤ ſea way goeth ouer Jordane into yͤ land of Galile)was at the fyrſt in lytle trouble:but afterward ſore vexed.

The.ix.Chapter.

He propheceyeth of Chryſtes natiuitye ⁊ dominiõ.

THe people that walke in darkenes A haue ſene a great light.As for thẽ that dwel in the land of yͤ ſhadow ❧ ✻ ☞ of death, vpon them hath yͤ lyght ſhyned . Thou haſte multiplyed the people and not increaſed theyr ioy . *They reioyſe Pſa.119.c before the , euen as men make mery in haruęſte:
and as men that haue gotten the victorye, when they deale the ſpoyle . For thou haſt broken the yoke of the peoples burthẽ: the ſtaffe of hys ſhoulder,and the rodde of his oppreſſoure , as in yͤ dayes of Madian.
And truly euery battayll that the warriour B accompliſheth,is done wyth confuſed noiſe, and defiling theyr garmentes with bloude.
But thys battayle ſhalbe with burnynge, and conſumynge of fyre . For vnto vs a childe is borne,⁊ vnto vs a ſonne is geuen.
Upon hys ſhulder doth the kyngdome lye, and he is called wyth hys owne name,wonderfull
: The geuer of counſell,the mightie God , the euerlaſtyng father , the prince of peace : he ſhall make no ende to encreaſe the kyngdome and peace,and ſhall ſyt vpõ the ſeate of Dauid, and in hys kyngdome, to ſet vp the ſame , and to ſtablyſhe it wyth equytie ⁊ ryghteouſneſſe from hence furthe for euermore.This ſhal yͤ gelowſy of yͤ lord of Hoſtes bring to paſſe . The lord ſent a C word into Jacob,yͤ ſame is come into Iſrael.
And al yͤ people of Ephraim ſhal knowe, ⁊ they yͭ dwel in Samaria , yͭ can ſay with pride ⁊ hye ſtomackes,on thys maner: The tile work is fallen downe, but we wyl bylde it with ſquared ſtones . The molbery timber is broken , but we ſhall ſet it vp agayne wyth Cedre . Neuertheles , the Lorde ſhall prepare Razin the enemy againſt thē, and ſo ordre theyr aduerſaries, yͭ the Sirians ſhal lay holde vpō them before, ⁊ the Philiſtines behinde: and ſo deuoure Iſraell wyth open mouthe. After all thys is not the wrathe of the lord ceaſſed, but yet is hys hād ſtretched oute ſtyl. For the people turneth not vnto him that chaſtyſeth them, nether doe they ſeke the lorde of Hoſtes. Therfore hath the lorde roted out of Iſrael both head ⁊ tayle, braunche and twygge, in one daye. By the heade is vnderſtande the Senatoure and honourable man, and by the tayle yͤ prophet yͭ preached lies: For al they which enfourme the people that they be in a ryght caſe, ſuche be dyſceauers. Suche as men thyncke alſo to be perfecte among theſe, are but caſteawayes.

Therefore ſhall the Lorde haue no pleaſure in theyr yong men, neyther fauour D theyr fatherleſſe and wyddowes. For they are all together ypocrytes and wycked, and al theyr mouthes ſpeake folye. After al this, is not the lordes wrathe ceaſſed: but yet hys hāde is ſtretched out ſtyll. For vngodlynes burneth, as a fyre in the briers and thornes.
And as it were oute of a fyre in a wood, or a reede buſhe: ſo aſcendeth yͤ ſmoke of theyr pryde. For becauſe of the wrath of the lord of Hoſtes, is the lande full of darkneſſe, and the people be conſumed, as it were with fire: no man dothe ſpare his brother, but he robbeth on the right hande, and doeth famiſhe: he eateth on the left hand, ⁊ he ſhal not haue ynough. Euery mā ſhal eate yͤ fleſhe of hys owne arme. Manaſſes, ſhal eate Ephraim, ⁊ Ephraim Manaſſes: ⁊ they both ſhal eate Iuda. After al this, is not the Lordes wrath ceaſſed, but yet is his hand ſtretched out ſtil.

The.x.Chapter.

He threateneth the oppreſſours of the poore, and prophecyeth agaynſt Sennacheryb.

A WOe be vnto them yͭ make vnryghteous lawes, and deuyſe thynges which be to harde for to kepe: wherthorowe the poore are oppreſſed on euery ſyde, and the innocentes of my people robbed of iudgemente: that widdowes may be theyr praye, and that they maye robbe the fatherleſſe. What wyll ye do in tyme of the vyſytacion, and when deſtruccion ſhall come from farre? To whom wyll ye runne for helpe? and to whom wil ye geue youre honoure, that he may kepe it? that when I wythdrawe my hande, ye come not amonge the pryſonners, or lye amonge the dead?

After al this doth not the wrath of the lorde ceaſſe, but yet is his hand ſtretched out ſtill.
Woe be alſo vnto Aſſur, which is a ſtaffe B of my wrathe, in whoſe hande is the rod of my punyſhmente. I ſhall ſende him among thoſe hypocrytiſh people, among the people that haue deſerued my dyſfauoure, ſhall I ſende hym, that he may vtterly robbe them, ſpoyle them, and treade them downe, lyke yͤ myre in the ſtrete. Howebeit, his meanyng is not ſo, neyther thynketh hys hert on thys faſſyon. But he ymagyneth onlye, howe he maye roote out and deſtroye moche people, for he ſayeth: are not my princes al kynges?
Is not Calno as eaſye to wynne as Charchamis?
Is it harder to conquere Hamath then Arphad? Or is it lyghter to ouercome Damaſcus, then Samaria? As who ſaye: I were hable to wynne the kingdome of the Idolaters and theyr goddes: but not Ieruſalē, and Samaria. Shal I not do vnto Ieruſalem and theyr ymages, as I dyd vnto Samaria and their ydols? Wherfore C yͤ lord ſayeth: Aſſone as I haue perfourmed my whole worke vpon the hyl of Sion and Ieruſalem, then wyl I vyſet the noble and ſtoute hert of the kinge of Aſſyria wyth hys proude lookes. For he ſtandeth thus in hys owne conceyte: Thys doe I thorowe the power of myne owne hande, and thorowe my wyſdome: For I am wyſe: I am he that remoue the landes of the people: I robbe theyr treaſures: ⁊ (lyke one of the worthyes) I dryue thē from theyr hye ſeates. My hāde hath founde oute the ſtrength of the people, as it were a neſte. And lyke as egges that were layed here and there, are gathered togyther: So do I gather al countryes. And D there is no man that darre be ſo bolde, as to touche a fether: that darre open hys mouth, or ones whyſper. Shall the axe booſte it ſelfe agaynſte hym that heweth therewyth? or dothe the ſawe make anye braggynge agaynſte hym that ruleth it? That were euē lyke, as yf the rod dyd exalte it ſelf againſte hym that beareth it: or as though the ſtaffe ſhoulde magnifye it ſelf, as whoe ſay, it wer no wood. Therfore ſhall the Lord of hoſtes ſend hym among his fatlynges, leaneſſe: ⁊ burne vp his glory, as it were wͭ a fire. But the lyght of Iſrael ſhalbe that fyre, and his Sanctuarye ſhalbe the flame, and it ſhall kyndle and burne vp hys thornes ⁊ breers in one day: yea, all the glory of his woodes and feldes ſhalbe conſumed wͭ bodye and ſoule: And they ſhalbe as an hooſte of mē, whoſe ſtanderde bearer fayleth.

The trees alſo of the fielde which remaine, ſhalbe of ſuche a nombre, that a chylde may tel thē. After that daye ſhal the remnaunt of E Iſrael and ſuche as are eſcaped oute of the houſe of Iacob, ſeke no more cōforte at him that ſmote thē, but with faithfulneſſe ⁊ truth ſhal they truſt vnto the lord, the holy one of Iſrael. The rēnaunte, euen the poſteritie of Iacob, ſhall cōuerte vnto God the mightye one. For though thy people (O Iſraell) be as the ſande ot the ſea, yet ſhal the remnaūt of thē conuert in him. Perfect is the iudgement of hym that floweth in righteouſneſſe, and therfore the lorde of hooſtes ſhall perfectly fulfyl the thyng that he hath determined in the middeſt of yͤ whole worlde. Therfore, thus ſayth the Lorde God of hooſtes: Thou my people, that dwelleſt in Syon, be F not afrayed, for the kyng of the Aſſirians: He ſhall ſmite thee with a rod, ⁊ ſhal wagge his ſtaffe at thee, as the Egipcians did ſome tyme: But ſoone after ſhall my wrathe and mine indignacion be fulfilled in the deſtruccion of them. Moreouer, the lord of hooſtes ſhall prepare a ſcourge for him, like as was the ſlaughter of Madian vpon the rocke of Oreb. And he ſhall lyft vp his rodde ouer the ſea, as he dydde ſometyme ouer the Egipcians.
Then ſhall his burthē be taken from thy ſhoulders, and his yocke from thy necke: yea, theſame yocke ſhalbe corrupt for very fatneſſe. He ſhall come to Aiah, and go thorow toward Mygrō: at Michmas ſhal he lay vp his harneſſe, ⁊ go ouer the foorde.
Gibea ſhalbe theyr reſtyng place: Ramath G ſhalbe afrayd: Gibea Saule ſhal flye away.
The voyce of the noyſe of thy horſes (O daughter Gallim) ſhalbe heard vnto Lais, and to Anothoth, which alſo ſhalbe in trouble.
Madmena ſhall trēble for feare, but the citezins of Gabin are manly, yet ſhall he remayne at Nob that daye. After that ſhal he lift vp hiz hande agaynſte the mount of the daughter Syon, the hyl of Ieruſalem. But ſe, the Lord god of hooſtes ſhall take awaye the proude from thence with feare. He ſhall hewe downe the proude, and fell yͤ hye mynded.
The buſhes alſo of the wood ſhall he roote out with yron, and Libanus ſhal haue a mightie fall.

The.xi.Chapter.

He prophecieth of the Natiuitie of Chriſt, and of his people: of the remnaunte of Iſraell, and of the fayth of the Heathen or Gentiles.

A AND there ſhall come a rod foorth of yͤ kynred of Iſai, and a bloſſome ſhall floryſhe out of his roote. The ſpirite of the Lorde ſhall lyght vpon hym: the ſpirite of wiſdom and vnderſtanding, the ſpirite of counſaile and ſtrength, the ſpirite of knowledge, and of the feare of the Lorde: ⁊ ſhall make hym feruent in the feare of God. For he ſhal not geue ſentēce after the thing that ſhalbe broughte before his eyes, neyther reproue a matter at the fyrſte hearyng, but wͭ righteouſneſſe ſhall he iudge the poore, and with holyneſſe ſhall he refourme the ſymple of the world. He ſhall ſmyte the worlde with the rodde of his mouth, and with the breath of his mouth ſhal he ſlaye the vngodlye.
Righteouſneſſe ſhal bee the gyrdle of his loynes: truthe and faithfulneſſe, the gyrding B vp of his reynes. The wolfe ſhal dwel with the lambe: and the Leopard ſhal lye doune by the goate. Bullockes, lyons, and cattell ſhall kepe company together, ſo that a lytle chylde ſhall rule them. The kowe and the beare ſhal feede together, and theyr youngones ſhall lye together. The lyon ſhall eate ſtrawe like the oxe or the kowe. The chylde whyle he ſucketh ſhall haue a deſyre to the Serpentes neſte, and when he is weaned, he ſhal put his hand into the cockatrice denne.
No man ſhall do euell vnto another, no mā ſhall deſtroye another, in all the hyll of my holyneſſe. For the earth ſhalbe full of the knowledge of the lord, euen as the ſea floweth ouer with water. And in that daye ſhall the Gentiles enquyre after yͤ roote of Ieſſe C which ſhalbe ſet vp for a tokē vnto the people, and his dwellyng ſhalbe gloryous. At theſame tyme ſhall the Lorde take in hande agayne, to conquere the remnaunte of hys people (whiche ſhalbe left aliue) frō the aſſiryans, Egyptians, Arabians, Moryans, Elamytes, Caldees, Antiochyans: and from the Ilandes of the ſea. And he ſhall ſet vp a tokē amōge the Gentiles, and gather together the diſperſed of Iſraell: yea, ⁊ the outecaſtes of Iuda frō the foure corners of the world. The hatred of Ephrai alſo and enemies of Iuda ſhalbe cleane roted out. Ephraim ſhall beare none euill will to Iuda, ⁊ Iuda ſhal not hate Ephrai: but they both together ſhall flye vpō the ſhoulders of the Philiſtines toward the weſte, and ſpoyle them together that dwell toward the Eaſt.
The Idumytes and the Moabytes ſhall D let theyr handes fall, and the Ammonites ſhalbe obedyent vnto them.

The Lord alſo ſhall cleaue the tonges of yͤ Egiptians ſea, ⁊ with a mighty wind ſhal he lift vp his hād ouer Nilus, ⁊ ſhal ſmyte his ſeuen ſtreames, and make men go ouer drie ſhod. And thus ſhal there be a waye for hys people that remaineth, from the Aſſirians: like as it happened to the Iſraelytes what tyme they departed out of the lande of Egypte.

The ſong of the church for the obtaynyng of the vyctory and ouercomming of the worlde.

A SO that thē thou ſhalt ſaie: O Lorde I wyl thanke thee, for thou waſt diſpleaſed at me: but refrayne thou frō thy wrath, and comforte me. Beholde, God is my ſaluacion in whome I wyl truſt, and not be afrayde. For the Lorde God is my ſtrength & my ſonge, he alſo is become my ſaluaciō. Therfore with ioye ſhal ye drawe B water out of the welles of the ſauioure, and then ſhall ye ſaye: geue thankes vnto the lorde, call vpon hys name, declare hys coūſayles amonge the people, kepe them in remembraunce, for his name is excellente. O ſing praiſes vnto the lord, for he hath done greate thynges, as it is knowen in all the worlde. Crye out, and ſinge thou yͤ dwelleſt in Syon: for great is the holy one of Iſraell in the myddeſt of thee.

He prophecyeth the deſtruccion of Babilon: the captiuitie and the comming agayne of the people.

A THys is the heuy burthen of Babilon, whiche Eſay yͤ ſonne of Amos dyd ſe. Lift vp the baner vpon the hye hyll, call vnto them, holde vp your hande, that the princes may go in at the dore. I haue ſente for my deputyes & my gyauntes (ſayeth the lorde) which ſhal execute wrath. I wyll call for ſuche as tryumphe in my glory. There is a noyſe of a multitude in the mountaynes, lyke as of a greate people: a ruſhynge as though the kyngdomes of the nacions came together. (And the Lorde of hooſtes muſtereth hys armye to battayle.) They come oute of a farre countrey, from the ende of heauen: Euen the Lorde hym ſelfe with the mynyſters of his wrath, to deſtroye the whole lande. Mourne ye, for the daye of the lorde is at hande, and ſhall come as a diſtroyer B from the almyghtye. Therfore ſhall all handes bee letten downe, and all mennes heartes ſhall melte awaye, they ſhall ſtande in feare, carefulneſſe and ſorowe ſhal come vpon them, and they ſhall haue payne, as a woman that trauayleth with chylde. One ſhal be abaſhed of an other, and theyr faces ſhal burne lyke the flame of fyre. Behold, the daye of the Lorde ſhall come, terryble, ful of indignacion, furoure, and wrath, to make the lande waſte, and to roote oute the ſynners therof. For the ſtarres and planetes of heauen ſhall not geue theyr lighte: the ſunne ſhalbe darkened in the ryſyng, & the moone ſhall not ſhyne with his lighte. And I wyll puniſhe the wickedneſſe of the world, and the ſynnes of the vngodly, ſaith the lorde. The hie ſtomackes of the proude C wyll I take away, and wil laye doune the boaſtyng of tirauntes. I wyll make a man dearer then fyne golde, and a man to bee more worth thē a golden wedge of Ophyr. Therfore I will ſhake the heauen, and the earthe ſhall remoue out of her place: in the wrath of the lord of hoſtes, & in yͤ day of his fearefull indignacion. And Babilon ſhalbe as an hunted or chaced doo, & as a ſhepe yͭ no man taketh vp. Euery manne ſhal turne to his own people, and flye eche one into his owne lande. Whoſo is founde alone, ſhalbe ſhotte thorowe. And whoſo gather together ſhalbe deſtroyed wͭ the ſweard. *Their pſal.137.d chyldren ſhall bee ſlayne before theyr eyes, D theyr houſes ſpoyled, and theyr wiues rauiſhed. For lo, I ſhall bryng vp the Medes agaynſte them, whiche ſhall not regarde ſiluer, nor be deſirous of gold. With bowes ſhall they deſtroye the yonge children, and haue no pytye vpon women with childe, and theyr faces ſhal not ſpare the children. And Babilon (that glorye of kyngdomes and beautye of the Caldees honoure) ſhalbe deſtroyed, euen as God deſtroyed *Sodome Gen.19.d and Gomorra. It ſhal not endure for euer, neyther ſhall there be any more dwellyng there, from generacion to generacion. The Arabians ſhall pytche no tentes there, neyther ſhall the ſhepheardes make theyr foldes there any more: but fearefull wylde beaſtes ſhall lye there, and the houſes ſhalbee full of greate owles. Eſtriches ſhall dwell there, and Apes ſhall daunce there: wylde cattes ſhall crye in the palaces, and dragons ſhalbee in the pleaſaunte houſes. And as for Babilons tyme it is at hande, and her dayes ſhall not be prolonged.

The returne of the people from captiuitie. The proſperytie of the people of God, and affliccion of theyr enemyes. The pryde of Babylon.

A BUt the lorde wyll bee mercyfull vnto Iacob, and wyll yet choſe Iſraell agayne, and ſet thē in theyr owne lande. Straungers ſhall cleaue vnto them, and get thē to the houſe of Iacob, The people ſhall

people ſhall take them and cary them home to theyr owne lande. And make them to enherite the houſe of Iſrael in the land of the lord, that they maye be ſeruauntes and hādmaydens of the lord. They ſhall take thoſe pryſoners whoſe captyues they had bene afore, and rule thoſe that had oppreſſed thē.
When the lorde now ſhal bryng thee to reſt B from the trauayle, feare, ⁊ harde bondage, that thou waſt laden withal: thē ſhalt thou vſe this mockage vpon the kyng of Babylon, ⁊ ſaye: Howe happeneth it that the oppreſſour leaueth of? Is the golden trybute come to an ende? The Lord hath broken yͤ ſceptre of the vngodly, and the rod of the lordly. Which when he is wroth ſmyteth yͤ people with contynuall ſtrokes, ⁊ tyranouſly raygneth ouer yͤ Heathen, whom he perſecuted wythout compaſſyon. And therfore the whole worlde is nowe at reſt, and quietneſſe:
and men ſynge for ioye.

Yea, euen the Fyrre trees and Cedres of C Lybanus, reioyſe at thy fall, ſaying: Nowe that thou art layed downe, there come no mo vp to hewe downe vs. Hell alſo beneth trembleth to mete the at thy commyng, and for thy ſake hath rayſed hys dead, and all mightye men ⁊ princes of the earth. Al kynges of the earth ſtande vp frō their ſeates, yͭ they may all anſwere, ⁊ ſpeake vnto thee.
Arte thou become weake alſo as we? art yͧ become like vnto vs? Thy pōpe ⁊ thy pryde is layed downe into the pyt, and ſo is yͤ melody of thy inſtrumentes. Wormes be layed vnder the, ⁊ wormes be thy couerynge.

Howe art thou fallen from heauen (O D Lucifer) thou fayre mornynge chylde? howe haſte yͧ gotten a fall euen to the grounde, ⁊ arte become weaker then the people? For yͧ ſaydeſte in thyne hert: I will clyme vp into heauē, and exalt my throne aboue, beſyde yͤ ſtarres of God. I will ſyt alſo vpon yͤ holy mounte toward yͤ North, I wyll clyme vp aboue the cloudes, ⁊ wylbe lyke the hygheſt of all. Yet thou ſhalt be brought downe to the depe of hell. They that ſeke the ſhal narowly loke vpō the, ⁊ thynke in thē ſelues, ſaying: Is this the mā that brought all lādes in feare, ⁊ made yͤ kyngdomes afrayed?
Is thys he that made the world in a maner waſte, and layed the cyties to the grounde, whych let not hys pryſonners go out?

E The kynges of yͤ nacyons lye euerye one in his owne houſe wyth worſhyppe, ⁊ thou art caſt out of the graue lyke a fylthye abhominable braunche: lyke as dead mens raymente that are ſhot thorowe wyth the ſweard, and go down to yͤ ſtones of yͤ depe: as a dead corſe that is troden vnder fete, ⁊ art not buryed wͭ them. Euen becauſe that thou haſte waſted thy lande, and deſtroyed thy people. The generacion of the wycked ſhalbe without honoure for euer. Let there a waye be ſought to deſtroy their children, that be in their fathers wyckedneſſe, yͭ they come not vp agayne to poſſeſſe the lande, and fyll the worlde full of enemyes.

I wyll ſtande vp agaynſte them (ſayeth F the Lord of hoſtes) and roote out the name and remnaunte, ſonne, and ſonnes ſonne of Babylon (ſayeth the Lorde) and wyll geue it to the Otters, and wyll make water puddles of it. And I will ſwepe them out with the beſome of deſtruccyon, ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes. The Lord of hoſtes hath ſworne an oth, ſaying: It ſhall come to paſſe as I haue determined, and ſhalbe fulfilled as I haue deuyſed. So that Aſſyria ſhall I deſtroy in my lande, and vpon my mountaynes will I treade hym vnder foote. Wherethorowe hys yoke ſhall come frō them, and his burthen ſhalbe takē frō their ſhoulder.
This deuiſe hath God taken thorowe the whole world: ⁊ this is hys hande ſtretched out ouer all people. For yf the Lorde of hoſtes determyne a thynge, who is able to dyſanull it? And yf he ſtretch forthe hys hande, who maye holde it agayne?

The ſame yeare that kyng Ahas dyed, G God threatened on this maner: Reioyſe not (thou whole Paleſtina) becauſe the rod of hym that beateth the is broken: for oute of the ſerpētes rote there ſhall come an adder, and the frute ſhalbe a fyrye flyinge worme.
But the fyrſte borne of yͤ poore ſhall be fed, and yͤ ſymple ſhal dwel in ſaftye. Thy roote alſo wyl I deſtroye wͭ hungre, ⁊ it ſhal ſlay thy remnaūt. Mourne thou port, wepe thou cytie, for (O whole lande of Paleſtina) thou art layed waſte, for there ſhall come frō the north a ſmoke, yͭ not one alone may abyde in hys place. Who ſhall then anſwere the meſſengers of the Gentyles? For the Lorde hath ſtablyſhed Syon, and yͤ poore of hys people yͭ be therin, do put their truſt in him.

The .xv. Chapter.

A prophecye agaynſte Moab.

This is the heuy burthen vpon Moab: Ar of Moab was deſtroyed ⁊ ouerthrowen A in yͤ night ſeaſon. Kyr alſo in Moab was deſtroyed, and peryſſhed in the nyght. They wente vp to the ydols houſe, euen to Dibon, to yͤ hye places to wepe for Nebo, & Moab did mourne for Medba: Al their heades were balde, & all their beardes ſhauen. In their ſtretes are they gyrded aboute B with ſackcloth. In all the toppes of their houſes and ſtretes, ſhalbe nothynge but mournynge and weppynge. Heſbon and Eleale ſhal cry, yͭ their voyce ſhalbe hearde vnto Iahaz. The worthyes alſo of Moab ſhall bleate oute, and crye for very ſorowe of their myndes: Woe ſhall my herte be for C Moabs ſake. They ſhall flye vnto the cytie of zoar, which is lyke a fayre yoũge bullock of thre yere olde, for they ſhall all go vp to Luith weppynge. Euen ſo by yͤ way towarde Horonaim they ſhall make lamentaciõ for their vtter deſtruccyon. For the waters of Nimrim ſhal be dryed vp, by reaſon wherof the graſſe is wythred, the herbes deſtroyed, & the grene thinges gone. For the reſydue that he hath done, they are ſory. As for their ſubſtaunce, the enemyes haue caryed them to the brooke of the wyllowes. For the D crye went ouer the whole lande of Moab: vnto Eglaim, & vnto Beer Elim, was ther nothyng but mournyng, becauſe yͤ waters of Dimon wer ful of bloud: for I the Lord ſhall ſende more bloude vpon Dimon, and Lyons vpon the remnaunt of yͤ lande, & on them that are eſcaped from Moab.

¶ The .xvi. Chapter.

The deſtruccyon of Moab.

SEnde the Lorde of the worlde a lãbe A from the rocke that lyeth towarde yͤ deſerte, vnto the hyll of the daughter Sion. For as for the daughters of Moab, they ſhalbe as a tremblynge byrde yͭ is put out of harueſt, for they ſhall carye thẽ vnto Arnon: gather your coũſayll, come together in iudgement, couer vs with your ſhadow in the myddaye, as the nyght doeth hyde the chaced, and bewraye not thẽ that are fled, let my perſecuted people dwell amonge you.
Moab, be thou their refuge agaynſt the deſtroyer: B for the aduerſarye is brought to noughte, yͤ robber is vndone, the tyraunt is waſted out of the lande. And in mercy ſhall the ſeate be prepared, and he ſhall ſyt vpon it in the trueth in the tabernacle of Dauid, iudgynge & ſekynge iudgemẽte, & makyng haſte vnto ryghteouſneſſe. We haue heard of yͤ pryde of Moab, he is very proud, preſumpteous, arrogant, & ful of indignacion, & vayne are hys lyes. Therfore ſhal Moab make lamentacion becauſe of yͤ Moabites (that ſhalbe ſlayne) yea, they ſhal wayle all together. Bycauſe of the foundacions of yͤ cytie that is made of brycke, ſhall ye complayne: euen ye lame people that are left onely behynde.

For the vynes of Heſbon are cut downe:
As for the vyne of Sybna, the lordes of yͤ C Heathen haue broken downe her pryncipal braunches: they are come euen vnto Iazer, they wente on wandrynge vnto the wylderneſſe.
Her goodlye braũches were throwen downe as they went ouer the ſea. Therfore wil I mourne for Iazer, & for the vyne of Sibna. I will poure my teares vpon the, O Heſbon and Eleale, for the crye of thyne enemyes is fallen vpõ thy ſommer frutes, & vpon thy herueſt. The myrth & chere is takẽ away out of the plentiful felde, & in yͤ vyneyardes, there ſhalbe no ioye nor gladneſſe.
The treader ſhal treade out no wyne in the D preſſes, the ſõge of their mery chere haue I layed down. Wherfore, my bowels ſhal rõble lyke an harpe, for Moabs ſake, & myne inwarde partes, for the cyties ſake that is made of brycke. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that whẽ it is ſene that Moab ſhalbe made wery of hys hyl chapels, he ſhal come to his tẽple to praye, but he ſhall not be able. So then, thys is the ſayinge that the Lord hath ſpoken concernyng Moab, ſyns that tyme.
But nowe the lord hath ſpoken, ſaying: In thre yeres, which ſhall be as the yeres of an hyred ſeruaunte, ſhall the glory of Moab be turned into confuſyon, thorowoute all hys multitude, whiche is verye great. And that whyche remayneth, ſhalbe very ſmall and feble.

¶ The .xvii. Chapter.

A prophecye agaynſte Damaſcus.

THis is yͤ heuy burthen vpon Damaſcus: A beholde, Damaſcus is taken away to be nomore a cytie, but ſhalbe an heape of broken ſtones. The waſt cyties of Aroer ſhalbe foldes for catell, which ſhal lye there, and there ſhalbe none to fraye thẽ away: Ephraim alſo ſhall nomore be ſtrõg, and Damaſcus ſhall nomore be a kyngedome & the remnaunt of Siria ſhalbe as yͤ glorye of yͤ children of Iſrael, ſayth the lord of hoſtes. And in that daye it ſhall come to paſſe, that Iacob ſhalbe made verye poore, and the fatnes of his fleſh ſhal waxe leane.
And he ſhalbe as one that gathereth vp corne in herueſt, euen lyke hym whoſe arme reapeth the eares of corne.

He ſhalbe alſo like him yͭ gathereth eares of corne in the valley of Rephaim. Some gatherynge in dede ſhall there be lefte in it, euen as in the ſhakynge of an olyue tree, there remayne two or thre beries in yͤ toppe of the vppermoſt bough, ⁊ foure or fyue in the brode fruytefull braunches therof, ſaith the Lord God of Iſraell.

B Then ſhall man turne agayne to hys maker, and hys eyes ſhall haue reſpect to ẏ holy one of Iſrael. As for the aulters which are hys owne handyworcke, he ſhall not regarde thē, and the thinges that his fyngers haue made (as groues and ymages) thoſe ſhall he not caſt hys eye vnto. In that daye ſhall theyr ſtronge cyties be as the forſaken ſhrubbes ⁊ braunches, whiche they left becauſe of the children of Iſraell: ⁊ the lande ſhalbe deſolate. Becauſe thou haſt forgotten God thy ſaluaciō, ⁊ haſt not bene myndfull of thy ſtrong rock, therfore ſhalt thou ſet pleaſaunt plantes, and ſhalt graffe the braunche of an other mannes vyne. In the daye ſhalt thou make thy plant to growe, ⁊ early in the mornynge ſhalt thou make thy ſeede to floryſhe. The herueſt ſhalbe gone in the day of enheritaunce, and there ſhalbe ſorowe wythout hope of comfort.

C Woe ſhalbe to the multytude of muche people, which ſhall make a ſounde lyke the noyſe of the ſea. And the violence of the nacions, which ſhal rage lyke the ruſhynge in of many waters: Euen lyke many waters ſhall ẏ people rage. God ſhal rebuke hym, and he ſhal flye farre of. He ſhalbe chaſed away lyke as drye ſtrawe vpō ẏ moūtaynes before the wynde: ⁊ lyke a thyng that turneth before the ſtorme. At euē, beholde, ther is trouble: and or euer it be mornynge, loe, he is gone. Thys is the porcyon of thē that oppreſſe vs, ⁊ the lot of thē that robbe vs.

A prophecye agaynſt Egypt.

A O That lande that truſteth vnder the ſhadow of wynges, ẏ lande which is beyonde ẏ waters of Ethyopia: Sēdynge meſſaungers by the ſea, euē in veſſelles of reedes ouer the water. Get you hence (ye ſpedye meſſaungers) to a nacyon that is ſcatered abroade, ⁊ robbed of that they had, a fearful people from their begynnyng hytherto: a nacyō troden down by litle ⁊ litle, whoſe lādes the floudes haue ſpoyled. All ye inhabytours of the worlde ⁊ indwellers of the earthe, looke vp when he ſetteth a token in the moūtaynes, ⁊ herken whē he bloweth with the trōpe. For ſo ẏ lord ſayd vnto me: as for me, I wil take my reſt, and loke vpō the matter in my habitacyon, lyke a fayer heate after the rayne, and lyke a cloude of dewe in the heate of harueſt.

B For afore the harueſte when the braūche is growen, there ſhall come rype fruyte out of the floure: and he ſhall cut downe the increaſe with ſythes, and the braunches ſhall he take away with hookes. Thus ſhall they be lefte together vnto ẏ foules of the moūtaynes, and to the beaſtes of the earth: for in ſommer the byrdes ſhall remayne vpon it, ⁊ euery beaſt of the lande ſhall be vpon it in the wynter. In that tyme ſhal ther a preſēte be brought vnto the lorde of Hoſtes, euen a people that is ſcatered abroade, ⁊ robbed of that they hadde: that ſame people whych haue bene fearfull from their begynnynge hytherto, a nacyon troden downe by lytle ⁊ lytle, whoſe lande the floudes haue ſpoyled: to the place of the name of the Lorde of Hooſtes, euen to the mount Syon.

The prophecye agaynſt Egypt.

THe heuye burthen of Egypt: Beholde, the Lorde rydeth vpon a ſwift cloude, and ſhall come into Egypt: and the Idols of Egypt ſhall tremble at the preſence of hym, and ẏ herte of Egypte ſhall quake in the myddeſte of her. And I will ſet the Egypcians one agaynſte another, ſo that one brother ſhall fyght agaynſte another, ⁊ one neyghboure agaynſt another, Cytye agaynſt Cytye, and Realme agaynſt Realme. The mynde alſo of Egypte ſhalbe cleane wythout councell wythin it ſelfe, and the deuyce that they take wyll I deſtroye, ſo ẏ they ſhall ſeke counſel at Idols, and at ſorcerers, at worckers with ſpirites, ⁊ at ſothſayers. And the Egypcians wyll I geue ouer into the hande of a maruelous cruell lorde, and a myghtye kyng ſhall haue dominion ouer them, ſayeth the lorde God of Hooſtes: the waters of the ſea ſhall fayle, ⁊ the ryuer ſhall decreaſe, ⁊ be dryed vp. The waters ſhalbe drawen out, ẏ ryuers of Egipt ſhalbe emptyed and dryed vp, ẏ reedes and flagges ſhalbe cut downe. A

The graſſe in the ryuer and by the ryuers banck and all that groweth by ẏ ryuer, ſhal wyther awaye, and be broughte to naught. The fyſhers alſo ſhall mourne, and al they that caſt angle in to the water, ſhall make lamentacyon: and they that laye forth their net beſyde the waters ſhalbe roted out. Moreouer, they that worcke in flax and make fyne worckes, ſhalbe confounded: and ſo ſhall they that weue open worckes. For their open workes ſhalbe euen deſtroyed: and al they that make pondes and ſtues for fyſhe ſhall come to naught. B

But ye fooliſh prynces of zoan, ye wiſe coūſaylers of Pharao, whoſe wyt is turned to foolyſhenes, howe ſaye ye vnto Pharao? I am come of wyſe men, and of auncient kynges. Where are nowe the wyſe men? Let thē tell the (yf they can) what the Lorde of Hoſtes hath deuyſed vpon Egypte.

C The prynces of zoan are become fooles, yͤ prynces of Noph are dyſceaued, they haue dyſceaued Egypt, euen they that were taken for the chefe kynred therof. In the myddeſt of it hath yͤ Lord poured yͤ ſprite of wyckedneſſe, and they haue dyſceaued Egipt in euery worke therof: euen as a dronken man ſtackereth in his vomyte. Nether ſhall the heade or tayle, yͤ braunch or reede, be hable to do any worcke in Egipt. In that day ſhal Egipte be lyke vnto wemen: It ſhalbe afrayed and ſtande in feare at the mocyon of the hand of the Lorde of Hooſtes, which he ſhaketh ouer it. And Egypt ſhalbe afrayed of yͤ lande of Juda, ſo that euery one which maketh mēcyon of it, ſhalbe afrayed thereat becauſe of the councel of the Lord of hoſtes whyche he deuyſeth for it.

In that daye ſhall fyue cytyes in the lāde of Egypt ſpeake the language of Canaan, and ſweare by the Lorde of Hoſtes, the citie of deſolacyon, ſhalbe called one of them. In that day ſhal yͤ aultare of the Lorde be in yͤ myddes of the land of Egypt, and this tytle beſyde it: Unto the Lord. And it ſhalbe a token and a wytneſſe vnto the Lorde of Hooſtes in the lande of Egypte. For they ſhall crye vnto the lorde, becauſe of ſuche as trouble them, and he ſhall ſend them a Sauiour, ⁊ a greate man to delyuer them.

And the lorde ſhalbe knowen in Egypt, ⁊ D the Egypcians ſhall knowe the lord in that day, and do ſacrifice and oblacion: yea, they ſhall vowe a vowe vnto the lorde, and perfourme it. The Lord alſo ſhall ſmyte Egipt ſoore, and heale thē agayne: and they ſhalbe cōuerted vnto yͤ lord, and he ſhalbe intreated of them, and ſhall heale them. In that daye ſhall there be a comen waye oute of Egypte into Aſſyria, and Aſſyria ſhall come into Egypt: and Egypt into Aſſyria: ſo that the Egypcians and the Aſſirians ſhal ſerue the lord together. In that daye ſhal the nacion of Iſrael be the thyrde with Egypte ⁊ Aſſyria, and they ſhalbe bleſſed in the myddes of yͤ lande, which lande yͤ lord of Hoſtes hath bleſſed, ſayinge: bleſſed is my people of Egypte: Aſſur alſo is the worke of myne handes: and Iſraell is myne enherytaunce.

Agaynſt Egypte and Ethyopia.

In the yeare that Tharthā came vnto Aſdod (when Sargon the kynge of Aſſiria had ſent him) ⁊ had fought agaynſt Aſdod, and taken it. At the ſame tyme ſpake the Lord by the hand of Eſaye yͤ ſonne of Amos, ſaying: Goe, ⁊ take of the ſackeclothe from thy loynes, ⁊ put of thy ſhooe from thy foote. And he dyd ſo, walkynge naked and barefoote.

And the Lorde ſayd: lyke as my ſeruaūte Eſay hath walked naked and barefote for a ſygne and wonder thre yeares vpō Egypt, and Ethyoppa: Euen ſo ſhall the kynge of Aſſyria take awaye oute of Egypte and out of Ethiopia, children ⁊ olde men, naked and bare fote, with their loynes vncouered, to the great ſhame of Egypte.

They ſhalbe broughte in feare alſo, and aſhamed one of another: Ethyopia of E- B gypt, and Egypt of Ethyopia, cōſyderynge what glory they were in afore. And they that dwell in the ſame Ile ſhall ſaye in that day: Behold, thus are we regarded. Whyther ſhall we flye for helpe, that we maye be delyuered from the kynge of Aſſyria? And howe ſhall we eſcape?

The.xxi.Chapter.

Agaynſt Babylon, Idumea, and Arabya.

The burthen of the waſte ſea: Euen as the ſtormie wether that paſſeth thorowe at the noone day, to come from yͤ wyldernes, from that horrible lande. A greuous viſion was ſhewed vnto me: Let one dyſceateful offender come agaynſt another, and one deſtroyer agaynſt another. Up Elam, laye ſeyge thou of Media, al their gronynge haue I layd downe. Therfore are my loynes fylled with ſorowe: heuynes hath taken holde vpon me, as the panges of a woman that is trauaylynge. It made me ſtoupe when I hearde it, and it vexed me when I ſawe it. My hert panted, fearfulnes came vpon me. The nyght of my voluptuouſnes, hath he turned agaynſte me into feare. Whyle they gar- B nyſhed the table, the watchman loked: And whyle I was eatynge and drynckynge (it was ſayde) vp ye Captaynes take you to youre ſhylde. For thus hath yͤ lord ſayd vnto me: Go, ⁊ ſet a watcheman to tell what he ſeeth. And he ſaw a charet whych two horſmen ſat vppō, with yͤ caryage of an aſſe, ⁊ yͤ caryage of a camel: So he loked ⁊ toke very dylygent hede. And yͤ Lyon cryed, Lord, I ſtande waytyng al the whole daye, ⁊ am appointed to kepe my watch euery nyght.

And behold, here commeth a charet of men with twoo horſmen. And he aunſwered, and ſayd: Babilon is fallen, it is fallen, ⁊ all the ymages of her gods hath he ſmytten doune vnto the grounde. Thou arte he whome I muſt threſh, and thou belongeſt to my corne flooze. This that I hearde of the Lord of Hooſtes the God of Iſrael haue I ſhewed C vnto you. The burthen of Duma: he calleth vnto me oute of Seyr: Watcheman what haſt thou eſpied by night? Watchemã what haſt thou eſpied by night? The watcheman ſayde: The morning commeth, and ſo doth the nyghte. Yf ye wyll aſke any queſtion, then aſke it: returne and come againe. The burthen concerning Arabia: In the pleaſaunt grounde of Arabia ſhall ye tary all nyght euen in the ſtretes of Dedanin. The inhabitours of yͤ lande of Thema, brought forthe water to hym that was thirſty, they preuented hym with their breade, that was fled away. For becauſe of ſweardes are they become fugitiue, euen for yͤ drawen ſweard, and for the bente bowe, and becauſe of the greuouſneſſe of warre. For thus hathe the lorde ſaid vnto me: There is yet a yeare according to the yeares of an hyred ſeruaunt, and all the glory of Cedar ſhall fayle. And the numbre of them that ſhall eſcape from the bowes, ſhalbe myniſhed by the mightye chyldren of Cedar, for ſo the lorde God of Iſraell hath ſpoken.

The.xxii. Chapter.

A prophecye agaynſte Ieruſalem.

A The burthen of the vallye of vyſion.
What haſte thou to do here, that thou clymeſte vnto the houſe toppes?
Thou that arte full of occupyeng, thou ſedycious and proude cytye: thy ſlayne men are neyther put to death with ſwearde, nor dead in battayle. All thy captaynes are fugytyue together, the archers haue taken them pryſoners. All they that are founde in thee, are in captyuytye together, becauſe they fledde farre of. Therfore ſayde I: Luke.19.f Iere.9.a. let me alone, and * I wyll make lamentacyon.
Ye ſhall not be able to comforte me, becauſe of the deſtruccion of the daughter of my people. For thys is a daye of trouble, of ruyne, and of deſtruccion that the lorde wyll bryng to paſſe in the valley of vyſion, breakyng downe the cytye, and crying vnto B the mountaynes. Elam bare the quiuer with a charet of fotemen and of horſemen, ⁊ the citie of Kyr ſhewed yͤ ſhilde open. Thy chyefe vallye alſo was full of charrettes, and the horſmen ſet theyr faces dyrectlye toward the gate. And in that daye dyd the enemye take away the bewtye of Iuda, and then dyddeſt thou looke toward yͤ armoure of the houſe of yͤ foreſt. Ye haue ſene alſo yͤ broken places of the cytye of Dauid, howe that they are many, ⁊ ye gathered together the waters of yͤ lower poole. As for yͤ houſes of Ieruſalem, ye haue nõbred them, and the houſes haue ye broken downe to make yͤ wall ſtronge. A pyt alſo haue ye made betwene yͤ two walles, for the waters of yͤ olde poole: ⁊ haue not regarded yͤ maker thereof, nether had reſpect vnto him yͭ toke it in hãd.

And in that daye dyd the Lorde God of C Hoſtes call men vnto weppynge and mournynge, to baldneſſe ⁊ gyrdynge about with ſackclothe. And beholde, they haue ioye and gladneſſe, ſlayinge oxen ⁊ kyllynge ſhepe, eatynge fleſhe, ⁊ drynckynge wyne. * Let vs eate ⁊ dryncke, for to morowe we ſhall dye. 1.Co.15.e Sapi.2.b And it came to yͤ eares of yͤ Lord of hoſtes: This iniquitye ſhal not be pourged frõ you till ye dye, ſayeth the Lord God of Hooſtes.
Thus ſayth the Lord God of Hooſtes: Go, get the vnto yonder treaſurer: euen vnto * Sebna, whyche is the ruler of the houſe. Eſai.36.a What haſt thou to do here? and whom haſt thou here? that thou ſhuldeſt here hewe the out a ſepulchre, as it were one yͭ heweth him out a ſepulchre on hygh, or that graueth an habitacion for him ſelfe in an harde rocke.

Beholde, O thou man, the Lorde ſhall carye the awaye into captyuytie, ⁊ ſhal ſurely D couer the with confuſyon. The Lorde ſhall turne the ouer lyke a balle with his handes, (and ſhall ſend the) into a farre countrye, there ſhalte thou dye, ⁊ there (in ſteade of yͤ Charettes of thy põpe) ſhall yͤ houſe of thy Lord haue confuſyon. I wyll dryue the from thy place, ⁊ out of thy dwellynge ſhall he ouerthrowe the. And in that daye ſhall I cal my ſeruaunte Elyakym the ſonne of Helkya.
And with thy garmentes will I cloth hym, and with thy gyrdle will I ſtrengthe hym: thy power alſo wil I cõmyt into his hande, and he ſhalbe a father of ſuch as dwell in Ieruſalem, and in the houſe of Iuda.

* And the keye of the houſe of Dauid will Job 12.b I laye vpon hys ſhulder, ſo yͭ he ſhall open Apoca.3.b and no man ſhall ſhut. He ſhal ſhut, and no man ſhall open. And I wyll faſten him as a nayle in a ſure place, and he ſhalbe yͤ glorious ſeate of his fathers houſe. Moreouer, E all generacions and poſteryties ſhal hange vpõ him all yͤ glory of theyr fathers houſe, all veſſelles both great and ſmall, and all inſtrumentes of meaſure and muſyke.

In that daye (ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes) ſhall the nayle that is faſtened in the ſure place, departe, bee broken, and fall: and the burthen that was vpon it, ſhalbe pluckte awaye: for ſo the lorde hath ſpoken.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

A prophecie agaynſt Tyrus, and a promiſe that it ſhalbe reſtored agayne.

A THe burthen of *Tyre: Mourne Eze.26.a ye ſhippes of Tharſis, for there cõmeth ſuche deſtruccion, that ye ſhall not haue an houſe to entre into: Oute of the land of Citym haue they knowledge of this plage. Be ſtyll ye that dwell in the Yle: the marchauntes of zydon, and ſuche as paſſe ouer the ſea, haue made thee plenteous. The corne that groweth by the great waters of Nilus, and the fruites of yͤ riuer wer her vitailes, ſo that it became a common marte of the nacions. Be aſhamed thou zidon, for the ſea, (euẽ the ſtrength of the ſea,) hath ſpoken, ſaying: I haue not trauayled nor brought forth chyldren, nor nouriſhed vp yong men or broughte vp virgyns.
When tyndynges commeth to the Egipcians, they ſhalbe ſorye for the rumoure that goeth of Tyre. Gette you to Tharſis, B mourne ye that dwell in the Yle. Is not this that glorious Citie of yours, whiche hathe been of olde antiquitie? Her owne feete ſhall carry her forth to be a ſoiourner into a farre countreye. Who hath deuiſed this agaynſte Tyre (yͭ geueth garlãdes vnto other Cities) whoſe marchaũtes are princes: ⁊ whoſe captaynes are honourable in the worlde? Euen the Lord of hooſtes hath deuiſed this, to put downe the pryde of al ſuche as be glorious, and to myniſhe all them that be proude vpõ earth: Get the out of yͤ lãde vnto the daughter of Tharſis: ſeing yͧ haſt nomore ſtrẽgth.

C He that ſmote the kyngdomes together, holdeth out his hande ouer the ſea, euen the Lord hymſelfe hathe geuen a commaundement againſt the ſame commõ place of marchaundyſe, that they ſhall vtterlye deſtroye the mighte thereof. And he ſayd: Make nomore thy boaſt (O virgin thou daughter zidon) thou ſhalte be brought downe: Up, get thee ouer vnto Citim: where neuertheleſſe thou ſhalt haue no reſt. Behold this people come not of the Caldees: but Aſſur made thẽ ſtronge with greate ſhippes. They ſette vp the ſtronge holde thereof, and deſtroyed his places, and he brought it in decaie. Mourne ye ſhyppes of Tharſis for your ſtrengthe is brought downe.

D And in that daye ſhal Tire be forgottẽ ſeuentye yeares (accordyng to yͤ yeares of one kyng) ⁊ after the ende of the ſeuentye yeares ſhal Tyre ſynge as doeth an harlot. Take an harpe, and go aboute the Citie (thou harlot thou haſt been forgottẽ) make ſwete melodye, ſing mo ſonges yͭ thou mayeſt be had in remembraunce. And after the ende of the ſeuentye yeares ſhal yͤ Lord viſet Tyre, and ſhe ſhal conuerte vnto her reward, and ſhal commyt fornicacion with al the kingdomes of the earth that are in the world. Theyr occupying alſo and theyr reward ſhal be holy vnto yͤ lord: Theyr gaynes ſhal not be layd vp nor kept in ſtore, but it ſhal be theirs that dwell before the Lorde: that they maye eate ynough and haue clothyng ſufficient.

The.xxiiii.Chapter.

A prophecie of tribulacion to come vpon the worlde becauſe of ſynne.

BEholde, the lord maketh the earth A waſte ⁊ emptye: he turneth it vpſyde downe, ⁊ ſcattereth abroade the inhabytours therof. And the prieſt ſhalbe as the people, and yͤ maſter as the ſeruaunt, the maſtreſſe like the mayde, yͤ ſeller like the byer: He that lendeth vpon vſury, lyke hym that boroweth vpon vſury: yͤ creditoure as the detter: The worlde ſhalbe cleane waſted and vtterly ſpoyled, for ſo the lorde hath ſpoken. The earth is ſorye, and conſumeth awaye: the world is feble and periſheth, the proude people of the earthe are Luke.21. come to naught. The earth alſo is become vnprofitable vnder the enhabitours therof, whiche haue tranſgreſſed the lawes, chaunged the ordinaunce, broken the euerlaſting couenaunt. Therfore hathe the curſe conſumed B the yearth, ⁊ they yͭ dwel therin are fallẽ into treſpaſſe. Wherfore the inhabitours of the earth are peryſhed with drought, and fewe mẽ are left behinde. The wyne faileth, the wyne hath no mighte: all they that haue been mery of heart are come to mournyng. Esay.26.
The myrthe of tabrettes is layed doune, the noyſe of ſuche as haue made mery, is ceaſed, the ioye of the Harpe is at an ende. They ſhall drynke no more with myrthe, ſtrong dryncke ſhalbe bitter to them that drinke it.
The Citie of vanitie is broken doune, euery houſe is ſhut vp, that no man may come in.
In the ſtretes is there a crying becauſe of wyne, al chere is vaniſhed awaye, the myrth of the worlde is goen: in the Citie is left deſolacion, and the gate is ſmytten with deſtruccion.

For in yͤ middes of the world, euen amõg C the people, it ſhall come to paſſe, as at yͤ ſha-kyng of Olyues: ⁊ as the grapes are when yͤ wine heruest is done: They ſhall lyft vp their voyce, and make a mery noyce, and in magnifyinge of the Lord, ſhal they crye out of the weſt. Wherfore prayſe ye the Lord in the valleys, euen the name of the lorde God of Iſrael, in yͤ Iles of yͤ ſea. From the vttermoſt part of the earth haue we heard prayſes ⁊ myrth, becauſe of the ryghteous. And I ſaid: I know a thyng in ſecrete: I knowe a thynge in ſecrete: woe is me, the tranſgreſſours haue offended: the trāſgreſſiours haue greuouſly offēded. Fearefulnes, the pyt, and the ſnare, are vpon the, O thou that dwelleſt on the earth. It wyl come to paſſe that whoſoeuer ſcapeth that fearfull noyſe, ſhall

Euen I the Lorde do kepe it. In due ſeaſons

The dayes are commyng that Iacob ſhal my voyce, conſydre and pondre my ſpeche.

Dothe not the huſbandman plowe all the Beholde, the fame of the Lorde commeth

The.xxxi. Chapter.

He curſeth them that forſake God, and ſeke for the helpe of men.

A WOe bee vnto them that goe

The.xxxii. Chapter.

The condicyons of good rulers and offycers.

BEholde, a kynge ſhall gouerne A after the rule of ryghteouſneſſe, and the prynces ſhall rule according to the balaunce of equitie.
And that man ſhall be vnto men as a defence for the wynde, & as a refuge for the tempeſt: lyke as a ryuer of water in a thyrſtie place, and the ſhadowe of a greate rocke in a drye lande. The eyes of the ſeeyng ſhall not be dymme, and the eares of them that heare, ſhall take dylygent hede. The herte of the vnwyſe ſhall attayne to knowledge, and the vnperfyte toungue ſhall ſpeake playnlye and and the grape gatheryng ſhall not come.

O ye ryche ydell cytyes, ye that feare no

For as the infantes wepe whẽ theyr mothers that the ſpryte be powred vpon vs from The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

The laſt deſtruccion of the Synagoge, in which to the churche and congregacion of Chriſte.

A COme ye Heathen and heare, and deliuered them to the ſlaughter: So that their ſlaine ſhalbe caſt out, and their ſtarres of heauen ſhall waſte, and the heauen ſhall folde together lyke a roll, and all the ſtarres therof ſhall fall, lyke as the leaues fall from the vynes, and in Heauen, and ſhall immediatlye come downe in iudgemente vpon Idumea, and vpon the people which I haue curſed for my vengeaunce.

B And the Lordes ſweard ſhalbe full of bloud, ⁊ be ruſty with the fatnes ⁊ bloud of lambes and goates, with the fatnes of

There ſhall the Unicornes fall with thẽ, it for euer. But pellicanes, ſtorkes great oules, ⁊ rauens, ſhal haue it in poſſeſſiõ,

When kynges are called vpon, there

Thornes ſhal grow in their palaces, nettles

There ſhal the Lamia lye, and haue bryng forth his yonge ones. There ſhall the kytes come together, eche one to hys lyke. Seke thorowe the ſcrypture of the D Lorde and read it. There ſhall none of theſe thynges be left out: there ſhall not one, nor ſuche lyke, fayle. For what hys mouth commaundeth, theſame doeth his ſpyryte gather together, or fulfylleth. He hath caſte the lot for them, and to thoſe beaſtes hath his handes deuyded ẏ lyne: therfore thoſe ſhall poſſeſſe the enherytaunce, from generacion to generacion, and dwel therin for euer.

The.xxxvi.Chapter.

Jeruſalem is beſeged by Sennacheryb, in the tyme of kynge Hezekias.

A 4.Re.18.c 2.Pa.32.a Eſay.7.d 8.b.10.a 17.E.32.a IN * the.xiiii.yere of kynge Hezekias came Sennacherib king of the Aſſirians downe, to laye ſeyge vnto all the ſtronge cities of Juda, to conquere them. And the kynge of the Aſſyrians ſent Rabſaketh from Lachis towarde Jeruſalem agaynſte kynge Hezekias, with an exceadyng hoſt: whiche ſet hym by the condyte of the ouerpoole in the waye that goeth thorowe the fullers lande. And ſo there came forthe vnto hym Eſa.22.a Eliakim Helkias ſōne the preſidēt * Sobna the ſcrybe, and Joah Aſaphs ſonne the ſecretorye. And Rabſaketh ſayed vnto thē: Tel Hezekias, that the greate kinge of Aſſirya ſayeth thus vnto hym: what preſūpciō is this, that thou truſteſt vnto? I ſaied: Surely thou truſteſte in vayne wordes, when councell and ſtrength are neceſſarye to battayle: or els wherto truſteſt thou, ỹ 4.Re.18.b thou caſteſt thy ſelfe of from me? * lo, thou Eze.29.a putteſt thy truſt in a brokē ſtaffe of rede (I B meane Egypt) whiche he that leaneth vpon, it goeth into hys hand and ſhuteth hym thorowe. Euen ſo is Pharao the kynge of Egypte, vnto all them that truſte in hym.

But yf thou wolteſt ſaye to me: We truſt in the Lorde our GOD. A goodly God in dede: whoſe hie places and aultares Hezekia toke downe, and commaunded Juda, and Jeruſalem to worſhyppe only before the aulter. Nowe therfore delyuer Hoſtages, that thou rebelle nomore agaynſt my Lorde the kynge of Aſſiryans. And I wil geue the two thouſande horſes: yf thou be able to ſet men vpon them. Howe dareſte thou reſiſt the power of ỹ ſmalleſt prince, C that my Lorde hathe? howe dareſte thou truſte in the charettes and horſemen of Egypt? Moreouer, thynkeſt thou that I am come vp hither to deſtroye this land without the Lordes wyll? The Lord ſayde vnto me: go vp into the land, that thou mayſt deſtroye it. Then ſayed Eliakim, Sobna and Joah vnto Rabſaketh. Speake to vs thy ſeruauntes (we praye the) in the Siryans language, for we vnderſtande it well. And ſpeake not to vs in the Jewes tonge, leſte the folke heare whiche lyeth vpon the wal. Then anſwered Rabſaketh: thinke ye that the kynge ſente me to ſpeake thys onelye vnto thy Lord and the? hath he not ſent me vnto them alſo that lye vpon the wall? that they may bee compelled to eate theyr owne donge, and drynke theyr owne ſtale with you? And Rabſaketh ſtode ſtyf, ⁊ cried with a loude voyce in ỹ Jewes tongue, and ſayed: nowe take hede, howe the great king of the Aſſirians geueth you warning. Thus ſayeth the kynge: Let not Hezekias D dyſceaue you: for he ſhall not be able to delyuer you. Moreouer, let not Hezekias cōforte you in the Lorde, when he ſayeth: the Lorde withoute doubte, ſhall defende vs, and ſhall not geue ouer thys citie into the handes of the kyng of the Aſſirians, beleue hym not. But thus ſayeth the kynge of Aſſiria: obtayne my fauoure, enclyne to me, ſo maye euery man enioye his vyneyardes ⁊ fyg trees, and drynke the water of hys ceſterne, vnto the tyme that I come my ſelfe ⁊ brynge you into a lande that is lyke youre owne, wherin is whete and wyne, whiche is bothe ſowen with ſeede, ⁊ planted with vineyardes. Where is the God of Hemath ⁊ Arphad? Where is the God of Sepharuaim? And who was able to defende Samaria out of my hande? Or which of al the Gods of theſe landes hath deliuered theyr countrie out of my power? is the Lord in dede able to deliuer Jeruſalem from my hande? Unto this Hezekias meſſaungers helde theyr tongues, and anſwered not one word, for ỹ king had charged them that they ſhoulde geue him no anſwere. So came Eliakim Helkias ſōne the preſydent, Sobna the Scrybe, and Joah Aſaphs ſonne ỹ ſecretorye, vnto Hezekias with rente clothes, ⁊ tolde him the wordes of Rabſaketh.

They ſhal grow together like as ỹ graſſe, and as the wyllowes by the waters ſyde. One ſhal ſaye, I am the Lordes: Another ſhal cal hym ſelfe after the name of Jacob. The thyrde ſhall ſubſcribe with his hande vnto the Lorde, & geue himſelfe vnder the name of Iſraell. Thus hath the Lord ſpoken, B euen the kyng of Iſrael & his redemer, Eſa.41.a the Lord of hooſtes. *I am the fyrſt & the Apoc.22.c laſt, & without me is there no God. Yf any Eſa.44.b be lyke me, let him cal furth ỹ thyng paſt, & Apo.1.b openly ſhewe it, & lay it playne before me, Eſa.43.c what hath chaunſed ſince I appoynted the people of the worlde, & what ſhal be ſhortly, or what ſhall come to paſſe in time long to come, let them ſhewe theſe thinges. Be not abaſhed nor afrayed. For haue not I euer tolde you hitherto & warned you? Ye can beare me record youre ſelues. Is there any God excepte me? or any maker that I ſhoulde not knowe hym? All karuers of ymages are but vaine, & the karued images that they loue, can do no good. They muſt beare recorde them ſelues, that (ſeyng they can nether ſee, nor vnderſtande) they ſhalbe Eſa.42.b confounded. *Who dare thē make a God, or faſhyō an ymage, that is profitable for Pſ.114.b nothinge? *Beholde all the felowſhyp of Sap.13.c them muſte be brought to confuſyon. And truly all ỹ worckemaſters of them are mē, they ſhal al be gathered together, they ſhal ſtande, tremble, & be confounded one with another. The ſmyth maketh an axe, & tempereth it with hoate coales, and faſhioneth it with hammers, and worketh it with all the ſtrength of hys armes: yea, ſomtime he is faynt for very hunger, & ſo thurſtye that he hath nomore power. The carpenter (or ymage karuer) taketh meaſure of the tymber, & ſpreadeth forth his line: he marketh it with ſome coloure, he planeth it, he ruleth it, & ſquareth it, and maketh it after the ymage of a man: & accordyng to the bewtie of a man, that it maye ſtand in the tēple.

C Moreouer, he goeth out to hewe downe Ceder trees. He bringeth home Elmes & Okes, & takyng a bolde courage, he ſeketh oute the beſt tymber of the wood. He hym ſelfe hathe planted a pine tree, whiche the rayne hath ſwelled, whiche wood ſerueth for men to burne. Of thys he taketh & warmeth hym ſelfe with all: he maketh a fire of it to bake breade. And afterwarde maketh a god thereof, to honoure it, and an ydol to knele before it. One peece he burneth in the fyre, with another he roſteth fleſhe, that he maye eate roſte hys belly full: with the thyrde he warmeth hym ſelfe, and ſayeth: A ha, I am well warmed, I haue bene at the fyre. And of the reſydue he maketh hym a God, & an ydol for hym ſelfe. He kneleth before it, he worſhippeth it, he prayeth vnto it, and ſayeth: Delyuer me, for thou arte my God. *Yet men neyther conſyder nor *Eſa.4 vnderſtād, becauſe theyr eyes are ſtopped, that they cannot ſe: and theyr heartes, that they cannot perceaue. I haue baked bread with ỹ coales therof, I haue roſted fleſhe with all, and eaten it: ſhall I now of the reſydue make an abhomynable Idoll, and fall downe before a rotten pece of wood? Thus he doth but loſe hys laboure: and hys hearte whiche is dyſceaued doth turne him a ſyde, ſo that none of them can haue a fre conſcience to thinke: may not I erre? The.v.Chapter.

In Iewry is there no righteous or faithful man found, eyther amongeſt the people or the rulers, for whoſe ſake the lorde ſhoulde ſpare the citye. Wherfore Iewry is deſtroyed of the Aſſyrians.

A LOke through Ieruſalem, behold and ſee: Seke through her ſtretes alſo within, if ye can find one man that doeth equal and right, or ſeketh for the trueth, and I ſhall ſpare that Iere.4.a and.12.c citie (ſayeth the lord.) * For thoughe they can ſay, the Lord liueth: yet do they ſweare to diſceiue. Where as thou (O Lorde) lookeſte onelye vpon fayth and trueth. Thou haſt ſcourged them, but they tooke no repentaunce: thou haſt corrected them for amendemente, but they refuſed thy correcci-on. They made theyr faces harder then a ſtone, and woulde not amende. Therefore B I thought in my ſelfe: paraduenture they are ſo ſimple and foliſh, that they vnderſtande nothyng of the Lordes waye, & iudgementes of our God. * Therefore will I gooe vnto theyr heades and rulers, and talke with them, yf they knowe the waye of the Lorde and the iudgementes of our God. But theſe (in lyke manner) haue broken the yocke, and burſt the bondes in ſondre. * Wherfore, a liō out of the wood hath hurt them, and a wolfe in the euening ſhal deſtroye them. The Leoparde dothe lye lurkyng by theyr cityes, to teare in pieces all them that come thereout. For theyr offences are multiplied, and theyr departyng awaye is encreaſed. Should I then for al this haue mercy vpon thee? Thy chyldren haue forſaken me, and * ſworne by them ẏ are no goddes. Drynke, and be dronken, ſpewe and fall, f that ye neuer ryſe: and that throwe the ſweard, which I wyll ſende among you.
But yf they wyll not receyue the cuppe of thyne hande and drynke it, then tell them: Thus doeth the Lorde of hooſtes threten you: drynke it ye ſhall, and that ſhortelye. For loe, *I begynne to plage Iere.4 the cytie that my name is geuen vnto: Eze. thinke ye then that I wyll leaue you vnpuniſhed? 1.Pe ye ſhal not go quyte: for why?
I call for a ſweard vpō al the inhabyters of the earth, ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes.

Therfore, tell them all theſe wordes, and ſaye vnto them: Ioel.4.c Amos.1.b * The Lorde ſhall crye from aboue, and lette his voyce bee heard from his holy habytacion. With a great noyſe ſhall he crye from his courte regall: He ſhall geue a great voyce, (lyke the grape gatherers) and the ſound therof ſhall bee heard vnto the endes of the worlde. For the Lorde hath a iudgement to geue vpon all people, and wyll holde his courte of iuſtice with all fleſhe, and punyſhe the vngodly, ſayeth the Lorde.

G For thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes: Iere.30.d *Behold, a miſerable plage ſhal go from one people to another, and a greate ſtormye water ſhall aryſe from all the endes of the earth. And theſame daye ſhall the Lorde hymſelfe ſlay them, from one ende of the earth to another. There ſhall no mone be made for any of them, none gathered vp, none buryed: but ſhall lye as dunge vpon the ground. Mourne (O ye ſhepeherdes) and crye, ſprynkle youre ſelues with aſhes, O ye rammes of the flocke: for the tyme of your ſlaughter is fulfylled, that ye ſhall ſlay one another, and you ſhalbe ſcatred ⁊ ye ſhall fall like Psa.142.a veſſels newlye made. *The ſhepeherdes ſhall haue no waye to flye, ⁊ the rammes of the flocke ſhall not eſcape. Then ſhall the ſhepeherdes crye horryblye, and the rammes of the flocke ſhall mourne: for the Lorde hath conſumed theyr paſture, and theyr beſt feldes lye dead, becauſe of the horryble wrath of the Lorde. They haue forſaken theyr foldes like as a lyon. For theyr lande is waſte, becauſe of hys furyous crueltie, and of hys fearfull indignacion.

The.xxvi. Chapter.

Jeremy moueth the people to amendemente. He is taken of the Prophetes and prieſtes, ⁊ brought to iudgemẽt. Uriah the Prophete is kylled of Jehoakym contrarye to the wyll of God.

A IN the beginning of the reigne of Jehoakym yͤ ſõne of Joſiah kyng of Juda, came this word from the Lorde, ſaying: Thus Ier.7.a ſayeth the Lorde. *Stande in the courte 17.d of the Lordes houſe, and ſpeake vnto all them whiche (out of the cyties of Juda) come to dooe worſhyppe in the Lordes houſe, all the wordes that I commaunde ut.4.a thee to ſaye. *Looke that thou kepe not 0.12.b one worde backe, yf (peraduenture) they er.18.a wyll herken, and turne euery man from oh.3.b. his wicked way, *that I may alſo repent of the plage whiche I haue determyned to bring vpon them, bycauſe of theyr wicked inuencions. And after thys maner B ſhalt thou ſpeake vnto thẽ. Thus ſayeth the Lord: yf ye wil not obey me, to walke in my lawes whiche I haue geuen you, and to heare the wordes of my ſeruaũtes the Prophetes whom I ſente vnto you, ryſyng vp tymely, and ſtyll ſendyng: yf ye wyll not folowe them (I ſay,) then wil I doe to this houſe *as I dyd vnto Syloh, *Iere.7.a and wyll make this cytie to bee abhorred of all the people of the earth. And the prieſtes, the Prophetes, and all the people hearde Jeremye preache theſe wordes in the houſe of the Lorde. Nowe when he had ſpoken out all the woordes that the Lord cõmaunded him to preache vnto the people: then the prieſtes, the Prophetes, and al the people tooke hold vpon hym, ⁊ ſayde: thou ſhalt dye. Howe darreſt thou be ſo bolde, as to ſaye in the name of Lorde? it ſhall happen to thys houſe as it dyd vnto Siloh: and this cytie ſhall be ſo waſte, that no manne ſhall dwell therin. And when all the people C were gathered about Jeremy in yͤ houſe of the Lorde, the prynces of Juda heard of this rumoure: and they came ſone out of the kynges palace, into the houſe of the Lorde, and ſatte them downe before the *newe doore of the Lord. Then ſpake 4.re.15.g the prieſtes and the Prophetes vnto the Ier.36.b. rulers and to al the people, theſe wordes: *Thys manne is worthye to dye, for he *Io.19.a hath preached agaynſte this cytye, as ye Mat.26.g your ſelues haue heard with your eares.

Then ſayde Jeremy vnto the rulers, D and to all the people: The Lorde hathe ſente me to preache agaynſte this houſe, and agaynſte this cytye, all the woordes that ye haue hearde. Therfore amende youre wayes, and youre aduyſementes, and bee obedyente vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God: ſo ſhall the Lorde repente of the plage, that he hath deuyſed agaynſte you. Nowe as for me, I am in your handes, do with me as ye thinke expediente and good. But thys ſhall ye knowe: yf ye put me to death, *ye ſhall *mat.23.e make your ſelues, thys cytye, and all the inhabytours therof, gyltye of innocente E bloud. For thys is of a trueth, that the Lorde hath ſente me vnto you, to ſpeake all theſe woordes in youre eares. Then ſayde the rulers and the people, vnto the prieſtes and Prophetes: This man may not bee condemned to deathe, for he hath preached vnto vs in yͤ name of the Lord oure God. The elders alſo of the lande ſtode vp, and ſayde thus vnto al the people: miche.1.a Micheas, the Morasthite, * whiche was a Prophete vnder Ezekiah kyng of Iuda, ſpake to all the people of Iuda: Thus ſayeth the Lord of hooſtes: * Syon miche.3.c. ſhalbe plowed lyke a fielde: Ieruſalem ſhalbe an heape of ſtones, and the hyl of the Lordes houſe ſhalbe turned to an hye wood. Dyd Ezekiah the kyng of F Iuda and the people of Iuda put hym Iona.3.b to death for this? No verely: * but rather feared the Lorde, and made theyr prayer vnto hym. For the whiche cauſe alſo the Lorde repented of the plage, that he had deuyſed agaynſt them. Should we then doe ſuche a ſhamefull dede agaynſt oure ſoules? There was a Prophete alſo that preached ſtyflye in the name of the Lord, called Vriah the ſonne of Semeiah, of Cariathiarim: this man preached alſo agaynſt this cytye, and agaynſt this land accordyng to al as Ieremy ſayeth. Now when * Iehoakym the kyng, with all the 3.re.22.d. eſtates, and prynces, had hearde hys woordes, the kyng wente aboute to ſlaye hym. * When Vriah perceyued that, he 3.re.19.a. was afrayed and fled, and departed into math.2.c. Egypte. Then Iehoakym the kyng ſent his ſeruauntes into the lande of Egypte: Namely Elnathan the ſonne of Achbor, and certayn men with him into Egypte, which fetched Vriah out of Egypte, and brought hym vnto king Iehoakim, that ſlewe hym with the ſwearde, and caſt his dead bodye into the commen peoples graue. But Ahicam the ſonne of Saphã helped Ieremye, that he came not into the handes of the people to bee ſlayne.

The.xxvii. Chapter.

Ieremy at the commaundement of the Lord, ſendeth bondes to the kyng of Iuda, and to the other kynges that were nye, whereby they are monyſhed to become ſubiectes vnto Nabuchodonozor. He warneth the people and the kinges and rulers, that they beleue not falſe Prophetes.

A IN the begynning of the reigne of Iehoakym the ſonne of Ioſiah kyng of Iuda, came thys woorde vnto Ieremy from the Lord, which ſpake thus vnto me: Make thee bondes and chaynes, and put them aboute thy necke, and ſende them to the kyng of Edom, to the kyng of Moab, to the kyng of Ammon, to the kyng of Tirus, and to the kyng of Sydon: and that by the meſſengers which ſhall come to Ieruſalem vnto Zedekiah the kyng of Iuda: and bydde them ſay vnto theyr

Moreouer, that people and kyngdome whiche wyll not ſerue Nabuchodonozor, and that will not put theyr neckes vnder the yoke of the kyng of Babylon: theſame the Lorde. * And therfore folowe not Iere. your Prophetes, ſothſayers, expounders and.

of dreames, charmers and wytches, which ſay vnto you: ye ſhall not ſerue the and that I myght caſte you out, and deſtroy you. But the people that put theyr neckes vnder the yoke of the king of Babylon, and ſerue hym, thoſe will I let remayne ſtyll in theyr owne lande (ſayeth the Lorde) and they ſhall occupye it and dwell therein. All theſe thynges tolde I Zedekia the kyng of Iuda, and ſayde: C

* Put your neckes vnder the yoke of the Iere.

thoſe Prophetes (that tell you ye ſhall not ſerue the kyng of Babylon) for they preache you lyes: neyther haue I ſente them, ſayeth the Lorde: howbeit they are bolde, falſely to prophecye in my name, yͭ I might the ſooner dryue you out, ⁊ that ye might peryſhe with youre preachers.

I ſpake to the prieſtes alſo, and to all the people: Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Heare not the wordes of thoſe prophetes yͭ preache Je.28.a. vnto you, and ſaye: Beholde* the veſſels of the Lordes houſe ſhall ſhortlie be brought hyther agayne frõ Babylon. For they prophecye lyes vnto you. Heare them not, but ſerue the kynge of Babylon, that ye maye D lyue. Wherfore will ye make thys cytie to bee deſtroyed? But yf they bee true prophetes in very dede, and if the worde of the Lorde bee commytted vnto them, then let them praye the Lorde of hooſtes, that the remnaunte of the ornamentes (whiche are in the houſe of the Lorde, and remayne yet in the houſe of the kynge of Iuda, and at Ieruſalem) be not caried to Babylon alſo. For thus hath the Lorde of hoſtes ſpokẽ, concerning the pillers, the lauer, the ſeate, and the reſidue of the ornamentes that yet remayne in thys citie, whiche Nabucodo- 4.Re.24.c nozor the kyng of Babylon toke not, *whẽ he caryed away Ieconiah the ſonne of Iehoakim kyng of Iuda, with al yͤ power of Iuda & Ieruſalẽ, frõ Ieruſalẽ vnto Babilõ captiue. Yea, thus hath the Lord of hoſtes the GOD of Iſraell ſpoken, as touching the reſidue of yͤ ornamentes of the Lordes houſe, of the kynge of Iudaes houſe, and of Ieruſalem: * They ſhalbe caryed vnto 4.Re.25.c Babilon, and there they ſhal remayne vntil 1.Esd.1.b. I vyſit them, ſayeth the Lorde. *Thẽ wil I brynge them hyther agayne. And thys was done in the ſame yere, euen in the begynnynge of the reygne of Zedekiah kinge of Iuda.

The.xxviii.Chapter.

The falſe prophecye of Hananiah the prophet. Ieremy ſheweth that the prophecye of Hananiah is falſe, by the example of the other prophetes. He beynge inſpyred of the Lorde, reproueth Hananiah, prophecyinge hys death.

A BUt in the fourthe yere of yͤ reigne of zedekiah kynge of Iuda, in the fyfth moneth, it happened that Hananiah the ſonne of Aſſur the prophete of Gibeon, ſpake to me in the houſe of the Lorde, in the preſence of the prieſtes and of all the people, and ſayde: Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes, the God of Iſraell: I haue broken the yocke of the Jere.27.c kyng of Babylon, *and after two yere will I brynge agayne into thys place, al the ornamentes of the Lordes houſe, that Nabuchodonozor kinge of Babylon caryed awaye from this place, vnto Babylon. Yea, I will bringe agayne Iechoniah the ſonne of Iehoakim the kyng of Iuda hym ſelfe, with all the pryſoners of Iuda (that are caried vnto Babylon) euen into thys place, ſayeth the Lorde. For I wyll breake the yoke of the kynge of Babylon. Then the B Prophet Ieremy gaue anſwere vnto the prophet Hananiah before yͤ prieſtes, & before all the people that were preſent in the houſe of the Lorde. *And the prophet Ie- Mich.3.c. remy ſayde: Amen, the Lorde do that, and graunte the thyng whiche thou haſte prophecyed: yͭ he may bryng againe al yͤ ornamentes of the Lordes houſe, and reſtore al the pryſonners from Babylon into thys place. Neuertheleſſe, hearken thou alſo what I will ſaye, that thou and al the people may heare. The prophetes that were before vs in tyme paſte, whiche prophecyed of warre, or trouble, or peſtilence, ether of peace, vpon many nacyons and greate kyngdomes, were proued by this (yf God had ſẽt them in very dede) whẽ * the thing Deu.18.d came to paſſe whiche that Prophete tolde Num.16.a before. And Hananiah the Prophet toke C the chayne from the Prophet Ieremyes necke, and brake it, & with that ſayde Hananiah, that all the people myght heare.

Thus hath the Lorde ſpoken: Euen ſo wil I breake the yocke of Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babylon from the necke of al nacyons: yea, and that within this two yeare. And ſo yͤ prophet Ieremy went hys way. Nowe after that Hananyah the prophete had taken the chayne from the Prophet Ieremyes necke, and broken it: The word of the Lord came vnto the Prophet Ieremy, ſaying: Go, and tell Hananiah theſe D wordes. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Thou haſte broken the cheyne of wood: but in ſteade of wood thou ſhalt make cheynes of yron. For thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes, the God of Iſraell: I wil put a yocke of yron vpon the necke of all thys people, that they may ſerue Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babylon: yea, and ſo ſhall they do. And I will geue hym the beaſtes in the felde. Then ſaide the Prophet Ieremy vnto the Prophet Hananyah: *heare me Ha- Iere.29.c. nanyah. The Lord hath not ſent thee, but thou bryngeſt thys people into a falſe beleſe. And therefore thus ſayeth the Lord: beholde, I will ſende thee out of the lande, and within a yeare thou ſhalte dye, beecauſe thou haſte falſlie ſpoken againſte the Lorde. So Hananiah the Prophet dyed the ſame yeare, in the .vii. moneth.

The.xxix.Chapter.

The epyſtle of Ieremy ſent vnto them that were in captiuitie in Babylon. He prophecieth theyr returne from captiuytie after .lxx. yeares. He prophecyeth the deſtruccyon of the kynge and of the people that remayned in Ieruſalem. He threteneth two prophetes that ſeduced the people. The death of Semeiah the Nehelamite is prophecyed.

A These are the wordes of the boke that Ieremy the prophet ſent from Ieruſalẽ vnto yͤ priſoners, yͤ Senatoures, prieſtes, prophetes, and al the people whõ Nabuchodonozor had led from Ieruſalẽ vnto Babylon: after the tyme that kynge Iechoniah and hys quene, hys chamberlaynes, the prynces of Iuda, and Ieruſalem, the worckemaysters of Ieruſalem, were departed thither. Whiche booke Elaſah the ſonne of Saphan, and Gamaryah the ſonne of Helkiah dyd beare, whõ zedekyah the kynge of Iuda ſent vnto Babylon to Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babylon: theſe were the wordes of Ieremyes booke. Thus hathe the Lord of Hoſtes, the God of Iſraell, ſpoken vnto all B the pryſoners, that were led from Ieruſalem Iere.35.d. vnto Babylon: *buyld you houſes to dwell therin, plante you gardens: that ye *Gene.1.d and.9.a. maye enioye the frutes therof: *take you wyues to beare you ſonnes ⁊ daughters: prouyde wyues for your ſonnes, and huſbandes for your daughters, that they may get ſonnes and daughters, and that ye may multyplye there. Laboure not to be fewe, but ſeke after peace and proſperytie of the *Baru.1.c cytie wherein ye be pryſoners, *and praye 1.Ti.1.a vnto the Lorde for it. For in the peace therof C ſhall youre peace be. For thus ſayeth the Iere.33.c. Lorde of hoſtes, the God of Iſrael: *Let and.27.b. not theſe prophetes and ſothſayers that bee amonge you, dyſceaue you: and beleue Iere.14.b not youre owne dremes. For why *they preache you lyes in my name: And I haue not ſent them, ſayeth the Lorde. But thus 1.Pa.26.d ſayeth the Lorde: *When ye haue fulfylled Iere.22.b .lxx. yeres at Babylon, I will brynge 1.Eſdr.1.a you home, and of myne owne goodnes I wil cary you hyther againe into this place.
For I knowe what I haue deuyſed for you, ſayeth the Lorde: My thoughtes are to geue you peace, and not trouble: (which I geue you alreadye) and that ye myghte *Deu.4.c haue hope agayne. *Ye ſhall crye vnto me, and.30.a. ye ſhall goe and call vpon me, and I wyll *Ioh.7.d heare you. *Ye ſhall ſeke me, and fynde me.
Yea, if ſo be yͭ ye ſeke me with youre whole hearte, I wyll be founde of you ſayeth the Lorde, and will delyuer you oute of priſon:
and gather you together agayne oute of all places, wherin I haue ſcatered you, ſayeth the Lorde: and wyll brynge you agayne to the ſame place, from whence I cauſed you to bee caryed awaye captyue.
But where as ye ſaye, that God hath rayſed D you vp prophetes at Babylon: thus hathe the Lorde ſpoken to the kynge that ſytteth in the throne of Dauid, and to al the people that dwell in thys cytie, youre brethrẽ *that are not gone with you into captyuytye: Thus (I ſaye) ſpeaketh the Lord 4.Re of hoſtes: beholde, *I wyl ſend a ſweard, Iere hunger, and peſtilence vpon them, and wil make thẽ lyke vntymely fygges, that maye not be eaten for bitternes. And I will perſecute them with yͤ ſweard, with hunger, ⁊ peſtylence. I will delyuer them vp to bee vexed of all kyngdomes, to bee curſed, abhorred, laughed to ſcorne, and put to confuſyon of all the people, amonge whome I haue ſcatered them: and that becauſe they haue not bene obedient vnto my commaundementes, ſayeth the Lorde, whiche I ſente vnto them by my ſeruauntes the E prophetes. *I ſtode vp earlie, and ſent vnto Iere them: but they wolde not heare, ſayeth and.4 the Lorde. Heare therefore the worde of the Lorde, all ye priſoners, whom I ſente from Ieruſalem vnto Babylon. Thus hath the Lord of hoſtes, the God of Iſrael ſpoken of Ahab, the ſonne of Colaiah, ⁊ of zedekiah the ſonne of Maaſyah, whiche prophecye lyes vnto you in my name. Beholde, I will delyuer them into the hande of Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babylon, that he maye ſlaye them before youre eyes. And all the pryſoners of Iuda, that are in Babylon, ſhall take vp this terme of curſyng, and ſaye: Nowe God do vnto thee, as he dyd vnto zedekiah and Ahab, whom the kynge of Babylon roſted in the fyre, becauſe they ſinned ſhamfully in Iſrael.
For they haue not onely defyled theyr neyghboures wyues, but alſo preached lying wordes in my name, whiche I haue not commaunded them. Thys I teſtyfye, and aſſure, ſayeth the Lord. But as for Semeiah the Nehelamyte, thou ſhalte F ſpeake vnto hym. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of Hoſtes, the god of Iſrael: Becauſe thou haſte ſealed letters vnder thy name vnto al the people that is at Ieruſalem, ⁊ to Sophoniah the ſonne of Maaſyah the prieſt, yea, ⁊ ſente them to all the Prieſtes, wherin thou wryteſt thus vnto hym: The Lord hathe ordeyned thee to bee prieſte in the 4.Re ſteade of *Iehoiada the prieſt, that thou 2.Pa ſhouldeſt

ſhouldeſt bee the chefe in the houſe of the Lorde, aboue al prophetes and preachers: and that thou myghteſt ſet them vpon the pyllery, or in the ſtockes. Howe happeneth it then, that thou haſte not reproued Jeremy of Anathoth, whiche neuer leaueth of hys prophecying? And beſyde all thys, he hath ſente vs worde *vnto Babylon, and Jere.29.c. tolde vs playnely, that oure captiuitie ſhall longe endure: that we ſhoulde buylde vs houſes to dwell therin, and to plante vs gardens, that wee maye enioye the frutes thereof. Whiche letter Sophoniah the G prieſte read, and let Jeremie the prophete heare it. Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Jeremy, ſaying: ſende worde to al thē that be in captiuitie, on thys maner: Thus hathe the Lorde ſpoken concernynge Semeiah Jere.28.c meiah the Nehelamite: *becauſe that Semeiah hath prophecyed vnto you without my commiſſion, and broughte you into a falſe hope, therefore thus the Lorde dothe certyfye you: Beholde, I wil vyſet Semeiah the Nehelamyte, and hys ſeede: ſo that none of hys ſhal remayne among this people, and none of them ſhall ſee the good that I will do for this people, ſayeth the Lord.
For he hath preached falſely of the Lorde.

The.xxx. Chapter.

The returne of the people from Babilon. God by hys chaſtenyng ſheweth that the people is ſynneful, the deſtruccion of the enemyes of Iſraell.

A These are the wordes, that ÿ Lord ſheweth vnto Jeremy, ſayinge: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Jere.30.c Iſraell: *wryte vp dylygently al the wordes that I haue ſpoken vnto thee, in a booke. For lo, the tyme cummeth, ſaith the Lorde, that I will brynge agayne the pryſoners of my people of Iſrael, and Juda, ſayeth the Lorde. For I wyll reſtore them vnto the lande that I gaue to theyr fathers, and they ſhal haue it in poſſeſſyon.
Agayne, theſe wordes ſpake the Lorde, cōcernynge Iſraell and Juda. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: We haue hearde a terrible crye, feare and dyſquyetnes. For what els doth thys ſygnifie that I ſee? Namelye that all Jere.13.b ſtronge men ſmyte, euery man hys hande that none maye be lykened vnto it: and alas for the tyme of Jacobs trouble, frō the whiche he ſhall yet be delyuered. For in that daye ſayeth the Lord of hoſtes, I wil take hys yocke frō of thy necke, and breake thy bondes: And ſtraungers ſhall nomore ſerue hym, but they ſhall do ſeruyce vnto GOD theyr Lorde, and *to Dauyd theyr Eze.34.d

‡And as for thee, O my ſeruaunt Jacob, Jere.46.g he ſhalbe in reſt, & haue a proſperous lyfe, and no man ſhall make hym afrayed. For I am with the to helpe the, ſaieth ÿ Lord.

*And though I ſhall deſtroye all the people Amos.9.b among whom I haue ſcatered the, yet will I not deſtroye the, but correct the, *& Jere.10.d that with diſcrecyon: For I knowe that thou art in no wyſe *without faute. Therfore Ex.34.a. thus ſayeth the Lorde. Thy broſinges Naum.1.a the into ſickenes. There is no man to medle with thy cauſe, or to laye plaſter vpon the, or to bynde vp thy woundes: there may no man helpe the. All thy louers haue forgotten thee, and care nothynge for the. For I haue geuē the a cruel ſtroke, and chaſtened the roughly, and that for the multytude of thy myſdeades: for thy ſynnes haue had the ouerhand. Why makeſt thou mone for thy harme? in dede, thou arte ſore wounded & in ieopardye, *but for the multitude Jere.13.d alſo to be robbed. For I will geue the thy health againe, & make thy woūdes whole, ſayeth the Lorde: becauſe they reuyled the,

as one caſt awaye and deſpiſed. Siō (ſayed they) is ſhe whom no man regardeth. For thus ſayeth the Lorde. Beholde, *I wyll Nu.24.a. brynge agayne the captiuitie of Jacobs D

The citie ſhalbe buylded in her olde eſtate, and the houſes ſhall haue theyr right foundacion.
And oute of them ſhall go thankeſgeuyng, and the voyce of ioye. I will multiplye them, and they ſhal not bee fewe: I ſhal endue them with honoure, and no mā

And Hananeel, myne vncles ſonne, came to me in the courte of the pryſon, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, and ſayde vnto me: Bye my land, I praye the, that lyeth in Anathoth in the countrey of Ben-iamin: for by herytage thou haſte ryght to leuſe it out for thy ſelfe, therefore redeme it. Then I perceyued that thys was the commaundement of the Lorde, and ſo I bought the lande from Hananeel of Anathoth, myne vncles ſonne, & wayed hym there the money: euen ſeuen ſycles, and ten ſyluer pence.

C I cauſed hym alſo to make me a wrytyng, & to ſeale it: & called recorde therby, & weyed hym there the money vpon ẏ weightes. And therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde: ye haue not obeyed me, euerye man to proclayme freedome vnto hys brother and neyghbour: wherfore I will call you vnto a freedome, ſayeth the Lord: euen vnto the ſwearde, to the peſtylence, and to hunger, and will make you to be plaged in all the kyngdomes of the earth. yea, D thoſe mē that haue broken my couenaūt, and not kept the wordes of the appoyntment whiche they made before me, when Gen. 15. b *they hewed the calfe in two, and when there wente thorow yͤ two halues therof, the prynces of Iuda, the prynces of Ieruſalem, the gelded mē, the prieſtes, and all the people of the lande, whiche wente thorowe the two ſydes of the calfe.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

He propoūdeth the obedyence of the Rechabytes, and therby confoundeth the pryde of the Iewes. The commaundement of Ionadab, the father of the Rechabytes. He threateneth punyſhment vnto the rebellyous Iewes. He promyſeth proſperytie vnto yͤ Rechabytes, for their obedyēce vnto their father.

A THe wordes whiche the Lord ſpake vnto Ieremye, in the reigne of Iehoakym the ſonne of Ioſiah kyng of Iuda, are theſe: Go vnto the houſe of 4. Re. 10. c. the *Rechabytes, and call them out, and bryng them to the houſe of the Lorde into ſome commodyous place, & geue them wyne to drynke. Then toke I Iazaniah, the ſonne of Ieremy, the ſonne of Habaziniah, and his brethren, & al his ſonnes, and the whole houſholde of the Rechabytes: and brought them to the houſe of the Lorde, into the cloſette of the chyldren of Hanan, the ſonne of Iegedaliah the manne of God: whiche was by the cloſette of the prynces, that is aboue the cloſette of Maaſiah the ſonne of Selū, B which is yͤ treaſurer. And before the ſōnes of the kynred of the Rechabytes, I ſette pottes ful of wyne, & cuppes, & ſayd vnto thē: Drynke wyne. But they ſayd: we wyl drynke no wyne: for Ionadab the ſonne of Rechab oure father, commaunded vs, ſaying: Ye and youre ſonnes ſhall neuer drynke wyne, *buyld no houſes, ſowe no *Ie. 29. b ſede, plant no vynes: yea, ye ſhall haue no vyneyardes, but for al your time, ye ſhall dwel in tentes, yͭ ye may lyue long in the land wherin ye be ſtraūgers. Thus haue we obeyed the cōmaundement of Ionadab the ſonne of Rechab our father, in all yͭ he hath charged vs, & ſo we drynke no wyne al our lyfe long: we nor our wyues, our ſonnes, and our daughters. Neither buylde we any houſe to dwell therin: we haue alſo amōg vs neither vyneyardes, nor corne lande to ſowe, but we dwell in tentes: we obey, and doe accordyng vnto al that Ionadab our father commaūded vs. But now that Nabuchodonozor C the kyng of Babylon came vp into the lande, we ſayde: come, let vs go to Ieruſalem, that we maye eſcape the hoſte of the Caldees, and the Aſſirians, and ſo we dwell now at Ieruſalem. Then came the woorde of the Lorde vnto Ieremye, ſaying: Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes the God of Iſrael: Goe and tell the men of Iuda, and the inhabitours of Ieruſalem: Wyll ye not bee refourmed to obey my woordes, ſayeth the Lorde? The woordes whiche Ionadab the ſonne of Rechab commaunded hys ſonnes, that they ſhould drynke no wyne, are faſt and ſurely kept: for vnto this day they drinke no wyne, but obey theyr fathers commaundemente. But as for me, * I haue Iere. 18. a ſtand vp early, I haue ſpoken vnto you, and. 25. a and geuen you earneſt warnyng: and yet haue ye not been obedyent vnto me. The.xxxvi. Chapter.

Baruch wꝛyteth, (as Jeremy endyteth) the booke of the curſes agaynſt Juda and Iſrael. He is ſente with the booke, vnto the people,⁊ readeth it befoꝛe them all. He is called befoꝛe the rulers,⁊ readeth it befoꝛe them alſo. The rulers ſhewe vnto the kyng the woꝛdes of the booke. Jehudi taketh the booke ⁊ readeth a lytle of it,⁊ caſteth it in the fyꝛe. There is another wꝛyttẽ at the cõmaundement of the Loꝛde.

A IN the fourth yeare of Jehoakym the ſonne of Joſiah yͤ kyng of Juda,came the woozde of the Loꝛde vnto Jeremye, ſayinge: *Je.30.a *Take a booke,and wꝛyte therin all the woozdes that I haue ſpoken to thee agaynſt Iſrael,agaynſt Juda , ⁊ agaynſt all the people, from the tyme that I began foꝛ to ſpeake vnto the(in the reygne of Joſyah) vnto this daye. That when the houſe of Juda heareth of the plage, which I haue deuiſed foꝛ them,they may *Jer.18,a paraduenture * turne euerye man from hys wycked waye : that I maye foꝛgeue theyꝛ offences and ſinnes.Then dyd Jerempe Jer. 45.a call Baruch the ſonne of Neryah, *and Baruch wꝛote in the booke,at the mouth of Jeremy,all the woozdes of the Loꝛde,whiche he had ſpoken vnto hym.
And Jeremy commaunded Baruch,ſaying:
I am in pꝛyſon,ſo yͭ I may not come into the houſe of the Loꝛde : therfoꝛe go yͧ thyther,and reade the booke that thou B haſte wꝛytten at my mouth:Namely,the woozdes of the Loꝛd:⁊ reade them in the Loꝛdes houſe vpon the faſtyng day,that the people,whole Juda,and all they that come out of the cyties may heare.Peraduenture , they wyll pꝛaye mekely befoꝛe the face of the Loꝛde , and turne euerye one from his wycked waye.Foꝛ greate is the wꝛath and diſpleaſure,that the Loꝛd hath taken againſt this people. So Baruch the ſonne of Neryah dyd accoꝛding vnto all that Jeremy the Pꝛophete commaunded hym,readyng the woozdes of the Loꝛd out of the booke,in the Loꝛdes houſe . And this was done in the fyfte yeare of Jehoakym the ſonne of Joſiah kyng of Juda,in the.ix.moneth,when*it *Jon was commaunded,that all the people of Jeruſalem ſhoulde faſt befoꝛe the Loꝛde, and they alſo that were come from the cytyes of Juda vnto Jeruſalem. Then read Baruch the woozdes of Jeremy out C of the booke,within yͤ houſe of the Loꝛd: oute of the treaſurye of Gamariah the ſonne of Saphan the Scrybe, whiche is beſyde the hyer lofte of the * newe dooꝛe Jer. of the Loꝛdes houſe : that all the people myght heare.Nowe when Micheah the the ſonne of Gamariah,the ſõne of Saphan, had hearde all the woozdes of the Loꝛde out of the booke,he wente downe to the kynges palace into the Scrybes chambers,foꝛ there al yͤ pꝛynces were ſet: Elizama the Scrybe,Dalaiah yͤ ſonne of Semei,Elnathan yͤ ſõne of Achboꝛ, Gamariah the ſonne of Saphan,Zedekyah yͤ ſonne of Hananiah,with all yͤ pꝛynces.
And Micheah told them al the woꝛdes yͭ he heard Baruch reade out of the booke befoꝛe yͤ people.Then al the pꝛynces ſent D Jehudi the ſonne of Nathaniah,yͤ ſonne of Selamiah , the ſonne of Chuſi , vnto Baruch,ſaying:Take in thyne hand the booke, where out thou haſt read befoꝛe al the people, ⁊ come.So Baruch the ſonne of Neriah,tooke the booke in his hande, and came vnto them. And they ſayde vnto him:Syt downe and reade the booke, that we may heare alſo.So Baruch read that they myght heare.Nowe when they had heard al the woꝛdes,they were abaſhed one vpon another,⁊ ſayde vnto Baruch: We wil certifye the king of al theſe woꝛdes. And they examined Baruch,ſaying: tell vs, howe dydeſt yͧ wꝛyte all theſe E woꝛdes out of his mouth? Then Baruch anſwered them:He ſpake al theſe woꝛdes vnto me with his mouth,⁊ I wꝛote them in the booke.Then ſayde the pꝛynces vnto Baruch:Goe thy way,⁊ hyde the with Jeremy, ſo that no manne knowe where ye be: And they went in to the king to the courte. But they kepte the booke in the chambꝛe

chābre of Elizama the Scrybe, & told the king al the wordes, that he myght heare. So the kyng ſent Jehudi to fet hym the booke, which he brought out of Elizama the Scrybes chābre. And Jehudi read in it, that the kyng & all the prynces whiche were about him, myght heare. Nowe the kyng ſat in the wynter houſe, for it was in the.ix.moneth, & there was a fyre before him. And whē Jehudi had read three or foure leaues therof, he cut the booke in pieces with a penknyfe, & *caſt it into the fyre vpō the harth, vntyll the booke was F all brent in the fyre vpon yͤ harth. Yet no man was abaſhed therof, or rent his clothes, neither yͤ king himſelfe, nor his ſeruauntes, though they hearde all theſe wordes. Neuertheles, Elnathā, Dalaiah & Gamariah beſought the kyng that he would not burne the booke: not withſtāding the king would not heare them, but cōmaunded Jerahmael the ſōne of Amalech, Saraiah the ſonne of Ezriell, and Selamiah the ſonne of Abdiel, to laye handes vpon Baruch the Scrybe, and vpō Jeremy the Prophete: but the Lord kept them out of ſyght. After nowe that the kyng had brente the booke, and the ſermons whiche Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremy: The word of the Lord came vnto Jeremy, ſaying: Take an other booke & wryte in it all the foreſayde ſermons, that were wrytten in the fyrſte booke, which Jehoakim the king of Ju- G da hath brente. And tell Jehoakym the kyng of Juda, thus ſayeth the Lorde: thou haſte brent the booke, & thoughteſt within thy ſelfe: Why haſte thou wrytten therin, that the kyng of Babylon ſhall come and make this lande waſte: ſo that he ſhall make both people and cattell to bee out of it. Therefore thus the Lorde ſayeth of Jehoakym the kyng of Juda. *There ſhall none of his generacion ſyt vpō the throne of Dauid. His dead corſe ſhalbe caſt out, that the heate of the daye, and the froſt of the nyght may come vpō hym. And I will vyſyte the wyckedneſſe of hym, of hys ſede, & of his ſeruauntes. Moreouer all the euyll that I haue promyſed them (though they hearde me not) wyll I bryng vpon them: vpon the inhabitours of Jeruſalem, & vpon all Juda. Then tooke Jeremy another booke, & gaue it Baruch the Scrybe the ſonne of Neriah, which wrote therin out of the mouthe of Jeremy, all the ſermons that were in the fyrſte booke, whiche Jehoakym the kyng of Juda dyd burne. And there were added vnto them manye moe ſermons then before.

The.xxxvii. Chapter.

Zedekiah ſucceedeth Cononia. He ſendeth vnto Jeremye to praye for hym. Jeremye goyng into the lande of Beniamyn is taken. He is beaten and put in pryſon. He is delyuered by kyng Zedekiah.

Zedekiah the ſonne of Joſias A *whiche was made kyng thorowe Nabugodonozor king of Babylon, rayned in the lande of Juda, in the ſteade of Cononiah the ſonne of Jehoakym. But neyther he nor his ſeruauntes, nor the people in yͤ land, would obey the woordes of the Lorde, which he ſpake by the Prophete Jeremy. *Neuertheleſſe, Zedekiah the kyng ſent Jehucal the ſonne of Selemiah, & Sophoniah the ſonne of Maaſiah yͤ prieſt, to the Prophete Jeremy, ſaying: O pray thou vnto yͤ Lord our God for vs. Nowe Jeremy walked free among the people at that tyme, and was not put in pryſon as yet. *Pharaos hoſte alſo was come out of Egypte: which when the Caldees that beſyeged Jeruſalem perceiued, they departed from thence. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto yͤ Prophete Jeremy, ſaying: Thus ſayth the Lord God of Iſrael, this anſwere ſhall ye geue to the kyng of Juda that ſent you vnto me for counſayle. *Beholde, Pharaos hoſte whiche is come forth to helpe you, ſhall returne to Egypte into his owne lande: but the Caldees ſhall come agayne and fyght againſt this citie, wyn it, & ſet fyre vpō it. For thus ſayth the Lord: diſceyue not youre owne myndes, thynkyng on this maner: Tuſhe, the Caldees go now theyr waye from vs. No, they ſhal not go theyr way. For though ye had ſlayne the whole hoſte of the Caldees that beſyege you, and euery one of the ſlayne laye in his tente, yet ſhoulde they ſtande vp and ſet fyre vpon this cytye. Nowe when the hoſte of the Caldees was broken vp frō Jeruſalem, for feare of the Egypcyans armye: Jeremy went out of Jeruſalē, toward the lande of Beniamin, to get hym C frō among the people. And whē he came vnder Beniamins port, there was a porter called Jeriah, the ſōne of Selempah, the ſonne of *Hananiah, which fell vpon him, & toke hym, ſaying: thy mynde is to rūne to the Caldees. Then ſayd Jeremy:

It is not ſo, I go not to the Caldees. Neuertheles, Ieriah would not beleue him: but brought Ieremye bounde before the prynces. Wherfore the prynces were angry with Ieremy, ⁊ ſmote him, and layde him in pryſõ in the houſe of Ionathas yͤ Scrybe. For he was yͤ ruler of the pryſõ. Thus was Ieremy put into the dongeõ *Ie. 38.c. ⁊ pryſon, ⁊ ſo lay there a long time. ‡ Thã Zedekyah the kyng ſent for him, ⁊ called hym, and aſked hym quyetly in his owne houſe, ſaying: thinkeſt thou this buſynes (that nowe is in hande) commeth of the Lorde? Ieremy aunſwered: yea, that it doeth: and thou (ſayde he) ſhalt be delyuered into the king of Babylons power.

D Moreouer Ieremy ſayde vnto kyng Zedekyah: What haue I offẽded againſt thee, agaynſt thy ſeruauntes, or agaynſt this people, that ye haue put me in pryſon? * Where are your Prophetes which *Iere.28.c haue prophecyed vnto you, and ſayde that the kyng of Babylon ſhoulde not come againſt you and this lande? And therfore heare now, O my Lord the king: let my prayer be accepte before thee, and ſende me nomore into the houſe of Ionathas the Scrybe, that I dye not there. Then Zedekyah the kyng commaunded to put Ieremye in the fore entrye of the pryſon, and dayly to be geuẽ hym a kake of bread out of the bakers ſtreate, vntyll all the breade in the cytye were eaten vp. Thus Ieremye remayned in the fore entrye in the pryſon.

The.xxxviii. Chapter.

By the mocion of the rulers, Ieremye is put into a dongeon. At the requeſt of Abedmelech the chãberlayne, the kyng commaundeth Ieremye to bee brought forth of the dongeon. Ieremye ſheweth the kyng howe he myght eſcape death.

A SAphatyah the ſõne of Mathã, Godoliah the ſõne of Phaſhur, Iucal the ſonne of Semelyah, and Paſhur the ſonne of Melchyah perceyued the wordes that Ieremy had ſpoken vnto all the people, namely on this maner. *Iere.21.b and.27.a Thus ſayth the Lorde: * Whoſo remayneth in this cytie, ſhall periſh, either with yͤ ſweard, wͭ hungre or with yͤ peſtilence. But whoſo falleth vnto yͤ Caldees, ſhall eſcape, wynning his ſoule for a pray, and Iere. 22.a ſhall lyue. * For thus ſayeth the Lorde: This citie (no doubte) muſt be delyuered into the power of the kyng of Babilon, and he alſo ſhall wyn it. Then ſayde the prynces vnto the kyng: Syr, we beſeche you let this manne bee put to death. For thus he dyſcorageth the handes of the ſoudyers that bee in this citie, and the handes of al the people, whẽ he ſpeaketh ſuche wordes vnto them. This man verelye laboureth not for peace of the people, but myſchefe. Zedekyah the king anſwered, ⁊ ſayde: loe, he is in your handes: for the kyng maye denye you nothyng. Then tooke they Ieremye, and caſt hym B into the dongeon of Melchiah the ſonne of Hamelech, yͭ dwelt in the fore entrye of the pryſon: And they let downe Ieremye wyth coardes into a dongeon, where there was no water but myre. So Ieremy ſtacke faſt in the myre. Now when Abedmelech, the Moryan, beyng a chãberlayne in the kynges courte, vnderſtode that they had caſt Ieremye into the dongeon, he wente out of the kynges houſe, and ſpake to the king, (which then ſat vnder the porte of Beniamyn) theſe wordes: my Lord the kyng, whereas theſe menne medle with Ieremye the Prophete, they do him wrong. Namely in that they haue C put hym in pryſon, there to dye of hũger, for there is nomore breade in the citie.

Then the king commaunded Abedmelech the Moryan, and ſayde. Take from hence .xxx. men whom thou wylt, ⁊ drawe vp Ieremy the Prophete out of the dongeon before he dye. So Abedmelech toke the men with hym, and went to the houſe of the kyng: and there vnder the treaſury he gatte olde ragges and worne cloutes, and let them downe by a coarde into the dongeõ to Ieremy. And Abedmelech the Moryan ſayde vnto the Prophete Ieremy: O put theſe ragges and cloutes vn- D der thy arme holes, betwyxte them and the coardes: and Ieremye dyd ſo. So they drewe vp Ieremy with coardes, and tooke hym out of the dongeon, and he remayned in the fore entrye of the pryſon. Then * Zedekyah the kyng ſent, ⁊ cauſed Ieremy the Prophete to bee called vnto hym, into the thyrd entry that is in the houſe of the Lord. And the kyng ſayd vnto Ieremy: I will aſke the ſomewhat, but hyde nothyng fro me. Then Ieremy anſwered Zedekiah: Yf I be playne vnto thee, yͧ wylt cauſe me to ſuffre death: yf I geue the counſayle, thou wylt not folowe me. So the kyng ſware an oth ſecretly vnto Ieremy, ſaying: As trulye as the Lorde lyueth, that made vs theſe ſoules, I wyll not ſlay thee, nor geue the

into the handes of them that ſeke after thy lyfe. Then ſayde Jeremy vnto zedekiah: Thus ſaieth the Lorde of hoſtes, the god E of Iſraell.* Yf caſe be, that thou wylt go ere.27.c foorth vnto the kynge of Babilons princes, thou ſhalte ſaue thy life, and this citye ſhall not be brent: yea, bothe thou and thy houſholde ſhall eſcape with your lyues.
But if thou wilt not go foorth to the kinge of Babilons princes, thē ſhall this citie bee deliuered into the handes of the Caldees, whiche ſhall ſet fyre vpon it, & thou ſhalte not be able to eſcape them. And zedekiah ſayde vnto Jeremy: I am afrayed for the Jewes that are fled vnto the Caldees, leſt I come in their handes, and ſo thei to haue F me in deriſiō. But Jeremy anſwered: No, they ſhall not betraye the: O hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde (I beſeche the,) which I ſpeake vnto the, ſo ſhalt thou bee wel, and ſaue thy life. But if thou wilt not go forth, the lorde hath told me this plainly: Beholde, all the women that are lefte in the king of Judaes houſe, ſhalbe led forth out to the kyng of Babilons princes. And they ſhal ſay, that thou art diſceyued: and yͭ yͤ mē in whom yͧ dideſt put thy truſt, haue gotten the vnder, and ſet thy feete faſte in yͤ mire, and gone their waye from the. Therfore al thy wiues with theyr children ſhall they lede forth vnto the Caldees: and thou ſhalt not eſcape their handes, but ſhalt be yͤ king of Babilons prieſoner, & this cytye ſhalt thou cauſe to be brēt. Then ſaid zedekiah G vnto Jeremy: loke yͭ no bodye knowe of theſe wordes, & thou ſhalt not dye. But if yͤ princes perceiue yͭ I haue talked with the, & come vnto the, ſaying: O ſpeake, what ſaide the king to the? hide it not from vs, & we wil not putte the to death: Tell vs (we praye the) what ſaide the king to thee? See thou geue them this anſwere: I haue hūbly beſought the king that he wil let me lie no more in Jehonathans houſe, yͭ I dye not there. Then came all the princes vnto Jeremy, and aſked him. And he told them, after yͤ maner as the kinge bad him. Then they helde theyr peace, and let him alone: for they perceyued nothing.* So Jeremy abode

The .xxxix. Chapter.

Nabuchodonozor beſegeth Jeruſalem, zedekiah flieth. He is taken of the Caldees. His ſonnes are ſlaine. His eyes are thruſt out. Jeremy is prouided for. Abedmelech is deliuered frō captiuitie, becauſe of the confidence that he hath in God.

the ſonne of Ahicam yͤ ſonne of Saphan, Jere.40.b that he ſhould carie him home: * & ſo he dwelt among the people. Nowe whyle

Ieremy laye yet bounde in the fore entry of the prieſon, the woorde of the Lorde came vnto hym, ſaying: Goe and tel Abedmelech yͤ Morian. Thus ſaieth the lord of hoſtes, the God of Iſraell: Beholde, the cruel and ſharpe plage that I haue deuiſed for thys citye, wyll I brynge vpon them, that thou ſhalt ſee it: but I will deliuer the (ſayth the lorde) and thou ſhalt not come in the hādes of thoſe menne whome thou feareſte. For doubtles, I wil ſaue the, ſo that thou ſhalt not periſh with yͤ ſweord: but thy life ſhalbe ſaued, and that becauſe thou haſt putte thy truſt in me, ſayeth the Lorde.

The.xl. Chapter.

Ieremye hath licence to goe whyther he wyll. He dwelleth with the people that remaineth at Ieruſalē: Ouer whom Godoliah ruleth. Iohanan Propheciеth death vnto Godoliah.

A This is the worde that the lorde Iere.43.a ſpake vnto Ieremy, *whē Nabuzaradan the chiefe captayne ‡Ioſ.18.d had let him goe free from ‡Ramah, whyther he had led hym bounde amonge all the prieſoners that were caryed from Ieruſalem and Iuda, vnto Babilō. The chiefe captayne called for Ieremy and ſayde vnto hym. The Lord thy God ſpake mightely before, of the miſerye vpon this place. Now the Lord hath ſent it, and perfourmed it, as he hathe promiſed. For ye haue ſynned agaynſt the Lorde, and haue not bene obediente vnto his voyce: therefore commeth this plage vpō you. Behold, I leuſe the bandes frō thy handes this day: yf thou wilt now go with me vnto Babylon, vp then: for I wyl ſee to thee, and prouide for the. But yf thou wilt not go with Moreouer Iohanan the ſonne of Careah, and all the captaines of the hooſt that were ſcatered on euerye ſyde in the lande, came to Godolyah in Mizpa, & ſayed vnto him: Knoweſte thou not that Baalis the king of the Ammonites hath ſente Iſmaell the ſonne of Nathaniah to ſleye the? But Godoliah the ſonne of Ahycam beleued them not. Then ſayde Iohanan the ſonne of Careah vnto Godoliah in Myzpa, theſe woordes ſecretelye: Lette me goe I praye thee, and I wyl ſleye Iſmaell the ſonne of Nathanyah, ſo that no body ſhal know it. Wherfore wil he kil the, that al the Iewes whiche reſorte vnto the, myghte be ſcattered, and the remnaunte in Iuda periſhe. And Godoliah the ſonne of Ahycam ſayde vnto Iohanan the ſonne of Careah. Thou ſhalte not doe it, for they are but lyes that thou ſayeſt of Iſmaell.

The.xli. Chapter.

Iſmaell killeth Godoliah gilefully, and manye other with hym. Iohanan foloweth after Iſmaell.

A .Re.25.d But in the ſeuenth moneth it happened, *that Iſmael the ſonne

And after ten dayes came the worde of the the inhabitours of Jeruſalem: ſo ſhall my diſpleaſure be kindled againſt you alſo, if ye goe into Egipt: and there ye ſhalbe reuiled, D abhorred, broughte to ſhame and confuſion: and as for this place ye ſhall neuer

The .xliii. Chapter.

Johanan carieth the rẽnaunt of the people into Egipt contrary to the minde of Jeremy. Jeremy propheciеth the deſtruccion of Egipt.

NOw when Jeremye had ended al the wordes of the Lorde hys God vnto the people, whiche to declare the lorde theyr God had ſent him to them (euen all theſe wordes, I ſay:) Azariah the ſonne of Oziah, and Johanan the ſõne of Careah with al the ſtubburne perſons, ſaid vnto Jeremy: *Thou lyeſt. The Lorde our God hath not ſente the to ſpeake vnto vs, that we ſhoulde not goe into Egypt, and dwell there: But Baruch the ſonne of Neriah prouoketh thee agaynſte vs, that he might brynge vs into B the captiuitye of the Caldees, yͤ they might ſlay vs, and cary vs away prieſoners vnto Babilon. So Johanan the ſonne of Careah, and al the captaines of the hooſt, and al the people folowed not the commaundement of the Lorde: Namely, to dwell in yͤ lande of Juda. But Johanan the ſonne of Careah, and al the captaines of the hooſte, caried awaye al the remnaunte in Juda, * that were come together agayne from all the Heathen (among whom they had bene ſcatered) to dwel in the land of Juda: men, wemen, children, the kinges daughters, al thoſe that Nabuzaradan the chiefe captain had left with Godoliah the ſonne of Ahycam, the ſonne of Saphan. They caried away alſo the prophet Jeremy, Baruch the ſonne of Neriah, and ſo came into Egypte: for they were not obediente vnto the commaundemente of God. Thus came they to C Taphnis. And in Taphnis the worde of the Lorde happened vnto Jeremy, ſaying: Take great ſtones in thine hande, and hide thẽ in the bricke wal, vnder yͤ dore of Pharaos houſe in Taphnis, yͤ al yͤ mẽ of Juda may ſe, & ſaye vnto them: Thus ſaieth the lord of hoſtes, yͤ god of Iſrael. *Behold, I wil ſend and call for Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babylon my ſeruaunt, & wil D ſet his ſeat vpon theſe ſtones that I haue hyd, and he ſhal ſprede his tent ouer them.
And when he commeth, he ſhall ſmyte the land of Egipt: ſome with ſlaughter, ſome wyth

with preſonmente, and ſome with the ſweorde. He ſhall ſet fyre vpon the temples of the Egipcians Goddes, ⁊ burne them vp, ⁊ take themſelues preſoners. Moreouer, he ſhall araye hymſelfe with the lande of Egipt, lyke as a ſhepeherde putteth on his coate, ⁊ ſhall departe hys way from thence in peace. The pillers alſo of the temple of the ſunne, that is in Egipt, ſhal he breake in pieces, and burne the temples of the Egipcians goddes.

The.xliiii. Chapter.

He reproueth the people for theyr ydolatrye. They that ſet lyght by the threatnyng of the Lorde are chaſtened. The deſtruccion of Egipte, and the Jewes therin, is prophecied.

A This is the word that was ſhewed to Jeremy concerning al yͤ Jewes which dwelt in Egipt: at Migdol, at Taphnys, at Noph, and in the lande of Patures. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Iſrael: ye haue ſene al the miſery that I haue brought vpon Jeruſalem, ⁊ vpon the cities of Juda: ſo that this day they are deſolate, and no manne dwellyng therein: and that beecauſe of the great blaſphemyes whiche they cōmitted, to prouoke me to angre. In that they went backe to doe ſacrifice and worſhip vnto ſtrange gods, whome neyther ye nor youre fathers haue knowen. Howbeit, I ſent vnto them my ſeruauntes all the Prophetes. *I roſe vp early, I ſente vnto them and gaue them warning. O dooe no ſuche abhominable thinges, and thynges that I hate. But they woulde not folowe nor hearken, to turne from theyr wickednes, and to doe no more ſacrifices vnto ſtraunge Gods.

B Wherfore myne indignacion and wrath was kyndled, and it brente vp the cityes of Juda, the fieldes with the ſtretes of Jeruſalem, ſo that they wer made waſt and deſolate, as it is come to paſſe thys daye. Now therfore, thus ſayth the lord of hoſtes, the God of Iſrael: How happeneth it, that ye dooe ſo greate euil vnto youre owne ſoules: thus to deſtroye the menne and weomen, children and babes of Juda: ſo that none of you is left, becauſe ye prouoke me vnto wrath with the workes of your own handes: When ye offre vnto ſtraunge Goddes in the lande of Egipt, where as ye bee gone to dwell. That ye myghte vtterly peryſhe, and that ye might be reuyled and ſhamefullye entreated of all nacions. Or haue ye nowe forgotten the wickedneſſe of youre forefathers, the wickedneſſe of the Kynges of Juda, and theyr wyues, the wickedneſſe that ye your ſelues and your wyues haue doone in the lande of Juda, in the citye, and in the ſtretes of C Jeruſalem: yet are ye not ſory vnto this day: ye feare not, neyther walke ye in my law, and in my commaundementes, that I haue geuen vnto you, and your forefathers.

Therefore thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes, the God of Iſrael: I am ſtedfaſtly aduyſed and determined to puniſh you, and to roote out all Juda. As for the remnaunte of Juda, that purpoſely wente into Egipte, there to dwel, I will take them, *and they ſhal all bee deſtroyed. Jer.13.c and.43.a In the lande of Egipte ſhall they peryſhe, beyng conſumed with the ſweord and with hunger. For from the leaſte vnto the moſte, they ſhall peryſhe with the ſweorde and with hunger. Moreouer, they ſhalbee reuyled, abhorred, ſhamed, and confounded: For I will viſyte them that dwell in Egypte, *as I haue viſited Hieruſalem, *Iere.39.a with the ſweorde, with hunger, and with peſtilence. So that none of the remnaunte of Juda whiche are gone to dwel in Egypte, ſhalbe lefte to come agayne into the lande of Juda, althoughe they thynke to come thither agayne, and to dwell there. For none ſhall come agayne, but ſuche as are fled awaye.

D Then al the men whiche knewe that theyr wyues had offered vnto ſtraunge Gods, and a great ſorte of wyues that ſtoode there, yea and all the people that dwelte there in Egypte, in the citye of Patures, anſwered Jeremy, and ſayde: As for the woordes that thou haſt ſpoken vnto vs in the name of the Lord, we wil in no wiſe heare them: but whatſoeuer goeth out of our owne mouthe, that we wil do. We will doe ſacrifice and offer oblacions vnto the quene of heauen, *like as we and oure forefathers, oure *Iere.7.d kinges and our heades haue doone in the cities of Juda, and in the ſtretes and fieldes of Jeruſalem. For then had we plenteouſnes of vitayles, then were we in proſperitie, and no miſfortune came vpon vs. E *But ſence we lefte to burne in- 1.mac.1.d cenſe, and to doe ſacrifice vnto the quene of heauen, we haue had ſcarcenes of all thynges, and peryſhe with the ſweord ⁊ hunger. Laſte of all, when we weomen dyd ſacrifyce and offered vnto the quene of heauen, dydde we make her cakes and powre vnto her drinkofferinges, euen to that ymage, dyd we ſacrifice and ſeruice, without our huſbandes willes?

Then ſayde Jeremye vnto all the people, to the menne, to the weomenne, and to all the folke whiche had geuen hym that aunſwere: Dyd not the Lorde remembre the ſacrifyces that ye, youre forefathers, your Kynges and rulers, with all the people, haue offered in the cities of Juda, in the ſtretes and lande of Jeruſalem? and hath he not conſydered thys in hys mynde? Inſomuche that the Lorde myghte no longer ſuffre the wickednesse of your inuencions, and the abhomynable thynges whiche ye dyd.

*Eſai.1.a *Is not your lande deſolate and voyde? yea, abhorred & accurſed, ſo that no man dwelleth therein any more, as it is come

F to paſſe thys day?

3.reg.18.b Jere.2.c 3.c.&.5.e. ‡baru.3.a *Dyd not all thys happen vnto you, becauſe ye made ſuch ſacrifices to idols and ſynned agaynſte the Lord? ‡ye haue not folowed hys voyce, to walke in hys lawe, in hys ordeinaunces and ſtatutes. yea, thys is the cauſe that al miſfortune happened vnto you, as it is come to paſſe thys daye. Moreouer, Jeremy ſpake vnto all the people and to all the weomen. Heare the woorde of the Lorde al Juda, ye that bee in the lande of Egypt. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes, the God of Iſraell. Ye and youre wyues haue ſpoken with your owne mouth, the thyng

*Je.44.c that ye haue fulfilled in dede. *Yea, thus haue ye ſayd: We will not fayle, but perfourme the vowes that we haue vowed. We will dooe ſacrifice, and powre oute drynkeofferynges to the Quene of heauen. Purpoſely will ye ſette vp youre owne meanynges, and perfourme youre vowes. And therfore, heare the wordes of the Lorde all Juda, ye that dwell in

*gen.22.a the lande of Egypte. Beholde, *I haue

G ſworne by my great name, ſayeth the Lorde: that my name ſhall not be reherſed thorow any mannes mouthe of Juda, in all the lande of Egypt, to ſay: The Lord God liueth. For I will watche to plage them, and not for theyr welthe.

*Je.42.c *And all the menne of Juda that bee in the lande of Egipte, ſhal periſhe with the ſweorde and with hunger, vntyll they be vtterlye deſtroyed. Neuertheles, thoſe that fledde awaye for the ſweorde ſhall come agayne into the lande of Juda, but there ſhalbe verye fewe of them. And all the remnaunt of Juda, that are gone into Egipte, there to dwell, ſhall knowe whoſe wordes ſhal be foũd true: theirs or myne. Take thys for a token, that I will viſite you in thys place, ſayeth the lord, and that ye may know that I (without doubt) wil perfourme my purpoſe vpon you, to puniſhe you: Beholde, ſaith the Lorde, I will delyuer Pharao Hophrea king of Egipt, into the handes of hys enemyes that ſeeke after hys lyfe: *euen as I gaue zedekiah the Kyng of Juda into the handes of Nabuchodonozor king of Babilon his enemy, which ſought after his lyfe.

The.xlv. Chapter.

Baruch is reproued of Jeremy.

These are the wordes that Jeremy the Prophete ſpake vnto Baruche the ſonne of Neriah *after that he hadde written theſe ſermons in a booke at the mouth of Jeremy, in ẏ .iiii. yeare of Jehoakim ẏ ſõne of Joſias king of Juda, ſaying: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſrael vnto the, o Baruch: Inſomuch as thou thoughteſte thus, when thou waſt wryting: Woe is me, the lord hath geuen me ſorowe vpon ſorowe, I haue weryed my ſelfe with ſyghing, and haue founde no reſt. Therfore tel hym, O Jeremy, that the Lord ſaith thus: Behold, the thynge that I haue builded, will I breake downe agayne, and roote out the thynge that I haue planted, yea, thys whole land. And ſekeſt thou yet promocion? Looke not for it, and deſyre it not. For I will bryng a miſerable plage vpon all fleſhe, ſayth the Lord. *But thy lyfe will I geue thee for a praye in all places, wherſoeuer thou goeſt.

The.xlvi. Chapter.

He prophecieth the deſtruccion of Egipt: Deliueraunce is promiſed to Iſrael.

Here folow the woordes of the Lord to the prophet Jeremy, which he ſpake agaynſte al the Gentiles. Theſe woordes folowyng, preached he *to the Egipcians concerning the hooſt of Pharao Necho, king of Egipt, ‡when he was in Charcamis beſide ẏ water of Euphrates, what tyme as Nabuchodonozor the kyng of Babilon ſlewe hym, in the fourthe yeare of Jehoakim the ſone of Joſias king of Juda. *Make ready buckl[illegible]nd ſhilde:

But alas how happeneth it, that I

Theyr worthyes are ſlayne: Yea, they Euphrates. Goe vp, O Gilead, & bryng tryacle vnto the daughter of Egipt. But in vayne ſhalte thou goe to ſurgerye, for thy wounde ſhall not be ſtopped. The Heathen haue heard of thy ſhame, and yͤ lande is full of thy confuſion: for one D ſtronge man dyd ſtomble vpon another, n.43.d. & they are fallen both together. *Theſe are the wordes that the lorde ſpake to yͤ prophete Ieremy, concernyng the commyng of Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babylon, whyche was ſent to deſtroy yͤ lande of Egypt. Preache out thorowe yͤ lād of Egipt, & cauſe it to be proclaimed at Migdol, Noph, and Taphnis, & ſay: Stand ſtil, make the redy, for yͤ ſwearde ſhal conſume the rounde aboute. Howe happeneth it, that thy mighty worthies are fallen? Why ſtoode they not faſte?

Euē becauſe the lord thruſt thē downe.
The ſlaughter was greate, for one fell euer ſtyll vpon another. One cryed vpon another: Up let vs go again to our own people, and to our own natural countrey from the cruel ſwearde. They dyd crye euen there: O Pharao, kinge of Egipt, E thou troublous kynge: the tyme wyll bring ſedicion. As truly as I lyue ſayth the kynge, *whoſe name is the lorde of Eſa.48.a hooſtes, it ſhall come as the mount of and.51.c Tabor, and as Lybanus, if it ſtode in yͤ readye thy geare to flytte. For Noph ſhalbe voide & deſolate, ſo that no man ſhall dwell therein. The land of Egypt is lyke a goodly fayre calfe: but deſtruccyon ſhal come oute of the northe, I ſay it cūmeth. Her waged ſouldiers that be with her, are lyke fatte calues: They alſo ſhal fle away together, and not abide:

for the daye of theyr ſlaughter, and the tyme of theyr vyſytacion, ſhal come vpō thē. The crye of them ſhall make a noyſe, as the blaſte of a trompet. For they ſhal F enter in wyth theyr hooſtes, and come wyth axes, as it were hewers down of wood. And they ſhal cut doun her wood, ſayeth the Lorde: They ſhall be innumerable:
for they ſhalbe moe in numbre thē the greſhoppers, ſo that no man ſhalbe able to tel thē. The daughter of Egipte is confounded, and delyuered into the hādes of the people of yͤ North. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes, the God of Iſraell. Beholde, I wyl vyſet that reſtles people of Alexandria, Pharao, & Egipt, yea, both their gods & their kinges: euen Pharao, and al them that put their truſt in him. Yea, I wil deliuer them into the handes of thoſe that ſeeke after theyr liues: Namely, into the power of Nabuchodonozor the kyng of Babilon, & into the power of hys ſeruauntes. And after al theſe thynges, it ſhalbe inhabited as afore time, ſaith the lorde. But be not thou afrayed (o my ſeruāt Iacob,) feare G not thou O Iſrael. For loe, I wil helpe thee from farre, and thy ſeede from the lande of theyr captiuitye. Iacob alſo ſhall come agayne, and be in reſte: he ſhall proſpere, and no manne ſhall doe hym harme. Feare thou not (O Iacob my ſeruaunt ) ſayeth the Lorde, for I am with thee: and wil deſtroye al nacions, among whom I haue ſcattered thee. Neuertheleſſe, I wil not conſume thee: but chaſten thee and correct thee, yea, and that with diſcrecyon: neyther will I ſpare thee as one that were faulteles.

The.xlvii. Chapter.

The worde of the Lorde agaynſt the Philiſtines.

A THeſe are the wordes, that the lord ſpake vnto Jeremy the Prophete, agaynſte the Philiſtines, beefore that Pharao ſmote the citye of Azah. Thus ſayth the lord: Beholde, there ſhall waters ryſe out of the North: and ſhall grow to a great floud, running ouer and couerynge the lande, the cities and them that dwel therein.

B And the men ſhal crye, and al they that dwel in the lande ſhal mourne at ẏ noyſe and ſtamping of their ſtrōg barbed horſes, at the ſhaking of their charets, and at the rūblyng of the wheles. The fathers ſhal not loke to theyr chyldren, ſo feeble and wery ſhal theyr handes be at ẏ ſame time when he ſhalbe there, to deſtroy the whole lande of the Philiſtines. He ſhall make waſt both Tirus, Sidon, and all other that are ſworne vnto them.

C For the Lorde will deſtroy the Philiſtines, the remnaunte of the yle of Caphtor. Baldenes is come vpon Azah, Aſcalon with her other valleyes ſhal kepe her peace. Howe long wilte thou ſlaye, O thou ſweord of the Lorde? Whan wilt thou ceaſe? Turne agayne into thy ſwete reſt, and leaue of. But howe can it ceaſe, when the Lord himſelfe hath geuen him a charge agaynſte Aſcalon, and rayſed it vp agaynſte the cities of the ſea coaſtes?

The .xlviii. Chapter.

The woorde of the lord agaynſt the Moabites.

A THus ſayth the Lord of hoſtes the God of Iſraell, agaynſte *Moab: woe be to the citie of Nebo: for it is layde waſte, brought to confuſyon, and Karithiarim taken. Miſgab is broughte to ſhame and afrayde: Moab can boaſte no more of Heſebon, for they haue deuyſed agaynſt it. Come ſhall they ſay, let vs roote them out, that they maye bee no more amonge the noumbre of the Gentiles, and that thou Madmen may no more be thought vpon: and the ſweorde ſhall perſecute thee. A voyce ſhall crye from Horonaim: with greate waſtyng and deſtruccyon, is Moab made deſolate.

*Eſa.15.a 16.a. Je.25.b Eze.25.b Soph.2.b

Children could tell of the crye thereof. For at the goyng vp vnto Luith, he aroſe with lamentacyon and mournyng, and downe towarde Horanaim they hearde a cruel & a deadly crye. Get you away, ſaue your lyues, and be lyke vnto the heath in the wildernes. *For becauſe thou haſt truſted in thine owne woorkes and treaſure, thou ſhalt be takē. Chamos with hys prieſtes and prynces ſhall goe B away into captiuitie. The deſtroyer ſhal come vpō al cities, none ſhal eſcape. The valleyes ſhalbe deſtroyed, & the fieldes ſhalbe layed waſt, lyke as the Lord hath ſpoken. Geue winges vnto Moab, that ſhe get her awaye ſpedely: for her cities ſhal be made ſo deſolate, that no manne ſhall dwel therein

*Eſa.2.b Jere.17.b Ezec.29.a

Curſed be he that doth the woorke of the Lorde negligently, and curſed bee he that kepeth backe his *ſweord from ſhedyng of bloude. Moab hath euer beene riche and careles from her youth vp, ſhe hath ſytten and taken her eaſe with her treaſure. She was neuer yet put out of one veſſell into another, (that is) ſhe neuer went away into captiuitie: therfore her taſte remayneth, & her ſauour is not yet chaunged. But loe, the tyme cūmeth C ſayth the lord, that I ſhal ſende her truſſers, to truſſe her vp, which ſhal remoue her from her dwelling: and to emptie her veſſels, & breake her wyne pottes. And Moab ſhalbe aſhamed of Chamos, lyke as Iſraell was aſhamed of * Bethell, wherein ſhe put her truſt. Wherfore doe ye thinke thus? we are mightye & ſtrong men of warre. Moab is deſtroyed, & her cities brent vp: her choſen young men be ſlayne, ſayth the king, whoſe name is the lord of hooſtes. The deſtruccion of Moab cummeth on apace, and her fall is at hād. Al her neighbours ſhal mourne for her, & al they that knowe her name, ſhall ſay: O how happeneth it, that the ſtrōg ſtaffe, & the goodly rod is thus broken? And thou doughter Dibon, come downe from thy glory, and ſit in thyrſte. For he that deſtroyeth Moab, ſhall come vp to thee alſo, and breake downe thy ſtrong holdes. And thou that dwelleſt in Aroer D get thee to the ſtrete, and looke aboute thee, aſke them that are fled and eſcaped, and ſaye: what thyng is happened? Oh Moab is confounded and ouercome.

Mourne and crye, tel it out at Arnon, that Moab is deſtroyed. For iudgement ſhal come vpon the playne lande: Namelye, vpon Holon, & Jahazah, vpon Mephaath and Dibon: vpon Nabo, and the houſe of Deblathaim vpon Cariathiarim, and vpō the houſe Gamul, vpon the houſe Maon, and Carioth, vpon Bozrah, and al the cities in the lande of Moab, whether they lye farre or neare.

The horne of Moab is ſmitten down, and her arme broken, ſayeth the Lorde. Make her dronken, for ſhe magnyfyed herſelfe aboue the lorde, that menne may clap theyr handes at her vomyte, & that ſhe alſo may be laughed to ſkorne. O Iſrael, thou ſhalt not laugh him to ſcorne, when he is takē among theues. Nu.25.a *Yea, becauſe of thy wordes that thou haſt ſpokē againſt him, thou ſhalt be driuē away. ye Moabites ſhal leaue ỹ cities & dwell E in rockes of ſtone, and become like doues, that make theyr neſtes in holes. ſa.16.a Jer.49.c. *As for Moabs pride we haue heard of it: ſhe is very hye minded. I know her ſtoutneſſe, her boaſting, her arrogancy, & the pryde of her ſtomacke, ſayth the lord: I know (ſayeth the Lorde) her indygnacyon, ye doeth not right, her woordes are lyes, & they haue not delt truely. Therfore ſhal there mourning be made for Moab, & euery man ſhal crye for Moabs ſake: a lamentacyon ſhalbe made to the men that ſtande vpon the wall. So wil I mourne for thee alſo, O Iazer, and for thee, O thou vineyarde of Sabamah. Thy vyne braunches ſhall come ouer the ſea, & the braunches of Iazer, but vnto the ſea, the deſtroyer ſhall breake into thy harueſte and grapegathering: myrthe and cheare ſhalbe taken away from the timbre field, and from the whole lande of Moab.

There ſhal be no ſwete wine in ỹ preſſe, ỹ treder ſhal haue no ſtomack to cry: yea, there ſhal be none to cry vnto him: which afore time were hearde from Hezebon to Eleale and Iahaz, whiche lifted vp their voyce from zoar vnto Horonaim, ỹ bullocke of three yere olde ſhall goe mourning. The waters alſo of Memrim ſhall bee dryed vp . Moreouer, I will make Moab ceaſe, ſayth the lord, from the offringes and cenſyng, that ſhe hath made vnto her Gods in high places. Wherfore F my hearte mourneth for Moab lyke a croude, playing an heauy ſong: and for ỹ mens ſake of the brickewall my hearte mourneth alſo, euen as a pype ỹ pypeth a doleful ſong: for they ſhalbe very few, a.15.b and deſtroyed. *All heades ſhalbe ſhauē, & al beardes clipped of, al handes boūd, and loines girded about with ſackcloth. Upon all the houſe toppes and ſtretes of Moab there ſhalbe lamentable mourning. For I wil breake Moab like an vnprofitable veſſel, ſaith the Lord: O how is ſhe deſtroyed? O how mourneth ſhe? O howe dooeth Moab hang downe her head, and is aſhamed? Thus ſhal Moab be a laughyng ſtocke, and had in deriſion of al thē that be rounde about her. *Deu.28.c Jere.49.d *For thus ſayeth the Lorde: Beholde, the enemy ſhall come flying as an Eagle: and ſpread hys wynges vpon Moab. They ſhall clyme ouer the walles, and win the ſtrong holdes. Then the myghtye mens heartes in Moab ſhalbe lyke the hearte G of a woman trauelyng with chylde. And Moab ſhalbe made ſo deſolate, that ſhe ſhall no more bee a people: beecauſe ſhe hath ſet vp her ſelfe agaynſte the Lorde. *Eſa.24.a *Feare, pyt, and ſnare ſhall come vpon thee, O Moab, ſayeth the lorde. Whoſo eſcapeth the feare ſhal fall in the pyt, and whoſo getteth out of the pit, ſhalbe takē in the ſnare. For I wil bring a yere of viſitacion vpon Moab, ſayeth the Lorde. They that are able to flye, ſhal ſtand vnder the ſhadowe of Hezebon: For there ſhal goe a fyre out of Hezebon, & a flame from Sion, and ſhal burne vp ỹ proude people of Moab, and the top of thoſe ſedicious children.

Woe be vnto thee, O Moab, for thou people of Chamos ſhalt periſhe: yea, thy ſonnes and daughters ſhalbe led awaye captiue. yet at the laſt, wil I bring Moab out of captiuitie agayne, ſayeth the lord. Thus farre is of ỹ plage of Moab.

The .xlix. Chapter.

The worde of the lord agaynſt the Ammonites, agaynſte Idumea, Damaſcus, Cedar, and Elam.

A AS concerning the *Ammonites, Ezec.21.d and.25.a Amos.1.a thus the Lorde ſayeth: Hathe Iſrael no chyldren, or is he without an heyre? Why hath youre kyng then taken Gad in? Wherfore doth his people dwell in hys cities? Beholde therefore, the tyme cummeth, ſayeth the Lorde, that I will brynge a noyſe of warre into Rabah of the Ammonites: and it ſhalbe layed on a deſolate heape, and her cities brente vp: and the Iſraelites ſhalbe Lordes ouer thoſe that had them in poſſeſſion afore, ſayeth the lord. Heſebō ſhal mourne: for Ay ſhalbe rooted oute of the grounde, ſayeth the lord. The cities of Rabah ſhall crye out, and gyrd themſelues with ſackeclothe, they ſhal mourne, & rūne about the walles, for theyr king ſhall bee ledde away priſoner: yea his prieſtes and prynces with hym.

Wherfore

B Wherefore truſteſt thou in the valley? thy valley hath flowed awaye, O thou fearce doughter, and thinkeſt thou that thou art ſo ſafe, by reaſō of thy treaſure, that no man ſhal come to thee? Beholde, I will bryng a feare vpon thee, ſayth the Lord god of hooſtes, from al thoſe that be about thee: ſo that ye ſhalbe ſcattered euery man from an other, and no manne ſhal gather them together agayn that be fled. But after that, I wil bring the Ammonites alſo oute of captiuitie agayne.
*Eſa.21.b *Upon the Edomites hath the lorde of Ezec.25.b hooſtes ſpoken on thys maner: Is there and.29.f no more wiſedome in Theman? Is there and,35.a no more good coūſel among his people?
Is theyr wiſedome then tourned cleane to nought? Gette you hence, tourne your citizens of Dedan.

For I wil bryng deſtruccyon vpon Eſau: yea, ⁊ the day of his viſitacion. If yͤ grape gatherers came vpō the, ſhould they not leaue ſome grapes? Yf the night robbers came vpon the, ſhould they not take ſo much as they thoughte were ynough?
But I wil make Eſau bare, and C diſcouer his ſecretes, ſo yͭ he ſhal not be able to hide thē. Hys ſede ſhalbe waſted away: yea, hys brethren and hys neyghbours, and he hymſelfe ſhal not bee lefte chyldren behynde thee, and I will keepe them: and thy widowes ſhall take theyr

Iere.25.b ſpoken. *Behold, they that men thought Ezec.9.b were vnmete to drinke of the cup, haue thē to be free? No, no, thou ſhalt neither be quite nor free: but thou muſte drynke alſo: For why? I haue ſworne by my ſelf ſayth the lord: that Bozrah ſhal become a wyldernesse, an open ſhame, a laughing ſtocke, and curſyng: and all her cities ſhalbe a continual deſerte.

D For I am perfectly infourmed of the lord, that he hath ſent a meſſage already vnto the Heathen. Gather you together and goe foorth agaynſt them, make you thou wilte dwell in the holes of ſtonye were as hye as the Egles, yet wil I caſt thee downe, ſayeth the lorde. Moreouer, Idumea ſhalbe a wyldernesse: * whoſo *Ier.4 at all her miſerable plages. * Lyke as *gen.19 Sodom ⁊ Gomor, ⁊ the cities that laye there about were turned vpſyde downe, ſayeth the lorde: ſo ſhal no body dwel in Idumea, and no manne ſhal haue his habitacion there: Behold, like as the Lyon, ſo ſhal a deſtroyer come vp from the pleſaunte medowes of Jordane, vnto the ſtrong dwelling place: and when I haue made him quiet, I wil make hym to flye from her: and all choſen men wil I ſet in What is he yͭ wil ſtriue with me? What

*Therfore heare the counſel of the lorde *pla that he hath takē vpon Idumea: and his E purpoſe that he hath deuyſed vpon the citizens of Theman. The leaſt of yͤ flocke ſhal teare them in pieces, and loke what fayre thyng they haue, they ſhall make it waſte: and themſelues alſo. At the noyſe of theyr fall, the earthe ſhall quake: the crye of their voyce ſhalbe heard vnto the red ſea. Beholde, the enemy ſhal *come ⁊ *Ie flye vp hither, like as it were an Eagle, ⁊ ſpread hys winges vpon Bozrah. Then ſhal the heartes of the woorthyes in Edom, be as the hearte of a woman traueling and Arphad, ſhall come confuſyon: for they ſhal heare euil tidinges, they ſhalbe ⁊ ſhal flye, trēbling ſhall come vpon her.

Sorow ⁊ payne ſhall ouertake her, as a woman traueling of chylde. But howe ſhoulde ſo wurſhipful ⁊ glorious a citie be forſaken? Heare therfore: her yong mē ſhall fall in yͤ ſtretes, ⁊ al her men of war ſhalbe taken away in yͭ tyme, ſaith yͤ lord of hoſtes. I wil kindle a fyre in yͤ walles of Damaſcus whiche ſhall conſume the palace of Benhadad. * As for Cedar ⁊ the kingdom of Hazor, whom Nabuchodonozor yͤ king of Babilō ſmote down, the Lorde hath ſpoken thus vpon them: Aryſe, ⁊ get you vp vnto Cedar, and deſtroy the people toward the eaſt. Their tentes and theyr flockes ſhall they take away: yea, their hanginges and their veſſels: Their Cammels alſo ſhal they cary away with them. They ſhal cry to them: Feare is on euery ſyde.

Flee, get you ſoone awaye, crepe into F caues, that ye may dwell there, O ye inhabiters of Haſor, ſayeth the Lorde: for Nabuchodonozor the Kyng of Babilon hath holden a counſell concernyng you, and concluded hys deuyce agaynſt you. Aryſe, and get you vp agaynſte yonder ryche & careles people (ſayeth thẽ lorde) whiche hathe neyther gates nor doore barres, but dwel alone. Theyr Camels ſhalbee ſtollen, and the droues of theyr cattel driuen awaye. Moreouer, thoſe will I ſcatter towarde all the wyndes, and bryng them to deſtruccyon: yea, and that thorow theyr owne familiers, ſaith the Lorde. Haſor alſo ſhalbe a dwelling for dragons, and an euerlaſtynge wyldernesſe: ſo that no bodye ſhall dwell there: and no manne ſhall haue there hys habytacyon.

G These are the wordes that the lorde ſpake to the Prophete Jeremye, concernyng *Elam, in the beegynnyng of the Ezec.32.b reygne of zedekiah, kyng of Juda. Thus Dan.8.a ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes: Beholde, I will breake the bowe of Elam, and take away their ſtrength: & vpon Elam I wil bryng the foure wyndes, from the foure quarters of heauẽ, and wil ſcatter them agaynſte the ſame foure wyndes. And there ſhall be no people, but ſome of Elam ſhall flee vnto them.

For I wil cauſe Elam to be afrayde of theyr enemyes, and of them that ſeeke theyr liues: and will bring vpon them ỹ indignacion of my wrath, ſaith the lord: And I will perſecute them, with the ſweorde, ſo long, tyll I haue broughte them to nought. I will ſet my throne in Elam, I wil deſtroy both ỹ king and the princes from thence, ſayeth the lord. But in proceſſe of tyme I will brynge Elam out of captiuitye again, ſayth the Lord.

For thus ſayeth the lord of hoſtes, the God of Iſraell: the daughter of Babilon hath bene in her tyme, lyke as a threſſhyng floore, but ſhortly ſhall her harueſte come. Nabuchodonoſor yͤ king of Babilō hath deuoured and deſtroyed me, he hath made me an emptye veſſell. He ſwalowed me vp lyke a dragon, and filled his bellye with my delicates: he hath caſte me out, he hath taken my ſubſtaunce awaye, and the thynge that was left me hath he caried vnto Babilon, ſaith the daughter that dwelleth in Sion: yea, and my bloude alſo vnto the Caldees, ſayeth Ieruſalem. Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I wyll E defende thy cauſe, and auenge thee: I wyll Eſay.12.c. drynke vp her ſea, and drye vp her water ſpringes. *Babilon ſhall become an heape of ſtones, a dwellyng place for dragons, a fearfulnes and wondryng, becauſe no mā dwelleth there. In theyr heate I ſhall geue them a dyner, Iere.2.b. and thei ſhalbe drōken for ioye. *Then ſhal they ſlepe an euerlaſtynge ſlepe, and neuer wake, ſaieth yͤ lord. I ſhall cary thē down to be ſlaine like ſhepe, like wethers ⁊ gotes. O, howe was Seſach wonne? O, howe was the glory of the whole lād takē? how happeneth it, yͭ Babilon is ſo wondred at amōg yͤ heathē? The ſea is riſen ouer Babylon, ⁊ hath couered her with his greate waues. And lo, the time commeth that I will viſit the images of Babilon, ⁊ the whole lande ſhall be confounded: yea, ⁊ her ſlaine ſhal lye in the middeſt of her. Heauen ⁊ earth with al that is therein, ſhal reioyce ouer Babilō, when yͤ deſtroyers ſhal come vpon her from yͤ north, ſaith yͤ lorde. F *Like as Babilon hath beaten down and Iere. ſlaine many out of Iſraell, ſo ſhall there fal manye, and bee ſlayne in all her kingdome. Ye that haue eſcaped the ſweord, haſt you, ſtand not ſtil, remember the lord afarre of, and thinke vpon Ieruſalem: for we wer aſhamed to heare yͤ blaſphemies, our faces wer couered wᵗ ſhame, becauſe the ſtraūge aleauntes came into yͤ ſanctuary of yͤ lord. Wherfore behold, (ſaith the lord) yͤ time cōmeth yͭ I wil viſit the images of Babilon, ⁊ through yͤ whole land they ſhal mourne ⁊ fall. *Though Babilon climed vp into Iere. heauen and kept her power on hye: yet ſhal I ſende her deſtroyers, ſayeth the Lorde. A piteous crye ſhalbe heard from Babilō, and a greate miſerye from the lande of the Caldees, when the lord deſtroyeth them, ⁊ when he driueth oute the hye ſtomake and proud boaſting, wherwith they haue bene as furious as the waues of great waterfloudes, ⁊ made great crakes wyth theyr wordes. For yͤ deſtroiers ſhall come vpon her (euē vpō Babilō) which ſhal take their worthies, ⁊ breake their bowes: for god is diſpoſed to auenge himſelf vpon thē, ⁊ ſufficiently to recompence them. Yea (ſaith the lord) I wil make theyr prynces, their wiſe men, their chiefe rulers, and all their worthies dronkē: ſo that thei ſhal ſlepe an euerlaſting ſlepe, ⁊ neuer wake. Thus ſayth yͤ kyng, whoſe name is the Lorde of hoſtes.

G Moreouer, thus ſaith the lord of hoſtes. The thicke wal of Babilon ſhalbe broken, and her hie gates ſhalbe brent vp. And the thing that the Gentils and the people haue wrought wͭ great trauaile ⁊ laboure, ſhal come to naught, and be conſumed in ẏ fire.

This is the charge that Jeremye gaue vnto Saraiah the ſõne of Neriah, ẏ ſonne of Maaſiah, when he went towarde Babilon with zedekiah the kynge of Juda, in the fourth yere of his reygne. Now thys Saraiah was a peaceable prynce. Jeremy wrote in a booke, all the miſerye that ſhoulde come vpon Babilon: yea, and all theſe ſermons that bee written agaynſte Babilon, and gaue Saraiah this charge: When thou cummeſte vnto Babilon, ſee ẏ thou reade all theſe woordes, and ſaye: O Lorde, thou art determined to roote oute this place, ſo that neyther people nor cattel ſhall dwell there any more, but to lye waſt for euer: and when thou haſte read oute the booke, bynde a ſtone to it, and caſte it in the myddeſte of Euphrates, and ſay: Euen thus ſhall Babilon ſynke, and be thruſt down with the burthen of trouble, that I wyll bryng vpon her: ſo that ſhe ſhal neuer come vp agayne. Thus farre are ẏ Preachinges of Jeremye.

The.lii. Chapter.

He repeateth the taking of zedekiah. Jeruſalẽ is taken of the Caldees, zedekias ſonnes are killed before his face, and his eyes put out. The citie is burned. The temple is ſpoiled ⁊ robbed. They that wer left in Jeruſalẽ, are caried to Babilon: king Jehoakin is brought forth of prieſon, ⁊ fed lyke a kynge.

A 4.re.24.d. .pa.36.b. Zedekyah was * one and twenty yeare olde, when he was made kynge, and he reygned a leuen yere in Jeruſalem. His mothers name was Hamutal, Jeremies daughter of Libna. He liued wyckedly before ẏ lord euen as Jehoakym dydde. For the Lorde was angrye at Jeruſalem and Juda, ſo longe, tyl he hadde caſte them out of hys preſence. And zedekiah fell from the kyng Jer.39.a 4.Re.25.a of Babylon. * But in the nynth yeare of his reigne, in the tenth moneth, the tenth daye of the moneth: it happened that Nabuchodonozor the king of Babilõ with all his hoſt came before Jeruſalem, and beſeged it, and made them bulwarkes rounde B about it. And this beſegyng of the citie endured 4.re.25.a Jer 38.b. and 39.a vnto the eleuenth yere of king zedekiah. * And in the fourth moneth, the ninth daye of the moneth, there was ſo greate hunger in the citye, that there wer no more vitailes for the people of the lande. So all the ſouldyers brake away, and fled out of the citie by nyghte throughe the waye of the porte, betwene the two walles by the kinges garden. Nowe the Caldees hadde coumpaſſed the citie round about, yet wẽt theſe men theyr waye towarde the wilderneſſe. And ſo the Caldees folowed vpon them, and toke zedekiah the king in the fielde of Jericho, when his hooſt was runne frõ hym. So they caried the kyng away prieſoner to Reblath, vnto the kyng of Babilõ in the lande of Hemath, * where he gaue Jere.39.b C iudgement vpon hym. The king of Babilon alſo cauſed zedekiahs ſõnes to be ſlaine before his face: yea, and put all the prynces of Juda to death at Reblath. Moreouer, he put out the eyes of zedekiah, and cauſed hym to be bounde with two cheines, to be caryed vnto Babilon: and lette hym lye in pryeſon, tyll he dyed.

Now the tenth daye of the fyft moneth, in the ninth yere of Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, Nabuzaradan the chiefe captaine, and the king of Babilons ſeruaũtes, came vnto Jeruſalem, and brente vp the houſe of the Lorde. He brente vp alſo the kinges palace, all the houſes, ⁊ al the gorgeous buildinges in Jeruſalem. And the whole hoſte of the Caldees that wer with the chiefe captayne, brake downe all the walles of Jeruſalem rounde aboute. D

As for the poore people and ſuche folke as yet was left in the cytie: which alſo were fallen to the kyng of Babilon, yea, and what people as yet remayned, Nabuzaradan the chyefe captayne caryed them awaye prieſoners. But the poore people of the countrey, dydde Nabuzaradan the chyefe captayne leaue in the lande, to occupy the vineyardes and fieldes. The Caldees alſo brake the braſen pillers that were in the houſe of the Lorde: yea, the ſeate and the braſen lauer that was in the houſe of the Lorde: and caried all the metall of them vnto Babylon. They tooke away alſo the caldrons, ſhouels, fleſhokes, ſprynkelers, ſpones, and all the braſen veſſel that was occupyed in the ſeruyce: wͭ the baſẽs, colepannes, ſprinckelers, pottes, cãdelſtickes, ſpones, ⁊ cuppes, whereof ſome were of golde, ⁊ ſome of ſyluer. G The chiefe captayne toke alſo the two pillers, the lauer, the twelue braſen bullockes that ſtode vnder ẏ ſeat, * which king Salomõ made in the houſe of ẏ lord: and all the veſſell con- *3.Re.7.b rined ſo much metal, yͤ it might not be weyed. For euery piller was .xviii. cubites hie: and the rope that wente aboute it, was twelue cubites, and foure fingers thicke & rounde. Nowe vpon the rope wer braſen knoppes, and euerye knoppe was fiue cubites hie: & vpon yͤ knoppes wer whopes, and pomgranates round aboute of cleane braſſe. After this maner were bothe the F piller faſhioned with the pomgranates, whereof there were an hundred and .xcvi whiche hanged vpon the whopes rounde about. The chiefe captaine alſo tooke Sariah the hie prieſte, and Sophoniah that was chiefe nexte him, and the .iii. kepers of the treaſury. He toke out of the city a chaūberlaine whiche was a captaine of yͤ souldyers, and ſeuen men that wer the kynges ſeruauntes which wer found in the city: & Sepher, a captaine yͤ vſed to muſter yͤ mē of warre, with threſcore mē of the countrey that were taken in the citye. Theſe Nabuzaradan the chiefe captaine toke and caried them to the king of Babilō vnto Reblath, and the kyng of Babilon cauſed them to be put to death at Reblath in the land of Hemath. And thus Juda was led away captiue, out of his own lād. This is yͤ ſumme of the people, whom Nabuchodonozor led awaye captiue. In the ſeuenth yere of hys reygne, he caried away of the Jewes, thre G thouſande and thre & twenty. In the .xviii yere, Nabuchodonozor caried away from Jeruſalem .viii. hundred, thyrtie and two perſones. In the .xxiii. yere of Nabuchodonozor, Nabuzaradan the chiefe captaine, toke awaye ſeuen hundred fortye and fiue Jewes prieſoners. The whole ſumme of all the prieſoners, is foure thouſande and and .vi. hundred. In the .xxxvii. yere after yͤ Jeoakim the king of Juda was caried awaye, in the .xxv. daye of the .xii. moneth, Euilmerodach kynge of Babilon (the ſame yere that he reigned) gaue Jeoakim the king of Juda hys pardon, and let him out of prieſon, and ſpake louingly to him. And ſet his trone aboue the trones of the other kinges that wer with him in Babilon. He chaunged alſo the clothes of his pryſō, yea, and he did eat with him al his life lōg. And he had a continual liuing geuen him of the king of Babilon, euery day a certain thing allowed him, al the dayes of his life vntill he died.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

It happened after Iſraell was brought into captiuity, & Jeruſalē deſtroied, that Jeremy the prophet ſat weping, & ſorowfully bewailed Jeruſalē, & ſighing and houlyng with an heuy & woful heart, ſayde.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The beſyege of the cytie of Jeruſalem is ſygnyfied. The longe continuaunce of the captiuitie of Iſrael. An hungre is prophecied to come in the captiuitie.

A Thou ſonne of man, take a tyle ſtone and laye it before the, and deſcrybe vpon it the cytie of Jeruſalem, howe it is beſieged, how bulworkes and ſtronge dyches are grauen on euery ſyde of it: deſcrybe alſo tentes, ⁊ an hooſte of men roũde about it with engins of warre. Moreouer, take an yron panne, and ſet it betwixt the ⁊ the cytie, in ſtede of an yron wall. Then ſet thy face towarde it, beſiege it, and laye ordinaũce agaynſt it to wynne it. This ſhalbe a token vnto the houſe of Iſrael. But thou ſhalt ſlepe vpon thy left ſyde, and laye the ſynne of the houſe of Iſrael vpon the. Certayne dayes appointed, thou ſhalt ſlepe vpon that ſyde, and beare their ſynnes. Dani.9.d. * Neuertheleſſe, I will appoynte the a tyme (to put of their ſynnes) and the noumbre of the dayes: Thre hundred and .xc. dayes muſte thou beare the wickedneſſe of the houſe of Iſrael: whē thou haſt fulfylled theſe dayes lye down agayne, and ſlepe vpon thy ryght ſyde fourtye dayes, and beare the ſynnes of the houſe of Juda. Nu.14.d * A day for a yere, a day (I ſaye) for a yere wil I euer lay vpon the. Therfore ſet nowe thy face againſt that beſieged Jeruſalē, and diſcouer thyne arme, that thou mayeſt prophecy agaynſt it. Behold, I wil lay chaynes vpon the, that thou ſhalt not turne thee frō one ſide to another, tyl ẏ haſt ended the days of this beſiegyng.

C Wherfore take vnto the wheate, barly, beanes, gromell ſeed, Millium, and fitches, and put theſe togyther in a veſſel, and make the loues of bread thereof, accordynge to the numbre of the dayes that thou muſt lye vpon thy ſyde: that ẏ maiſt haue bread to eat for thre hundred and .xc. dayes. And ẏ meat that ẏ eateſt ſhall haue a certayne wayght appoynted: namely, twenty ſicles euery day. This appoynted meate ſhalt ẏ eate dayly, from the begynnynge to the ende. Thou ſhalte drynke alſo a certayne meaſure of water: Namely, ẏ ſyxt parte of an Hin ſhalt thou drynke dayly, frō the begynnyng vnto ẏ end. Barly cakes ſhalt thou eate, yet ſhalt thou firſt tooſt them at a fyre made wyth mans donge, that they may ſe it. And with that ſayd the lorde: Euen thus ſhal the children of Iſrael eate their defiled bread in ẏ myddeſt of the Gentiles, amonge whom I wil ſcattre thē. Then ſaid I: Oh lord God: D Beholde, my ſoule was yet neuer ſtayned, for fro my youth vp vnto this houre, I did neuer eate of a dead carcaſſe, or of ẏ whiche was ſlayne of wylde beaſtes, neither came there euer any vncleane fleſh in my mouth. Wher vnto he anſwered me, and ſayd: well then, I wil graunt the to take cowes donge for the donge of man, and to tooſt the bread withall before them. And he ſayd vnto me: Beholde, thou ſonne of man, * I will myniſſhe all the prouiſion of bread in Jeruſalē, ſo that they ſhal weygh their bread, and eate it with ſcarceneſſe: Ezech.5.d and.14.d. 4.Re.25.a But as for water, they ſhal haue a very litle meaſure therof to drynke. And when they haue nomore bread, nor water, one ſhalbe deſtroied ẇ an other, and famyſh awaye for their wyckedneſſe.

The. viii. Chapter.

An apperaunce of the ſimilitude of God. Ezechiel is brought to Jeruſalem in the ſpirite. The Lord ſheweth the prophet the ydolatries of yͤ houſe of Iſrael, and cheiely of the preaſtes.

A IT happened, that in the ſyxt yere, the fyfth daye of the ſyxt moneth, I ſat in my houſe, and the lordes of the counſayl of Juda with me: and the hande of the Lord God fel euen there vpon me. And as the ſpirite lyft me vp betwixt heauen and earth: and brought me in a viſion to Jeruſalem, into the entry of the inner porte that lyeth towarde the North: there ſtode an ymage, with whom he that hath all thynges in his power, was very wroth. And beholde, the glorie of the God of Iſraell was in the ſame place: euen * as I hadde ſene it afore Ezech.1.a in the fielde. And he ſayde vnto me: Thou ſonne of man, O lift vp thyne eyes, and loke C towarde the North. Then lyft I vp myne the porte northwarde, there was an aulter made vnto the ymage of prouocaciō in the verye entrynge in. And he ſayd furthermore vnto me: Thou ſonne of man, ſeeſt yͧ what theſe do? Seeſt thou the greate abhominacions that the houſe of Iſraell committeth in this place, to dryue me frō my ſanctuary?

But turne the about, and thou ſhalte ſe yet and was come down to the threſhold of the Num.9.c houſe: and he called the man that had the 3.Re.8.b. lynnen rayment vpon him, and the writers ynkhorne by his ſide, and the Lorde ſayde vnto hym: go thy waye thorowe the citie of Jeruſalem, and ſet a marke vpon the foreheades of thē that mourne and are ſory for al the abhominacions that be done therein.

And to the other he ſayde, yͭ I might heare.

*Go ye after hym thoꝛowe the cytie, ſlaye, ouerſe none, ſpare none: kyll, and deſtroye both olde men and yonge, maydens, childꝛē and wyues. But as foꝛ thoſe, that haue the C marke vpon them, ſe that ye touche thē not:
*and begynne at my ſanctuary. Then they beganne at the elders, which were in the tēple, foꝛ he had ſayde vnto them: When ye haue defiled the temple, ⁊ filled the courte with the ſlayne, then go youre waye foꝛth.
So they went out, and ſlue downe thoꝛowe the citie. Nowe when they had done the ſlaughter, and I yet eſcaped: I fell downe vpon my face, and cryed, ſayinge: O Loꝛde God, wilt thou then deſtroye all the reſidue of Iſrael, in thy ſoꝛe diſpleaſure that yͧ haſt D poured vpon Ieruſalē? Then ſayd he vnto me: The wyckedneſſe of the houſe of Iſrael ⁊ Juda is very great, ſo that the land is ful of bloude, ⁊ the cytie ful of vnfaythfulneſſe.
Foꝛ they ſay: *Tuſſhe, yͤ loꝛd regardeth not the earth, he ſeeth vs not. Therefoꝛe wyll I vpon thē, ⁊ myne eye ſhall not ouerſe them: neither wil I ſpare thē, but wil recompence their wickedneſſe vpō their heades. And behold, yͤ man that had the lynen raymēt vpō him, ⁊ the writers ynkhoꝛne by his ſide, told all the matter how it happened, ⁊ ſayd: loꝛd, as yͧ haſt cōmaunded me, ſo I haue done.

The.x. Chapter.

Of the man that toke hote burnyng coles out of the myddle of yͤ wheles ⁊ of yͤ Cherubins, in tokē of yͤ burning of Jeruſalem. A rehearſal of the viſion of the wheles, of the beaſtes, and of the Cherubins.

A AND as I loked, behold, in the firmament that was aboue the Cherubins, there appered the ſimilitude of a ſtoole of Saphir vpon them: *Then ſayd he that ſat therin, to him that had the lynen raymēt vpō him: Crepe in betwene the wheles that are vnder the Cherubins, and take thyne hande full of hote coles out from betwene the Cherubins, and caſt them ouer the citie.
And he crept in, that I myght ſe. Nowe the Cherubins ſtode vpon the ryght ſyde of the houſe when the man went in, and the cloude fylled the inner courte. *But the gloꝛie of yͤ Loꝛde remoued from the Cherubyns, and came vpon the threſſhoulde of the houſe: ſo that the temple was full of cloudes, and the courte was full of the ſhyne of the Loꝛdes gloꝛie: Yea, and the ſounde of the cherubins winges was hearde into the foꝛecourte, like as it had bene the voyce of the almyghtye God, when he ſpeaketh. Now when he had bydden the mā that was clothed in lynnen, to go and take the hote coles from yͤ mydſt of the wheles whiche were vnder the Che-rubins: he went ⁊ ſtode beſyde the wheles.
Then the one Cherub reached foꝛthe his B hande from vnder the Cherubins, vnto the fyꝛe that was betwene the Cherubins, and toke thereof, and gaue it vnto him that had on the linen rayment, in his hande: whyche toke it, and went out. And vnder yͤ wynges of the Cherubins, there appeared the lykeneſſe of a mans hande. I ſawe alſo foure wheles beſyde the Cherubynnes, ſo that by euery Cherub there ſtode a whele. And the wheles wer (to loke vpon) after the faſhion of the pꝛecious ſtone of Tharſis: yet, (vnto the ſyght) they were al foure of one faſhion, as yf one whele had bene in an other. C When they went foꝛth, they went all foure togyther, not turnyng about in their going.
But where the firſte went, thither went they after alſo, ſo that they turned not about in their goinge. Their whole bodyes, theyꝛ backes, theyꝛ handes and winges, yea, and the wheles alſo, were all full of eyes rounde about them all foure. And I hearde hym call the wheles. *Euery one of them had Ezech.1.b foure faces, ſo that the one face was the face of a Cherub, the ſecond of a man, the thirde of a lyon, the fourth of an eagle, and they were lyfted vp aboue. This is the beaſte that I ſawe at the water of Cobar. Nowe when the Cherubins went, the wheles went with them: and when the Cherubins ſhoke their winges to lyft them ſelues vpwarde, the wheles remayned not behinde, but were with them alſo. Shoꝛtely when they ſtode, theſe ſtode alſo. And when they were lyfted vp, the wheles were lyfte vp alſo with them: foꝛ the ſpirite of lyfe was in the wheles.
*Then the gloꝛie of the Loꝛde was lyfte D Ezec.11.d and.14.a vp from the threſhould of the temple, and remayned vpon the Cherubyns: And the Cherubyns flackered with their wynges, and lyfte them ſelues vp from the earth: ſo that I ſawe when they went, and the wheles with them. And they ſtode at the eaſteſyde of the poꝛte that is in the houſe of the Loꝛd.
So the gloꝛie of the Loꝛd was vpon them.
This is the beaſt yͭ I ſaw vnder yͤ God of Iſrael, by the water of Cobar. And I per-ceyued that it was the Cherubyns. Euery one had foure faces, and euery one foure winges, and vnder their winges, as it were mens hādes. Now the figure of their faces was euen as I had ſene them by the water of Cobar, and ſo was the countenaunce of
thē. Euery one in his goinge went ſtrayght foꝛwarde.

The.xi. Chapter.

Who they were that ſeduced the people of Iſrael. Agaynſt theſe he prophecieth, ſhewynge them how they ſhalbe diſparſed abrode. The renuynge of the herte commeth of God, otherwyſe can we not walke in his commaundementes. He threateneth them that leane vnto their owne counſels,

A Moreouer, the ſpirite of the Lorde lift me vp, and brought me vnto the eaſt porte of yͤ Lordes houſe.
And beholde, there were.xxv. men vnder yͤ dore, among whom I ſawe Iaazaniah the ſonne of Azur, and Pheltiah the ſōne of Bananiah, the rulers of the people.
Then ſayd the lorde vnto me: Thou ſon of man, theſe men ymagine myſcheſe, and a wycked counſayle take they in this cytie, ſayinge: Tuſhe, there is no deſtruccion at hande, let vs builde houſes: this Ieruſalem is the cauldron, and we be the fleſhe.
Therfore ſhalte thou prophecie vnto them: yea, prophecye ſhalte thou vnto them, O ſonne of man. And with that fell the ſpirite of the Lorde vpon me, and ſayde vnto me: B Speake, thus ſayth the lord: On this maner haue ye ſpoken (O ye houſe of Iſraell) and I knowe the ymaginacions of your hertes. Many one haue ye murthered i thys cytie, and filled the ſtretes full of the ſlayne.
Therefore thus ſayth the Lord God: The ſlayne men that ye haue layed on yͤ groūde in this citie, are the fleſhe, and this citie is the Eze.24.a cauldron: * But I wil brynge you out of it: ‡Ma.26.e ‡ ye haue feared the ſwearde, ⁊ I wyl bring a ſwearde ouer you ſayth the lorde God. I will dryue you out of this citie, and delyuer you into your enemyes hand, and will condemne you. Ye ſhalbe ſlayne in all yͤ coaſtes of Iſrael. I wil be auenged of you: to lerne you to knowe that I am the lord. This cytie ſhall not be youre cauldron, neyther ſhal ye be yͤ fleſh therin: but in the coaſtes of Iſrael wyll I punyſhe you, yͭ ye maye knowe that I am the Lord: in whoſe commaundementes ye haue not walked, nor kepte hys Leu.18.a. lawes: * but haue done after the cuſtomes Deut.12.d of the heathen, that lye rounde aboute you.
C Now when I preached, Pheltiah the ſonne of Bananiah dyed. Then fel I downe vpō my face ⁊ cried with a loude voyce, ſayinge: O Lord God, wilt thou thē vtterly deſtroy all the rēnaunt in Iſrael? And ſo the worde of the Lorde came vnto me on this maner: thou ſonne of man, thy brethren, thy kynſfolke, and the whole houſe of Iuda whiche dwell at Ieruſalem, ſaye: Withdrawe ye farre from the Lorde, for the lande is gyuē vs in poſſeſſion. Therfore tell them: Thus ſayth the Lord God: I wil ſende you far of among the Gentiles, and ſcattre you amōg the nacions, and I will halowe you but a lytle, in the landes where ye ſhall come. Tel them alſo, thus ſayth the lorde God: I wil gather you agayne out of the nacions, and bryng you from the countryes where ye be ſcatred, and will gyue you the lande of Iſrael agayne. And they ſhal come thyther: And they ſhall take away all their ydoles, ⁊ D al their abhominacions from thence. * And Iere.
I wil gyue you one hearte, and I wil plant Eze.3 a newe ſpirite within your bowels. That ſtonye hearte wil I take out of youre body, and gyue you a fleſſhy hearte, that ye maye walke in my commaundementes, and kepe myne ordynaunces, ⁊ do them: that ye maye be my people, and I your God. But looke whoſe hertes are diſpoſed to folowe theyr abhominacyons ⁊ wycked liuinges, thoſe mens dedes will I bring vpon their owne heades, ſayeth the Lord God. After this did the Cherubins lyft vp their winges, and yͤ wheles went with them, and yͤ glory of the Lorde was vpon them. * So the glory of yͤ Ezech.
Lord went vp from the middeſt of the citie, and.4 and ſtode vpon the mount of the cytie, towarde the Eaſt. * But the wynde toke me Ezech. vp, and in a viſion (which came by the ſpirit and.
of God) it brought me agayne into Caldea among the priſoners. Then the viſion that I had ſene, vanyſſhed awaye fro me. So I ſpake vnto the pryſoners, all the wordes of the Lorde, which he had ſhewed me.

The.xii. Chapter.

The parable of the veſſels of the captiuitie. The expoſicion of the parable, by whiche the takyng of kyng Zedekiah is ſygnified. An other parable wherby the diſtreſſe of hungre and thyrſt is ſignifyed.

The worde of the Lord came vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man, yͭ dwellest A in the myddſt of a froward houſhold:
* whiche haue eyes to ſe, ⁊ yet ſe not: Eſay.6.b. eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they Mat.13.b not, for they are an obſtinate houſholde. Mar.4.a Therfore (O thou ſonne of man) make thy Luk.8.b. geare readye to flyt, and go forth by fayre Act.28.d. daye lyght, that they maye ſe. Yea, euen in Rom.11.b theyr ſight ſhalt thou go from thy place, to an other place: yf peraduenture they wyll conſydre, that they be a diſobedient houſholde.
Thy geare that thou haſt made redy to flyt withall, ſhalt thou beare out by fayre daye lyght, that they maye ſe: and thou thy ſelfe ſhalt go forth alſo at euē in their ſyght, as a man doth when he flytteth. Dygge thorowe the wall, that they may ſe, ⁊ beare thorowe it the ſame thynge, that thou tokeſt vp in theyr ſight. In theyr ſight yͤ ſhalt thou B beare vpon thy ſhoulders, and carye it forth in the darke. Hyde thy face that thou ſe not the earth, for I haue made the a ſhewtoken vnto the houſe of Iſraell. Nowe as the lord commaunded me, ſo I dyd: the geare that I had made readye, broughte I out by daye.

At euen I brake downe an hole thorow the wall wyth my hande: ⁊ when it was darke, I toke the geare vpon my ſhoulders, ⁊ bare them out in theyr ſyght. And in the morning C came the worde of the lord vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſon of man, yf Iſrael that frowarde houſhold aſke the, and ſaye: what doeſt thou there? Then tell them: Thus ſayth the lorde God: This puniſhmente toucheth the chefe rulers at Ieruſalem, and all the houſe of Iſraell that dwell amonge them. Tel them: I am your ſhewtoken: lyke as I haue done, ſo ſhall it happen vnto you. Flyt ſhall you alſo, ⁊ go into captiuity. *The chefeſt [illegible] that is among you, ſhall lade his ſhoulders [illegible] in the darke, and get hym awaye.
D He ſhal breake downe the wal, to cary ſtuffe there thorowe: He ſhal couer his face yͭ he ſe not the grounde wyth hys eyes: *My lyne [illegible] wyl I ſprede out vpon hym and catche him [illegible] in my net, and cary hym to Babylon in the land of the Chaldees, whyche he ſhal not ſe, and yet ſhall he dye there. As for all hys helpers ⁊ all his hoſtes that be aboute him, I wyll ſcatter, them towarde all the windes, and drawe out a ſwerde after them. *So [illegible] when I haue ſcattered them amonge the [illegible] heathen, ⁊ ſtrowed them in the landes, they ſhal knowe, that I am the Lord. But I wyl leaue a lytle numbre of thẽ from yͤ ſwearde, hũger ⁊ peſtilence, to tel al theyr abominacions amonge the heathen, where they come: that they maye knowe, howe that I am the E lorde. Moreouer, the worde of the lord came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of man, wyth a fearfull tremblyng ſhalt yͧ eate thy bread, wyth carefulneſſe and ſorowe ſhalte thou drynke thy water. And vnto the people of yͤ lande ſpeake yͧ on thys maner: thus ſaeth yͤ lorde God, to them that dwell in Ieruſalẽ, and to yͤ lande of Iſrael: Ye ſhal eate youre bread with ſorowe, ⁊ drinke your water with heuyneſſe. Yea the land wyth the fulneſſe therof ſhalbe layed waſte, for yͤ wickedneſſe of them that dwell therin.

And the cytyes that nowe be well occupyed, ſhall be voyde, and the lande deſolate: that ye maye knowe, howe that I am the lorde.
Yet came the worde of the lorde vnto me againe, ſaying: Thou ſonne of mã, what maner F ner of byworde is that, whyche ye vſe in the land of Iſraell, ſayinge? Tuſh, *ſeing that the dayes are ſo ſlacke in commyng, al the 2.Pet.3.b viſions are of none effecte: Tell them therfore, thus ſayeth the lorde God: I wil make that byworde to ceaſſe, ſo that it ſhal nomore be commenly vſed in Iſraell. But ſaye this vnto thẽ: the dayes are at hande that euery thyng whych hath bene prophecyed, ſhal be fulfilled. There ſhal no vyſyon be in vaine, neyther any prophecy fayle among yͤ childrẽ of Iſraell: For it is I the lorde that ſpeake it: and whatſoeuer I the lorde ſpeake, it ſhal G be perfourmed, ⁊ not be ſlacke in cõminge.
Yea, euen in your daies (O ye froward houſholde) wyll I deuyſe ſome thynge, and brynge it to paſſe, ſayth the lorde God. And the word of the lorde came vnto me, ſaying: Beholde, thou ſonne of man. The houſe of Iſraell ſayeth on thys maner. Tuſh, as for the viſion that he hath ſene, it wyl be many a daye or it come to paſſe. It is farre of yet, the thynge that he prophecyeth. Therefore ſay vnto them: Thus ſayeth the lord God.
All my wordes ſhal nomore be ſlacke. Loke what I ſpeake, yͤ ſame ſhall come to paſſe, ſayth the Lorde.

The.xiii. Chapter.

The worde of yͤ Lord againſt falſe prophetes, which teache yͤ people the coũſayles of theyr owne hertes.

THe worde of the lorde came vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man: Speake, prophecye againſt thoſe A prophetes that preache in Iſrael: and ſay thou vnto them that prophecye out of theyr owne hertes: Heare the worde of the Lorde: thus ſayeth the Lorde God: * Woe *Eſa.34. be vnto thoſe fooliſh prophetes that folowe theyr owne ſpirite, and ſpeake where they ſe nothyng. O Iſraell, thy prophetes are lyke the foxes vpon the dry felde: For they ſtande not in yͤ gappes, neither make they an hedge for the houſe of Iſraell, that men myghte abyde the battayll in the daye of the Lorde.
Vayne thynges they ſe, and tell lyes, *to Iere.22. mayntayne theyr preachynges wythall.
The Lorde (ſaye they) hath ſpoken it, when in very dede the Lorde hath not ſente them.
Vayne vyſions haue ye ſene, and ſpoken falſe prophecyes, when ye ſaye: the Lorde hathe ſpoken it, where as I neuer ſayde it.
Therfore thus ſayth the lord God: Becauſe youre woordes be vayne, and ye ſeke oute B lyes. Beholde, I wyll vpon you, ſayeth the Lorde.

Myne handes ſhal come vpõ the prophets that loke out vayne thynges, & preache lies: they ſhal not be in the counſel of my people, nor written in the boke of yͤ houſe of Iſrael, neither ſhal they come in the land of Iſrael: that ye may knowe how that I am the lord God. And yͭ for becauſe they haue diſceiued *Iere.8.b my people, *and told them of peace, where no peace was. One ſetteth vp a walle, and they dawbe it wyth leuſe claye.

Therefore tell them whyche dawbe it wyth *mat.7.c. vntempered morter, that it ſhall fall. *For there ſhall come a greate ſhower of rayne, greate hayle ſtones ſhall fall vpon it, and a ſore ſtorme of wynd ſhall breake it, ſo ſhall the wall come downe. Shall it not then be ſayd vnto you: where is nowe the morter yͭ ye dawbed it wyth all? Therfore thus ſayth yͤ lord God: I wyl breake out in my wrathful diſpleaſure wyth a ſtormy wynd, ſo that in myne anger there ſhall come a myghty ſhower of rayne, and hayle ſtones in my C wrath, to deſtroye wythall. As for the wall yͭ ye haue dawbed wͭ vntempered morter, I wyll breake it downe, make it euen wyth the grounde: ſo that the foundacyon therof ſhal remoue, and it ſhall fall: yea, and ye youre ſelues ſhall peryſhe in the myddeſt thereof: to learne you for to knowe, that I am the Lorde. Thus wyll I perfourme my wrath vpon thys wall, and vpon them that haue dawbed it with vntempered morter, and thẽ wil I ſay vnto you: the wal is gone, and the dawbers are away. Theſe are the prophetes of Iſraell, whyche prophecye vnto the cytye of Ieruſalem, and loke out viſions of peace for them, wher as no peace is, ſaieth the lord God. Wherfore, (O thou ſonne of man) ſet thy face agaynſt yͤ daughters of thy people, whyche prophecy out of theyr owne hertes: and ſpeake thou, prophecy agaynſte thẽ, and ſaye: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Woe be vnto you, that ſowe pyllowes vnder all arme holes, and bolſters vnder the heades bothe of yonge and olde, to catche ſoules when ye kyl the ſoules of them that dye not, and promiſe life to them that liue not. Thus ye diſſemble wyth my people, that beleueth your lyes. Wherfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Behold, I wyl alſo vpõ the pyllowes, wherwith ye catche the ſoules in flying: them wyll I take from youre armes, and let the ſoules go that ye catche in flying. Youre bolſters alſo wyll I teare in peces, and delyuer my people out of your hande, ſo that they ſhall come nomore in youre handes to be ſpoyled, and ye ſhal knowe that I am the Lorde. Seyng that wyth your lyes ye dyſcomforte the herte of the ryghteous, whom I haue not dyſcomforted: Agayne, for ſo much *as ye corage the hand of the wicked, ſo that he maye not turne from hys wycked *Oſe.4 waye and lyue, therfore ſhall ye ſpye out nomore vanytie, nor prophecy youre owne geſſynges: for I wyll delyuer my people out of your hande, that ye may knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

Moreouer, thus ſayth the lorde God: Muche more when I ſende my * foure troublous plages vpon Ieruſalem: the ſwearde, hunger, perilous beaſtes & peſtylence, to deſtroye manne and beaſte out of it. Behold, there ſhalbe a remnaunt ſaued therin, which ſhall bryng forth theyr ſonnes & daughters. Beholde, they ſhall come forth vnto you, and ye ſhall ſe theyr waye, & what they take in hande, and ye ſhalbe comforted as touchyng al yͤ plages yͭ I haue brought vpon Ieruſalem. They ſhall comforte you, when ye ſe theyr way & workes: and ye ſhall knowe, howe that it is not wythout a cauſe that I haue done ſo agaynſt Ieruſalem, as I dyd, ſayeth the Lorde God.

The.xv. Chapter.

As the vnprofytable wood of yͤ vyne tree is caſt into the fyre, ſo ſayeth he yͭ Ieruſalem ſhalbe brent.

The worde of the Lord came vnto me, A ſaying: thou ſonne of man, what commeth of yͤ vyne among all other trees: and of the wylde vyne ſtocke amonge all other timber of the groue? Do mē take wood of it, to make any worke with all? Or maye there a nayle bee made of it, to hange any thynge vpon? beholde, it is caſt in the fyre to be brente, the fyre conſumeth both the endes of it, the middeſt is brent to aſhes. Is it mete then for any worke? No. Seinge then that it B was mete for no worke, beyng whole: much leſſe may ther any thynge be made of it, whē the fyre hath conſumed and brent it. And therfore thus ſayth the Lord God: Lyke as I caſt the vyne into the fyre for to be brent, as other trees of the wood: Euen ſo wyll I do wyth them that dwel in Ieruſalem, and ſet my face agaynſt them: they ſhall go out from the fyre, and yet the fyre ſhall conſume them. * Then ſhall ye knowe, yͭ I am yͤ lord, when I ſet my face agaynſt them, and make the lande waſt: becauſe they haue ſo ſore offended, ſayeth the Lorde God.

The.xvi. Chapter.

The prophet entendyng to ſpeake of yͤ abominaciōs of Ieruſalem, doth fyrſt ſhewe the benefytes of God toward it. Ieruſalem is reproued of vnkindneſſe, for her fornicacion wͭ Idolles. He iuſtifieth the wickednes of other people, in comparyſon of the ſynnes of Ieruſalē. The cauſe of the abominaciōs, into which the Sodomytes fell. Mercye is promyſed to the repentaunt.

Agayne, the worde of the Lord ſpake A vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of man, ſhew the citie of Ieruſalem their abhominacions, and ſay: thus ſayeth the lorde God vnto Ieruſalem: Thy progeny and kynred came out of the lande of Canaan, thy father was an Amorite, thy mother a Cethite, thus was yͤ maner of thy birth. In the day of thy byrth when thou waſt borne, the ſtryng of thy nauel was not cut of: thou waſt not bathed in water to make the clean: Thou waſte nether rubbed wyth ſalte, nor ſwadled in cloutes. No man regarded thee ſo muche, as to doe any of theſe thynges for the, or to ſhewe the ſuche fauour, but yͧ waſt vtterly caſt out vpon yͤ fielde: yea, deſpiſed waſt yͧ in the day of thy birth. Then came I by the, & ſaw the trodē downe in thine owne bloud, & ſaid vnto the: liue, although yͧ be dein all thy abhominacions and whoredome, thou haſte not remembred the dayes of thy haſt buylte hye places: yea, at the heade of euery ſtrete, haſt yͧ buylded the an aultare.

Thou haſte made thy beuty to be abhorred, thou haſte layd out thy legges to euery one which are aſhamed of thy abominable way.

*Thou haſt played the whore alſo with the thou haſt (I ſay) wyth them plaied yͤ harlot, ⁊ yet haddeſt not thou ynoughe. Thus haſt thou furthermore cōmitted thy fornicacion frō the land of Canaan, vnto the Chaldees, ⁊ yet thy luſte not ſatyſfyed. Howe obſtinate is thyne herte (ſayeth the lorde God) ſeinge yͧ doeſt al theſe workes of an errante whore: buyldynge thy ſtewes at the heade of euery ſtrete, and thy bordell houſes in all places.

Thou haſte not bene as another whore that holdeth ſcorne of a ſmal rewarde, but a wife that breaketh wedlocke, and taketh other in ſteade of her huſbande. Gyftes are gyuen to all other whores, but thou geueſt rewardes vnto al thy louers, and offereſt them gyftes, to come vnto thee oute of all places, and to committe fornicacion with thee. It is come to paſſe wͭ the in thy whoredoms, contrary to the vſe of other wemen: yea, there hath no ſuche fornicacion bene commytted after the, ſeyinge yͭ thou profereſt gyftes vnto other, and no rewarde is geuen the: thys is a contrary thyng. Therfore, heare the worde of the Lord, O thou harlot: thus ſayeth the lord God: For ſo much as thou haſt ſet forth thy youth to whoredome, and dyſcouered thy ſhame, thorow thy whoredom with al thy louers, ⁊ wyth al the ydols of thy abhominacions in the bloude of thy chyldren, *whom thou haſt geuen them: Beholde, therfore I wyll gather together all thy louers, vnto whom thou haſt made thy ſelfe commē: yea, and all them whom thou fauoureſt, and euery one that thou hateſt: I will (I ſay) gather them together round about thee: *and will diſcouer thy ſhame before thẽ, that they may ſee all thy fylthyneſſe.

*Moreouer, I wyll iudge thee as a breaker of wedlocke, and a murtherer, ⁊ recompence thee thyne owne bloud in wrathe and gelouſye. I wyll geue thee ouer into theyr power, that ſhall breake E downe thy ſtues, and deſtroye thy bordell houſes: they ſhall ſtryppe the oute of thy clothes, all thy fayre and beutyfull iewels ſhall they take from the, and ſo lette the ſyt naked and bare: *yea, they ſhall bryng the common people vpon the, whiche ſhall ſtone the, and ſlay the downe with theyr ſweardes. They *ſhal burne vp thy houſes, and punyſhe the in the ſyght of many wemen. Thus wyll I make thy whoredome to ceaſſe, ſo yͭ thou ſhalt geue out no mo rewardes. Should I make my wrath to bee ſtyll, take my gelouſy from the, be content ⁊ nomore to be dyſpleaſed: ſeeyng thou remembreſt not the dayes of thy youth, but haſte prouoked me to wrath in all theſe thynges. Beholde therfore, I wyll brynge thyne owne wayes vpon thyne head, ſayeth the Lorde God: howbeit I neuer dyd vnto the accordyng to thy wyckedneſſe, and al thy abhomynaciõs. Behold, all they that vſe cõmon prouerbes, ſhall vſe this prouerbe alſo agaynſte the: ſuche a mother, ſuche a doughter. Thou art euẽ thy mothers owne doughter, that hath caſte of her huſbande and her children: Yea, thou art the ſyſter of thy ſyſters, which forſoke theyr huſbandes ⁊ theyr chyldren. Youre *mother is a Cethyte, ⁊ youre father an F Amorite. Thyne eldeſt ſyſter is Samaria, ſhe and her doughters that dwel vpon thy left hande. But thy yongeſt ſyſter that dwelleth on thy ryght hand, is Sodoma and her doughters. Yet haſte thou not walked after theyr wayes, nor done after their abhomynacions, but thou ſtodeſt a lytle and very ſmall tyme, and in all thy wayes thou haſte been more corrupt then they. As truly as I lyue, ſayth the Lorde God: Sodoma thy ſyſter with her doughters, hath not done ſo euyll, as thou and thy doughters. Beholde, *the ſynnes of thy ſyſter Sodoma were theſe: Pryde, fulneſſe of meate, aboundaunce, and ydleneſſe: theſe thinges had ſhe and her doughters. Beſydes that they reached not theyr hand to the poore ⁊ nedye, but were proude, and dyd abhomynable thinges before me: therfore I tooke them away, as pleaſed me. Neither hath Samaria done half of thy ſinnes, *yea thou Jere. 3. c haſte exceaded them in wyckedneſſe: In ſo muche that in compariſon of all the abhomynacions which thou haſte done, thou haſte made thy ſyſters good wemẽ. Therfore thou (which dideſt condemne thy ſyſter) beare thyne owne ſhame, for thyne owne offences, that thou haſt commytted, more abhomynable then they dyd, whiche in dede are more ryghteous then thou art: be thou (I ſay) aſhamed, ⁊ beare thy ſhamefull rebuke: ſeeyng that thou haſt proued thy ſyſters in comparyſon of the, rightwiſe. As for their captiuitie, G namely yͤ captiuitie of Sodoma, ⁊ her doughters, the captiuitie of Samaria ⁊ her doughters, I wil bryng them agayn: ſo wil I alſo bryng agayn thy captyuitie among them: that thou mayſt take thine owne confuſion vpon the, and be aſhamed of all that thou haſte done, and to comforte them. Thus thy ſyſters (namelye) Sodoma and her doughters, Samaria and her doughters, with thy ſelfe ⁊ thy doughters, ſhalbe brought agayne to your old eſtate. Whẽ thou waſte in thy pryde, and before thy wyckednes came to lyght, thou wouldeſt not heare ſpeake of thy ſyſter Sodoma, vntyll the tyme that the Sirians with all theyr townes, and the Philiſtynes with all that lye rounde aboute them, brought the to ſhame and confuſiõ: that thou myghteſt beare thyne owne fylthyneſſe ⁊ abhomynacion, ſayth the Lorde. For thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I ſhould (by ryght) deale with the, as thou haſte done. Thou haſte deſpyſed the oth, and broken the couenaunt. Neuertheleſſe, I will remembre the couenaũt that I made with the in thy youth, in ſo muche that it ſhalbe an euerlaſtyng couenaunte: ſo that thou alſo remembre thy wayes, and be aſhamed of them: then ſhalt thou receyue of me thy elder and yonger ſyſters, whome I wyll make thy doughters, and that beſyde thy couenaunte. *And ſo wyll I renue my coue- Jere. 21. e Heb. 8. b uaunte with the, that thou mayſt knowe that I am the Lorde, that thou mayſt thynke vpon it, be aſhamed, and excuſe thyne owne confuſyon nomore: when I haue forgeuen the, all that thou haſte done, ſayeth the Lorde God.

The.xvii. Chapter.

The parable of the two Aegles.

A THe woorde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of manne, put forth *a darke Eze.24.a ſpeakyng and a parable, vnto the houſe of Iſrael, and ſay: Thus ſayth Dan.7.a. the Lord God. There came a great *Egle wyth greate wynges: yea, wyth a mighty longe body, and full of fethers of dyuers colours, vpon the mounte of Libanus, and toke the hyeſt braunche from a Cedre tree, and brake of the toppe of hys twygge, and caryed it into the lande of Canaan, and ſette it in a citie of marchauntes.
He tooke alſo of the ſede of the lande, and planted it in a frutful ground, he brought it vnto great waters, and ſet it as a wyllowe tree therby. Then dyd it growe, and was a great vyneſtocke, but lowe by the grounde, whoſe braunches turned into it ſelfe, and the rootes of it were faſtened vnder it: thus there came of it a vyne, ⁊ it brought forth bloſſoms, B and ſpred out braunches. But there was another Aegle, a greate one, whiche had greate wynges and many fethers: and beholde, the rootes of this vyne had an honger after hym, and ſpred oute hys braunches towarde hym, that he myght water her with the orchyarde that he had plãted. Neuertheles, it was planted vpõ a good grounde beſyde great waters: ſo that (by reaſon) it ſhoulde haue brought out braunches and frute, and haue been a goodly vyne. Speake thou therefore, C thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Shall this vyne proſper? ſhall not hys rootes bee plucked out, his frute be broken of, hys grene braunches wyther ⁊ fade awaye? yea, without eyther ſtronge arme or manye people, ſhall it be plucked vp by the rootes. Beholde, it was planted: ſhall it proſpere therfore? Shall it not bee dryed vp and wythered? yea, euen in the ſhuttyng of his bloſſoms, aſſone as the eaſt D wynde bloweth. Moreouer, the woorde of yͤ Lord came vnto me, ſaying: Speake to the froward houſholde: knowe ye not, what theſe thynges doe ſygnifye? Tell 4.re.24.c them: Beholde, *the kyng of Babylon came to Ieruſalem, and tooke the kyng and his prynces, and led them to Babylon.
He tooke of the kynges ſeede, and made a couenaunt with hym, and tooke an oth of hym: The prynces of the lande tooke he with hym alſo, that the lande myght be holden in ſubieccion, and not to rebell, but kepe the couenaunte, and fulfyll it. But he fell from hym, and ſent his ambaſſadours into Egypte, that he myght haue horſes and muche people.
Should that proſpere? Should he be E kept ſafe, that doeth ſuche thinges? Or ſhould he eſcape, that breaketh his couenaunte?
As truly as I lyue ſayeth the Lorde God: He ſhall dye at Babylon, in the place where the kyng dwelleth, that made him king: whoſe oth he hath deſpyſed, and whoſe couenaunt he hath broken.
Neither ſhal Pharao with his great hoſte ⁊ multytude of people, mayntayne him in the warre: when they caſt vp dytches, and ſette vp bulworkes to deſtroye muche people. For ſeyng he hath deſpyſed the oth, and broken the couenaunte (whereas he yet gaue his hand thervpon) and done all theſe thinges, he ſhal not eſcape. Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: as truely as I lyue, I will bryng F myne oth that he hath deſpyſed, and my couenaunt that he hath broken, vpon his owne head. *I will caſt my nette aboute him, and catch him in my yarne. To Babylon will I carye him, there will I puniſh him becauſe of the great offence that he made me. As for thoſe that flee from hym out of the hoſte, they ſhall be ſlayne with the ſwearde. The reſydue ſhall be ſcattred towarde all the wyndes: and ye ſhall knowe that I the Lorde haue ſpoken it. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I G wyll alſo take a braunche from an hye Cedre tree, and wyll ſette it, and take the vppermoſte twygge, that yet is but tendre, and plant it vpon an hye hyl: Namelye, vpon the hye hyll of Syon wyll I plãt it, that it may bryng forth twygges, and geue frute, and bee a greate Cedre tree: ſo that all maner of foules maye buylde in it, and make theyr neaſtes vnder the ſhadowe of his braunches. And all the trees of the fielde ſhall know that I the Lord haue brought downe the hye tree, and ſet the lowe tree vp: that I haue dryed vp the grene tree, ⁊ made the drye tree to floryſhe. Euen I the Lorde that ſpake it, haue alſo brought it to paſſe.

The.xix. Chapter.

The captiuitie of Ieohahaz and of Iehoachim is ſygnifyed by the lyons whelpes, and by the lyon. He ſetteth oute the proſperitie of the citie of Ieruſalem that is paſt, and the miſery therof that is preſente.

A But thou ſonne of manne, mourne thou for the prynces of Iſrael, ⁊ ſaye. Wherfore lay thy mother yͤ lyoneſſe amonge the lyons, ⁊ noryſhed her yongeones amonge the lyons whelpes? One of her whelpes ſhe brought vp, ⁊ it became a lyon: it learned to ſpoyle, and to deuoure folke. The Heathen hearde of hym, and toke hym in theyr nettes, and brought hym in chaynes vnto the lande of Egipt. Nowe when the damme ſawe that all her hope and coumforte was away, ſhe B toke another of her whelpes, and made a lyon of hym: whiche wente amonge the lyons, and became a fearſe lyon: learned to ſpoyle and to deuoure folke: he deſtroyed theyr palaces, ⁊ made theyr Cyties waſte. In ſo muche that the whole land and euery thynge therin, were vtterlye deſolate, thorowe the very voyce of hys roaryng. Then came the Heathen together on euerye ſyde out of all coũtreyes againſt him, laied their nettes for him, and toke hym in theyr pitte. 4.Re.25.a Iere.39.a. and.52.a. So *they bounde him with cheynes, and broughte hym to the kynge of Babylon: whiche put hym in prieſon, that hys voyce C ſhoulde nomore be hearde vpon the mountaynes of Iſrael. As for thy mother, ſhe is lyke a vine in thy bloud, planted by the water ſyde: her frutes ⁊ braunches are growẽ oute of many waters, her ſtalkes were ſo ſtronge that men myght haue made ſtaues thereof for offycers: ſhe grewe ſo hye in her ſtalkes. So when men ſawe that ſhe exceaded the heigth and multitude of her braunches, ſhe was rooted oute in dyſpleaſure, ⁊ caſte downe to the grounde. The Eaſte winde dried vp her frute, her ſtrõg ſtaulkes were broken of, wythered and brent in the fyre. But nowe ſhe is planted in the wilderneſſe in a drye and thyrſty grounde. And there is a fyre gone oute of her ſtalkes, whiche hath brente vp her braunches and her frute: ſo that ſhe hathe no mo ſtronge ſtalkes, to bee ſtaues for offycers. This is a pyteous and myſerable thynge.

The Lord denyeth that he will anſwere thẽ when they praye for the offence of vnkyndneſſe whiche he here obiecteth. He promyſeth that his people ſhal returne from captiuitie. By the wood that ſhoulde bee brent, is ſygnyfyed the burnyng of Ieruſalem.

A IN the ſeuenth yeare the tenth day of yͤ fyfth moneth, *it happened that certayne of the elders of Iſraell came vnto me, for to aſke counſell at the Lorde, and ſat them downe by me. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me on this maner: Thou ſõne of man, ſpeake vnto the elders of Iſraell, and ſaye vnto them: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Are ye come hither to aſke any thing at me? As trulye as I lyue (ſayeth the Lorde) I wyll geue you no anſwere. Wilte thou not reproue them (thou ſonne of man) wylte thou not reproue them? Shewe them the abhominacions of theyr forefathers, and tell them. Thus ſayeth the Lorde GOD: *In the daye when I choſe Iſrael, and lyft vp myne hande vpon the ſeede of the houſe of Iacob, and ſhewed my ſelfe vnto them in the lande of Egypte: Yea, when I lift vp myne hande ouer them, and ſayed: I am the Lorde youre God, euen in the daye that I lyfte vp myne hande ouer them, to brynge thẽ oute of the lande of Egypte, into a land that I had prouyded for thẽ, whiche floweth with mylke and hony, and is a pleaſaũt lande amonge all other: Then ſayed I vnto them. *Caſte awaye euerye man the abhomynacions that he hathe before him, and defyle not youre ſelues with the ydolles of Egypte, for I am the Lorde youre God. But they rebelled agaynſt me, and woulde B not folowe me: to caſte awaye euery man the abhomynacions of hys eyes, and to forſake the ydols of Egypt. Then I made me to poure myne indignacion ouer thẽ, and to ſatiſfye my wrathe vpon them: yea, euen in the middeſt of the lande of Egypt. But I would not do it, for my names ſake: that it ſhould not be vnhalowed before the heathen, amonge whom they dwelt, and among whome I ſhewed my ſelfe vnto thẽ, that I woulde bringe them out of the land of Egypt. Nowe when I had caryed them out of the lande of Egypte, and broughte them into the wilderneſſe: I gaue them my commaundementes, and ſhewed them my lawes, *whiche who ſo kepeth ſhall lyue in them. I gaue them alſo my holy dayes, to bee a token betwixte me and them, and therby to knowe that I am the Lorde, whiche halowe them. And yet the houſe of Iſrael rebelled agaynſte me in the wylderneſſe, they wold not walke in my commaũdementes.

dementes, they haue caſt away my lawes (which whoſo kepeth ſhall lyue in them)

C & my Sabboth dayes haue they greatly vnhalowed. *Then I made me to powre out myne indignacion vpon them: and to conſume them in the wylderneſſe. Yet I would not doe it, for my names ſake, leſte it ſhould be diſhonoured before the heathen, from the whiche I had caryed them awaye. But I ſwore vnto them in the wylderneſſe, that I would not bryng them into the lande, which I gaue them: a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and is a pleaſure of all landes: and that becauſe they refuſed my lawes, and walked not in my commaundementes, but had vnhalowed my Sabbothes: for their herte was gone after their ydols. Neuertheleſſe, myne eye ſpared them, ſo ẏ I would not vtterly ſlay them, and conſume thẽ in the wylderneſſe. Moreouer, I ſayde vnto their ſonnes in the wylderneſſe: *walke not in the ſtatutes of your forefathers, kepe not their ordynaunces, and defyle not your ſelues with their ydols, for I am the Lorde your God. But walke in my ſtatutes, kepe my lawes and doe them, halowe my Sabbothes, *for they are a token betwixte me and you, that ye may knowe howe that I am the Lord your God. Notwithſtanding, their ſonnes *rebelled agaynſt me alſo, they walked not in my ſtatutes, they kept not my lawes to fulfyll them (whiche he that doeth ſhall lyue in them:) neither halowed they my Sabboth dayes. Then I made me againe to powre out my indignacion ouer them, and to ſatiſfye my wrath vpon them in the wilderneſſe.

D Neuertheleſſe, I withdrewe my hande for my names ſake, leſte it ſhoulde be vnhalowed among the heathen, before whom I had brought them forth. I lift vp mine hande ouer them alſo in the wilderneſſe, that I woulde ſcatter them amonge the heathen, and ſtrawe them among the nacions, becauſe they had not kepte my lawes, but caſt aſyde my commaundemẽtes, vnhalowed my Sabbothes, and lyfte vp their eyes to their fathers idols. Wherfore I gaue them alſo commaundementes not good, and lawes, thorowe the whiche they ſhoulde not lyue, and I vnhalowed them in their owne gyftes *(whẽ I appoynted for my ſelfe all their fyrſt borne) to make them deſolate: that they myght knowe howe that I am the Lorde.

E Therfore (O thou ſonne of man,) tell the houſe of Iſrael, thus ſayeth the Lord God. Beſyde all this, your forefathers haue yet blaſphemed me more, and greatly offended againſt me. For after I had brought them into the lande, that I promyſed to geue them, when they ſawe euery hye hyll, and all the thycke trees: they made there their offringes, and prouoked me with their oblacions, makyng ſwete ſauoures there, & powred out their drynke offerynges. Then I aſked them, what is the hyll altare, that ye goe to it? And therfore is it called the hye place vnto this daye. Wherfore, ſpeake vnto the houſe of Iſrael: thus ſayeth the Lorde God: ye are euen as vncleane as your forefathers, and commyt whoredome alſo with their abhomynacyons. In all your ydols, wherunto ye bryng your oblacions, *and to whoſe honour ye burne your chyldren, ye defyle your ſelues, euen vnto this daye: howe dare ye then come, and aſke any queſtion at me, O ye houſholde of Iſrael? As truely as I lyue (ſayeth the Lorde God) ye get no anſwer of me: and as for the thing that ye goe about, it ſhall not come to paſſe, whereas ye ſay we wyl be as the heathen, and doe as other people in the lande, wood and ſtone wyll we worſhyppe:

Lyke as I puniſhed youre forefathers in the wylderneſſe of Egypte, ſo will I puniſhe you alſo, ſayeth the Lorde God. I wyll bryng you vnder my iuriſdiccion, and vnder the bonde of the couenaunte. The forſakers alſo & the tranſgreſſours wyll I take from among you, and bryng thẽ out of the lande of your habytacion: as for the land of Iſrael, they ſhall not come in it, that you may knowe howe that I am the Lorde. The. xxi. Chapter.

He threatneth the ſwearde, that is to ſaye, deſtruccion to the cytie of Jeruſalem. He ſheweth the fall of kyng Zedekyah. He is commaunded to prophecye the deſtruccion of the chyldren of Ammon.
After the ſlaughter of other, at the laſte the Lorde threatneth death vnto Nabuchodonozor hymſelfe.

THe worde of the Lorde came to A me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of mã, ſet thy face toward Jeruſalem, ſpeake againſt the Sanctuary, and prophecye againſt the land of Iſrael, ſay to the land of Iſrael. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Behold, I will vpon the, and will drawe my ſwearde out of the ſheath, ⁊ rote out of the, both the righteous ⁊ the wycked. Seyng then yͭ I will rote out of the both the righteous ⁊ wicked, therfore ſhall my ſwearde goe out of his ſheath agaynſt all fleſhe, from the North to the South: that all fleſhe may knowe howe that I the Lord haue drawen my ſweard out of the ſheath, ⁊ it ſhal not be put in againe.
Mourne therfore (O thou ſon of B man) that thy loynes cracke withall, yea, mourne bytterly for thẽ in theyr preſence.
And if they ſay: wherfore mourneſt thou?
Thẽ tell them: for the tydinges that commeth, at the which all hertes ſhall melte, all handes ſhalbe letten downe, all ſtomackes ſhall faynt, ⁊ all knees ſhal waxe feble. Behold, it commeth and ſhalbe fulfylled, ſayeth the Lorde God. Againe, the worde of the Lord came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of man, prophecy, ⁊ ſpeake.
Thus ſayth the Lord God: ſpeake. The ſweard, the ſweard is ſharpened ⁊ well ſcoured. Sharpened is it for the ſlaughter, ⁊ ſcoured yͭ it may bee bryght. Shall C of my ſõne it is gone forth, deſtroying all that good holde may be taken of it.

This ſwearde is ſharpened ⁊ dyght, yͭ it may be geuẽ into yͤ hand of yͤ manſlayer.
Crye, (O yͧ ſonne of man ⁊ houle, for this haue ſayd it. The word of the Lord came yet vnto me againe, ſaying: Thou ſonne of mã, make the .ii. ſtretes, yͭ the ſweard of yͤ king of Babylõ may come. Both theſe ſtretes ſhall go out of one kynges lande.

And choſe thee a place, at the heade of the

that the ſwearde maye come towarde Rabath of the Ammonites, and to the ſtronge citie of Jeruſalem. For the kynge of Babilon ſhall ſtande in the turning of the waye, E at the head of the two ſtretes: *to aſke counſel at the ſothſaiers, caſting the lottes with hys arowes, to aſke counſell at the ydolle, and to loke in the lyuer. But the ſoth ſaying that he may ſet mẽ of warre to ſmite it with a greate noyſe, to crye out alarum, to ſet battel ramines agaynſt the gates to graue vp diches, and to make bulworkes.

Neuertheleſſe, as for the ſothſaying, they ſhall holde it but for vanytie. And eſteme them as thoſe to whome they haue often ſworne: Notwithſtandynge he ſhal remember theyr wickedneſſe, ſo that by right they muſt be taken and wonne. Therfore ſayeth the Lorde God. For ſomuche as ye youre ſelues ſhewe youre offence, and haue opened youre wyckednes, ſo that in all youre workes men maye ſee youre ſynnes: therefore are ye come to remembraunce, and ye F ſhalbe taken by violence. O thou ſhameful wycked guyde of Iſraell, whoſe daye is come: euen the tyme that wyckedneſſe ſhall haue an ende. Thus ſayeth the Lord God, take awaye the garlande, and put of the crowne, and ſo is it awaye: the humble is exalted, and the proude brought lowe. Puniſh, puniſhe, yea, puniſhe thẽ will I, ⁊ deſtroye them: and that ſhall not be fulfylled vntill he come, to whome the iudgemente belongeth, and to whom I haue geuen it.
And thou (O ſonne of man) prophecye, and ſpeake: thus ſayeth the Lorde God to the chyldren of *Ammon, ⁊ to theyr blaſphemy, ſpeake thou: The ſwearde, the ſweard is drawen forth already to the ſlaughter, ⁊ G ſcoured to conſume, ẏ it glyſtreth (becauſe thou haſte loked the out vanities, and prophecyed lyes) that it maye come vpon thy necke, like as vpõ the other vngodly, which be ſlayne, whoſe daye came whẽ theyr wickedneſſe was full. Shoulde I put it vp agayne?
Naye, I will puniſhe the in the land where thou waſt noryſhed and borne, and poure myne indignacion vpon the, and wil blowe vpon the in the fyre of my wrath, ⁊ delyuer thee vnto cruell people, whiche are learned to deſtroye. Thou ſhalte fede the fyre, ⁊ thy bloud ſhalbe ſhedde in the lande, that thou mayeſt bee put oute of remembraunce.
Euẽ I the Lorde haue ſpoken it.

The .xxii. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lorde agaynſte Jeruſalem for manſlaughter, ⁊ denying due honoure vnto theyr fathers and mothers, and other wickedneſſes. Of the wicked doctryne of the falſe prophetes ⁊ prieſtes, and of theyr vnſatiable couetouſneſſe. The tyranny of rulers. The wickedneſſe of the people.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

Of the fornicacion, that is to ſaye, of the ydolatrye of Samaria and Ieruſalem, vnder the names of Oholah and Oholybah. In comparyſon of Samarya he ſheweth that the fornicacion of Ieruſalem is the fylthyer. The deſtruccion of Ieruſalem is prophecyed. The aduoutrye of bothe the whores is founde out. Theyr deſtruccion.

THe word of yͤ Lorde came vnto me, saying: Thou ſoonne of manne, there A were two women, that had one mother: theſe (when they were yonge) began to playe the harlottes * in Egypte. There were theyr breſtes bruſed, & the pappes of theyr maydenhead did the Egypcians deſtroye.
The eldeſt of thē was called Oholah, & her yongeſt ſyſter Oholibah. Theſe two were my wyues, and bare ſonnes and daughters. Theyr names were Samaria, and that was Oholah: and Ieruſalem that was Oholibah. As for Oholah ſhe began to go a whoryng when I had taken her to me. *She was ſet on fyre vpon her louers the Aſſirians, as her neyghbours which had to do with her, euen the prynces & lordes that were dect in coſtly aray, fayre yonge men, luſtye ryders of horſes. Thus B thorowe her whordome, ſhe cleaued vnto al yͤ yong men of Aſſiria. Yea ſhe was mad vpon them, & defyled her ſelfe with al theyr ydols. Neyther ceaſſed ſhe from the fornycacyon that ſhe vſed wͭ the Egypcians: for in her youth they lay with her, they broſed the breſtes of her maydenhead, and poured theyr whordom vpō her. Wherfore * I delyuered her into the handes of her louers: euen the Aſſirians whō ſhe ſo loued. Theſe diſcouered her ſhame, toke her ſonnes and daughters, & ſlue her wͭ the ſwerd: An euill name gat ſhe of all people, and they punyſhed her. *Her ſiſter Oholibah ſawe this, & deſtroyed her ſelfe wͭ inordinate loue more than ſhe, and exceded her ſyſter in whordō: *ſhe loued the Aſſirians (whiche alſo laye with her) namelye the prynces, and greate lordes, that were clothed with al maner of gorgeous apparel, al luſty horſemē & fayre yonge perſons. Then I ſawe, yͭ they bothe were defyled alike. But ſhe encreaſed ſtill in C whordome, for when ſhe ſawe mē paynted vpon the wall, the ymages of the Chaldees ſet forth with freſhe colours, wͭ fayre gyrdles aboute them, & goodly bonettes vpon theyr heades, loking al like princes (after yͤ maner of the Babylonians, & Chaldees in their owne lande where they were borne) immediatly, as ſoone as ſhe ſaw them, ſhe brent

brent in loue vpõ thẽ, ⁊ ſent meſſengers for them into the land of the Chaldees. Nowe when yͤ Babylonians came to her, they lay with her, ⁊ defiled her with theyr whordome, ⁊ ſo was ſhe polluted with thẽ. And 47.a when her luſte was abated from thẽ * her 3.d whordome ⁊ ſhame was diſcouered ⁊ ſene: 16.d then my heart forſoke her, like as my heart was gone frõ her ſiſter alſo. Neuertheleſſe, ſhe vſed her whordome euer the longer the more, ⁊ remembred the daies of her youth, 16.c wherin ſhe had played yͤ harlot in the lande of Egipte: * ſhe brẽt in luſt vpon thẽ, whoſe fleſhe was lyke the fleſhe of Aſſes, ⁊ theyr ſeede like yͤ ſeede of horſes. Thus thou haſt renued the filthines of thy youthe, when D thy louers bruſed thy pappes, ⁊ marred thy breaſtes in Egipt. Therfore (O Oholibah) thus ſayeth the Lord God: I will rayſe vp thy louers (with whome thou haſt ſatiſfied thy luſt) agaynſt the, ⁊ gather thẽ together rounde aboute the: namelye, the Babylonians, ⁊ al the Chaldees, rulers, mighty men ⁊ tyrauntes, with all the Aſſirians: all yong ⁊ fayre louers, princes and lordes, knightes ⁊ gentle men, whiche be all good horſemen.
Theſe ſhal come vpon the with horſes, charettes, ⁊ a great multitude of people: which ſhalbe harneſſed about the on euery ſide, wᵗ breſtplates, ſhildes, ⁊ helmettes: I wil puniſh the before thẽ: yea, they thẽ ſelues ſhall puniſh the according to theyr owne iudgement.
I will put my gelouſy vpon the, ſo yᵗ they ſhal deale cruelly with the. They ſhall cut of thy noſe and thyne eares, and the rẽnaunt ſhal fal thorowe the ſwearde. They ſhal cary awaye thy ſonnes, ⁊ daughters, ⁊ the reſidue ſhalbe brent in yͤ fyre. They ſhal ſtrippe the out of thy clothes, and cary thy E coſtly iewels away with thẽ. Thus wyl I make an ende of thy filthyneſſe and whordome, whiche thou haſt brought out of the lande of Egypte: ſo that thou ſhalt tourne thyne eyes nomore after them, and caſt thy minde nomore vpon Egypt. For thus ſaith the Lorde: beholde, I will delyuer the into the handes of them, whõ thou hateſt: yea, euen into the handes of them with whom thou haſt fulfilled thy luſt, which ſhal deale cruelly with thee. All thy labour ſhall they take with thẽ, and leaue the naked ⁊ bare: ⁊ thus yͤ ſhame of thy fylthy whordome ſhal come to lyght. All theſe thynges ſhall happen vnto the becauſe of thy whordõ which thou haſt vſed amonge the Gentiles, with whoſe ydolles thou haſt defiled thy ſelfe.
Thou haſt walked in the waie of thy ſiſter, therfore wil I geue thee her cup in thy hãd.
Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Thou ſhalte drynke of thy ſiſters cuppe, howe depe and farre ſoeuer it be to yͤ botome. Thou ſhalt be laughed to ſcorne, and had as greatly in deryſion, as is poſſible. Thou ſhalt be full of dronkenneſſe and ſorowe, for the cuppe of thy ſyſter Samaria, is a cuppe of deſtruccion ⁊ waſtynge: the ſame ſhalt thou drynke, ⁊ ſuppe it out euen to the dregges: yea, thou ſhalt eate vp the broken pieces of it, and ſo teare thyne owne breſtes. For euẽ I haue ſpoken it, ſayeth the Lorde GOD.

Therefore thus ſayeth the Lord God. F For ſomoche as thou haſt forgotten me ⁊ caſte me aſyde behynde the, ſo beare nowe thine owne filthineſſe and whordome. The Lord ſayed moreouer vnto me: Thou ſõne of man, wilt thou not reproue Oholah and Oholibah? Shewe them theyr abhominacions, namely, that they haue broken theyr wedlocke, and ſtayned theyr handes with bloude: yea, euen with theyr ydolles haue they committed aduoutry * and offered thẽ 4.Re.21. by the fyre theyr owne childrẽ (to be deuoured) Ezec.16.c whom they had borne vnto me. Yea, ⁊ this haue they done vnto me alſo: they haue defiled my ſanctuary in that ſame day, and haue vnhalowed my Sabboth. For whẽ they had ſlayne theyr children for theyr ydolles, they came yͤ ſame daye into my ſãctuary to defyle it. Lo, thys haue they done in my houſe: Beſyde all thys, thou haſt ſent thy meſſengers for men oute of farre countreyes: and when they came thou haſt bathed and paynted thine eyes with colours, trymmed and ſet forth thy ſelfe of the beſte faſhion: thou ſatteſt vpõ a goodly bed and a table ſpred before the, wher vpõ thou haſt ſet mine * inſence and myne oyle. Then was exod.30.d there greate cheare wᵗ her to obtayne peace, G ⁊ though with thoſe men many men came, yet were there alſo brought men of Saba from yͤ wilderneſſe: which gaue thẽ bracelettes vpon theyr handes, and ſet glorious crownes vpon theyr heades: ⁊ I ſayde vnto her: that ſeyng ſhe was ſtryken in age in her whordomes, nowe ſhall her fornicacyons come to an end with her. And they wẽt into her as vnto a commen harlot. Euen ſo went they (I ſay) to Oholah and Oholibah thoſe fylthy women. O all ye that loue vertue and ryghteouſneſſe, iudge them, punyſhe them, * as aduoutrers and murtherers, Leui.20.b

For they are breakers of wedlocke, and the bloud is in theyr handes.

Wherfore

Wherefore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I will bring a great multitude of people vpō them, ⁊ make them be ſcatred and ſpoyled: theſe ſhall ſtone them, and gore them with theyr ſwerdes. They ſhal ſlaie their ſōnes ⁊ daughters ⁊ burne vp theyr houſes with fyre. Thus will I deſtroy all ſuche fylthyneſſe out of the lande: that all women may learne, not to do after youre vnclenneſſe.
And ſo they ſhall laye your fylthineſſe vp-on youre owne ſelues, ⁊ ye ſhalbe puniſhed for the ſynnes that ye haue committed with youre ydols: and ye ſhall know that I am the Lorde GOD.

The.xxiiii.Chapter.

He proueth the fyryng of Jeruſalem by a parable of a ſethynge pot. The parable of Ezechiels wyfe beyng dead, whiche he after expoundeth.

A IN the nynthe yeare, in the tenthe moneth, the tēth daye of the mo-neth, came the word of the Lord vnto me, ſaying: O thou ſonne of man, wryte vp the name of thys day: yea, euen the houre of this preſent day, whē the kinge of Babilon ſet him ſelfe agaynſt Jeruſalem. Shewe that obſtinate houſholde Ezec.17.a *a parable, and ſpeake vnto them. Thus ‡Ezec.11.b ſayeth the Lorde God: Get thee a‡pot, ſet it on, and poure water into it: put all yͤ pe-ces together in it, all yͤ good peces: yͤ loyne and the ſhoulder, and fill it with the beſte bones. Take one of the beſt ſhepe, and an heape of bones withall: let it boile well, and let the bones ſeethe well therin. With B that ſayed the Lord God on this maner.
Naū.3.c. *Woe be vnto the bloudy citie of the pot, Abac.2.b. where vpon the ruſtineſſe hangeth, ⁊ is not yet ſcoured away. Take out the peces that are in it one after another: there neade not lottes be caſt therfore, for the bloude is yet in it. Upon a playne drye ſtone hathe ſhe poured it, and not vpon the ground, that it might be couered with duſte. And therfore haue I letten her poure her bloude vpon a playne drye ſtony rocke, becauſe it ſhoulde not be hid, ⁊ that I might bring my wrath-C ful indignacion and vengeaunce vpon her.
Wherfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: O woe be vnto yͤ bloudthyrſtie citie, for whō euen I my ſelfe wyll make a greate fyre ⁊ ſet moche wood, and kyndle the fyre, and ſeeth the fleſh, and ſpyce the pot, ſo that the very bones ſhalbe brent. Moreouer, I wil ſet the pot emptye vpon the coles, ſo that his metal ſhalbe brent, and molten alſo for heate, and the filthineſſe of it ſhalbe molten in it, and the droſſe of it ſhalbe conſumed.
Thou tokeſt great paine thus to defyle thy ſelfe. And it will not be pourged from the excedyng droſſe in it: but thorowe fyre ſhal yͤ droſſe of it be purifyed. In thy filthineſſe, euen in thy miſcheuous dedes thou doſt cō-tynue, and becauſe thy filthineſſe is abho- D minable, for I haue clēſed the, but thou art not clenſed: Thou ſhalt not bee purged frō thyne vncleaneſſe, till I haue poured my wrathful indignacion vpon the. Euen I yͤ Lorde haue ſo deuiſed. Yea, it is come ther-to alreadye that I will do it: I wil not go backe, I wil not ſpare, I wil not be entrea-ted: but accordyng to thy wayes and yma-ginacions thou ſhalt be puniſhed, ſayeth the Lord god. And the word of the Lord came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſōne of mā, behold, E I wil take awaye yͤ pleaſure of thyne eyes with a plage: yet ſhalt thou neither mourne nor wepe, nor water thy chekes therefore:
thou mayeſt mourne by thy ſelfe alone, but vſe no deadly lamentacion. Hold on thy bo-net, and put on thy ſhoes vpon thy feete, couer not thy face, ⁊ eate no mourners bread.
So I ſpake vnto the people betymes in yͤ mornynge, and at euen my wyfe dyed: then vpon the nexte morowe, I dyd as I was commaunded, and the people ſayde vnto me: wylt thou not tell vs what this ſignifi- F eth to warde vs? for this thou doſt for oure ſake. I anſwered thē, the word of the Lord came vnto me, ſaying: Tel the houſe of Iſ-rael, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: behold, I wyll ſuſpende my Sanctuarye, euen the glory of youre power, the pleaſure of your eyes, ⁊ the thyng that ye loue: youre ſōnes and doughters whom ye haue left ſhall fall thorowe the ſwerde. Like as I haue done, ſo ſhall ye do alſo: ye ſhall not hyde your faces, ye ſhall eate no mourners bread: youre bonettes ſhal ye haue vpon your heades, ⁊ ſhoes vpon youre feete. Ye ſhall neyther mourne nor wepe, but in youre ſynnes ye ſhalbe ſorowfull, ⁊ one repent wͭ another.
Thus Ezechiel is your ſhewtokē. For loke G as he hath done, ſo (whē this commeth) ye ſhal do alſo: yͭ ye maye learne to know that I am yͤ Lord God. But beholde, O yͧ ſonne of mā: In the day whē I take frō thē their power, their ioye ⁊ honour, the luſt of their eyes, yͤ burthen of theyr liues, namely theyr ſonnes and daughters, ſhall not thys bee knowē? Then ſhal there one eſcape, ⁊ come vnto the for to ſhewe the. In that daye ſhal thy mouthe be opened to him whiche is eſcaped, yͭ thou mayeſt ſpeake, ⁊ bee nomore dumme. Yea, ⁊ thou ſhalt be theyr ſhewtoken yͭ they may know how yͭ I am yͤ Lord.

The.xxv. Chapter.

The worde of yͤ Lord vpõ the ſonnes of Ammõ, which reioyſed at the fal of Jeruſalē. Againſt Moab ⁊ Seyr, againſt Idumea, againſt yͤ Philiſtynes.

A THe woorde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of man, ſet thy face againſt the * Ammonites, prophecy vpon them, ⁊ ſay vnto the Ammonytes: heare the woorde of the Lorde God. Thus ſayth the Lorde God: Forſomuche as thou ſpeakeſt ouer my ſanctuarye: A ha, I trow it be now ſuſpended: and ouer the land of Iſrael: I trow it be now deſolate: yea, and ouer the houſe of Juda, I trow they be now led away pryſoners: Behold, I wil deliuer thee to the people of the eaſt, yͭ they may haue the in poſſeſſion: theſe ſhal ſet theyr caſtels and houſes in the. They ſhall eate thy frute, ⁊ drynke vp thy mylke. As for Rabath, I wyll make of it a ſtall for camels, ⁊ of Ammon a ſhepefold, ⁊ ye ſhal know that B I am the Lord. For thus ſayth the Lord God: In ſomuche as thou haſte clapped with thyne handes, ⁊ ſtamped with thy feete: yea, reioyſed in thine herte ouer the land of Iſrael wᵗ deſpite: behold, I will ſtretch out myne hand ouer the alſo, and deliuer the to be ſpoyled of the heathen, ⁊ rote the out from among the people, and cauſe the to be deſtroyed out of all lãdes: yea, I wil make the to be layd waſte, that thou mayſt knowe that I am the Lorde. Thus ſayth the Lord God: Forſomuche as * Moab ⁊ Seyr do ſay: As for yͤ houſe of Juda, it is but lyke as all other Gentyles be. Therfore behold, I wil open the ſyde of Moab, ⁊ take away their ſtrẽgth, their cities, ⁊ chefe coaſtes of their lande, which are the pleaſures of the countrey. As namely, Bethieſimoth, Baalmeon, ⁊ Cariathaim, theſe wil I open vnto them of the eaſt, that they maye fall vpon the Ammonites, and wil geue it them in poſſeſſion, ſo that the Ammonytes ſhall no more be had in remembraunce amõg the heathen. Euen thus wil I puniſh Moab alſo, that they maye knowe howe that I C am the Lorde. Moreouer thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Becauſe that * Edom hath auenged and eaſed hymſelfe vpon the houſe of Juda, and hathe done greate offence, and auenged hymſelfe vpon thẽ, therefore thus ſayeth the Lorde: I will reache out my hande vpon Edom, and take awaye manne and beaſt out of it. From Theman vnto Dedã will I make it deſolate, they ſhall be ſlayne with the ſwearde: * thorowe my people of Iſrael wyll I auenge me agayne vpon Edom: they ſhall handle hym accordyng to my wrathe and indignacion, so that they ſhall knowe my vengeaunce, ſayeth the Lord God. Thus ſayeth the Lord God: D Forſomuche as the * Philyſtines haue done thys: namelye taken vengeaunce wyth deſpytefull ſtomackes, and of an olde euyll wyll ſette themſelues to deſtroy, therfore thus ſayth the Lord God: Beholde, I wyll ſtretch out my hande ouer the Philiſtines, and deſtroye the deſtroyer, and cauſe all the remnaunt of the ſea coaſte to periſh. A great vengeaunce will I take vpon them, and puniſh them cruelly: that they maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde whiche haue auenged me of them.

He prophecyeth that Tyrus ſhalbe ouerthrowen, bycauſe it reioyſed at the deſtruccion of Jeruſalẽ. The wondryng ⁊ aſtonyſhment of the marchauntes for the deſolacion of Tyrus.

IT happened that in yͤ eleuenth yere, A the firſt day of the moneth, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of manne, becauſe * that Tyre hath ſpoken vpon Jeruſalem: A ha, nowe I trowe the portes of the people bee broken, and ſhe turned vnto me: for nowe that ſhe is deſtroyed, I ſhalbe fylled. Yea, therefore ſayeth the Lorde God: Beholde, O Tyre, I wyll vpon thee, I wyll bryng a greate multytude of people againſte thee, lyke as when the ſea aryſeth with his waues: Theſe ſhall breake the walles of Tyre, and caſte downe her towers. I wyll ſcrape the grounde from her, and make her a bare ſtone: yea, as the dryinge place where the fyſhers hange vp theyr nettes by the ſea ſyde. Euen I haue ſpoken it ſayth the Lord God. For thus ſayeth the Lorde God: when I make the a deſolate cytie (as other cyties be, that no manne dwell in) and when I bryng the deape vpon thee, that great waters maye couer thee: Then wyll I caſt the downe vnto them that deſcende into the pytte, vnto a people that hath been long dead, and ſette the in a lande that is beneth, lyke the old wyldernеſſe, with them which go downe to theyr graues, ſo that no manne ſhall dwell more in the. The. xxvii. Chapter.

The Prophete is moued to bewayle the deſolacion of Tyrus. He ſetteth out the prayſe of Tyrus, for the hauntyng of marchauntes thereto.

THe woorde of the Lorde came A vnto me, ſaying: O thou ſonne of manne, make a lamentable complaynte vpon *Tyre, & ſay vpon Tyre: thou whiche art a porte of the ſea, that occupieth with muche people, and many yles: thus ſpeaketh the Lorde God. O Tyre, thou haſte ſayde: what, I am a noble cytie: thy borders are in the myddeſt of the ſea, and thy buylders haue made the maruelous goodly. All thy tables haue they made of Cypres trees of the mounte Sanyr. From Lybanus haue they taken Cedre trees, to make the maſtes and the okes of Baſan to make the rowers. Thy bordes haue
B they made of yuery, and of coſtly wood out of the yle of Cethym. Thy ſayle was of dyuers colours: ſmal nedle worke out of the lande of Egypte, to hang vpon thy maſte, and thy hangynges of yelowe ſylke, purple, oute of the yles of Eliſah. They of Sydon and Arnad were thy maryners, and the wyſeſt in Tyre were thy ſhypmaſters. The eldeſt and wyſeſt at Geball were they that amended and ſtopped thy ſhyppes. All ſhyppes of the ſea wyth theyr ſhypmenne occupyed theyr marchaundyſe in thee. The Perſes, Lidians and Phutens were in thyne hoſte, and helped thee to fyght, theſe hanged vp theyr ſhyldes and helmettes wyth thee, theſe ſette forthe thy beautye. They of Arnad were with thine hoſte rounde aboute thy walles: and C the Pygmenians were thy watchmenne vpon thy towers: theſe hanged vp theyr quyuers rounde aboute thy walles, and made the meruelous goodlye. Tharſis occupyed wyth thee in all maner of wares, in ſyluer, yron, tynne and leade, and made thy markette greate. Iauan, Tuball, and Meſech were thy marchauntes, which brought the menne and ornamentes of metall for thy occupyinge. They of the houſe of Thogarma, brought vnto the at the tyme of thy marte, horſe, horſmen ⁊ mules. They of *Dedã were thy marchauntes: ⁊ many other yles that occupyed with thee, brought the wethers, Elephant bones, and Pecockes, for a preſente. The Sirians occupyed with the becauſe of thy diuers workes, ⁊ increaſed thy marchaundyſe, with Smaragdes, with ſcarlet, with nedle worke, with white lynen clothe, with ſylke, and with chriſtall.

D Iuda and the lande of Iſraell occupyed with the, and brought vnto thy markettes wheat of Minnith, and Panag, balme, hony, oyle, and triacle. Damaſcus alſo vſed marchaundiſe with thee in the beſt wyne of Helbõ, ⁊ with woll, bycauſe thy occupying was ſo greate, and thy wares ſo many.
Dan, Iauan, and Meuſal, haue broughte vnto thy markettes, yron redy made, with Caſſia and Calamus, accordyng to thyne occupying. Dedan occupyed wͭ the in fayre tapeſtry worke, and cuſſhyns. Arabia, and al the princes of Cedar haue occupied with thee, in ſhepe, wethers, and goates. The marchaũtes of Seba and Rema, haue occupyed E alſo with the, in all coſtly ſpyces, in al precious ſtones, and golde, whiche they brought vnto thy markettes. Harã, Chene, and Edẽ, the marchauntes of Saba, Aſſiria, and Chelmad were all doers with the, ⁊ occupyed with the: In coſtlye raymẽte of yelow ſilke, ⁊ nedle worke (verie precious, ⁊ therefore packt and bounde together with ropes.) Yea, and in cedre wood, at the time of thy markettes. The ſhippes of Tharſis were yͤ chefe of thy occupying. Thus thou art full, and in greate worſhyppe, euen in yͤ myddeſt of the ſea. Thy robbers ſhal bring F the into greate waters, the eaſt wynde ſhal ouer beare the in to the myddeſt of yͤ ſea, ſo that thy wares, thy marchaundyſe, thy rycheſſe, thy maryners, thy ſhypmaſters, thy (that broughte the thynges neceſſarye) the mẽ of warre that are in thee, ⁊ al thy cõmens ſhal periſhe in the middeſt of yͤ ſea, in yͤ daye of thy fal: The ſuburbes ſhal ſhake at the loude crie of thy ſhypmen. Al whirymenne, and all maryners vpon the ſea, ſhall leape out of theyr boates, ⁊ ſet them ſelues G vpon the land. They ſhal lift vp theyr voice becauſe of the, and make a lamentable crie.

They ſhall caſt duſt vpon theyr heades, ⁊ lie downe in the aſſhes. They ſhal ſhaue thẽ ſelues, and put ſackeclothe vpon them for thy ſake. They ſhall mourne for thee with heartful ſorowe, and heuy lamẽtacion: yea, they alſo ſhall wepe for the. Alas, what citie hath ſo bene deſtroyed in the ſea, as Tire is? When thy wares and marchaundyſe came from the ſeas: thou gaueſte all people ynough. The kynges of the earthe haſte thou made ryche, thorow the multitude of thy wares ⁊ occupying. But thou art now caſt downe into the deepe of the ſea, all thy reſorte of people is peryſhed with thee. All they that dwell in the yles are abaſſhed at thee, and all theyr kynges are afrayed: yea, theyr faces haue chaunged coloure. The marchaũtes of the nacions wondre at the:
In yͤ thou art ſo cleane brought to nought, and commeſt nomore vp.

The worde of God agaynſte the kynge of Tyrus, for his pride. Daniel the prophet is moued to bewaile the kinge of Tyrus. The worde of the Lorde agaynſt Sidon, The Lord promyſeth that he will gather together the children of Iſraell.

thee. With thy wyſdome and thy vnderſtandyng thou haſte gotten the greate welthineſſe, and gathered treaſure of ſyluer and haſte thou increaſed thy power, ⁊ becauſe of thy greate rycheſſe thyne heart

Lorde GOD: For ſo moche as thou haſt B lyft vp thyne hearte as though thou were GOD: beholde, I wyll brynge enemyes vpon thee, euen the tyrauntes of the Heathen: theſe ſhall drawe out theyr ſwerdes vpon thy beauty and wyſdome, and ſhal defyle they bee ſcatred, then ſhall I bee ſanctifyed in them in the ſyght of the Gentyles: and they ſhall dwell in the lande, that I gaue to my ſeruaunt Jacob. They ſhall dwell ſafely therin, buylde houſes, and plant vyneyardes: yea, ſafely *ſhall they dwell therin, when I haue puniſſhed al thoſe that deſpiſe them rounde aboute: and then ſhall they knowe, that I am the Lord theyr GOD.

The .xxix. Chapter.

He propheciyeth agaynſt Pharao. He prophecieth the deſolacion of Egipt, and the ſparkelynge abrode of the Egipcians. The Lorde promyſeth that he wil reſtore Egipt agayne after .xl. yeares. Egipt is the rewarde of kynge Nabuchodonozor for the laboure whiche he toke agaynſte Tyrus.

IN the tenthe yeare, vpon the A twelueth daye of the tenth moneth, the word of the Lord came vnto me, ſaying: *O thou ſonne of man (ſet nowe thy face agaynſt Pharao the king of Egipt:) Prophecy againſt him, & againſt yͤ whole land of Egipt. Speake, & tel him: thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God: beholde, O Pharao thou kynge of Egypte, I wyll vpon thee, thou great dragon that lyeſt in the waters, thou that ſayeſt: the water is myne, I haue made it my ſelfe. I wyll put an hooke in thy chawes, and hange all the fyſſhe in thy waters vpon thy ſcales: after that, I will drawe thee out of thy waters: yea, and all the fyſſhe of thy waters that hange vpon thy ſcales. I will caſt the oute vpō the drie land, with yͤ fyſſhe of thy waters, ſo that thou ſhalt lye vpon the feide. B Thou ſhalt not bee gathered nor taken vp, but ſhalt bee meate for the beaſtes of the felde, and for the foules of the ayre: that all they whiche dwell in Egypt, may knowe that I am the Lord: becauſe thou haſt ben a *ſtaffe of reede to yͤ houſe of Iſrael. Whē they toke hold of the with theyr hand, thou brakeſt and pryckedſt them on euery ſyde: and yf they leaned vpon thee, thou brakeſte and hurtedeſt the raynes of theyr backes.
Therefore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: beholde, I wil brynge a ſwearde vpon thee, & roote out of the both man & beaſte: Yea, the lande of Egypte ſhall be deſolate and waſt, and they ſhall knowe, that I am the Lord. Becauſe he ſayed: the water is mine, I my ſelfe haue made it: Beholde therfore, I will vpon the, and vpon thy waters: I will make the lande of Egypt waſte & deſolate, C and in abaſſhmente, from the towre of Syenes, vnto yͤ borders of the Moriās lande:

lande: ſo that in fourtye yeares there ſhal no fote of man walke there, neyther fote of cattel go there, neyther ſhall it be inhabyted. I wyll make the lande of Egypte to be deſolate among other waſte countryes, and her cyties to lye voyde fourty yeares among other voyde cyties: And I wyl ſcatter the Egypcians among the Heathen and nacions, and ſtrow them in the landes aboute. Agayne, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: * when the .xl. yeares are 46.c. exſpyred, I wyll gather the Egypcians togyther againe, out of the nacions, among whome they were ſcattred, & wyll bryng the pryſoners of Egypte agayne into the lande of Pathures theyr owne natyue countrey, that they maye be there a lowly ſmal kyngdome: yea, they ſhalbe the ſmalleſt among other kyngdomes, leſt they exalt themſelues aboue the Heathen: for I wil ſo mynishe them that they ſhal nomore rule the Heathen. They ſhal nomore be an hope vnto the houſe of Iſrael, neyther prouoke them any more to wyckedneſſe, to cauſe them turne backe, and to folowe them: and they ſhall know, D that I am the Lorde God. In the .xxvii. yeare, the fyrſte daye of the fyrſte moneth, came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of man, Nabuchodonoſor the king of Babylon, hath made his hoſte, with great trauaile and labour to come before Tyre, that euery head may be balde, and euery ſhoulder bare. Yet hath Tyre geuen neyther hym nor hys hoſte any rewarde, for the great trauayle that he hath taken there. Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: beholde, I wyll geue the lande of Egypte vnto Nabuchodonoſor the king of Babylon, that he may take away all her ſubſtaunce, robbe her robbryes, and ſpoyle her ſpoyles, to paye his hooſte theyr wages withall. I wyll geue hym the lande of Egypte, for his laboure that he tooke for me before Tyre. At the ſame tyme will I cauſe the horne of the houſe of Iſrael to growe forth, and open thy mouth agayn among them: that they may knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

The. xxx. Chapter.

The deſtruccion of Egypte and of his cytyes, is bewayled.

A THe worde of the Lorde came moreouer vnto me, ſaying: thou ſonne of manne, prophecye and ſpeake: thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Mourne, woe worthe this daye, for the daye is here, the daye of the Lorde is come, the darke daye of the heathen: the houre is at hande, the ſwearde commeth vpon Egypte. When the wounded men fall downe in Egypte, when her people are taken awaye, and when her foundacions are deſtroyed, the Morians lande ſhalbe afrayed: yea the Morians lande, Libia and Lidia, all theyr common people, and Chub, and all that be confederate vnto them, ſhall fall with them thorowe the ſweard. Thus ſayeth the Lord: B
The maynteyners of the land of Egypte ſhall fall, the pryde of her power ſhall come downe, euen vnto the towre of Syenes ſhall they be ſlayne downe with the ſwearde, ſayeth the Lorde God: amonge other deſolate coūtryes they ſhalbe made deſolate, & among other waſte cytyes they ſhalbe waſted. And they ſhall know that I am the Lorde, when I kyndle a fyre in Egypte, and when all her helpers are deſtroyed. At that tyme ſhall theyr meſſengers goe forthe from me in ſhyppes, to make the careleſſe Morians afrayed, and ſorowe ſhall come vpon them, accordyng to the daye of Egypte, for doubtleſſe it ſhall come. Thus ſayeth the Lord God: C I wyll make an ende of the people of Egypte thorowe the hande of Nabuchodonoſor the kyng of Babylon. He and hys people with hym, yea, and the cruell tyrauntes of the heathen, ſhall be brought to deſtroy the lande. They ſhall drawe out theyr ſweardes vpon Egypte, and fyll the lande full of ſlayne men. I wyll drye vp theyr floudes of water, and ſell the lande into the handes of wycked people. The land and al that is therein, wyll I deſtroye thorowe the enemyes. Euen I the Lord haue ſayde it. And thus ſayth D the Lorde God: * I wyll deſtroye the Zac.13.a. ydols, and brynge the ymages of Noph to an end. There ſhal nomore be a prince of Egypte, and a fearfulneſſe will I ſend into the Egypcians lande. As for Pathures, I wyll make it deſolate, and kyndle a fyre in Zoan the cytie. No, I will punyſhe and powre my wrathfull indignacion vpon Syn, whiche is the ſtrength of Egypte. All the ſubſtaunce of Alexandria wyll I deſtroy, and kyndle a fyre in Egypte. Syn ſhall bee in greate heauyneſſe, Alexandria ſhall bee rooted out, and Noph ſhall haue daylye ſorowe.

E ſorowe. The beſt men of Heliopolys and Bubaſto, ſhalbe ſlayne with the ſweard, and caryed awaye captyue. At Caphnis the daye ſhall be darke, when I breake there the ſcepter of the lande of Egypte, and when the pompe of her power ſhall haue an ende. A cloude ſhall couer her, and her doughters ſhalbe led away into captiuitye. Thus wil I puniſhe Egypte, that they maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. It happened in the eleuenth yeare, vpon the ſeuenth daye of the fyrſte moneth, that the Lordes worde came vnto me, ſaying: Beholde, thou ſonne of F man, I wyll breake the arme of Pharao kyng of Egypte: and loe, it ſhall not be bounde vp to be healed, neyther ſhall any plaiſter be layde vpon it, for to eaſe it, or to make it ſo ſtronge, as to holde a ſwearde. Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Beholde, I wyll vpon Pharao the kyng of Egypte, and bruiſe his ſtronge arme (yet is it but a broken one) and wyll ſmyte the ſweard out of hys handes.

As for the Egypcians, I wyll ſcattre them among the heathen, & ſtrowe them in the landes aboute. Agayne, I wyll ſtrength the arme of the kyng of Babylon, G and geue hym a ſweard in his hand: but I will breake Pharaos arme, ſo that he ſhal hold it before him pyteouſely lyke a woũded man. Yea, I wil ſtabliſh yͤ king of Babylons arme, & the armes of Pharao ſhal fall downe: yͭ it may be knowen that I am the Lorde, whiche geue the king of Babilon my ſweard in his hãde, that he may drawe it out vpon the lande of Egypte: and that when I ſcattre the Egypcians among the Gentyles, and ſtrowe them in the landes aboute, they may knowe, that I am the Lorde.

The .xxxi. Chapter.

A comparyſon of the proſperitie of Pharao with the proſperitie of the Aſſirians. He prophecyeth a lyke deſtruccion vnto them both.

A MOreouer, it happened in the eleuenth yeare, the fyrſt day of the thyrde moneth, that the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſaying: thou ſonne of man, ſpeake vnto Pharao the kyng of Egypte, and to all his people. Whome art thou lyke in thy greatneſſe? Beholde, Aſſur was lyke a Cedre tree vpon the mount of Libanus, with fayre braunches: ſo thycke, that he gaue ſhadowes, and ſhotte out verye hye: Hys toppe reached vnto the cloudes. The waters made hym greate, and the depe ſet hym vp on hye.
Rounde aboute the rootes of him, ranne there floudes of water: he ſente out hys litle ryuers vnto al the trees of the fielde. B Therfore was he hyer then all the trees of the fielde, and thorowe the multytude of waters that he ſente from hym, he obtayned many long braunches. All foules of the ayre made their neſtes in his braũches: vnder his boughes gendred all the beaſtes of the fielde, and vnder his ſhadowe dwelt all people. Fayre and beutyfull was he in hys greatneſſe and in the length of hys braunches, for his roote ſtode beſyde great waters, no Cedre tree myght hyde hym. In the pleaſaunt garden of God, there was no fyrre tree lyke his braunches, the plane trees were not C lyke the boughes of hym. All the trees in the garden of God myght not be compared vnto hym in his bewty, ſo fayre and goodly had I made hym with the multitude of his braunches. In ſo muche that all the trees in the pleaſaunt garden of God, had enuye at hym. Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: forſomuche as he hath lyft vp hymſelfe ſo hye, & ſtretched D his toppe into the cloudes, and ſeeyng his harte is proude in his hyghneſſe, I wyll delyuer him into the handes of the myghtieſt amonge the heathen, whiche ſhall roote hym out. Accordyng to his wyckedneſſe will I caſt him awaye, the enemy ſhall deſtroy hym, and the myghtye menne of the heathen ſhall ſo ſcattre hym, that his braunches ſhall lye vpon all mountaynes, and in all valeys: hys boughes ſhall bee broken downe to the grounde, thorowe out the lande. Then al E the people of the lande ſhall goe from his ſhadowe, and forſake hym. When he is fallen, all the foules of the ayre ſhall ſyt vpon him, and all the wylde beaſtes of the fielde ſhall goe aboute amonge hys braunches, ſo that from hence forthe, no tree in the water ſhall attayne to hys hyghneſſe, nor reache his toppe vnto the cloudes, neyther ſhall any tree of the water ſtande ſo hye, as he hath done. For vnto death ſhal they all be delyuered vnder the earth, & go downe to the graue lyke other menne. Moreouer thus ſayeth the F Lorde God: In the daye when he goeth downe to the graue, I wil cauſe a lamentacion to be made: I wyll couer the depe vpon him, I will ſtaunche his floudes, & the great waters ſhalbe reſtrained. I ſhal cauſe Libanus to be ſorowful for his ſake, and al the trees of the fielde ſhal be ſmitten.

I wyll make the heathen ſhake at the ſoūd of his fal, when I caſt hym down to * hel, with them that deſcend into the pyt. All the trees of Eden, with al the choſen and beſte trees of Libanus, yea, and al they that are planted vpon the waters, ſhal mourne wͭ hym alſo in the lower habitacions: for they ſhall gooe downe to hell wyth hym, vnto them that be ſlaine with the ſweord, which dwelt afore vnder the ſhadow of his arme G among the Heathen. To whom ſhalt thou be likened, that art ſo glorious and great, among the tres of Eden? Yet art thou caſt down vnder the earth (among the trees of Eden) where thou muſt lye among vncircumciſed, with them that bee ſlayne with yͤ ſweord. Euen thus is it with Pharao and all his people, ſayth the Lorde God.

¶ The. xxxii. Chapter.

The prophete is commaunded to bewayle Pharao the kyng of Egypt. He prophecieth that deſtruccion ſhall come vnto Egypt through the kyng of Babilō.

A In the eleuenth yeare, the fyrſte daye of the. xii. moneth, the word of the lord came vnto me, ſayinge: thou ſonne of mā, take vp a lamentacion vpon * Pharao the kyng of Egypte, and ſaye vnto hym: yͧ art reputed as a Lyon of the Heathen, and as a whalfyſhe in the ſea. Thou caſteſt thy waters aboute thee, thou troubleſte the waters with thy feete, ⁊ ſtampeſt in theyr floudes. Thus ſayth the Lorde God: * I wyl ſpred my net ouer the, namely, a great multitude of people, theſe ſhall dryue thee into my yarne, for I wyl caſt the vpon the lande: and let the lye vpon the field, that all the foules of the ayre maye ſit vpon thee. I will geue al the beaſtes of the field inough of the. Thy fleſh wil I caſt vpō the hilles, B and fyl the valleyes with thy hyghneſſe. I wil water the land with the aboundaunce of thy bloud, euen to the mountaines, and the riuers ſhalbee full of thy bloude.

When thou art putte out, I wil couer the heauen, and make his ſtarres dymme, * I wyl ſpreade a cloude ouer the Sunne, and the moone ſhall not geue her lighte. All the lightes of heauen wyl I put out ouer the, and brynge darkeneſſe vpon thy land, ſaith the Lorde God. I will trouble the heartes of many people, when I bring thy deſtruccion among the Heathen and countreyes, whome thou knoweſte not. Yea, I wyll make many people with theyr kinges ſo afraid through the, yͤ theyr heere ſhal ſtande vp, when I ſhake my ſweorde at theyr faces.
Sodainly ſhal they be aſtonyed, euery C man in himſelfe, at the daye of thy fall. For thus ſaith the lorde God: the kynge of Babylons ſweorde ſhal come vpon the: wyth the ſweordes of the worthyes wil I ſmite downe thy people. All they that bee mighty amōg the Gentiles ſhal waſt the proud pompe of Egypt, and bryng downe al her people. All the cattell alſo of Egypte wyll I deſtroye, that they ſhal come no more vpon the waters, ſo that neither mans fote, nor beaſtes claw, ſhal ſtyrre thē anye more.
Then wyl I make theyr waters depe, and cauſe theyr floudes to runne like oyle, ſaith the Lorde God. When I make the lande of Egypt deſolate, and when the countrey with al that is therein, ſhalbee layed waſt, and when I ſmite all them which dwel in it, that they maye know that I am yͤ lord.
This is the mourning that the daughters of the Heathen ſhall make. Yea, a ſorowe ⁊ lamentacion ſhall they take vppe vpon Egypt, D and al her people, ſayth the lord God.
In the twelue yeare the fyftene day of the moneth, came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſonne of mā: Take vp a lamentacion vpon the people of Egypt, and caſt them downe: yea, them I ſay, and the mighty people of the Heathen alſo, euē with them * that dwell beneth: and wyth *Eſa.14.c them that goe downe into the graue. Ezec.31.c.

Down (how fayre ſo euer thou be) and lay the with yͤ vncircumciſed. Among thoſe yͤ be ſlaine with yͤ ſweord, ſhal they lye. To yͤ ſweord is ſhe already deliuered: therefore plucke down to yͤ ground, her ⁊ al her multitude.
The mighty worthies ſhal ſpeake to him out of yͤ hel, ⁊ to his helpers that be gone down ⁊ lye vncircumciſed, ⁊ with thē yͤ be ſlaine with the ſweord. Aſſur is there E alſo with his companye, and their graues round about, which wer ſlain ⁊ fel al with the ſweord, whoſe graues lie beſide him in yͤ low pit. His commens are buried round about his graue, altogether wounded and ſlaine with yͤ ſweord, which men afore time brought feare into the lande of the liuing.

* There is Elam alſo with all his people, *Ier.49.c and theyr graues rounde about: whiche al Dan.8.a. beyng wounded ⁊ ſlaine with the ſweord, are gone downe vncircumciſed vnder the yearth, whyche neuertheleſſe ſometyme brought feare into the lande of the liuyng: for the which they beare theyr ſhame, with the other that be gone downe to the graue.
Theyr buriall is geuen them, and al theyr F people, among them that be ſlaine. Theyr graues are rounde about all them whiche bee vncircumciſed, and with them that bee ſlaine through the ſweorde: for ſeeyng that in tymes paſt, they made the land of the liuyng afrayde, they muſte nowe beare their owne ſhame, with them that go downe to the pit, and lye among them, that be ſlaine.

There is Meſech alſo and Tuball, and theyr people, and theyr graues rounde about. Theſe al are among the vncircumciſed, ⁊ them that be ſlaine with the ſweord, becauſe afore tyme they made the lande of the liuing afraid. Should not thei then lye alſo among the worthies and vncircumciſed grauntes? which with theyr weapons are gone downe to hel, whoſe ſweordes are layed vnder theyr heades whoſe wyckedneſſe is vpon theyr bones: becauſe that as worthies they haue brought feare into the land of the liuing. Yea, among the vncircumciſed ſhalte thou bee deſtroyed, and G ſlepe with them that periſhed through the ſweord. There is the land of *Edom with her kynges and princes alſo, whiche wyth theyr ſtrength are layed by them that wer ſlayne with the ſweord, yea, among the vncircumciſed, and thẽ which are gone downe into the pit. Moreouer, ther be al the prynces of the north, wyth all the Sydonyans, whiche are gone downe to the ſlaine. With theyr feare and ſtrength they are come to confuſyon, and lye there vncyrcumciſed among thoſe that be ſlaine with the ſweord, and beare theyr owne ſhame, with them yͤ bee gone downe to the pitte. Nowe when Pharao ſeeth this, he ſhalbe coumforted ouer all hys people that is ſlayne wyth the ſweorde, both Pharao and all hys hooſte, ſayeth the Lorde God. For I haue geuen my feare in the lãde of the liuing. But Pharao and all his people ſhall lye amonge the vncyrcumcyſed, and amonge them that bee ſlayne with the ſweord, ſayth the lord god.

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

He ſetteth out the office of a curate that preacheth the goſpell. He ſtrengtheneth them that diſpayre, & boldeneth them with the promiſe of mercye. The woorde of the Lorde agaynſte the remnaunte of the people. Agaynſt the mockers of the woordes of the Prophete.

A AGayne the woorde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſaying: Thou ſõne of manne. Speake to the children of thy people, and tel them: Whẽ I ſende a ſwoorde vpon a lande, if the people of the lande take a man of theyr countrey, and ſet hym to be theyr *watcheman, the ſame man (when he ſeeth the ſweorde come vpon the lande) ſhall blow the trompet, and warne the people. Yf a man nowe heare the noyſe of the trompet and wil not be warned, and the ſweorde come and take him a way, his bloud ſhalbe vpon his own heade: for he heard the ſounde of the trompet, and woulde not take hede, therfore his bloud be vpon hym. But yf he wyl receyue warnynge, he ſhall ſaue hys lyfe. Agayne, yf the watchman ſee the ſweorde come and ſhewe it not with the trompette, ſo that yͤ B people is not warned: yf the ſweorde come then, and take any man from among them, the ſame ſhalbee taken awaye in his owne ſynne, but his bloude wyll I require of the watchmans hande. *And nowe (O thou ſonne of mã) I haue made the a watchman vnto the houſe of Iſraell, yͤ where as thou heareſte any thyng out of my mouth, thou mayeſte warne them on my behalfe. If I ſay vnto yͤ wicked: thou wicked, thou ſhalt ſurely dye, and thou geueſte him not warnyng, that he maye be ware of his vngodlye waye: then ſhall the wicked dye in hys owne ſynne, but hys bloude wil I require of thy hand. Neuertheleſſe, yf thou warne the wycked of hys waye, to turne from it, where as he yet wyl not be turned from it, then ſhall he dye becauſe of hys ſynne, but thou haſt deliuered thy ſoule. Therfore (O thou ſonne of man) ſpeake vnto the houſe C of Iſraell. Yea, ſaye thus: Our offences ⁊ ſinnes lye vpon vs, ⁊ we be corrupt in thẽ, how ſhould we then be reſtored vnto lyfe? Tel them: *As truly as I liue ſaith yͤ lord god, I haue no pleaſure in yͤ death of yͤ wicked, but much rather that the wicked turne frõ his way, ⁊ liue. Turne you, turne you, frõ your vngodly wayes, O ye of yͤ houſe of Iſrael. Oh, wherfore wil ye dye? Thou ſonne of man, tel the children of thy people. *The righteouſnes of the ryghteous ſhal not ſaue him, whenſoeuer he turneth away vnfaythfully. Again, the wickednes of the wicked ſhall not hurte him, whanſoeuer he conuerteth from hys vngodlyneſſe.

And the ryghteouſneſſe of the ryghteous ſhall not ſaue hys lyfe, whanſoeuer he ſynneth. If I ſaye vnto the righteous yͤ he ſhall ſurely lyue, and ſo he truſte to his owne righteouſneſſe, and do ſynne, thẽ ſhal his righteouſnes be no more thought vpõ, but in the wickednes that he hath done, he D ſhall dye. *Againe, yf I ſay vnto the wicked: thou ſhalt ſurelye dye, and ſo he turne from his ſynnes, and do the thyng that is lawfull and ryghte: Inſomuche that the ſame wicked man geueth the pledge again, reſtoreth that he had takē a way by robbery, walketh in the commaundementes of lyfe, and doth no wrong: Thē ſhall he surely lyue, and not dye. Yea, the ſynnes that he hath done, ſhall neuer bee thoughte vpon.

For inſomuche as he doth nowe the thyng that is lawful and right, he ſhal lyue. And yet the children of thy people ſaye: Tuſhe, the waye of the lord is not ryght, but they lye, whereas theyr owne waye is rather vnryght. When the righteous turneth frō his righteouſnes and doth yͤ thyng that is wicked, he ſhal die therfore. But yf the wicked turne from hys wickedneſſe, doing the thynge that is lawfull and ryghte, he ſhall lyue therfore. Yet ye ſaye: *the way of the lorde is not equall: O ye houſe of Iſraell *I wyll iudge euerye one of you after hys E wayes. In the twelueth yeare, the fyfte day of yͤ .x. moneth of our captiuity, it happened,

In the bloud haue ye eaten, your eyes haue ye lift vp to ydols, *and haue ſhed bloude: ſhall ye then haue the land in poſſeſſion? Ye leane vpon your ſweordes, ye woorke abhominacions, euery one defileth his neighbours Saye thou theſe wordes vnto thē. Thus ſaith yͤ lord god. As truly as I lyue, al ye yͭ ſo deſolate and waſt, and the pompe of her learne to know, that I am the Lord, whē I make the lande waſte and deſolate, becauſe of al theyr abhominacions, that they haue wrought. And thou ſonne of manne, the children of thy people that talke of thee by the walles ⁊ in the dores of their houſes, ſaying one to another: Come, lette vs heare what worde is gone forth from the

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

He promiſeth deliueraunce from the Gentiles vnto Iſrael. The benefites done vnto ẏ Iewes are to be aſcribed to the mercye of God, not vnto theyr deſeruinges. God reneweth our heartes that we may walke in his commaundementes.

A Thou ſonne of man, prophecy vpon

*Heare the worde of the lorde, O ye mountaynes of Iſrael. Thus ſayeth ẏ lord god: becauſe your enemy hath ſaid vpon you: Aha, the hye euerlaſtyng places the mountaynes and hilles, valleyes, and dales, to the voyde wildernesſe and deſolate cityes, whiche are ſpoyled, and had in deriſion on euery ſyde, among the reſidue of the Heathen: yea, euen thus ſayeth the Lord God. In the fyre of my B all *Edom: which haue taken in my land Ezec.35.c vnto themſelues for a poſſeſſion: whiche alſo reioysed from theyr whole hearte with a deſpiteful ſtomacke, to waſte it, ⁊ to ſpoyle it. Prophecy therfore vpon the lande of Iſraell, ſpeake vnto the mountaines and hilles, to valleyes and dales, thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Beeholde, this haue I deuyſed in my gelouſye and terrible wrath. For ſo muche as ye haue ſuffered reprofe of the Heathen, therfore thus ſayth the lord god: I haue ſworne that the Gentilez which lye aboute you, ſhall beare theyr confuſion themſelues.

And as for you (O mountaynes of Iſrael) ye ſhal ſhote out your braunches, ⁊ bring furth your fruite to my people of Iſrael, for it is hard by that it wil come. C Behold, I come vnto you, and vnto you wil I turne me, that ye may be tilled and ſowen. I will ſende you muche people, whiche ſhalbe al of the houſe of Iſraell, the cities ſhalbee inhabited, and the decayed places ſhalbe repayred agayne: I will prouyde you with muche people and cattel, which ſhal encreaſe and bring then euer ye had before, wherby ye ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde: yea, people wil I ſende vnto you (O my folke of Iſrael) whiche ſhall haue thee in poſſeſſion. and thou ſhalte be theyr inherytaunce, ſo that thou ſhalt no more be without thē.

Agayne, thus ſayeth the Lord God: For ſo much as they ſay vnto you: thou arte an eater vp of men, and a waſter of thy people: therfore thou ſhalt eate no moe menne, neyther deſtroye thy people any D more, ſayeth the Lorde God. And I wil not ſuffre thee for to heare thyne owne confuſion, amonge the Gentiles from henceforth. Thou ſhalt not beare the reprofe of the nacions, nor caſte out thyne owne people any more, ſayeth the Lord God. Moreouer, the woorde of the lord came vnto me, ſaying: O thou ſonne of man, when the houſe of Iſraell dwelt vpon theyr owne grounde, they defyled themſelues with theyr own wayes and ymaginacions: ſo that in my ſyght theyr way was lyke the vnclenneſſe of a menſtruous woman. Wherefore I powred my wrathful diſpleaſure vpon them, becauſe of the bloude that they had ſhed in the lande, and becauſe of theyr ydoles, wherwith they had defyled themſelues. I ſcatered them alſo among the Heathē, ſo that they were ſtrowed aboute in the landes. Accordyng to theyr wayes and after theyr owne inuencions, ſo did I pu- E niſhe them. *Now when they were gone *Eſa.52.b Roma.2.c vnto the Heathen, and come in amonge them, they diſhonored my holye name: ſo that it was ſayde of them: Are theſe the people of god, and muſt goe out of their owne land? Thē ſpared I my holy name which the houſe of Iſraell had diſhonored among the Gentiles, to whome they came. Therfore tel the houſe of Iſraell. Thus ſayth the lord God: I do not this for your ſakes (O houſe of Iſraell) but for my holy names ſake, which ye diſhonored among ẏ Heathē, when ye came to them. Therfore, I wil halow my great name agayn, which among the Gentiles is euil ſpoken of: for ye your ſelues haue diſhonored it among thē. And ẏ gentiles ſhal know that I am ẏ lord, when I am honored in you before theyr eyes, ſayth F the lord god. As for you, I wil take you from amōg the Heathen, and gather you together out of al countreyes, and bring *eſa.44.a Iere.17.c you agayne into your owne lande. Thē wil I powre clere water vpon you, & ye ſhalbe cleane: yea, from all your vnclennes, and from al your idols ſhal I clenſe you. A new heart alſo wil I geue you, & a new ſpirite wil I put into you. As for ẏ ſtony heart, I wil take it out of youre body & geue you a fleſhy hearte. I will geue my ſpirite among you & cauſe you *Deu.8.d to walke in my cōmaundemētes, to kepe my lawes, & to fulfyl thē. And ſo ye ſhall dwel in the land, ẏ I gaue to your forefathers, and ye ſhal be my people, and I wil be your God. I wil helpe you out of all your vnclenneſſe. I will call for the corne, and will encreaſe it, and lette you haue no hunger. I wil multiply ẏ frutes of the trees, and the increaſe of the fielde for you, ſo that ye ſhal beare no more reprofe of hūger among the Heathen. Thē ſhal ye remēbre your own wicked waies and your ymaginacions, which were not good: ſo that ye ſhal thinke that ye were worthy to be deſtroyed, for your ſinnes and abhominacions.

G But I wil not doe this for your ſakes (ſayeth the Lorde God) be ye ſure of it. Therfore, O ye houſe of Iſrael, be aſhamed of your ſynnes. Moreouer, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: What tyme as I ſhall clenſe you from all youre offences, then wil I make the cities to be occupyed agayne, and will repayre the places that be decayed. The deſolate lande ſhal be builded agayn, which afore time laye waſte in the ſyghte of all them that went by. Then ſhall it bee ſayde: thys waſte lande is become lyke a gardyne of pleaſure, and the voyde, deſolate, and brokē downe cities, are nowe ſtrong and defenced agayne. Then the reſidue of the Heathen that lye rounde about you, ſhal knowe that I am the Lorde, whiche repayre that that was broken downe, and plant againe that that was made waſte. Euen I the Lorde haue ſpoken it, and wil doe it in dede. Thus ſayeth the lord God: I wil yet once be founde agayn of the houſe of Iſrael, & doe this for them: *I ſhal encreaſe them as a flock of men: Iere.34 Lyke as the holy flocke and the flocke of Ieruſalē are in the hye ſolemne feaſtes: ſo ſhall alſo the wylde waſted cities be fylled with flockes of men: and they ſhal know that I am the Lorde.

The.xxxvii.Chapter.

He prophecieth the bringing agayne of the people, being in captiuitie. He ſheweth the vnion of the ten tribes with the two.

THe hand of the lord came vpon me, and caried me oute in the ſpirite of A the lord, & let me down in a playne field, that lay ful of bones, and he led me round about by them: & behold, ẏ bones that lay vpon the fielde, were very many and marueilous drye alſo. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou ſōne of mā: thinkeſt thou theſe bones may liue again? I anſwered: O Lorde God, thou knoweſte. And he ſaid vnto me. Prophecy thou vpō theſe bones, and ſpeake vnto them. Ye drye bones, heare ẏ word of the lorde. Thus ſayeth the lorde God vnto theſe bones: Beholde, I wyll put breathe into you, ẏ ye may liue: I will geue you ſinowes and make fleſhe grow vpon you, and couer you ouer with ſkinne: & ſo geue you *breth, that ye may lyue, and know that B *Gen.2.b I am the lord. So I prophecied, as he had cōmaunded me. And as I was prophecying, there came a noyſe and a great mocion, ſo that the bones ran euerye one to another. Now when I had loked, beholde, they had ſinowes, and fleſhe grew vpon them:and aboue they were coue-red with ſkinne,but there was no breth in them. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou C ſonne of man,prophecy thou toward the winde:prophecy and ſpeake to the wind.

Thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Come (O thou ayre) from the foure wyndes, and blow vpon theſe ſlayn,that they may be reſtored to lyfe. So I prophecied as he had commaũded me:then came the breth into them,& they receiued life,& ſtode vp vpon their fete,a merueilous great ſort.
Moreouer,he ſayd vnto me:Thou ſõne of man,theſe bones are the whole houſe of Iſrael. Behold, they ſaye: Our bones are dryed vp,oure hope is gone, we are cleane cut of. Therfore prophecy thou,& D ſpeake vnto them:thus ſayeth the lorde god. Behold, I wil open your graues(o my people)and take you out of your ſe-pulchres, and bring you into the land of Iſrael agayne. So ſhal ye knowe that I am the lorde,when I open your graues and bryng you out of them. My ſpirite alſo wil I put in you,and ye ſhall liue: I wil ſet you agayne in your owne lande, and ye ſhal knowe that I am the Lorde whiche haue ſayde it, and fulfylled it in dede.

The woorde of the Lorde came vn-to me,ſaying:thou ſonne of manne,take a ſticke, and write vpon it:Unto Iuda and to the childrẽ of Iſrael his companions.
Then take another ſticke and write vpõ E it:Unto Ioſeph the ſtocke of Ephraim, and to all the houſeholde of Iſraell hys companyons. And then take bothe theſe together in thyne hande, ſo ſhal there bee one ſticke thereof. Now if the children of thy people ſaye vnto the, wilte thou not ſhewe vs what thou meaneſte by theſe?
Then geue them this anſwere:thus ſai-eth Oſe.i.b. the Lorde:beholde,* I wil take the ſtocke of Ioſeph, whiche is in the hande of Ephraim,and of the tribes of Iſraell hys felowes, and wyll put them to the ſtocke of Iuda, and make thẽ one ſtocke, and they ſhalbe one in my hande. And the two ſtyckes wherevpon thou writeſte, ſhalt thou haue in thyne hande,that they may ſe,and ſhalt ſay vnto them.

F Thus ſayth the lord God:beholde, I wil take away the children of Iſraell from among the Heathen, vnto whome they be gone,and will gather them toge-ther on euerye ſyde, and bryng them a-gayne into theyr owne lande:yea, I will make one people of them in the lande,v-pon the mountaynes of Iſrael, and they all ſhal haue but one kyng. They ſhall no more be two peoples from henceforth, neither be deuided into two kingdomes, they ſhal alſo defyle thẽſelues no more with theyr abhominacions, Idols,and al theyr wicked dooynges. I will helpe them out of all theyr dwellyng places, wherin they haue ſynned:and wil ſo clẽſe them, that they ſhalbe my people, and I theyr God.

Dauyd my ſeruaunte ſhall be theyr G kyng, and they all ſhall haue one ſhepe-hearde onelye. They ſhall walke in my lawes,and my commaundementes ſhal they both kepe & fulfill. They ſhal dwell in the lande,that I gaue vnto Iacob my ſeruaunte, where as your fathers alſo haue dwelte:yea,euen in the ſame lande ſhal they,theyr chyldren, and theyr chil-dres children dwel for euermore,and my ſeruaunt Dauid ſhalbe their euerlaſting prince. Moreouer, I will make a bonde of peace with them, whiche ſhalbe vnto them an euerlaſting couenant. I wil ſet-tle them alſo, and multiply them, my Sanctuary wil I ſette among them for euermore.* My dwellyng ſhall be with Leu.26.b them:yea, I will be theyr God, and they ſhalbe my people. Thus the Heathen al-ſo ſhall knowe, that I the Lorde am the holy maker of Iſraell, when my Sanc-tuary ſhalbe among them for euermore.

B God. Into Magog, and, among thoſe that ſit ſo careles in the yles, will I ſend a fyre, and they ſhall knowe, that I am the Lorde: I will make alſo the name of my holyneſſe to bee knowen among my people of Iſraell: and I will not let my holy name be euyl ſpoken of, anye more: but the very Heathen alſo ſhall knowe, that I am the Lorde the holy one of Iſraell. Beholde, it cummeth, and ſhall be fulfilled in dede, ſayeth the Lorde God. This is the day wherof I haue ſpoken. They that dwell in the cities of Iſraell, ſhall goe furth and ſet fyre vpon the wepons, ⁊ burne them: ſhieldes ⁊ ſpeares, bowes, and arowes, billes and clubbes: ſeuen yeres ſhal they be burning therof, ſo that they ſhall elles bryng no ſtyckes from the field, neither haue nede to hewe down any out of the wood. For they ſhal haue weapons ynough to burne. They C ſhall robbe thoſe that robbed them, and ſpoyle thoſe that ſpoyled them, ſaith the Lord god. At the ſame tyme wil I geue vnto Gog, a place to be buried in Iſrael, euen the valley, where thorowe men goe from the eaſt to the ſea ward. Thoſe that trauayle therby, ſhall ſtoppe theyr noſes for ſtenche. There ſhall Gog and all hys people be buried: and it ſhalbe called the valley of the people of Gog. Seuen monethes long ſhall the houſe of Iſrael be D burying of them, yͭ they may clēſe yͤ land: yea, al yͤ people of the land ſhal bury thē. O, it ſhal be a glorious day when I get me yͤ honour, ſayth the lorde God. They ſhal ordeine men alſo to be dead buriers, euer going thorow the land: ⁊ appoynte them certayne places to burye thoſe in, whiche remayne vpon the fielde, that the lande may be clenſed. From ende to ende ſhall they ſeeke, and that ſeuen monethes long. Nowe thoſe that goe thorowe the lande, where they ſee a mans bone, they ſhall ſet vp a token by it, til the dead buriers haue buryed it alſo in the valley of the people of Gog. And the name of the citye ſhall bee called Hamonah (that is, a multitude.) Thus ſhall they make the lande cleane.

And thou ſonne of man, thus ſayth the lord god. Speake vnto al the foules and euery byrd, yea ⁊ to al yͤ wild beaſtes of E yͤ field: heape you together and come gather you rounde about vpon my ſlaughter, that I haue ſlayne for you, euen a great ſlaughter vpon the mountaynes of Iſrael: eate fleſhe, and drynke bloude. Ye Apo.19.d ſhall *eate the fleſhe of the woorthies, and drinke the bloud of the prynces of yͤ lande: of the wethers, of the lambes, of the goates, and of the oxen that bee all ſlayne at Baſan. Eate the fat your belly full, and drinke bloud, till ye be dronken, of yͤ ſlaughter which I haue ſlayne vnto you. Fil you at my table with horſes and ſtrong horſemen, with captaynes ⁊ men of warre, ſaith the lord god. I wil bring my glory alſo among the Gentiles, that al the Heathen may ſee my iudgemente, yͭ I haue kept, and my hand which I haue F layd vpon them: that the houſe of Iſrael may know, how that I am the Lorde theyr God from that daye furth. And the Heathen ſhall knowe, that where as the houſe of Iſraell were ledde into captiuitie: it was for theyr wickednes ſake, becauſe they offended me.

For the whiche cauſe I hyd my face from them, and delyuered them into the handes of their enemies, that they might all be ſlayne with the ſweord. According to theyr vnclenneſſe and vnfaythful dealynges, ſo haue I entreated them, and hyd my face from them.

Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: G Now wil I bryng agayne the captiues of Jacob, ⁊ haue mercy vpon the whole houſe of Iſraell, and bee gelous for my names ſake. All theyr confuſion and offence that they haue doone agaynſte me, ſhall be taken awaye: and ſo ſafely ſhall they dwell in theyr lande, that no manne ſhall make them afrayde. And when I haue brought them agayne from among the people, when I haue gathered them together oute of theyr enemyes landes, and am prayſed in thē beefore many Heathen: Then ſhall they knowe, that I am the Lorde theyr God, whiche ſuffered them to bee ledde into captiuitie among the Heathen. But nowe haue I brought them agayne into theyr owne lande, and haue not lefte one of them yonder. After that, will I hyde my face no more from them, *but will powre oute my ſpiryte *Ez.36.d vpon the houſe of Iſraell, ſayeth the Lorde God.

The.xl.Chapter.

The reſtoryng of the cytics and of the temple that was to come, is ſhewed vnto the Prophete.

IN the .xxv. yere of oure capti- A uitye, in the beegynnyng of the yere, the tenth daye of the moneth: that is, the .xiiii. yere after yͭ the citie was ſmitten downe, the ſame day came the hand of the lord vpon me, ⁊ caryed me furth: euē into yͤ land of Iſrael brought he me in yͤ viſions of god: ⁊ ſet me ſette me downe vpon a meruellous hye mountayn, wherupon there was a building (as it had beene of a citie) towarde the north. Thither he caryed me, and behold, there was a man, whoſe ſimilitude was lyke braſſe, which had a threde of flaxe in his hand, and a meterod alſo. He ſtode in the dore, and ſayd vnto me: thou ſonne of man, marke wel with thine eies, harken to with thyne eares, and faſten it in thine heart, whatſoeuer I ſhal ſhewe the: for to that intent that they might be ſhewed thee, therfore art thou broughte hither. And whatſoeuer thou ſeeſt, thou ſhalt certify the houſe of Iſraell therof.

B Behold, there was a wal on the outſide round about the houſe: the meterod that he had in his hande, was .vi. cubites lōg and a ſpan. So he meaſured the bredth of the building, whiche was a meterod, and the heigth alſo a metrod. Then came he vnto the eaſte doore, and went vp the ſtayres, and meaſured the poſtes of the doore, wherof euery one was a meterod thicke. Euery chaumbre was a meterod long and brode: betwene the chaumbres were fyue cubites. The poſt of the dore within the porche, was one meterod. He meaſured alſo the porch of the innermer dore, which contayned a meterod. Then meaſured he the entry of the doore, that contayned eyghte cubites, and hys pyllers two cubites, and thys entry ſtoode C inwarde. The chaumbres of the doore eaſtward, were .iii. on euery ſyde: a lyke brode and longe. The pyllers alſo that ſtode on both the ſydes, were of one meſure. After thys, he meaſured the wydenes of the doore, whiche was tenne cubites, and the heyghte of the doore thyrteene cubites. The edge before the chambres was one cubite broade vpon both the ſydes, and the chambres ſixe cubites wyde of eyther ſyde. He meaſured the doore from the ridge of one chambre to another, whoſe wideneſſe, was .xxv. cubites, and one doore ſtode agaynſt another. He made pyllers alſo .lx. cubites hie, round about the courte dore. Before the inwarde part vnto the fore entrye of the innermore doore, were fifty cubites. The chambres and theyr pyllers within rounde about vnto the doore had ſyde windowes. So had the fore entries alſo, whoſe windowes went round about within. And vpon the pillers there ſtode date trees. Then brought he me into the fore court, where as were chambres and paued workes, made in the fore courte round about. xxx. chaumbres vpon one paued worke. Now the paued worke was along beſyde the dores ⁊ that was the lower paued worke. After thys he meaſured the bredthe from the lower doore, vnto the innermore-courte of the outſyde, which had an hūdreth cubites vpon the eaſt and the northpart. And the dore in the vttermoſt court toward the northe, meaſured he after the length and bredth: hys thre chambres alſo on either ſyde with hys pyllers and fore entries, which had euen the meaſure of the firſte dore. Hys heygthe was .l. cubites, the bredth .xxv. cubites, his windowes and porches with hys date trees, had euen like meaſure as the dore toward ẏ eaſt: there were ſeauen ſteppes to go vp vpō, and theyr porche before them. Now the doore of ẏ innermer court ſtode ſtreight ouer agaynſt the dore, that was toward D the northeaſt. From one dore to another he meaſured an. C. cubites. After that, he brought me to the ſouthſyde wher there ſtode a dore toward ẏ ſouth: whoſe pillers ⁊ porches he meaſured, theſe had ẏ firſt meaſure: ⁊ with theyr porches they had windowes round about, like ẏ firſte windowes. The heygth was .l. cubites, the breadth .xxv. with ſteppes to goe vp vpon: his porche ſtoode before with hys pillers ⁊ date trees on eyther ſyde. And ẏ dore of ẏ innermer court ſtode towarde ẏ ſouth, ⁊ he meſured frō one dore to another, an. C. cubites. So he brought me into the innermer courte, thorow ẏ dore of the ſouthſyde whiche he meſured: ⁊ it had the meſure aforeſayd. In like maner his chambres, pyllers, ⁊ forentries, had euē the foreſaid meſure alſo. And he had wͭ his porches round about windowes of .l. cubites heygthe, and .xxv. cubites brode. The porches round about were .xxv. cubites long, and .v. cubites brode: and hys porche reached vnto the vttermoſt court: vpon his pillers, there were date trees, ⁊ .viii. ſteppes to go vp vpon.

He broughte me alſo into the inmoſt E courte vpon the Eaſteſyde, and meſured the doore accordyng to the meſure afore ſaid, his chambres, pillers and porches had euen the ſame meaſure, as the firſte had: and with his porches he had windowes rounde about. The heigth was .l cubites, ẏ bredth .xxv cubites: his porch reached vnto the vttermoſt courte: hys pillers alſo had date trees on either ſide and.viii.ſteppes to goe vp vpon. And he brought me to the north dore, and meaſured it, whiche alſo had the foreſayde meaſure. His chaumbers, pillers, & porches had windowes roūd about: whoſe heygth was.l.cubites, and the breadth xxv. His pillers ſtode towarde yͤ vtmoſt courte, and vpon them both were date trees, and.viii.ſteppes to goe vp vpon. There ſtode a chaumbre alſo, whoſe entraunce was at the doore pyllers, and there the burnte offringes were waſhed.

f In the dore porch, there ſtoode on either ſyde, two tables for the ſlaughtynge, to ſlaye the burnt offeringes, ſinofferinges, and treſpaceofferinges therupon. And on the outſide as men go furth to the north doore, there ſtode two tables. Foure tables ſtode on eyther ſyde of the doore, yͤ is.viii.tables: wherupon they ſlaughted. Foure tables were of hewen ſtone for the burntofferinges, of a cubite and a halfe long and brode, and one cubite hye: whereupon were layed the veſſelles and ornamentes which were vſed to yͤ burnt and ſlayne offerynges, when they were ſlaughted. And within there were hokes, foure fyngers broade, faſtened round about to hang fleſhe vpon, and vpon the tables was layde the offering fleſhe. On the outſyde of the innermore dore, were the ſyngers chaumbres, in the inwarde courte beſyde the northe doore ouer againſt the ſouth. There ſtode one alſo beſyde the eaſt doore northwarde. And he G ſayde vnto me: Thys chaumbre on the ſoutheſyde beelongeth to the Prieſtes, that kepe the habitaciō: and this toward the north, *is the Prieſtes that wayte vpon the aulter, whiche be the ſonnes of *Sadoch, that dooe ſeruice beefore the Lorde in ſteade of the children of Leui. So he meaſured yͤ forecourt, which had in lengthe an.C.cubites, and aſmuche in bredth by the foure corners. Nowe the aulter ſtoode beefore the houſe. And he brought me to the fore entry of yͤ houſe, and meaſured the walles by the enterye doore, which were fyue cubites long on eyther ſyde. The thyckeneſſe alſo of the dore on eyther ſyde, was three cubites. The length of yͤ porche was.xx.cubites: the bredth.xi.cubites, and vpon ſteppes went menne vp to it: by the walles alſo were pillers, on eyther ſyde one.

The diſpoſicion and deuyſe of building agayne the temple, & of the other thinges therto belonging.

After this he brought me to the temple, and meſured the poſtes, which were of bothe ſydes ſyxe cubites thicke, accordyng to the wydenes of the tabernacle. The bredth of the dore was ten cubites, and the walles of the doore on either ſide fyue cubites. He meaſured the length therof, which conteyned.xl.cubites, and the bredth.xx. Then wēt he in and meaſured the doore poſtes, whiche were.ii.cubites thycke: but the doore it ſelfe was.vi.cubites, and the bredth of yͤ doore was ſeuen cubites. He meaſured the length & bredth therof, which wer euery one twenty cubites, before the temple. And he ſayd vnto me: this is the holyeſt of all. He meaſured alſo the wall of the houſe, whiche was.vi.cubites. The chambres yͭ ſtode roūd about the houſe, wer euery one foure cubites wide: & one ſtode harde vpon an other, wherof there were.xxxiii. Ther ſtode poſtes beneth by the walles roūd about yͤ houſe, to beare them vp, but in yͤ walle of the houſe they were not faſtened. The ſyde chaumbres were the hyer the wyder, & had ſteppes thorow thē round about yͤ houſe. Thus was it wyder aboue, that from the lo- B weſt, men mighte goe to the hyeſt by the mid chambres. I ſaw alſo that the houſe was very hye round about. The foūdacion of the ſide chambres was a metrod, that is.vi.cubites, brode. The thickneſſe of the ſyde wall without, contayned.v.cubites, & ſo did the outwal of the chambres in the houſe.

Beetwene the chaumbres was the wydenes.xx.cubites, rounde aboute the houſe. The chaumbre doores ſtoode ouer agaynſte the outewall, the one doore was toward yͤ northe, the other toward the Southe: and the thyckeneſſe of the outwalle was fyue cubites rounde about. Now the building that was ſeparated towarde the weſte, was.lxx.cubites wyde: the walle of the buildynge was.v.cubites thycke, rounde aboute, and the lengthe, foure ſcore cubites and tenne. So he meaſured the houſe, which was an.C.cubites long: and the ſeparated building with the walle, were an.C.cubites long alſo. The widnes before yͤ houſe, and of it that was ſeparated toward the eaſt, was an.C.cubites.

C And he meaſured the lengthe of the buildyng beefore and behynde, with the chaumbres vpon both the ſydes, and it conteyned an. C. cubites. The innermer temple, the porche of the fore courte, the ſyde poſtes, theſe three had ſyde wyndowes, and pyllers rounde about ouer agaynſt the poſtes, from the grounde vp to the windowes. The windowes them ſelues were ſyled ouer with boordes: and thus was it aboue the doore vnto the inmoſt houſe, and without alſo. Yea, yͤ whole walle on euery ſyde, both within ⁊ without, was ſyled ouer with great boordes. There were cherubyns and date trees made alſo, ſo yͤ one date tree ſtode euer betwixt two Cherubins. One D Cherub had two faces, the face of a man loking aſyde towarde the date tree, and a Lyons face on the other ſyde. Thus was it made round about in al yͤ houſe.
Yea the Cherubins and date trees were made from the grounde vp aboue the doore, and ſo ſtoode they alſo vpon the wall of the temple.

The bypostes of the temple were foureſquared, and the faſhyon of the Sanctuarye was * euen as it appeared Ezech.i.c vnto me afore in the viſyon. ‡ The table ‡Exo.25.c. was of wood. iii. cubites hye, and. ii. cu-bites long: hys corners, the lengthe, and the walles were of wood. And he ſayde vnto me, This is yͤ table that ſhal ſtand before the Lord. The temple, and the holieſt of all had either of them two dores, and euerye dore had two litle wickettes which were folden in, one vpon an other, on euery ſide two. And vpon the doores of the temple there were made Cheru-bins and date trees, lyke as vpon the walles: and a great thick balke of wood was before on the outſyde of the porch.
Vpon both the ſides of the walles of the porche, ther were made depe windowes and date trees, hauing beames ⁊ balkes lyke as the houſe had.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Of the chambres of the tẽple for the prieſtes, and the holy thinges.

A Then caried he me oute into the fore court toward the north, ⁊ brought me into yͤ chambre that ſtode ouer agaynſt the backebuilding northwarde, which had the lengthe of an. C. cubites, whoſe dore turned toward yͤ north. The widnes cõtayned. l. cubites: ouer againſt the. xx. cubites of the innermer court and againſt the paued worke that was in the court, beſyde all theſe three, there ſtoode pillers, one ouer agaynſte another. And before this chaumbre there was a walking place of. x. cubites wyde, and within was a waye of one cubite wyde, and theyr doores toward the north. Thus yͤ hyeſt chambres were alwaye narrower then the loweſte and myddelmoſt of the buildyng, for they bare chaumbre vpon chaũbre, ⁊ ſtode three together one vpon an other, not hauing pillers lyke the fore courte: therefore were they ſmaller then thoſe beneth, and in the middeſt, to reken from the ground vpward. The wal with- B out that ſtode by the chaumbres toward the vttermoſt court vpon the foreſide of yͤ chambres, was. l. cubites long, for the length of the vttermoſt chambres in the fore courte was. l. cubites alſo: but the lẽgth therof before yͤ temple, was an. c. cubites. Theſe chaumbres had vnder them an entraũce of yͤ eaſtſide, wherby a man might go into thẽ out of yͤ fore court thorow the thicke wall of yͤ fore courte toward the eaſt, right ouer agaynſt yͤ ſe-parated building. Before the ſame building vpon thys ſyde, there were chaumbres alſo, which had a waye vnto them, lyke as the chambre on the northſyde, of the ſame length and wydenes. Theyr en- C trance, faſhion, ⁊ dores, were alſo of the ſame maner. Yea, euen lyke as the other chambre doores were, ſo were thoſe alſo of the ſouthſyde. And before the way toward the ſyngers ſteppes on the eaſt-ſyde, there ſtode a doore to go in at. The ſayd he vnto me: The chambres toward the north and the ſouth whiche ſtand before the backe building: thoſe be holy ha-bitacions, wherin the prieſtes that doe ſeruice before the lord, muſt eat the moſt holy offerynges: and there muſt they lay yͤ moſt holy offeringes: meate offeringes ſinne offeringes, and treſpace offeringes, for it is an holy place. When the prieſtes come therin, they ſhal not go out into the fore courte: but (ſeing they be holy) they ſhal leaue the clothes of theyr mynyſtra-cion, and put on other garmentes, when they haue any thing to do with yͤ people.
Nowe when he had meaſured all the in- D nermer houſe, he broughte me foorthe thorowe the eaſte porte, and meaſured the ſame rounde about. He meaſured the eaſt ſide with the meterod, which rounde aboute contayned. v. c. meterodes: And

the northſide meaſured he, whiche conteyned rounde aboute euen ſo muche. The other two ſides alſo toward the ſouth and the weſt, whiche he meaſured, conteined either of them .v. hundred meterods. So he meaſured al the.iiii.ſides, wher ther went a wall round about, v. hundred meterods long, and as broade alſo, which ſeperated the holy from the unholy.

The.xliii. Chapter.

He ſeeth the glory of God going into the Temple from whēce it had before departed. He mencioneth the idolatry of the chyldren of Iſrael, for the which they were conſumed and brought to nought. He is commaunded to call them agayne to repentaunce.

So he brought me to the dore yͭ turneth toward the Eaſte. Behold, then came yͤ glory of yͤ god of Iſrael, from out of the Eaſt, whoſe voice was like a great noyſe of waters, ⁊ the yearth was lightened with hys glory. His ſight to loke upon was *like the firſte that I ſawe, when I wente in, what time as yͤ city ſhoulde haue bene deſtroyed: *and like the viſion that I ſawe by yͤ water of Cobar. Then fel I upō my face: but the glorye of the lorde came into the houſe, through yͤ Eaſt dore. So a wind toke me up, ⁊ brought me into the innermer court: B ⁊ behold, the houſe was ful of the glory of yͤ lord. I heard one ſpeakyng unto me out of the houſe, ⁊ ther ſtode one by me, yͭ ſayde unto me: O yͧ ſonne of man, * thys roume is my ſeat, and the place of my fote ſteps, whereas I wil dwel among the children of Iſrael for euermore: ſo that the houſe of Iſrael ſhal no more defile my holye name: nether they, nor their kinges through their whordome, throughe their hye places, and through the deade bodies of their kynges: whiche haue builded theyr threſholdes in maner harde upon my threſholdes, ⁊ theyr poſtes almoſt at my poſtes, and a wal betwixt me and them. Thus haue they defiled my holy name with their abhominacions, yͭ thei haue committed. C Wherfore I haue deſtroyed thē in my wrath. But now they ſhal put away their whordom, ⁊ the deade bodyes of their kynges oute of my ſight, that I may dwel among them for euermore. *Therfore O thou ſonne of man, ſhew yͧ the houſhold of Iſraell a temple yͭ they maie be aſhamed of their wickednes, ⁊ meaſure themſelfes an example thereat. And when they bee aſhamed of all theyr workes, then ſhew thē the fourme ⁊ faſhion of the temple, yͤ comming in, the goinge out, all the maner and deſcripcion thereof. Yea, al the uſes and ordinaunces of it, that they may kepe and fulfil al the faſhions and cuſtomes therof. This is the deſcripciō of D the houſe. Aboue upon the mount rounde about al yͤ corners, it ſhalbe yͤ holieſt of all. Beholde, yͭ is the deſcripcion ⁊ faſhion of the houſe. This is the meaſure of the alter, after yͤ true cubite, whiche is a ſpan longer thē another cubite: his bottom in the middeſt was a cubite long and wide, and the ledge yͭ went round about it, was a ſpan broad. This is the heigth of the alter. Frō the ground to yͤ lower ſteps, the length is two cubites, and the bredth one cubite: and from the lower ſteps to the higher, are.iiii cubites, and the bredth but one cubite.

*The alter was foure cubytes hye, *Ex,27. and from the alter upwarde ſtoode foure hornes, and it was twelue cubites longe, and twelue cubites broade upon the foure corners: the couering of the alter was.xiiii cubytes longe, and broade upon the foure corners, and the ledge that wente rounde aboute hadde halfe a cubyte, and the bottome thereof rounde aboute one cubite: his E ſteppes ſtode towarde the Eaſte. And he ſayde unto me: Thou ſonne of man, thus ſaith the lord god: theſe are the ordinaunces and lawes of the alter in the daye when it is made to offer burnte offeringes, and to ſprinkle bloude therupon. To the prieſtes, to the Leuites that bee of the ſeede of Sadoch, * ⁊ treade before me to do me ſeruice, *Ez.44.c and.48.b ſayeth the Lorde God: Unto theſe geue yͧ a yonge bullocke for a ſinne offering: ⁊ take the bloude of him, and ſprinkle his foure hornes withal: ⁊ the.iiii.corners of yͤ alter couering, with yͤ ledge that goeth rounde F aboute: herewith ſhalte thou clenſe it, and reconcile it. * Thou ſhalt take the bullocke Leu.16.f alſo of the ſynne offering, and burne him in a ſeuerall place without the Sanctuarye. The next daye, take a gote bucke, without blemiſhe, for a ſynne offeryng, to reconcile the Alter withal, lyke as it was reconciled with yͤ bullocke. Nowe when thou haſte made it cleane, then offer a yong bullocke *Leu.22.c without blemiſh, ⁊ a ram out of the flocke G without blemiſh alſo. Offer thē before the Lorde, and let yͤ prieſte caſt *ſalt therupon, *Leu.2.b and geue them ſo unto the lord for a burnt offering. Seuen dayes ſhalt thou bryng euery day a goate bucke for ſynne. A yonge bullocke ⁊ a ram of yͤ flocke, both without blemiſh, ſhal they offer. Seuen dayes ſhal they reconcyle and clenſe the Alter, and of‑

ker vpon it. When theſe dayes are expyred, then vpon the eyght daye and ſo forth, the Prieſtes ſhall offer their burnte offeringes, and helthofferinges vpon the alter: ſo I wyll be mercifull vnto you, ſayth the Lorde God.

The.xliiii. Chapter.

He ſheweth what dore of yͤ tēple is ſhut. He is cōmaunded to vpbrayd the people with theyr offence. The vncircumciſed in hearte, and in the fleſh. Who are to be admitted to the ſeruyce of the temple, and who to bee refuſed. He ſheweth what prieſtes he would haue admitted into the holye place, and alſo theyr offyce.

A After thys he brought me againe to yͤ outward dore of the Sanctuary on the Eaſt ſide, and that was ſhut. Thē ſaid the Lord vnto me: this dore ſhalbe ſtill ſhut, and not opened for any manne to goe through it, but onely for yͤ lord god of Iſrael: yea, he ſhal go through it, els ſhal it be ſhut ſtil. The Prince himſelf ſhal come thorough it, yͭ he may eat bread before yͤ lord. At the portch ſhal he come in, & ther ſhal he goe out again. Then brought he me to the dore vpon the north ſide of the houſe. And Exo.24.d. and.40.e Num.9,c 4.Re.8.b as I loked about me, beholde, the glorye of the lord filled the houſe, & I fel down vpon my face. So the lorde ſpake vnto me: O thou ſonne of man, faſten this to thyne B heart, behold, and take diligent hede to al yͭ I wil ſay vnto the concernyng al the ordynaunces of the lord, and al his lawes: ponder wel with thine hearte the commyng in of the houſe, and the goinge foorth of the Sanctuary, and tell that obſtinate houſehold of Iſrael. Thus ſaith the Lord God: O houſe of Iſraell, ye haue nowe done ynough with al your abhominacions, ſeing that ye haue brought into my Sanctuary ſtraungers, hauinge vncircumciſed hartes and fleſhe, where through my Sanctuary is defiled, when ye offer me bread, fat, and bloude. Thus with al youre abhominacy- C ons ye haue broken my couenaunte, and not kept the holy ordinaunces of my Sāctuary: but ſette kepers of my Sanctuary, euen after youre owne mynde. Therefore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: of all the ſtraungers that dwell among the childrē of Iſraell, no ſtraunger whoſe hearte and fleſhe is not cyrcumcyſed, ſhall come wythin my Sanctuarye: No, nor the Leuites that be gone backe fro me, and haue diſceiued the people of Iſraell with all errours, goyng after theyr Idolles: therefore ſhall they beare theyr own wickednes. Should they be ſette and ordeyned to minſter vnder the dores of the houſe of my Sanctuary? And to doe ſeruice in the houſe, to ſlay burnt offeringes & ſacrifices for the people, to ſtande before them, and to ſerue them, ſeeinge the ſeruice yͭ they do them, is before their ydols, & cauſe the houſe of Iſraell to D ſtumble through theyr wickednes? ‡For yͤ which cauſe I haue pluct out mine hand ouer them, ſaith the lord god: ſo yͭ now they muſt beare their owne iniquity, and not to come nye me to ſerue me with theyr prieſthode i my Sanctuary, & moſt holieſt of al: that they maye beare their own ſhame and abhominacions, whiche they haue done. Shoulde I vſe them to bee porters of the houſe, & to all the ſeruice yͭ is done therein? But the prieſtes, the Leuites, the ſōne of Sadoch, yͭ kepte the holye ordinaunces of my Sanctuary, whē the childrē of Iſraell wer gone frō me, ſhal come to me, to do me ſeruice, to ſtād before me, & to offer me yͤ fat & the bloud, ſaith yͤ lord god. They ſhal go into my Sanctuary, & treade before my ta- E ble: to dooe me ſeruice, and to wayte vpon myne ordinaunces. And

G And when he is clenſed, there ſhalbee rekened vnto hym ſeuen dayes: and yf he go into the Sanctuary agayne to doe ſeruice, he ſhall bryng a ſynne offeryng, ſaith the lord God. *They ſhal haue an herytage, yea, I my ſelfe wyl bee theyr heritage, els ſhal ye geue them no poſſeſſiō in Iſraell, for I am theyr poſſeſſion. The meat offerynges, ſinofferyng, ⁊ treſpaſſe offering ſhal they eate: and euery dedicate thyng in Iſrael, ſhalbee theyrs. The fyrſtlynges of all the fyrſte fruites, and all frewyll offeringes ſhall be the prieſtes. ye ſhal geue vnto the prieſt alſo al the fyrſt fruite of your fyrſte borne, al I ſaye, and al that is ſeperated vnto God: al your heue offerynges (I ſaye) ſhalbe yͤ preſtes, ⁊ alſo yͤ firſtlinges of your dough, yͭ god may proſper yͤ reſidue. *But no dead caryon ſhal the Prieſte eate, nor ſuch as is deuoured of wild beaſtes, foules, or cattell.

The ſacrifices of the Sabboth and of the new moones. Through which doores they muſte go in, or come out of the temple. &c.

A THus ſaith the lord god: the dore of the innermer court toward ẏ Eaſt, ſhalbe ſhut ẏ.vi. workinge dayes: but in the Sabboth, & in the daye of the new mone, it ſhalbe opened. Then ſhal the prince come vnder the doore portch, and ſtand ſtil without by the dore cheke. So ẏ preſtes ſhal offer vp his burnt and helth offeringes. And he ſhal worſhip at the dore poſte, and goe his waye foorth agayne, but the dore ſhall nomore bee ſhut tyl the euenyng. On the ſame maner ſhal ẏ B people of the lande alſo doe theyr worſhyp before the Lorde without thys dore, vpõ the Sabbothes and new mones. This is now the burnt offering, that the prince ſhal bryng vnto the Lord vpon the Sabboth: ſyxe lambes without blemiſhe, and a ram wythoute blemiſhe, and an Ephah for a meat offering with the ramme. As for the lambes, he maye geue as many meate offerynges to them as he will: and an hyn of oyle to an Ephah. In the daye of the newe moneth, it ſhalbe a yonge bullocke without blemiſhe: ſixe lambes and a ram alſo without blemiſh: With the bullocke he ſhal geue an Ephah, and with the ramme an Ephah alſo for a meat offering, but to the lambes, what he maye come by. And euer an hin of C oyle to an Ephah. Whẽ the prince cõmeth, he ſhal goe vnder the dore portche, and euẽ there departe forth againe. But when the people of the lande come before the Lord in the hye ſolemne feaſte, as many as come in by the north dore to do woorſhip, ſhall go out againe at the ſouth dore. And they that come in at the ſouth dore, ſhall goe forth agayne at the north doore. There ſhal none go out at the dore, wher he came in, but ſhal go right forth ouer on the other ſide. and ẏ Prince ſhall goe in and out among thẽ. Upon the ſolemne and hye feaſte dayes, this ſhalbee the meate offering. An Ephah to a bullocke, & an Ephah to a ram, and to the D lambes, as many as he wil: but euer an hin of oyle to an Ephah. Now whẽ the prince bringeth a burnt offering, or an helthoffering with a fre will vnto the lord, the Eaſt dore ſhalbe opened vnto him, ẏ he maye do with his burnt and helthofferinges, as he doth vpon the Sabboth: & when he goeth forth, ẏ dore ſhal be ſhut after him againe. He ſhal daily bring vnto ẏ lord a lamb of a yere old without blemiſh, for a burnt offering: this ſhal he do euerye morning. And E for a meat offering, he ſhal geue ẏ.vi. part of an Ephah, and the thirde part of an hyn of oyle, to mingle with ẏ cakes euery morning. Yea, this ſhalbe a daily meat offering vnto ẏ lord, for an euerlaſting ordinaũce: & thus ſhal ẏ lamb, the meat offering, & oyle be geuen euery morning, for a daily burnt offering. Moreouer thus ſaith ẏ lord god: If the prince geue a gyfte vnto any of hys ſonnes, then ſhal it bee his ſonnes heritage perpetual, ẏ he maye poſſeſſe it. But yf he wil geue one of his ſeruaũtes ſome of his heritage, it ſhalbe his to the *fre yere, & thẽ to returne againe vnto the prince: for hys heritage ſhalbee his ſonnes onelye. ‡ The F prince alſo ſhal take none of the peoples inheritaunce, nor put them from theyr poſſeſſion: but to his own ſonnes ſhal he geue his poſſeſſion, that my people be not ſcatered abroad, but that euerye man maye haue his owne. And he brought me through the entraunce at the ſide of the dore, to the habitaciõ of the Sanctuary, that belongeth to the prieſtes & ſtode toward ẏ north: & behold, there was a place vpon the weſt ſide, then ſaid he vnto me. This is the place wher the G Prieſtes ſhal dight the treſpaſſe & ſin offeringes, & bake the meate offeringes, ẏ they neede not beare them into the outwarde court, and ſo to vnhalowe the people. So he brought me into the vtmoſt court rõud about al the foure corners. Behold, in euery corner of the court, there was yet a lytle court. Yea, in al ẏ.iiii. corners of the court, there was made a litle court of fourtye cubites long, and thirty cubites broad: theſe foure litle courtes wer of one like meaſure, and there wente a ridge wal rounde about them all foure, vnder the whych there wer harthes made rounde about. Then ſaid he vnto me. This is the kytchen wher the mynyſters of the houſe ſhall dyghte the ſlayne offerynges of the people.

The booke of the prophet Daniel.

The fyrſt Chapter.

The prophet ſheweth the captiuitie of Jehoakim kyng of Juda. Of yͤ ſonnes that were in captiuitye: the kynge commaundeth to choſe whych of them ſhould be taught the learnyng and language of the Caldees. They are alowed yͤ kynges fedyng. Daniel abſteineth from the meate of the King of Babilon.

A IN the thyrde yere of the reigne of Jehoakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonoſor kyng of Babylon vnto Jeruſalem,
.36.c and beſeged it:*and the
.24.a. lord deliuered Jehoakim
.24.a the kynge of Juda into hys hande, wyth certayne ornamentes of the houſe of God, whyche he caryed awaye vnto the lande of Sennar, to the houſe of hys god, ⁊ there he brought them into his goddes treaſury.
And the kynge ſpake vnto Aſphanaz the chefe chamberlayne, that he ſhoulde brynge hym certayne of the chyldren of Iſrael, that were come of the kynges ſeede, ⁊ of princes, yong ſpryngaldes wythout any blemiſh, but fayre ⁊ welfauored, inſtructe in al wiſdome, connynge and vnderſtandynge, whych were able to ſtand in the kynges palace, to reade and to learne for to ſpeake Caldyſhe.
B Unto theſe the kynge appoynted a certayne porcion of hys owne meate: and of the wyne, whyche he dranke hym ſelfe, ſo to noryſhe them thre yere: that afterwarde they myghte ſtand before the kynge. Amonge theſe nowe were certayne of the childrē of Juda: namely Danyel, Ananias, Miſael, and Azarias.
Unto theſe the chiefe chamberlayne gaue other names, and called Daniel, Balthaſar: Ananias, Sidrach: Miſaell, Miſach: and .43.c Aſarias, Abednago. But Danyel was at a ſet ouer Daniel, Ananias, Miſael, ⁊ Aſarias, and ſayde: O proue but ten dayes wyth thy ſeruauntes, ⁊ let vs haue pottage to eate, ⁊ water to drinke, then loke vpō our faces, ⁊ theyrs that eate of yͤ kinges meate: And as thou ſeeſt, ſo deale with thy ſeruauntes. So he cōſēted to them in this matter, ⁊ proued them .x. dayes. And after the ten dayes, theyr faces were better liking ⁊ fatter, then all the yong ſpringaldes, which did eat of yͤ kinges D meate. Thus Melaſſar toke awaye theyr meate and wyne, and gaue thē pottage therfore.

God gaue nowe theſe four ſpringaldes connynge and learnyng in all ſcripture and wiſedom: but vnto Daniel ſpecially, he gaue vnderſtandyng of all viſions and dreames.
Now when the tyme was expired, yͭ the kyng had appoynted to bryng in theſe yong ſpringaldes vnto him, the chefe chamberlaine brought thē before Nabuchodonoſor, ⁊ the king comoned wᵗ them. But among them all were founde none ſuch as Daniel, Ananias, Miſael, ⁊ Aſarias. Therfore ſtode they before the king, which in al wiſdome, ⁊ matters of vnderſtādīg, yͭ he enquired of thē, founde thē .x. times better, thē al yͤ ſouthſaiers ⁊ charmers, that were in al his realme. And Daniel abode ſtill, vnto the fyrſt yere of king Cirus.

The ſeconde Chapter.

The dreame of Nabuchodonoſor. He calleth vnto hym ſothſayers, and requyreth of them both the dreame and the interpretacyon therof. They anſwer that they cannot ſhew it. The kyng commaundeth all the wyſe men of Babylon to be ſlayne. Danyel requyreth tyme to ſolute the queſtion. The Lorde openeth the miſtery vnto Daniel. Daniel is brought vnto yͤ king, ⁊ ſheweth him his dreame, ⁊ the interpretaciō therof. Of the euerlaſtyng kyngdome of Chriſt.

IN yͤ ſeconde yeare of the reigne of Nabuchodonoſor, had Nabuchodonoſor a A vexed, ⁊ his ſlepe brake from him. Then the Dani.4.a kyng commaunded to call together all the and.5.a ſothſayers, charmers, witches, and Caldees, for to ſhewe the kinge his dreame. So they came and ſtode before the kynge. And the king ſayde vnto them: I haue dreamed a dreame, ⁊ my ſprite was ſo troubled therewyth, that I haue cleane forgotten, what I dreamed. Upon this the Caldees aunſwered the kyng in yͤ Siryans ſpeche: O king, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Shewe thy ſeruaūtes the dreame, ⁊ we ſhal ſhewe the, what it meaneth.

The king gaue yͤ Caldees their anſwer ⁊ ſaid: It is gone fro me. Yf ye wil not make me vnderſtand yͤ dreame wᵗ the interpretaciō therof ye ſhal die, ⁊ your houſes ſhal be priſed.
But yf ye tel me yͤ dreame ⁊ the meaning therof, ye ſhal haue of me giftes, rewardes ⁊ great honour: onely ſhewe me the dreame ⁊ B yͤ ſygnifycaciō of it. They anſwered againe and ſayde: the kynge muſte ſhewe hys ſeruauntes the dreame: and ſo ſhall we declare what it meaneth. Then the kyng anſwered, ſayinge: I perceyue of a truth, that ye doe but prolonge the tyme, for ſo muche as ye ſe that the thyng is gone from me. Therfore yf ye wyll not tell me the dreame, ye ſhall all haue one iudgemente. But ye fayne and diſſemble wyth vayne wordes, whyche ye ſpeake before me, to put of yͤ tyme. Therfore tell me the dreame, and ſo ſhall I knowe, yf ye can ſhewe me what it meaneth. Upō this, the Caldees gaue anſwere before the Kyng, and ſayde: there is no man vpon earthe, that can tell the thynge, whyche the Kynge ſpeaketh of: yea, there is neyther kinge, prince nor Lorde, that euer aſked ſuche thinges at a ſothſayer, charmer or Caldee: for it is a very harde matter, that the kyng requyreth. Neyther is there any, that can certyfye the kynge therof, excepte the goddes: whoſe dwellyng is not amonge the creatures.

C For the whyche cauſe the kyng was wroth wyth great indignacyon, and commaunded to deſtroye all the wyſe men at Babylon: ⁊ the proclamacyon wente forth, and the wyſe men were ſlayne. They ſought alſo to ſlaye Daniell wͭ hys companyons. Thē Danyell enquired of Arioch the Kynges ſtewarde, of the iudgemente and ſentence, that was gone forth already to kyll ſuche as were wyſe at Babylon. He anſwered and ſayde vnto Arioch, being then the kinges deputye. Why hath yͤ king proclaimed ſo cruel a ſentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon thys went Daniel vp, and deſyred the kyng that he might haue leiſure, to ſhewe the king the interpretacyon: and then came he home agayne ⁊ ſhewed the thynge vnto Ananias, Miſael, and Aſarias hys companyons: that they ſhoulde beſeke the God of heauen for grace in thys ſecret, that Danyell and hys fellowes wyth other ſuche as were wyſe in Babylon, peryſhed not. Then was yͤ miſtery ſhewed vnto Daniel in a viſyon by nyghte. And Daniel prayſed the God of Heauen.

Danyel alſo cryed loude, and ſayde: O that Upon thys wente Danyel in vnto Arioch, whom yͤ kyng had ordained to deſtroye the wyſe at Babylon, he wente vnto hym, and ſayde: deſtroye not ſuche as be wyſe in Babylon, but bryng me in vnto the kynge, and I ſhall ſhewe the Kyng the interpretaciō. Then Arioch brought Daniel in to the kynge in all the haſte, and ſaide vnto hym: I haue founde a man amonge the pryſoners of Iuda, that ſhall ſhewe yͤ kyng the interpretacyō. Then anſwered the King, and ſayde vnto Daniel, whoſe name was Balthazar. Arte thou he that canſte ſhewe me the dreame, whyche I haue ſene, and yͤ interpretacyon therof? Danyel anſwered the kyng to hys face, ⁊ ſayde: As for thys ſecret, for the which the kynge maketh inquiſicion: it is neyther the wyſe, the ſorcerer, yͤ charmer, nor the deuell coniurer, that can certifye the kynge of it. *Onely God in Heauen can open ſecretes, and he it is that ſheweth the kyng Nabuchodonoſor what is for to come C in the latter dayes. Thy dreame, and that whyche thou haſt ſene in thyne heade vpon thy bed, is thys: O kynge, thou dyddeſt caſt in thy mynde, what ſhould come hereafter. So he that is the opener of myſteries telleth the, what is for to come. As for me, thys ſecrete is not ſhewed me, for any wyſdome that I haue, more then any other lyuyng: but onely that I myght ſhewe the kyng the interpretacyon, and that he myght knowe yͤ thoughtes of hys owne harte. Thou kynge ſaweſt, and beholde, there ſtode before the a great ymage whoſe fygure was maruelouſe greate, ⁊ hys vyſage grymme. The images heade was of fyne golde, hys breſt ⁊ armes of ſyluer, his body ⁊ loynes were of copper, hys legges were of yron, hys fete were parte of yron, and parte of earth.

*Thys thou ſaweſt, tyll the tyme that without any handes, there was hewen of a ſtone, whyche ſmote the ymage vpon the fete, that were both of yron and earth, and brake them to poulder: then was the yron, the earthe, the copper, the ſyluer and golde broken al together in peces: and became like the chaffe of corne, that the wynde bloweth awaye from the ſommer floures, that they can no more bee founde. But the ſtone that ſmote yͤ ymage, became a greate mouū=tayne, which fulfilleth yͤ whole earth: This F is the dreame. And nowe will we ſhewe be=ni.5.d fore the kynge what it meaneth. *O Kyng, thou arte a Kynge of Kynges. For the God of heuen hath geuen yͤ a kyngdome, riches, ſtrength, ⁊ maieſtie: and hath delivered thee al thynges, that are amonge the children of men: the beaſtes of the felde, and the foules vnder the Heauen, and geuen the dominion ouer them all: Thou art that golden heade. After thee there ſhall aryſe another kyngdome, whiche ſhalbe leſſe then thyne. The thyrde kyngdome ſhalbe lyke copper, and haue dominacion in all landes. The fourth kyngdome ſhalbe as ſtrong as yron. For lyke as yron bruſeth ⁊ breaketh al thinges: yea, euen as yron beateth euery thynge downe: ſo ſhal it beate downe and deſtroye. Where as thou ſaweſt the fete ⁊ toes, parte of earth ⁊ parte of yron: that is a deuided kyngdome, whiche neuertheleſſe ſhall haue ſome of the yron grounde myxte with it, for ſo muche as thou haſte ſene the yron myxte with yͤ claye. The toes of the fete that were parte of yron and parte of claye: ſygnifieth that it ſhall be a kyngdom, partely ſtronge ⁊ partely weake. And where as thou ſaweſt yron mixt with clay, they ſhall myngle them ſelues with the ſede of ſimple people, and yet not contynue one with another, lyke as yron will not be ſouldered with a potteſhearde.

G In the dayes of theſe kynges, ſhal the God u.9.b. of heauē ſet vp an *euerlaſtyng kyngdome which ſhall not periſhe, and his kyngdome ſhal not be geuen ouer to another people: yea, the ſame ſhall breake, and deſtroye all theſe kyngdomes, but it ſhall endure for euer. And where as thou ſaweſt, yͤ without eb.12.c. any handes there was cut out of the *mouūte a.21.c. ‡ a ſtone, whiche brake the yron, the copper, the earth, the ſiluer and golde in peces: by yͤ hath the great God ſhewed the kyng, what wil come after this. This is a true dreame, and the interpretacion of it is ſure. Then yͤ cte.14.b kyng Nabuchodonoſor * fell downe vpon his face, and bowed him ſelfe vnto Daniel, and commaunded that they ſhoulde offer meatofferynges ⁊ ſwete odoures vnto him. The kyng anſwered Daniel, and ſayd: yea, of a trueth youre God is a God aboue all goddes, a lord aboue all kynges, and an opener of ſecretes: ſeyng thou canſt diſcouer this miſterie. So the kyng made Daniel a great mā, ⁊ gaue him many ⁊ great giftes. ‡Ge.41.f *He made him rular of all the countries of Babylon, ⁊ lord of al the nobles, that were at Babylon. Now Daniel intreated yͤ kyng for Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, ſo yͤ he made them rulars ouer all the offycers in yͤ land of Babilon: But Daniel him ſelfe remayned ſtill in the courte by the kynge.

The.iii. Chapter.

The kyng ſetteth vp a golden Image, whyche he cōmaundeth to be worſhipped. Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago are accuſed becauſe they deſpiſed the kynges commaūdement. They are broughte vnto the kynge, and commaunded to worſhyp the ymage, they refuſe to do it, and are put into a burnyng ouē. By belefe in God they are deliuered from the fyre. Nabuchodonoſor confeſſeth the power of God after the ſyght of the miracle.

NAbuchodonoſor the kyng cauſed A a goldē ymage to be made, which was. lx. cubites hye, ⁊ ſyxe cubites thicke. This he made to be ſet vp in the felde of Dura, in the lande of Babylon, and ſent oute to gather together the dukes, lordes and nobles, the iudges ⁊ offycers, yͤ debities and ſhreues, with all the rulers of the lande: that they might come to yͤ dedicacion of the ymage, whiche Nabuchodonoſor the kyng had ſet vp: So yͤ dukes, Lordes and nobles, the Judges and offycers, debities and ſhreues with al the rulers of yͤ lande, gathered them together ⁊ came vnto the dedicating of the ymage, yͤ Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp. Nowe B when they ſtode before the ymage, whyche Nabuchodonoſor ſet vp, the bedel cried out with all his myght: O ye people, kynreddes ⁊ tonges, to you be it ſayde: yͤ when ye heare the noyſe of the trompettes, whiche ſhalbe blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteryes, Simphonyes ⁊ al maner of Muſyke: ye fall downe and worſhyppe the golden ymage, that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge hath ſet vp. Whoſo then falleth not downe and boweth hym ſelfe, ſhall euen the ſame houre be caſt into an hote burnyng ouen. Therfore when all the folke hearde yͤ noyſe of the trōpettes that were blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteryes, Symphonies, and all kynde of melody, thē all yͤ people, kynreds ⁊ nacions, fel down, and bowed them ſelues vnto the golden ymage that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp. Now were there certayne men of the Chal- C dees, that wēt euē then ⁊ accuſed the Jewes, and ſayde vnto the kynge Nabuchodonoſor: O kynge, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Thou beyng kyng haſt geuē a commaundemente, that all men when they heare the noyſe of the trompets, harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteryes, ſymphonies, and all the other melodyes, ſhall fall downe and bowe them ſelues towarde the golden ymage: who ſo then fell not downe and worſhypped not, yͭ he ſhulde be caſt into an hote burnyng ouē. Dani.2.g. Now are there certayne Jewes* whome yͧ haſt ſet ouer the officers of yͤ lande of Babilon: namely, Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago. Theſe men (O kyng) regarde not thy commaundement, yea they wil not ſerue thy goddes, nor bowe them ſelues to the golden D ymage, that thou haſt ſet vp. Then Nabuchodonoſor in a cruell wrathe and diſpleaſure, commaunded that Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago ſhuld be brought vnto him. So theſe men were brought before yͤ king. Then Nabuchodonoſor ſpake vnto them, and ſayde: what? O Sidrah, Miſach, and Abednago, will not you ſerue my goddes? nor bowe your ſelues to the golden ymage, that I haue ſet vp? Wel, be redy hereafter. When ye heare the noyſe of the trompettes blow, with the harpes, ſhawmes, pſalteries, ſymphonies, and al the other melodies: that ye fall downe, and worſhyp yͤ ymage which I haue made. But yf ye worſhyp it not, ye ſhalbe caſte immediatly into an hote burnynge ouen. Let ſe, what God is there, that maye deliuer you oute of my handes. Sidrach. Miſach, and Abednago anſwered yͤ kyng, and ſayde. O Nabuchodonoſor, we oughte not to conſent vnto the in this matter: Nu.16.g. for why? oure God whome we ſerue * is able to kepe vs from the hote burning ouē, (O kynge) ⁊ can ryght well deliuer vs out of thy handes. And though he will not, yet E ſhalt thou know (O kynge) that we will not ſerue thy goddes, nor do reuerence to the Image, whiche thou haſt ſet vp. Then was Nabuchodonoſor full of indignacion, ſo yͭ the countenaunce of his face chaunged vpō Sidrach, Miſach, ⁊ Abednago. Therfore he charged and commaunded that the ouen ſhulde be made ſeuen tymes hotter then it was wonte to be: and ſpake vnto the strongeſt worthies that were in his hoſte, for to bynd Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, ⁊ to caſt them into the hote burnynge ouen.

So theſe men were bounde in their coates, hoſen, ſhoes, with their other garmētes, and caſte into the hote burnynge ouen: for the kynges commaundement was ſo ſtrayte, ⁊ the ouen was exceadynge hote. As for the men that put in Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, F the flame of the fyre deſtroied thē.

And theſe thre men, Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago fell downe in the hote burnynge ouen, beyng faſt bounde. Then Nabuchodonoſor the kyng marueyled ⁊ ſtode vp in al haſt: he ſpake vnto his counſayle, ⁊ ſayd: dyd not you caſt theſe thre men boūde into yͤ fyre? They anſwered, and ſayd vnto the kynge: Yea, O kyng. He anſwered and ſayde: loe, for all that, yet do I ſe foure men goyng leuſe in the myddeſt of the fyre, and nothing corrupte, and the fourth is like the ſonne of god to loke vpon. Upon this went Nabuchodonoſor vnto the mouth of yͤ hote burnynge ouen, he ſpake alſo and ſayde: O Sidrach, Miſach, ⁊ Abednago, ye ſeruauntes of yͤ hye god, go forth, and come hyther. And ſo Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago went out of the fyre. Then yͤ dukes, lordes, and nobles, and the kynges coūſayle came together to ſe theſe men, * vpon whome the Esa.43. fyre had no maner of power in their bodies. In ſomuche that the verye heere of theyr heade was not burnte, and their clothes vnchaunged: yea, there was no ſmell of fyre G felte vpon them. Then ſpake Nabuchodonoſor, and ſayd: Bleſſed be the God of Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago: * whiche *Psl.34. hath ſent his angell, and defended his ſer- Dani.6. uauntes, that put their truſte in him: yͭ haue Actes.12. aultered the kynges commaundement and ieoparde their bodyes there vpon, rather then they woulde ſerue or worſhyppe any other God, excepte their owne God only.

Therfore I will and commaunde, that all people, kynreddes, and tōges, which ſpeake any blaſphemye agaynſte the God of Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago, ſhal dye, and their houſes ſhalbe pryſed: Bicauſe * there *Esai.4 is no God that maye ſaue, as this. Ose.13. So the kynge promoted Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago in the lande of Babylon.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Nabuchodonoſor dreameth agayn. Daniel interpreteth it. Nabuchodonoſor is put oute of his realme, and eateth with beaſtes. He confeſſeth the power of God, and is reſtored vnto his kyngdome. A NAbuchodonoſor * kyng vnto all *Dan.6 people, kynreddes, and tounges that dwel vpon the whole earth: peace be multiplied amōg you. (other wiſe called Balthazar, according

B tolde the dreame, ſayinge: O Balthazar, thou prince of ſothſayers: For ſo muche as I knowe, that thou haſt yͤ ſprite of the holy me therfore, what the viſion of my dreame (that I haue ſene) maye ſignifye. I ſawe a viſion in my heade vpon my bed: and beholde, there ſtode a tree vpon the grounde, whiche was verye hye, great and myghtye: the heygth reached vnto yͤ heauen, and the bredth extended to all the endes of yͤ earthe: his leaues were fayre, he had verye muche frute, ſo that euery man had ynough to eate therin. The beaſtes of the felde had ſhadowes vnder it, ⁊ the foules of yͤ ayre dwelt in yͤ boughes therof. Shortly, al creatures fed of it. I ſawe in my heade a viſion vpon my bed: and beholde, a watcher and a holye one came downe from heauen, and cryed myghtelye, ſayinge: Hewe downe the tree, breake of his braūches, ſhake of his leaues, and ſcatre his frute abrode: that all the beaſtes maye get them awaye from vnder him, and the foules from his braunches. Neuertheleſſe, leaue the grounde of hys rote ſtil in the earth, and bynde hym vpon the playne feld, with cheynes of yron and ſtele. With yͤ dewe of heauen ſhall he be wet, and he ſhall haue his parte in the herbes of the grounde with other wilde beaſtes. That mans harte C of his ſhalbe taken from hym, and a beaſtes harte ſhalbe gyuen him, tyll ſeuen yeares be come and gone vpon hym. This erande of the watcher, is a commaundement groūded and ſought out in the councell of hym, that is mooſt holy: to learne men for to vnderſtande, that the hyeſt hath power ouer the kyngdomes of men, and gyueth them to whome it lyketh hym, and bryngeth yͤ verye outcaſtes of men ouer them. This is the dreame, yͭ I kynge Nabuchodonoſor haue ſene. Therefore O Balthazar, tell thou me what it ſignifieth: for ſo muche as all the wyſe men of my kyngdome are not able to ſhew me what it meaneth. But thou cāſt do it, for the ſprite of the holy goddes is in the.

Then daniel (whoſe name was Balthazar) held his peace by the ſpace of an houre, ⁊ hys thoughtes troubled hym. So the kyng ſpake, and ſayd: O Balthazar, let neyther yͤ the. Balthazar anſwered, ſaying: O my lord, D this dreame happen to thyne enemies, and the interpretacion to thyne aduerſaryes.

As for the tree that thou ſaweſt whiche was ſo great and mighty, whoſe heygth reached vnto the heauen, and his bredth into all the

The.v.Chapter.

Balthaſar kynge of Babilon, abuſynge the veſſels of the temple,ſeeth an hand wrytyng on the wall.The ſoth ſayers, called of the kynge, can not expounde the wrytyng. Daniel is called,which readeth it and interpreteth it alſo. Balthaſar beynge ſlayne, Darius ſucceadeth in his rowme.

A Kynge Balthaſar made a great banket to his thouſande lordes: with all theſe thouſande he made [illegible] chere, and when he was [illegible], he cōmaunded to bring [illegible] ſiluer veſſels *whyche his father Nabuchodonoſor had taken out of the temple at Ieruſalem:that the kynge and his lordes,with his quene and concubynes myght drynke therout. So they brought the golden veſſel,that was taken oute of the temple of the Lordes houſe at Ieruſalem.Then the king and his Lordes with his quene and concubynes,dronke out of them.They dronke wyne & prayſed their Idols of golde, ſyluer,copper,yron, wood and ſtone.In the very ſame houre there appeared B fyngers, as it had bene of a mans hande wryting,ryght ouer agaynſt the candleſtycke vpon the playn wal in the kinges palace:and the kynge ſaw the palme of the hande that wrote. * Then chaunged the kyng his countenaunce,and his thoughtes troubled him,ſo that yͤ ioyntes of his bodye ſhoke,and his knees ſmote one agaynſt the other.*Wherfore the kynge cryed myghtelye, that they ſhoulde brynge hym the charmers, Caldees,and coniurers of deuels.
The kynge ſpake alſo to the wyſe men of Babylon,and ſayd: Whoſo can reade this wrytyng,and ſhew me the playne meanyng therof, ſhalbe clothed with purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute his necke,and rule the thyrde parte of my kyngdome. Vpon this,came all the kynges wyſe men;but they coulde neither reade the wrytyng,nor ſhewe the kynge what it ſignified.Then was the kynge ſore afrayed,in ſo muche,that his coloure chaunged, and his lordes were ſore vexed. So by reaſō of this matter,that had C happened to the kynge and his Lordes,the Quene wente vp her ſelfe into the banket houſe,and ſpake vnto the kynge,ſaying:O kynge, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Let not the thoughtes trouble the, and let not thy countenaunce be chaunged.For why?there is a man in thy kyngdome, that hathe the ſprite of the holye goddes wythin him,*as it was ſene in thy fathers dayes. He hathe vnderſtandynge & wyſedome lyke the goddes.
Yea the kynge Nabuchodonoſor thy father,made this man chefe of yͤ ſothſayers, charmers,Caldees,& readers of deſtenyes: becauſe that ſuche an aboundaunt ſprite, knowlege and wyſedom(to expounde dreames, to open ſecretes,and to declare harde doubtes)was founde in hym:yea,euen in Daniell,whom the kynge named Balthazar.
Let this ſame Daniel be ſent for,and he ſhall tell what it meaneth.Then was Daniel brought before the kyng.So the kyng ſpake vnto Daniell, and ſayde: Art thou that Daniel,one of the priſoners of Iuda, D whome my father the kynge brought oute of Iewry? I haue hearde ſpeake of thee, yͭ thou haſt the ſprite of the holye goddes, experience and vnderſtanding, and that there hath bene great wyſedome founde in the.

Nowe haue there bene broughte me wyſe ⁊ connynge charmes, to reade thys wrytyng, and to ſhewe me the meanynge therof. But they coulde not tel me, what this matter ſignified. Then hearde I ſaye, that thou canſt expounde darke thinges, and declare harde doubtes. Wel then, yf thou canſt reade this wrytyng, and ſhewe me the meanyng therof, thou ſhalt be clothed with purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute thy necke, and rule the thyrde parte of my kyngdome. Daniell E anſwered, and ſayde before the kynge: *As for thy rewardes, kepe them to thy ſelfe, or gyue thy riche gyftes to another: yet not the les, I wil reade the wrytyng vnto the king, and ſhewe hym the interpretacion therof.

*O kynge heare. God the hyeſt gaue vnto Nabuchodonoſor thy father, the dignitie of a kyng with worſhip and honoure: ſo that all people, kynredes and tonges ſtode in awe and feare of hym, by reaſon of the hye eſtate, that he had lente hym. For why, he ſlewe whome he woulde: he ſmote whome it pleaſed him. Agayn, whom he woulde he ſet vp: and whom he lyſt he put downe. *But becauſe his harte was ſo proude, and hys ſtomack ſet ſo faſt vnto wylfulneſſe: he was depoſed from his kingly trone, and his maieſty was taken from hym. He was ſhut out from amonge men, his hearte was lyke a beaſtes hearte, and his dwellynge was with F the wilde aſſes: he was fayne to eate graſſe lyke an oxe, and his bodye was wet with the dewe of the heauen, tyll he knewe, that the hyeſt had power vpon the kyngdomes of men, and ſetteth ouer them, whom he lyſte.

And thou his ſonne (O Balthazar) for all this, haſt not ſubmitted thyne hart, thoughe yͧ knewest all theſe thynges: but haſte magnified thy ſelfe aboue the Lorde of heauen, ſo that yͤ veſſels of his houſe were brought before the: that thou and thy Lordes, wyth thy quene ⁊ thy concubynes, myght drynke wyne therout. And haſt praiſed the Idoles of ſiluer and golde, copper ⁊ yron, of wood and ſtone: whiche neyther ſee, heare nor vnderſtande. As for the God *in whoſe hande conſiſteth thy breath, and al thy wayes: thou haſt not loued hym. Therfore is the palme G of thys hande ſente hyther frõ him, to token vp this wrytyng. And this is the ſcripture, that is written vp: Mane, Thetell, Phares.

Now the interpretaciõ of the thinge is this. Mane, God hath numbred the kyngdome, and brought it to an ende: Thetell, thou art wayed in the balaunce, and arte founde to lyght: Phares, thy kyngdome is delte in partes, and gyuen to the Medes ⁊ Perſes.

Then commaunded Balthazar to cloth Daniell with purple, to hange a chayne of golde about his necke, and to make a proclamacion concernynge hym: that he ſhould be the ruler of the thyrde part of hys kyngdome. *The verye ſame nyght was Balthazar the kyng of the Caldees ſlayne, and ‡Darius out of Medea toke in yͤ kingdom, beyng .lxii. yeares of age.

Eſay.47.b

Dan.9.a.

The .vi. Chapter.

Daniell is made ruler ouer the lordes. The Imagynacion of an acte agaynſte Daniell. The proclamacion of the acte, wherof Daniell is accuſed vnto the kynge as a tranſgreſſoure: He is put into a dene of Lyons by the commaundemente of the kyng. He is delyuered by fayth in God: Daniels accuſers are put vnto the Lyons to be torne in ſonder. Darius by the proclamaciõ of a decree, magnifieth the God of Daniell.

IT pleaſed Darius to ſet ouer his A kyngdom an .C. and .xx. Lordes, which ſhould be in all his kingdome about. Aboue theſe he ſet thre princes (of whome Daniell was one) that the Lordes might gyue accõptes vnto them, and the kynge to be vndiſeaſed. But Daniell exceaded all theſe princes and lordes, for the ſprite of God was plenteouſe in him: ſo that the kynge was mynded to ſette him ouer the whole realme. Wherfore the princes and lordes ſought, to pycke out in Daniel ſome quarel agaynſt the kyngdom: yet coulde they fynde none occaſiõ nor faute vpon hym. For why? he was ſo faythfull, that there was no blame nor diſhoneſtye founde in hym. Then ſayde theſe men: we can get no quarell agaynſt this Daniel, ex- B cept it be in the law of his God. Upon this, went the princes and lordes together vnto the kynge, and ſayd thus vnto hym: Kynge Darius, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. All the greate eſtates of the realme, as the Princes, Dukes, Senatours, and Iudges, are determed to put out a commaundement of the kyng, ⁊ to make a ſure ſtatute: namely, that whoſo deſireth any peticion, either of anye God or man (within theſe .xxx. dayes) excepte it be only of thee O king: yͤ ſame perſõ may be caſt into the Lyons denne. Wherfore, O kyng, confirme yͤ this ſtatute, ⁊ make a wrytyng: yͭ the thing whiche the Medes ⁊ Perſes haue ordeyned, be not altered nor brokẽ.

So Darius made the wrytynge, and confirmed C it. Nowe when Daniell vnderſtode that the wrytynge was made, he went into his houſe: and the wyndowes of his wal towarde Jeruſalem ſtode open. There kneled he down vpon hys knees, thre tymes a day: there he made hys peticion, and prayſed his God, lyke as hys maner was to do afore tyme. Then theſe men made ſearche, and founde Daniel makynge his peticion, and prayinge vnto hys God. So they came to the kynge, and ſpake before hym concernynge his commaundemente, ſayinge: O kynge, haſt thou not ſubſcribed the ſtatute, that wythin. xxx. dayes who ſo requyreth hys peticion of anye God or man but onely of thy ſelfe, O kynge: he ſhalbe caſt into the denne of the Lyons? The kynge anſwered, and ſayde: yea, it is true. It muſte be as a lawe of the Medes and Perſes, that maye D not be broken. Then anſwered they, and ſayde vnto the kynge: Daniell one of the preſoners of Juda, O kyng, regardeth neyther thee, nor thy ſtatute yͭ thou haſt made: but maketh his peticion thre tymes a daye.
When the kyng heard theſe wordes he was ſore greued, and woulde haue excuſed Daniell, to delyuer him, and put of the matter vntill the Sunne wente downe, to the intẽte that he myght ſaue hym. Theſe men perceyuyng the kynges mynde, ſayd vnto him: knowe this (O kynge) that the lawe of the Medes and Perſes is, that the commaundement and ſtatute whiche the kynge maketh, maye not be altered. * Then the kynge Bel.c. bad them brynge Daniel, and they caſt him into the Lyons denne. The kyng alſo ſpake vnto Daniell, and ſayde: thy God, whome thou alwaye ſerueſte, euen he ſhall defende the. And there was brought a ſtone, & layed vpon the hole of the denne: this the kynge ſealed with hys owne rynge, and with the E ſygnet of his prynces: that the kynges commaundement concernynge Daniel ſhoulde not be broken. So the kynge went vnto his palace, and eate no meate that nyght, nether was there any mynſtrelſye brought in before hym, neyther coulde he take any ſlepe.
But betymes in the mornyng at the breake of the daye, the kynge aroſe, and went in all haſte vnto the denne of the Lyons.

Nowe as he came nye vnto the denne, he cryed wyth a pyteous voyce vnto Daniell: yea, the kynge ſpake and ſayde vnto Daniell: O Daniell, thou ſeruaunte of the lyuynge God is not thy God (whom thou alwaye ſerueſt) able to delyuer thee from the Lyons? Daniell ſayde vnto the kynge: O kyng God ſaue thy life for euer. * My God F hath ſent hys angell ‡ whiche hath ſhut the lyons mouthes, ſo that they might not hurte me. For why? myne vngyltyneſſe is founde oute before hym. And as for the, O kynge, I neuer offended the. Then was the kynge exceadyng glad, and commaunded to take Daniell out of the denne. So Daniel was brought out of the denne, and no maner of hurt was founde vpon him. For he put hys truſt in hys god. And as for thoſe mẽ which had accuſed Daniel, the king commaunded to bryng them, and to caſt them in the lions denne: them, their children, and their wyues.
* So the lyons had the maiſtery of them, and brake all their bones aſonder, or euer they came at the grounde. * After thys, wrote kynge Darius vnto all people, kynredes, and tonges, that dwelte in al landes: G peace be multiplied with you. My commaundemente is, in all my dominion and kyngdome, that men feare & ſtande in awe of Daniels God. * For he is the lyuynge God, whiche abydeth euer: his kyngdome ſhall not fayle, & his power is euerlaſtinge.
* It is he that delyuereth and ſaueth: he dothe wonders and meruaylous workes in heauen and in earth: he hath preſerued Daniel from the power of the lyons. This Daniel proſpered in the reygne of Darius and Cyrus of Perſia.

The. vii. Chapter.

A viſion of foure beaſtes is ſhewed vnto Daniell. The viſion is interpreted of foure kyngdomes of the worlde. Of the power & encreaſe of Antichriſt. Of the euerlaſtynge kyngdome of Chriſt.

IN the firſte yeare of Balthazar A kynge of Babilon, ſaw Daniel a dreame, & a viſiõ was in his head vpon hys bedde. Whych dreame he wrote, and the ſumme of the matter is thys. Daniel ſpake and ſayd: I ſawe in my viſion by nyght, and behold: the foure wyndes of the heauen ſtroue vpon the ſea, and foure great beaſtes came vp frõ the ſea, one vnlyke another. The firſt was as * a lion, and yet had he ‡ aegles wynges. I ſaw, that his wynges were pluckte from hym, and he taken awaye from the earth: that he ſtode vpon his fete as a man, and that there was B gyuen hym a mans hearte. Beholde, the ſecond beaſt was lyke a * Bear, and ſtode vpon the one ſyde. Amonge his teeth in hys mouthe he had. iii. greate longe teeth, and it was ſayd vnto him: Aryſe, eate vp muche fleſhe. Then I loked, ⁊ beholde, there was an other lyke vnto a Leoparde, this had wynges as a foule, * euen foure vpon the backe. This beaſte had foure heades, and there was power gyuen hym. After this I ſaw in a viſiõ by night: ⁊ beholde, the fourth beaſt was grymme and horrible, and maruelous ſtronge. It had greate yron teath, it deuoured and deſtroyed, ⁊ ſtamped the reſidue vnder his fete. It was farre vnlyke the C other beaſtes that were before it: for it had *ten hornes, wherof I toke good hede.

And beholde, there came vp amonge them another lytle horne, before whom there were thre of the fyrſt hornes pluckt awaye. Beholde, this horne had eyes lyke a man: and a mouthe ſpeakyng preſũptuous thynges.
* I loked tyl the ſeates were prepared, and tyll the olde aged ſat hym downe. His clothyng was as white as ſnowe, ⁊ the heeres of his head lyke the pure wooll. His throne was lyke the fyrye flame, and his wheles as the burnyng fyre. There drewe forth a fyrye ſtreme, and wente oute from hym. * A thouſande tymes a thouſande ſerued him. x. M. tymes ten thouſande ſtode before him. The iudgement was ſet, and the bokes opened.
Then toke I hede there vnto, bycauſe of yͤ voyce of the proude wordes, which yͤ horne ſpake. I behelde tyll the beaſt was ſlayne, and his body deſtroyed, * geuen ouer to be brente in the fyre. As for the power of the other beaſtes alſo it was taken awaye, but theyr lyues were prolonged for a tyme and D ſeaſon. I ſaw in a viſion by nyghte, and beholde, *there came one in yͤ cloudes of heauen lyke the ſonne of a man, whiche wente vnto the olde aged, before whome they brought hym. Then gaue he hym * power and dignitie regall, that all people, tribes ⁊ tonges ſhould ſerue him. * His power is an euerlaſtyng power which ſhal neuer be put down: and his kyngdome endureth vncorrupte.
My hart was vexed, * ⁊ I Daniell had a troubled ſprite within me, ⁊ yͤ viſions of my head made me afrayed, tyl I gat me vnto * one of them that ſtode by, to knowe the truth, concernynge all theſe thynges.
So he tolde me, and made me vnderſtande the interpretacion of the thynges. Theſe foure great beaſtes, are foure kynges which E ſhall ariſe out of the earthe. Theſe ſhal take in the kyngdome of the ſaintes of the moſte hyeſt, ⁊ poſſeſſe it ſtill more and more for a longe ſeaſon. After this I required diligẽtlye to know the truth, concernyng the fourth beaſt, whiche was ſo farre vnlyke the other beaſtes, and ſo horrible, whoſe teeth were of yron, and his nayles of braſſe: which deuoured and deſtroyed, and ſtamped the reſydue vnder his fete: I deſired alſo to knowe the truth, as touchyng the * ten hornes that he *Apo.13.a had vpon his heade, and this other whiche and.17.c. came vp afterwarde, before whoſe face there fell downe thre, which horne had eyes and a mouthe that ſpake preſumptuous thynges, and loked with a grymmer viſage then his felowes. I behelde, ⁊ the ſame horne made F batell agaynſt the ſaintes: yea, and gat the victorye of them vntill the tyme that yͤ olde aged came, that the iudgement was gyuen to the cheféſte ſaintes: and tyll the tyme that the ſaintes had the kyngdom in poſſeſſion.
He gaue me this anſwer. That fourth beaſt ſhalbe the fourthe kingdome vpon earth: it ſhalbe more thẽ al other kyngdomes, it ſhal deuoure, treade downe, and deſtroy al other G landes. * The ten hornes, are ten kynges, Zacha.1.c. that ſhall ariſe out of the kyngdome, after whom there ſhall ſtande vp another, which ſhalbe greater then the firſt. He ſhal ſubdue thre kynges, ⁊ ſhal ſpeake wordes agaynſt the hyeſt of all: he ſhall deſtroye the ſaintes of the mooſt hyeſt, * ⁊ thynke, that he maye *Dan.2.c chaunge tymes ⁊ lawes. They ſhalbe gyuẽ vnder his power, * vntill a tyme, two tymes Apoc.12.b and halfe a tyme. But the iudgemẽt ſhalbe kepte, ſo that his power ſhalbe taken from him, for he ſhall be deſtroyed, and peryſh at the laſt. As for the kyngdome, power, and al myghte that is vnder the heauen: it ſhalbe gyuen to the holy people of the mooſt hieſt, * whoſe kyngdome is euerlaſtynge: yea, all *Luke.1.c powers ſhall ſerue and obeye him. Thus Dan.14.f, farre extende the wordes. Neuertheleſſe, I Daniel was ſo vexed in my thoughtes, that my contenaũce chaunged, * but the wordes *Luke.2.c.
I kept ſtill in my heart.

The.viii. Chapter.

A viſion of a ſtryfe betwene a Ramme and an he goate. The vnderſtandyng of the viſion is of yͤ batel betwene the kynge of Perſia, and the kyng of the Grecians. Of the ſhameles kynge Antichriſt.

IN the thyrde yeare of the reygne A of kyng Balthazar, there appeared a viſion vnto me Daniel, after that I had ſene the * fyrſt. I Dan.7.a. ſawe in a viſion (and when I ſawe it, I was at Suſis in the chiefe citie, whiche lyeth in the lande of * Elam) and in the viſion, me *Jer.49.f thought I was by the ryuer of Ulai. Then Eze.32 d.
I loked vp, ⁊ ſawe: and beholde there ſtode before the ryuer, a ramme, whiche had two hornes;

hornes: and theſe two hornes were hye, but one was hyer then another, ⁊ the hyeſt came vp behynde. I ſawe yͭ thys ramme puſſhed with his hornes, agaynſt the weſt, agaynſte the north, and againſt the ſouthe: ſo that no beaſtes mught ſtande before hym, nor defende them from his power: but he dyd as B him luſted, and waxed greatlye. I toke hede vnto this, and then came there an he goate from yͤ weſt ouer the whole earth, and touched not the grounde. This goate had a meruelous wrethē horne betwyxte his eyes, and came vnto the Ramme that had yͤ two hornes (whom I had ſene afore by the ryuer ſyde) and ranne fearcely vpon him with his myght. I ſawe hym drawe nye, vnto the Ramme, beynge very fearce vpon him: yea, he gaue him ſuch a ſtroke, that he brake his two hornes. Nether had the Rāme ſo much ſtrength as to ſtande before him: but he caſt hym downe, trode hym vnder his fete, and no man was able to deliuer the Ramme out of his power. The goate waxed exceadyng greate, and when he was at the ſtrongeſte, Dan. 7.a. hys greate horne was broken alſo. * Then and. 11.a. grew there other foure ſuch lyke in yͤ ſteade, 1. Mac. 1. a towarde the foure wyndes of yͤ heauē. Yea, oute of one of the leaſt of theſe hornes, there
C came yet vp another horne, whiche waxed maruelous greate toward yͤ ſouth, toward the eaſt, and towarde the fayre pleaſaunt lande. It grewe vp to the hooſt of heauen, wherof it dyd caſt ſome down to yͤ groūde, and of the ſtarres alſo, and trode thē vndre fete. Yea, it grewe vp vnto the prince of the hooſt, from whom the daylye offrynge was takē, and the place of his Sanctuarye caſte downe. And a certayne ſeaſon was gyuen vnto it, agaynſte the daply offryng (becauſe of wickednes) that it myght caſt downe the veritie to the grounde, and ſo to proſpere in all thynges, that it went about. Upon thys
D I hearde one of the ſaintes ſpeaking, which ſaint ſayd vnto one that aſked this queſtiō. Howe longe ſhall this viſion of the daylye ſacrifice, and of the waſtynge abhominaciō endure, that the Sanctuary and the power ſhall ſo be troden vnder foote? And he anſwered hym: Unto the euenynge and the mornynge, euen two thouſande and thre hundreth dayes: than ſhall the Sanctuary be clenſed agayn. Now whē I Daniel had ſene this viſion and ſought for the vnderſtandynge of it: beholde, there ſtode before me a thynge lyke vnto a man. And I heard a mans voice in the ryuer of Ulay whyche cryed, and ſayd: O Gabriel, make this man to vnderſtande the viſion. So he came and ſtode by me. But I was afrayed at his cōmynge, and fell downe vpon my face.

Then ſayde he vnto me: O thou ſonne of E man marcke well, for in the laſt tyme ſhall this viſion be fulfilled. Nowe as he was ſpeakyng vnto me, I waxed faynt, ſo that I ſanke downe to the grounde. But he toke hold vpon me, ⁊ ſet me vp agayne, ſayinge: Beholde, I will ſhewe the what ſhall happen in the laſt wrath: for in yͤ tyme appointed it ſhalbe fulfilled. The Ramme whyche thou ſaweſte with the two hornes, is yͤ kyng of the Medes and Perſes: but the goate is yͤ kyng of Greke lande: the great horne that ſtode betwyxte his eyes, that is the principall kyng. But where as it brake, and foure other roſe vp in the ſteade: it ſignifieth, that out of this people ſhall ſtande vp * foure F kyngdomes, but not ſo myghtye as it. After theſe kyngdomes (whyle vngodlynes is a growyng) there ſhal aryſe a kyng of an vnſhamefaſte face, whiche ſhall be wyſe in darcke ſpeakynges. He ſhalbe myghty and ſtronge, but not in hys owne ſtrength.

He ſhall deſtroye aboue meaſure, and all that he goeth aboute ſhall proſpere: he ſhal ſlaye the ſtronge and holye people. And thorow his craftynes, falſhed ſhal proſpere in his hande: his herte ſhalbe proude, and many one ſhall he put to death in his welthyneſſe. He ſhall ſtande vp agaynſte the prince of princes, * but he ſhall be deſtroyed without hande. And this viſion yͭ is ſhewed vnto the, is as ſure as the euenyng and the mornynge. * Therfore wryte thou vp this ſyghte, for it will be lōge or it come to paſſe.

Upon this was I Daniel verye faynt, ſo that I laye ſycke certayne dayes: but when I roſe vp, I wente aboute the kynges buſyneſſe, and marueled at the viſion, neuertheleſſe, noman knew of it.

The .ix. Chapter.

Daniel deſireth to haue that perfourmed of God, whiche he had promyſed concernynge the returne of the people from their banyſſhmente in Babylon. A true confeſſion. Daniels prayer is heard. ¶ The ende of the prophecye of Danyel.

The booke of the Prophete Oſeas.

¶ The firſt Chapter.

The tyme wherein Oſeas prophecyed. Oſeas by takyng an harlot to his wyfe, ſygnifyeth the ydolatry of the people. The deſtruccion of the offſpryng of Jehu, and of the Iſraelytes, is propheceyed.

THis is the woorde of the Lord that came vnto Oſeas the ſonne of Beery * in the dayes of Oſeas, Joathan, Ahas, and Jezekias kinges of Juda, ⁊ in the time of Jeroboã the ſonne of Joas king of Iſrael. Fyrſt whẽ the Lord ſpake vnto Oſeas, he ſayd vnto him: * Go thy way, take an harlot to thy wyfe, ⁊ get chyldrẽ by her, for the land hath cõmytted greate whoredom againſt the Lord. So he wẽt ⁊ tooke Gomer, the doughter of Deblaim, which conceiued and brought forth a B ſon. And the Lord ſayd vnto him: cal his name Jezrael, for * J will ſhortly auenge the bloud of ‡ Jezrael, vpon the houſe of Jehu, ⁊ will bryng the kyngdome of the houſe of Iſrael to an ende. Then will J breake the bow of Iſrael in the valley of Jezrael. She conceiued yet agayne, and bare a doughter: And he ſayd vnto hym: Call her name Loruhamah (that is, not obtaynyng mercye:) * for J will haue no C pitte vpon the houſe of Iſrael, but forget them, and put them cleane out of remembraunce.
* Neuertheles, J wil haue mercy vpon the houſe of Juda, and wil ſaue them euen thorowe the Lord theyr God.
But J wyll not delyuer them thorowe any bowe, ſwearde, battayle, horſes, or horſemenne. Nowe when ſhe had wayned Loruhamah, ſhe conceyued agayne, D and bare a ſonne. Then ſayde he: call his name Loamye. For why? ye are not my people: therefore wyll not J be your God. And though the numbre of the children of Iſrael be as the ſande of the ſea, which can neyther be meaſured nor told, yet in the place where it is ſayde vnto them: * ye be not my people: euen there *Ro. 9. c. ſhall it be thus reported of them: * they be *John. 1. a the children of the lyuyng God. ‡ Then *Eze. 37. c ſhall the children of Juda, and the children of Iſrael, be gathered together againe, and choſe themſelues one head, and then depart out of the land: for great ſhalbe the daye of Iſrael.

The.ii. Chapter.

The people is called vnto repentaunce.

TEll your brethren that they are my A people: and your ſyſters, that they haue obtayned mercye. As for your mother ye ſhall chyde with her, and reproue her, * for ſhe is not my wyfe, neyther Iere. 3. a. am J her houſbande: onleſſe ſhe put awaye her whoredome out of my ſyght, and her aduoutrye from her breſtes. Yf no, J ſhall ſtrippe her naked, and ſet her * euen as ſhe came into the worlde: yea, J Ezec. 16. a ſhall laye her waſte, and make her lyke a wyldernesſe, and ſlay her for thyrſt. J ſhal haue no pytie alſo vpõ her children: * for John. 8. d they be the chyldren of fornicacion.

Theyr mother hathe broken her wedlocke, and ſhe that bare them * is come to 4. re. 16. a confuſyon. For ſhe ſayde: J wyll go after my louers that geue me my water and my bread, my woll and flaxe, myne oyle and my drynke. But J wyll hedge her way with thornes, and ſtoppe it, that ſhe B ſhall not fynde her fote ſteppes: ⁊ though ſhe runne after her louers, yet ſhall ſhe not gette them: ſhe ſhall ſeke them, but not fynde them. * Then ſhall ſhe ſaye: Leui. 15. c well, J will go turne agayne to my firſte houſbande: for at that time was J better at eaſe then nowe. But this woulde ſhe not know, whereas J yet gaue her corne, wyne, oyle, ſyluer, and golde, * whiche Eze. 16. b ſhe hath hanged vpon Baall.

Wherfore nowe wyl J go take my corne and wyne agayne in theyr ſeaſon, and fette againe my woll and my flaxe which J gaue her to couer her ſhame. * And Iere. 13. f nowe wyll J dyſcouer her foolyſhneſſe euen in the ſyght of her louers, ⁊ no man ſhall delyuer her oute of myne handes. C Moreouer, J wyll take awaye all her myrth * her holy dayes, her new moones, Deu. 16. e her Sabbothes, and all her ſolemne feaſtes: J wyll deſtroy her vyneyardes and fygtrees, though ſhe ſayth: loe, here are my rewardes yͤ my louers haue geuẽ me. I wil make it a wood, ⁊ wyld beaſtes ſhall eate it vp: I wil puniſh her alſo for Iudic.2.b the dayes of Baall * wherein ſhe cenſed and.10.b him, decking him with her earynges and chaynes, when ſhe folowed her louers, and forgat me, ſayeth the Lorde. Wherfore beholde, I will call her againe, bryng her into a wilderneſſe, and ſpeake frendly D vnto her: there will I geue her, her vyneyardes Ioſu.7.d again: yea, and the * valley of Achor alſo, to ſhew her hope and comforte.

*Iud.5.a Then ſhall ſhe ſyng there * as in the time ‡Exo.15.a of her youth, and ‡ lyke as in the day whẽ ſhe came out of the land of Egypt. Then (ſayeth the Lorde) ſhe ſhall ſay vnto me: O my huſband, and ſhall call me nomore Baall: for I will take away thoſe names of Baall frõ her mouth: yea, ſhe ſhall neuer remembre theyr names any more.
Leui.26.a *Then will I make a couenaunte wyth them, wyth the wylde beaſtes, wyth the foules of the ayre, and with euery thyng Eſay.2.a. that crepeth vpon yͤ earth. * As for bowe, ſweard and battayle, I wil deſtroy ſuche out of the land, ⁊ will make them to ſlepe Ezec.16.b ſafelye. * Thus will I marye the vnto myne owne ſelfe for euermore: yea, euen to my ſelfe will I marye thee in ryghteouſneſſe, in equitie, in louyng kyndneſſe and mercye. In fayth alſo wyll I marye the vnto my ſelfe, and thou ſhalt knowe the Lorde. At theſame tyme wyll I ſhew my ſelfe frendly and gracious vnto the heauens, ſayeth the Lorde: and the heauens ſhall helpe the earth, and the earth ſhall helpe the corne, wyne, and oyle, and 1.Pet.2.b they ſhall helpe Iezrael. * I wyll ſowe them vpon earth for a ſede to mine owne ‡Rom.9.c ſelfe: ‡ and wil haue mercy vpon her, that was without mercy. And to them whiche were not my people, I wyll ſaye: thou art my people: and he ſhall ſaye: thou art my God.

The. iii. Chapter.

Of the loue of God towarde the people.

A Then ſayd the Lord to me. * Go Eze.44.d yet thy waye and wowe an aduoutrous woman, whome thy neyghboure loueth, as the Lord doeth the chyldren of Iſrael: howbeit, they haue reſpect to ſtraunge Gods, Eſa.28.a. * and loue the wyne cannes. So I gate Amos.6.a her for fyftene ſyluerlynges, and for an homer and an halfe of barlye, and ſayde vnto her: Thou ſhalt abyde wyth me a long ſeaſon, but ſee that thou playeſt not the harlotte, and looke thou medle wyth none other manne, and then wyll I kepe my ſelfe for thee. * Thus the chyldren of Iſrael ſhall ſytte a great whyle without kyng and prynce, without offeryng and aulter, wythout prieſt and reuelacion.
But afterwarde ſhall the chyldren of Iſrael conuerte, and ſeke the Lorde theyr God, and * Dauid theyr kyng: and in the latter dayes they ſhall worſhyppe the Lorde, and his louyng kyndneſſe.

The. iiii. Chapter.

A complaynt agaynſt the people, and the prieſtes, of Iſrael.

Heare the worde of the Lorde, O ye chyldren of Iſrael. For the Lorde muſt punyſhe them that dwell in the lande. And why? there is no trueth, there is no mercye, there is no knowledge of God in the lande: but ſwearyng, lying, manſlaughter: thefte ⁊ aduoutry haue gotten the vpper hand, ⁊ one bloud gyltynes foloweth another. Therfore ſhall the lande be in a miſerable caſe, and all they that dwell therein ſhall bee rooted out. The beaſtes in the field, the foules in the ayre, and the fyſhes in the ſea, ſhall dye: yet is there none that wyll chaſten nor reproue another.
For * thy people rebuketh yͤ prieſtes, whiche ſhoulde refourme other menne.

Therfore ſtombleſt thou in the daye B tyme, and the Prophete with thee in the night. I wil bryng thy mother to ſylence: and why? * my people peryſhe, becauſe they haue no knowledge. Seeyng then that thou haſte refuſed vnderſtandyng, therefore wyll I refuſe thee alſo: ſo that thou ſhalt nomore be my prieſt. And forſomuche as thou haſte forgotten the law of thy God, I wyll alſo forget thy chyldrẽ.
The more they increaſed in the multytude, the more they ſynned againſt me: therfore wyll I chaunge theyr honoure into ſhame. * They eate vp the ſynnes of my people, and courage them in theyr wickedneſſe. * Thus the prieſt is become lyke the people. Wherfore I will puniſhe them for theyr wycked wayes, and rewarde them accordyng to theyr owne ymaginacions. C * They ſhall eate and not haue ynough. They haue vſed whoredome, therefore ſhall they not proſpere: and why? they haue forſaken the Lorde, and not regarded hym.

Whoredome, wyne, and dronkenneſſe, taketh taketh the hert awaye.*My people aſke counſayle at theyr ſtockes, theyr ſtaffe muſte tell them. For a whoryſhe mynde hath deceyued them, ſo that they commit fornicacion agaynſt theyr God.*They make ſacryfyces vpon the hye mountaynes, and burne theyr inſence vpon the hylles: yea, among the okes, groues, & buſſhes, for there are good ſhadowes.

B Therfore youre doughters are become harlottes, and your ſpouſes haue broken theyr wedlocke. I wyll not punyſh your doughters for beeyng defyled, and your brydes that became whores: *ſeeyng the fathers themſelues haue medled wyth harlottes, and offred with vnthriftes: but the people that wyll not vnderſtande, muſt be punyſhed. Though thou Iſrael arte dyſpoſed to playe the harlotte, yet ſhouldeſt not thou haue offended, O Iuda: thou ſhouldeſte not haue runne vnto Gilgal, *nor haue gone vp to Bethauen: ‡ nor haue ſworne, the Lorde lyueth.
For Iſrael is gone backe lyke a wanton cowe. The Lorde therfore ſhall make her fede as the lambe that goeth aſtray. And wheras Ephraim is become partaker of ydols, well, let hym goe: theyr dronkenneſſe hath put them backe, and brought them to whoredome. Theyr rulers loue rewardes, bryng (ſay they) to theyr owne ſhame. A wynde ſhall take holde of theyr fethers: and they ſhall be confounded in theyr offrynges.

The.v.Chapter.

Agaynſte the prieſtes and rulers of Iſrael.

A O Ye prieſtes, heare this, take hede, O thou houſholde of Iſrael: geue eare, O thou kyngly houſe, for it were your parte to ſee iudgemente done: but you are become a ſnare vnto Mizphah, and a ſpred nette vnto the mounte of Thabor. They kyl ſacryfyces by heapes: and turne farre from the Lorde, and I haue been a rebuker of them all.*I knowe Ephraim well ynough, & Iſrael is not hyd fro me: for Ephraim is become an harlotte, and Iſrael is defyled. They are not mynded to turne vnto theyr God, for they haue an B whoriſh hart, ſo that they cannot knowe the Lord.*But the pryde of Iſrael wyll be rewarded him in his face: yea, both Iſrael & Ephraim ſhal fal for their wyckedneſſe, & Iuda with them alſo.*They ſhal come with theyr ſhepe & bullokes‡to ſeke the Lorde, but they ſhall not fynde hym, for he is gone frõ them. As for the Lord, they haue refuſed hym, and brought vp baſtard chyldren: a moneth therfore ſhall deuoure them with theyr porcyons. C Blowe with the ſhawmes at Gibea, and with the trompette in Ramah: crye out at Bethauen vpon the yondeſyde of Beniamin.
In the tyme of the plage ſhall Ephraim be layde waſte, therefore dyd I faythfullye warne the trybes of Iſrael.
Yet are the prynces of Iuda become lyke them * that remoue the lande markes: Deut.19.c Therefore wyll I powre oute my wrath and.27.c vpon them lyke water. Ephraim is oppreſſed, and can haue no right of the law: for why, they folowe yͤ doctrynes of vngodly men. Therfore will I be vnto Ephraim as a mothe, & to the houſe of Iuda as a caterpiller. When Ephraim ſaw D his ſyckneſſe and Iuda his diſeaſe, * Ephraim 4.re.16.b wẽt vnto Aſſur, & ſent vnto king Iareb: yet coulde not he helpe you, nor eaſe you of youre payne. I am vnto Ephraim as a lyon, and as a lyons whelpe to the houſe of Iuda. Euen I wil ſpoyle them, and go my waye. I wyll take them with me, and no man ſhall reſcue them.
I wyll goe, and returne to my place, tyll they knowledge that they haue ſynned, and ſeke me.

The.vi.Chapter.

Afflictyon cauſeth a man to turne to God. The wyckedneſſe of the prieſtes.

IN theyr aduerſytie, they ſhall A earlye ſeke me, and ſaye: come, lette vs turne agayne to the Lord*for he hath ſmytten vs, Iob.5.b and he ſhall heale vs: He hath wounded vs, and he ſhall bynde vs vp agayne: after two dayes ſhall he quycken vs, in the thyrd day he ſhall rayſe vs vp, ſo that we ſhal lyue in his ſight. Then ſhal we haue vnderſtanding, and endeuer oure ſelues to knowe the Lorde. He ſhall go forth as the ſpryng of the day, and come vnto vs B ‡as the euening and morning rayne vpon ‡pro.16.a the earth. O Ephraim, what ſhall I doe vnto thee? O Iuda, howe ſhal I entreate thee? ſeyng youre loue is lyke a mornynge cloude, and lyke a dewe that goeth earlye awaye. Therefore haue I cut downe the Prophetes, & let them be ſlaine for my wordes ſake: ſo that thy puniſhmẽt ſhall come to light.* For I haue *mat.9.b pleaſure in louing kyndnes, ‡ and not in and.12.a offryng: yea, in the knowledge of God ‡Iere.7.c more then in burnte ſacryfyce. But euen

Gilead is a cytie of wycked doers, of malicyous

Ephꝛaim the harlot, and Iſrael is defyled: yea, ⁊ thou Iuda heapeſt an harueſt foꝛ thy ſelfe, when I returne the captiuytie of my people.

The. vii. Chapter.

Of the vyces and wantonneſſe of the people.

A WHen I vndertake to make Iſrael whole, then yͤ vngraciouſnes of Ephꝛaim, and the wyckednes of Samaria, commeth to lyght: then go they aboute wyth lyes: therefoꝛe the thefe robbeth within, and without the ſpoyler deſtroyeth. They cōſydꝛe not in theyꝛ heartes that I remembꝛe all theyꝛ wickednes. Now theyꝛ owne inuencions haue beſet them, which I ſee Roma.1.d well ynough. * They make the kyng and B the Pꝛynces, to haue pleaſure in theyꝛ wyckedneſſe ⁊ lyes. Al theſe burne in aduoutry, as it were an ouen that the baker heateth when he hath left knedyng, tyll yͤ dowe be leauened. Euen ſo goeth it this daye with our kynges ⁊ pꝛinces: foꝛ they begyn to be wood dꝛonken thoꝛow wyne, they vſe famylyaritie with ſuche as deceyue them. They with the ymaginacion of theyꝛ herte are lyke an ouen, their ſlepe is all the nyght lyke the ſlepe of a baker, in the moꝛning is he as hote as the flame of fyꝛe: they are altogether as hote as an C ouen. They haue deuoured their owne iudges, all theyꝛ kynges are fallen: yet is there none of them that calleth vpon me.
Therfoꝛe muſt Ephꝛaim be mixt among the Heathen. Ephꝛaim is become lyke a cake that no manne turneth, ſtraungers haue deuoured his ſtrength, yet he regardeth it not. He wareth full of graye Oſee.5.a heeres, yet will he not knowe it: * and the pꝛyde of Iſrael is caſt downe befoꝛe their face, yet wyll they not turne to the Loꝛde theyꝛ God, noꝛ ſeke hym foꝛ all this.

Ephꝛaim is lyke a doue that is begyled, and hath no hearte. * Nowe call they 4.re.16.b vpon the Egypcyans, nowe goe they to the Aſſyꝛyans: but whyle they be goyng here and there, I will ſpꝛede my net ouer them, and dꝛawe thē downe as the foules of the ayꝛe: ⁊ accoꝛding as they haue been warned, ſo will I puniſh them. * Woe be vnto them, foꝛ they haue foꝛſaken me. D They muſt be deſtroyed, foꝛ they haue ſet me at nought: * I am he yͭ haue redemed them, ⁊ yet they diſſemble wͭ me. ‡ They call not vpon me with theyꝛ hartes, but lye houling vpō theyꝛ beddes. Where as they come together, it is but foꝛ meate ⁊ dꝛynke, and me they wil not obey. I haue taught them, and defended theyꝛ arme: yet doe they ymagine myſchefe agaynſte me. They turne themſelues, but not to the moſte hyeſt, and are become as a bꝛoken bowe. Theyꝛ pꝛynces ſhall be ſlayne with the ſwearde, foꝛ the malyce of theyꝛ tonges, ſuche ſcoꝛnes ſhall they haue in the lande of Egypte.

The. viii. Chapter.

The deſtruccion of Iuda and Iſrael, becauſe of theyꝛ ydolatrye.

SEt the hoꝛne to thy mouth, and A blowe: ſwyftly (as an Egle) ſhal the enemye come agaynſte the houſe of the Loꝛd: foꝛ they haue bꝛoken my * couenaunt, and tranſgreſſed my lawe. Iſrael ſhoulde haue ſayde vnto me: thou art my God, we knowe the, but he hathe refuſed the thyng that is good, therefoꝛe ſhall the enemye folowe vpon hym. * They haue oꝛdeyned kynges, but not thoꝛow me: they haue made pꝛynces, and I muſte not knowe of it. * Of theyꝛ ſyluer and golde haue they made them ymages, to bꝛyng themſelues to deſtruccion.
* Thy calfe, O Samaria, ſhalbe taken away, foꝛ my wꝛathfull indignacion is gone foꝛth againſt the. Howe long wyl it be, oꝛ they can be clenſed? Foꝛ the calfe B came from Iſrael, the woꝛkeman made it, therefoꝛe canne it bee no God, but euen in pieces ſhall the calfe of Samaria bee bꝛoken. They haue ſowed wynde, therfoꝛe ſhall they reape a ſtoꝛme. Theyꝛ ſeede ſhall beare no coꝛne, there ſhall no meale be made of theyꝛ increaſe: though they reape, yet ſhall ſtraungers deuoure it vp. Iſrael ſhall periſhe, the Gentyles ſhal entreate him as a foule veſſel. Since they wente vp to the Aſſyꝛyans, they are become lyke a wylde Aſſe in the deſerte. C * Ephꝛaim geueth rewardes to get louers, ⁊ though they hyꝛe thē amonge the heathen, yet now will I gather them vp.

They ſhall begyn to bee weryed with the burthen of Kynges and prynces. Ephraim hathe made many aultars to do wyckedneſſe, his aultars (I ſaye) he had to his ſyn. Though I ſhewe them my lawe neuer ſo moch, they counte it but ſtraunge doctrine. D Where as they do ſacrifice, offerynge the fleſhe, and eatyng it, the Lord will haue no pleaſure therein: but will remembre theyr wyckedneſſe, and punyſhe theyr ſynnes. *Iſrael turneth agayne into Egypte, they haue forgotten hym that made them, they buylde fayre palaces, & Iuda maketh many ſtronge cities: *therefore wyll I ſende a fyer into theyr cities, and it ſhall conſume theyr palaces.

The.ix. Chapter.

Of the hunger and captiuytie of Iſrael.

A Do not thou tryumphe, O Iſrael, make no boſtyng ouer ioyous thynges as do the Heathen: for thou haſt commytted aduoutrye agaynſt thy God: whoriſh rewardes haſt thou loued, more then all the corne floores. *Therefore ſhall they nomore enioye the corne floores and wyne preſſes, and theyr ſwete wyne ſhall fayle them. They wil not dwell in the Lordes lande: *but Ephraim tourneth agayne into Egipte, and eateth vncleane thynges amonge the Aſſirians. They poure oute no wyne for a drynkeoffering vnto yͤ Lord, neyther geue they him theyr ſlayne offrynges: but they be vnto thē as mourners meates, wherein all they that eate them, are defyled. For the breade that they haue ſuche luſte vnto, ſhall not come into the houſe of the Lorde. What wyll ye do thē in the ſolemne dayes, and in the feaſt of the Lorde? Lo, they ſhal get them away B for the deſtruccyon. Egipt ſhal receyue thē, and Noph ſhall bury them. The nettles ſhall ouergrowe theyr pleaſaunt goodes, and burres ſhalbe in theyr tabernacles. Be ye ſure (O Iſrael) the tyme of viſytacion is come, the dayes of recompenſynge are at hand: And then ſhal Iſrael know, that they were deceyued by a prophet, foolyſhe, mad, & in a franſy: for yͤ multitude of thyne iniquitie, God ſhall multiplye enemyes agaynſte the. Ephraim hath made hym ſelfe a watcheman of my God, a prophet that is become a ſnare to do hurt in euery ſtrete, & abhomynacion in the houſe of hys God. They be gone to farre, and haue deſtroyed themſelues, like as they dyd afore tyme *at Gabaa: therefore theyr wyckedneſſe ſhalbe remembred, and theyr ſynnes punyſhed.

I founde Iſrael lyke grapes in the wildernes, and ſawe theyr fathers as the fyrſt *figges in the toppe of the figge tree. ‡But they are gone to Baal Peor, and runne awaye fro me to that ſhamefull ydoll, & are become as abhomynable as theyr louers. C Ie.24.a ‡Nu.25.b Ephraim flyeth lyke a byrde, ſo ſhall theyr glorie alſo: Inſomuche yͭ they ſhal neyther beget, conceyue, nor beare children. And though they bryng vp any, yet wil I make them childles amonge men. yea, woe ſhall come to them, when I departe from them. *Ephraim (as me thinke) is plāted in welthyneſſe, lyke as Tyrus: but nowe muſte ſhe brynge her owne children forth to the manſlear. Ge.48.a. O Lorde thou ſhalt geue them: what ſhalt thou geue them? geue them an vnfrutefull wombe, and drye breaſtes. D Al theyr wickednes is done at *Gilgal, there do I abhorre thē. Ioſu.4.b For the vngraciouſneſſe of theyr owne inuencions, I wyl dryue thē oute of my houſe. I wil loue them nomore, for all theyr princes are vnfaithfull. Ephraim is hewen downe, theyr roote is dryed vp, ſo that they ſhall brynge nomore frute: Yea, & though they brynge forthe anye, yet will I ſlaye euen the beſte beloued frute of theyr body. My God ſhall caſte them awaye, for they haue not bene obedyent vnto hym: therefore ſhall they go aſtraye amonge the Heathen.

The.x. Chapter.

Agaynſte Iſraell and hys ydolles.

A Eſai.5.a. ISraell was a goodly, *vyne, but he hathe brought forthe vnprofytable frute: yea, the more frute he had, the moe aultares he made: yͤ more good I did to theyr lande, the more frendſhyp ſhewed they to theyr ymages. Theyr heart is deuided, therefore wyll they bee deſtroyed. The Lorde ſhall breake downe theyr ymages, he ſhall deſtroye theyr alters. Then ſhal they ſaye: we haue no Kynge, for why? we haue not feared the Lord. And what ſhall then the king do to vs? They commune together, and ſweare vayne othes: they bee confederate together, therefore groweth their punyſhmente as the wedes in the forowes of the lande. B They that dwell in Samaria haue worſhypped the calfe of Bethauen: therefore ſhall the people mourne ouer them. Yea, and the prieſtes alſo that in theyr welthyneſſe reioyced with them: and why? it ſhall paſſe awaye from them. It ſhalbee brought to the Aſſiryan, for a preſente vnto Kyng Iareb. Ephraim ſhall receyue ful punyſhemente. Iſrael ſhalbee confounded for his owne imaginaciõs. Samaria with hys kynge ſhall vanyſhe awaye, as the ſcomme in the water. The hye places of Auen, where Iſrael do ſynne, ſhal bee caſte downe: thyſtles and thornes ſhall growe Luke.23.c upon theyr alters. *Then ſhall they saye Apoc.6.c. to the mountaynes: couer vs, and to the C hylles, fall vpon vs. O Iſraell, thou haſte Jud.19.a. ſynned as *Gabaa dyd afore tyme where they remayned: ſhoulde not the battayle then come vpon the wycked chyldren, as well as vpon the Gabaonites? I wyl chaſten them, euen after myne owne deſyre: the people ſhalbee gathered together ouer thẽ, when I punyſhe them for theyr great wickedneſſe. Ephraim was vnto me, as a cow that is vſed to go to plowe, therfore I loued hym, and fel vpon hys fayre necke: I droue Ephraim, Juda plowed, and Jacob played the houſbande manne. Sowe vnto righteouſneſſe, and reape the frutes of weldoing: plowe vp youre freſhe lande, for it is tyme to ſeke the Lorde, tyll he come & rayne ryghteouſneſſe vpon you. But you haue D plowed vngodlyneſſe, ye haue reaped iniquitie, you haue eaten the frute of lyes.

Seyng thou putteſt thy confidence in thine owne wayes, & leaneſte to the multitude of thy worthyes: there ſhall growe a ſedicyon amonge thy people. All thy ſtronge cytyes ſhalbee layde waſte, euen as Salmana was deſtroyed with his famyliers, thorowe hym that was auenged of Arbell, in the daye of battayle, where the mother periſhed with her chyldren: Euen ſo ſhal it go with you (O Bethel) becauſe of youre malicyous wyckednes. Lyke as the mornyng goeth awaye, ſo ſhall the kynge of Iſraell paſſe.

Agaynſte the vnkyndneſſe of Iſrael.

A When Iſraell was yonge I loued Exod.3.b. and 4.b. Math.2.c him, *and called my ſonne out of the lande of Egypte. But the more they were called, the more ‡Ex.32.b. 3.Re.12.e 4.Re.16.c they wente backe, ‡offrynge vnto ydols of Baal, and cenſynge ymages. I learned Ephraim to go, & bare them in myne armes, but they regarded not me that would haue helped them. I led them with cordes of frendſhip, and with bandes of loue. I was euen he that layed the yocke vpon theyr Exo.16.c. neckes. *I gaue theyr fodder my ſelfe, that they ſhoulde not go agayne into Egypte. And nowe is Aſſur theyr kynge. For they woulde not turne vnto me. Therfore ſhall the ſwerde beginne in theyr cities, the ſtore that they haue layde vp, ſhalbe deſtroyed and eaten: and that becauſe of theyr owne ymaginacions: and my people ſhall ſtande B in a doubte whither to turne them, for whẽ the prophetes called them to the moſte hyeſt, not one yet woulde geue him his glory.

What great thinges haue I geuen the, O Ephraim? howe faythfully haue I defended thee O Iſraell? haue I dealt with thee as with *Adama? Or haue I entreated thee lyke Seboim? No, my hearte is otherwyſe mynded. Yea, my mercie is to feruent: therefore haue I not turned me to deſtroye Ephraim in my wrathefull diſpleaſure. For I am God and no man, I am euẽ that holy one in the myddeſt of the, though I came not within the citye. The Lorde roreth lyke a lyon, that they maye folowe C hym: yea, *as a lyon roreth he, that they may be afrayde lyke the chyldren of the ſea, ỹ they maye be ſcattred awaye frõ Egipt, as men ſcarre byrdes: and frayde away (as doues vſe to bee) from the Aſſirians lande: and that becauſe I woulde haue them tary at home, ſayeth the Lorde. But Ephraim goeth about me with lyes, and the houſe of Iſraell dyſſembleth: Only Juda holdeth hym wͭ God, & with the true holy thinges.

Agaynſte the vayne truſte of the people.

Ephraim is fed with ayre, and A foloweth after the eaſte wynde: he is euer increaſynge lyes and deſtruccyon. They be confederate with ỹ Aſſyrians. *Theyr oyle is caryed into Egypte. The Lord hath a courte to holde with Juda, and will punyſhe Jacob. After theyr owne wayes, & accordyng to theyr owne inuencyons, ſhall he recompence them. *He toke hys brother by the heele, when he was yet in hys mothers wombe: and in hys ſtrengthe he wreſtled with God. He *ſtroue with the Aungel, & gat the victory: ſo that he prayde and deſyred hym. *He founde hym at Bethel, and B there he talketh with vs: yea, ỹ Lord God of hooſtes, euen the Lorde hym ſelfe remẽbred hym. Then turne to thy God, kepe mercye and equytie, and hope ſtyll in thy God. But thou art like the marchaunt, that hath a falſe wayght in hys hande, he hathe a pleaſure to occupye extorcyon. Ephraim thynkethe thus: *Tuſhe, I am ryche, I haue good ynough: in all my workes ſhall not one fault bee founde, that I haue offended.

Yet am I the Lorde thy God, euen as when I brought the out of the land of Egipte, and ſet the in thy tentes, and as in the hie feaſte dayes. I haue ſpokē thorow the prophetes, and ſhewed dyuerſe viſions, and declared my ſelfe by the myniſtracyon of the Prophetes. But at Gilead is the abhomynacyon, they are fallen to vanitie. At Gilgall they haue ſlayne oxen: as manye heapes of ſtones as they had in theyr landforowes, ſo many aulters haue they made.
*Jacob fled into the lande of Syria, and Iſrael ſerued for a wyfe, and for a wyfe he kept ſhepe. By a prophet ẏ Lord brought thē out of Egypt, and by a prophet he preſerued them. But Ephraim hath prouoked hym to diſpleaſure thorow his abhominacyons, therefore ſhall hys bloud be poured vpon hym ſelfe, and the Lord his God ſhal rewarde hym hys blaſphemyes.

The .xiii. Chapter.

Of the abhomynacion of Iſrael.

A When Ephraim ſpake, the Heathē trembled: and he was exalted amonge the Iſraelites, but he is gone backe, to Baal: therefore muſte he dye. And nowe they ſynne more ⁊ more: *of theyr ſiluer they make thē moltē ymages, after the ymaginacyons of theyr owne braynes, that is very ydols, and yet all is nothing, but the worke of the craftesman.
Not withſtandyng, they preache of ẏ ſame to ſuche as there ſacrifyceth: whoſo wyll kyſſe the calues, offreth perfectly.
Therefore they ſhall bee as the mornynge cloude, and as the dewe that early paſſeth awaye: and lyke as duſte that the whirlewind taketh away from the floore, and as B ſmoke that goeth out of the chymney.
I am the Lorde God, whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte: that thou ſhouldeſt knowe no God but me onely, and that thou ſhouldeſt haue no ſauyour but onely me. I toke dylygent hede of the in the wyldernesse, that drye lande. But whē they were well fedde, ⁊ had ynoughe, they waxed proude, and forgat me: *therefore wyll I be vnto them as a lyon, and as a leopard in the waye to the Aſſirians. I will come vpon them, as a ſhe Beare that is robbed of her whelpes, ⁊ I wil breake that ſtubburne harte of theyrs. There wyll I deuoure thē as a lyon: yea, the wylde beaſtes ſhall teare them. *O Iſrael, thyne iniquitie hathe deſtroyed thee, but in me onely is thy helpe. Where are thy kynges nowe, that ſhoulde helpe the in all thy cities? Yea, and thy Iudges, of whome thou ſaideſt? *gyue 1.Re.8.a me a Kynge and Prynces: (well) I gaue C the a kyng in my wrath, and in my dyſpleaſure will I take him from the agayne. The wyckednesse of Ephraim is bounde together, and hys ſynne lyeth hyd. Therefore ſhall ſorowes come vpon hym, as vpon a woman that trauayleth. An vndiſcrete ſōne is he, for he conſydreth not that he ſhoulde not haue bene hable to haue endured in the tyme of hys byrthe, had not I defēded him from the graue, and delyuered hym from deathe. *O deathe, I will bee thy death: O 1.Cor.15.f hell, I wyll bee thy ſtynge: yet can I ſee no Hebre.2.a coumforte, for when he is nowe the goodlyeſt D amonge the brethren, the eaſte wynde (euen the wynde of the Lorde) ſhall come downe from the wyldernesse, and drye vp hys condytes, and drynke vp hys welles: he ſhall ſpoyle the treaſure of all pleaſaunt veſſels. As for Samaria, they ſhalbe layde waſte: and why? they are diſobedient vnto theyr GOD. They ſhall peryſhe with the ſwerde: theyr children ſhalbe ſlayne, ⁊ theyr wemen great with chylde ſhal bee rypte vp.

¶ The ende of the Prophecie of Oſeas.

The booke of the Prophet Joell.

The firſte Chapter.

A prophecye agaynſt the Jewes. He exhorteth the prieſtes to prayer and faſtynge, for the miſerye that was commynge at hande.

A This is the worde of yͤ Lord that came vnto Joell yͤ ſõne of Phatuell. Heare, O ye elders: pondre this well, al ye that dwell in the lande: yf euer there happened ſuche a thing in youre dayes, or in yͤ dayes of your fathers. Tell your children of it, and let thẽ ſhewe it vnto theyr children, and ſo they to certifye theyr poſterytie thereof. Loke what the caterpyller hath left, that hath yͤ greſhopper eaten vp: what the greſhopper left, that hath the locuſte eaten vp: ‡ what the locuſt hath left, that hath the blaſtynge B conſumed. Wake vp ye dronkerdes, and wepe: mourne al ye wine ſuppers, becauſe of youre ſwete wyne: for it ſhalbe taken away from youre mouthe. Yea, a myghtie & an innumerable people ſhall come vp into my lande: theſe haue teeth lyke the teeth of lyons, and chawbones lyke the lioneſſes. Deu.32.d *They ſhall make my vyneyarde waſte, they ſhall pyl of the barkes of my fygtrees, ſtrype them bare, caſte them away, & make the braunches whyte. Make thy mone as a virgin dothe that gyrdeth her ſelfe with ſacke, becauſe of her brydegrome. For the meate and drynke offrynge ſhalbe taken awaye from the houſe of the Lorde, and the prieſtes, yͤ Lordes miniſters ſhal mourne. The fielde ſhalbe waſted, the lande ſhall be in a myſerable caſe: for the corne ſhalbe deſtroyed, the ſwete wyne ſhall come to con- C fuſyon, and the oyle vtterly deſolate. The huſband men and the wyne gardeners ſhall loke pyteouſlye, and make lamentacion for the wheate, wyne and barley, and becauſe the harueſt vpõ the field is ſo clene deſtroyed. The grape gatherers ſhall make greate mone, when the vyneyarde and fygtrees be ſo vtterly waſted. Yea, al the pomgranates, palmtrees, apple trees, & the other trees of the field ſhal wyther awaye. Thus the mery chere of the chyldren of menne ſhal come to confuſyon. Gyrde you, and make youre mone, O ye prieſtes, mourne ye minyſters of the aultar: go youre waye in, and ſlepe in ſackeclothe, O ye offycers of my God: for D the meate and drynke offerynge ſhal bee taken awaye from the houſe of your GOD. Proclayme a faſtyng, call the congregacyon, gather the elders, *and all the inhabytours of the lande together into the houſe of the Lorde youre God, and crye vnto the Lord: alas, alas, for thys daye. And why? the daye of the Lorde is at hande, and commeth as a deſtroyer from the almyghtye. Shall not the meates bee taken away before oure eyes, the myrth alſo and ioye frõ the houſe of oure God? The ſede ſhal periſh in the grounde, the garners ſhall lye waſte, the floores ſhalbe broken downe, for the corne ſhall bee deſtroyed. O what a ſyghynge make the kyne? the bullockes are in verye euell lykynge, becauſe they haue no paſture: and the ſhepe are famyſhed away.

O Lord, to thee will I crye: for the fire hath conſumed the goodly paſtures of the wildernes, and the flame hathe burnt vp al the trees of the field. Yea, the wild beaſtes crye alſo vnto thee, for the water ryuers are dryed vp, & the fyre hath conſumed the paſtures of the wilderneſſe.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ He propheceyeth the commynge and crueltye of theyr enemyes. An exhortacion to moue them to converte.

Blowe oute yͤ trompet in Syon, and crye vpon my holye hyl, that all ſuche as dwell in the lande, may tremble at it: *for the daye of the Lorde commeth, and is harde at hande: a darke daye, a glomynge daye, a cloudye daye: yea, and a ſtormy daye, lyke as the mornynge ſpreadeth out vpon the hylles. Namely, a great and myghtye people: ſuche as haue not bene ſence the begynnynge, neyther ſhalbee after them for euermore. Before hym ſhall bee a conſuming fyre, and behynde hym a burnynge flame. The lande ſhalbee as a garden of pleaſure before hym: but behynde hym ſhall it bee a verye waſte wyldernesſe, and there is no man that ſhal eſcape hym: They are to loke vpon lyke barbed horſes, and runne lyke horſemen. They ſkyppe vp vpon the hilles as it were the ſounde of charettes: as the flame of fyre that conſumeth the ſtrawe, B and as a myghtye people redy to the batayle. The folke ſhalbee afrayde of hym, al faces ſhalbee as blacke as a potte. Theſe ſhall runne lyke Gyauntes, and leape ouer the walles lyke men of warre. Euery man in hys going ſhall kepe hys araye, and not go oute of hys pathe. There ſhall not one dryue an other, but eche ſhall kepe hys owne waye. They ſhall breake in at the wyndowes, and not bee hurte. They ſhall come into the citie, ⁊ runne vpō the walles. They ſhall clyme vp vpon the houſes, and ſlippe in at the windowes lyke a thefe. C The earth ſhall quake before hym: yea, the heauens ſhalbee moued. *The Sunne and the moone ſhalbe darkened, and the ſtarres ſhall withdrawe theyr ſhyne. The Lorde ſhall ſhewe hys voyce before hys hooſte, for hys hooſt is greate, ſtronge and myghtye, to fulfyll hys commaundement. Thys is that greate and maruaylous fearefull daye of the Lord. *And who is hable to abyde it? Nowe therefore ſayeth the Lord: *Turne you vnto me wͭ all your heartes, with faſtynge, wepynge and mournynge: rent youre heartes and not youre clothes. Turne you vnto the Lorde youre GOD, *for he is gracyous and mercyfull, longe ſufferynge, and of greate compaſſyon: and ready to pardon wyckedneſſe. Then (no doubte) he alſo ſhall turne and forgeue, ⁊ after hys chaſtenynge he ſhall let youre encreaſe remayne for meate and drynke offrynges vnto the Lorde your God. *Blow D out with the trompet in Syon, proclayme a faſtyng, call the congregacyō, and gather the people together: warne the congregacyon, gather the elders, brynge the chyldrē and ſucklynges together. Lette the brydegrome go forthe of hys chamber, and the bride out of her cloſet. Let yͤ prieſtes ſerue the Lorde betwyxte the porche and the aulter, wepynge, and ſayinge: bee fauourable, O Lorde, bee fauourable vnto thy people, let not thyne heritage bee brought to ſuche confuſyon, leſt the Heathen be lordes thereof. *Wherefore ſhoulde they ſaye amonge the Heathen: where is nowe theyr God? ¶

E Then ſhal the Lorde be gelouſe ouer his lande and ſpare hys people: yea, the Lord ſhall anſwere and ſaye vnto hys people: Beholde, I wyll ſende you corne, wyne, and oyle, ſo that ye ſhall haue plentye of them: and I will nomore geue you ouer, to bee a reprofe amonge the Heathen. Agayne, as for him of yͤ northe, I ſhal dryue hym farre from you: and ſhutte hym oute into a drye and waſte lande, hys face towarde the eaſte ſea, and hys hynder partes towarde the vttermoſte ſea. The ſtinke of hym ſhall goe vp, and hys fylthy corrupcyon ſhall fall vpon hym ſelfe, becauſe he hath dealt ſo proudely. Feare not (O land) but be glad, and reioyce: for the Lord will doo greate thynges. Be not ye afrayde neyther (O ye beaſtes of the felde) for the paſtures ſhalbe grene, and the trees ſhal beare theyr fruite: the fygtrees and vyneyardes ſhall geue theyr increaſe. Bee glad then F (O ye chyldren of Syon) and reioyce in the Lorde youre GOD, for he hath geuen you a teacher of ryghteouſneſſe: *and he Leu.26.a. it is that ſhall ſende you downe ſhoures of Deut.11.b rayne, earlye and late in the firſte monethe: and.28.b. ſo that the garners ſhalbee full of corne, and the preſſes plenteous in wine and oyle. And as for the eares that the greſhopper locuſte, blaſtynge, and caterpyller, (my greate hoſte whiche I ſente amonge you) haue eaten vp, I ſhall reſtore them to you agayne, ſo that ye ſhall haue ynoughe to eate, and bee ſatyſfyed: and prayſe the name of the Lorde youre GOD, that ſo maruaylouſly hathe dealte with you.

And my people ſhall neuer bee confounded any more. Ye ſhall well knowe, that I am in the myddeſte of Iſraell, and that I am the Lorde youre GOD, yea, and that there is none other: and my people ſhall nomore bee brought to confuſyon. G

*After thys wyll I poure oute my ſprite Nume.11.f vpon all fleſhe: and youre ſonnes and your Eſa.44.a doughters ſhall prophecye: youre olde men Eze.36.d ſhal dreame dreames, and youre yong men Actes.2.b ſhall ſee viſyons: yea in thoſe dayes I wil poure oute my ſpryte vpon ſeruauntes and maydens. I wyll ſhewe wonders in heauen aboue, and tokens in the earth beneth: bloude and fyre, and the vapoure of ſmoke. The ſunne ſhalbee turned into darkeneſſe, and the moone into bloud, before the great and notable daye of the Lorde come. And the tyme ſhall come, that *whoſoeuer calleth Rom.10.b on the name of the Lorde, ſhall bee ſaued. For vpon the mounte Syon, and at Ieruſalem, there ſhall bee a ſaluacyon, like as the Lorde hathe promyſed: yea, and amonge the other remnaunte, whome the Lorde ſhall call.

the hylles ſhall flowe with mylke. All the ryuers of Iuda ſhall haue water ynoughe, and out of ẏ Lordes houſe there ſhal flow a ſpryng, to water the brooke of *Sitim: but Egipt ſhalbe layde waſte. ‡and Edom Iere. ſhalbe deſolate: becauſe they haue dealte ſo ‡Iere. cruelly with the children of Iuda, and ſhed innocente bloude in theyr lande. Agayne, Iuda ſhalbee inhabyted for euermore, and Ieruſalem from generacion to generacion: for I will not leaue theyr bloud vnauēged.
And the Lorde ſhall dwell in Syon.

¶ The ende of the prophecye of Ioell.

The booke of the Prophete Amos.

The firſt Chapter.

The tyme of the prophecye of Amos. The worde of the Lorde agaynſte Azah, agaynſt Tyre, agaynſte Edom, and agaynſte the ſonnes of Ammon.

A These are the ſermons that were ſhewed vnto Amos, (which was one of the ſhepheardes at Thecua) vpō Iſrael, in the tyme of *Oſiah Kynge of Iuda, & 4.Re. in the tyme of Ieroboam 3.Re. the ſonne of Ioah kynge of Iſraell, two yeare before the earthe quake. And he ſayde: The Lorde ſhall rore out of Sion, Iere. and ſhewe hys voyce from Ieruſalem, ſo ẏ Ioel. the paſtures of the ſhepherdes ſhall be in a myſerable caſe, and the top of Carmel dryed vp. Thus ſayeth the Lord: for thre and foure wyckedneſſes of *Damaſcus. I wil Eſa. not ſpare her: becauſe they haue threſhed Iere.
Galaad with yron flayles. But I wil ſende a fyre into the houſe of Hazael, ẏ ſame ſhall B conſume the palaces of Benadab. Thus will I breake the barres of Damaſcus, and rote out the inhabyter from the feld of Auen,

Iuen, and hym that holdeth the ſcepter out B of the pleaſaunte houſe: ſo that the people ſhalbee dryuen out of fayre Sirya, ſayeth the Lord. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: For thre and foure wyckedneſſes of *Gaza, I wyll not ſpare her: becauſe they make the pryſoners yet more captyue, and haue driuen thē into the lande of Edom. Therefore wyll I ſende a fyre into the walles of Gaza, which ſhall deuoure her houſes. I will rote oute them that dwell at Aſdod, and hym that holdeth the ſcepter of Aſcalon, and ſtretche oute mine hande ouer Accaron, that the rēnaunt of the Philiſtines ſhall peryſhe, ſaith the Lorde. Thus ſayeth the Lord: For thre C and foure wyckedneſſes of the Citye of *Tyre, I will not ſpare her: becauſe they haue encreaſed the captiuytie of the Edomites, and haue not remembred the *brotherly couenaunte. Therefore wyll I ſende a fyre into the walles of Tire, that ſhal conſume her palaces. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: for thre and foure wyckedneſſes of *Edō, I will not ſpare hym, becauſe ‡he perſecuted hys brother with the ſweard, deſtroyed hys mothers wombe, bare hatered very longe, and ſo kepte indignacion alway by him. Therefore wil I ſend a fyre into Theman, whiche ſhall deuoure the palaces of D Boſra. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: for thre & foure wickedneſſes of the children of *Ammon, I wyll not ſpare them: becauſe they rypte vp the wemen greate with chylde in Galaad, to make ẏ borders of theyr lādes the wider. Therfore I wyll kyndle a fyre in the walles of Rabbath, that ſhall conſume her palaces, with a greate crye, in the daye of battayle, in tempeſte and in the daye of ſtorme: ſo that theyr kyng ſhall go into captiuitie, he and hys prynces together, ſayeth the Lorde.

The ii Chapter.

Agaynſte Moab, Iuda, and Iſrael.

A Thus ſayeth the Lorde: For three & foure wickedneſſes of Moab, I wyll *not ſpare hym: becauſe he brent the bones of the kyng of Edom to aſſhes: Therefore will I ſende a fyre into Moab, whiche ſhal conſume the palaces of Carioth: ſo that Moab ſhal periſhe with noyſe, & the sounde of a ſhawme.
I will rote oute the Iudge from amonge them, and ſlaye all hys prynces with hym, ſayeth the Lorde. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: for thre and foure wyckedneſſes of *Iuda, B I will not ſpare him: becauſe he hath caſte aſyde the lawe of the Lorde, and not kepte hys commaundementes: for why? *they Iere.44.c woulde nedes bee diſceyued with the lyes Ezec.20.c that theyr forefathers folowed. Therfore wyll I ſende a fyre into Iuda, whiche ſhall conſume the palaces of Ieruſalem. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: For thre and foure wyckedneſſes C of Iſraell, I will not ſpare hym, becauſe he hath ſolde ẏ ryghteous for money, and the poore for ſhoes. They treade vpon poore mens heades, in the duſte of ẏ earthe, and crooke the wayes of the meke.
The ſonne and the father go to the harlot, to diſhonoure my holy name: they lye beſyde euery aultare, vpon clothes taken to pledge, and in the houſe of theyr gods they drynke the wyne of the oppreſſed. Yet deſtroyed I the Amoryte *before them, that Num.13.c was as hye as the Cedre trees, & as ſtrong as the okes: not withſtandyng I deſtroyed his frute from aboue, and hys rote from vnder. *Agayne, I brought you out of the Exo.14.c lande of Egypte, and led you fortye yeres Deu.8.a. thorowe ẏ wildernes, that ye myght haue the Amorites lande in poſſeſſion. I rayſed vp prophetes amonge youre children, and abſteyners amonge youre yonge men. Is it not ſo, O ye children of Iſrael, ſayeth the D Lorde? *But ye gaue the abſteyners wine Num.6.a to drinke: ‡yea, ye cōmaunded ẏ prophetes, ‡Iere.11.b ſaying: Prophecy not. Behold, I wil craſh you in ſōder, lyke as a wayne craſheth that is ful of ſheaues, ſo that the ſwifte ſhal not eſcape, nether the ſtronge be able to do any thynge: no, the Giaunt ſhall not ſaue hys owne lyfe. The archer ſhall not abyde, and the ſwyfte of fote ſhal not eſcape. The horſman ſhall not ſaue hys lyfe, and he that is as manly of ſtomacke as a gyaunte, ſhall in that daye bee fayne to runne hys waye naked, ſayth the Lorde.

The.iii. Chapter.

He reproueth the houſe of Iſrael of wickedneſſe.

Heare what the Lorde ſpeaketh A vnto you (O ye children of Iſraell,) namely, vnto al the tribes, whom I brought out of Egipt, and ſayde: *you onely haue I excepted frō Deu.4.d all the generacions of the earth: therefore and.32.b, wyll I viſet you in al youre wyckedneſſes.
Maye twayne walke together, except they bee agreed amonge them ſelues? *Dothe Iob.6.a. a lyon rore in the woode, excepte he haue a praye? Or cryeth a lions whelpe out of his den, except he haue gottē ſomething? Doth a byrde fal in a ſnare vpon the earth where B no fouler is? Taketh a man hys ſnare vp from the grounde, afore he catche ſōwhat?

Crye they out Alarum with the trompet in the citie, and the people not afrayed? Cōmeth there any plage in a Citie, without it bee the Lordes doynge? Nowe dothe the Lorde God no maner of thynge, but he telleth hys ſecret before vnto hys ſeruauntes the prophetes. When a Lyon roareth who wyll not bee afrayed? Seyng then that the Lorde God hym ſelfe ſpeaketh, who wyll not prophecie? Preache in yͤ palaces at Aſdod, C & in the palaces of the lande of Egipt, and ſaye: gather you together vpon yͤ mouūtaynes of Samaria, ſo ſhall ye ſee greate murther and violente oppreſſion amonge them: for why? they regarde not the thyng yͭ is ryght, ſayth yͤ Lord: they gather together euel gottē goodes, & laie vp robbery in theyr houſes. Therefore, thus ſayth yͤ lord God. This lande ſhall be troubled and beſeaged rounde aboute, thy ſtrength ſhalbee plucte from thee, and thy palaces robbed.

D Thus ſayeth the Lorde, lyke as an heardman taketh two legges or a pece of an eare oute of the Lyons mouthe: Euen ſo the children of Iſrael (that dwell in Samaria) hauyng theyr couches in the corner, theyr beddes at Damaſcus, ſhalbe pluct away.
4.re 16.c 17. *Heare, and beare recorde in the houſe of Iacob, (ſayeth the Lorde God of Hoſtes) that when I begynne to vyſet the wyckedneſſe of Iſraell, I will vyſet the Aultares at Bethell alſo: ſo that the hornes of yͤ Aultare ſhalbe broken of, & fall to the grounde.

As for the wynter houſe and ſommer houſe, I wyll ſmyte them downe: and the houſes of yuery, yea, and many other houſes ſhal periſhe, and be deſtroied, ſayeth the Lorde.

The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ Agaynſte the gouernours of Samaria.

A O Heare this word ye fat kine, that be vpon the hill of Samaria: ye that do poore men wrong, & oppreſſe the nedy, ye that ſaye to youre lordes: brynge hyther, let vs drinke. Therfore, the Lord hath ſworne by his holyneſſe: The dayes ſhall come vpō you, that yͤ enemies ſhal cary you away in ſhippes, & your poſterytie ſhalbe caryed awaye vpon fyſhers hokes. Ye ſhall get you out at the gappes one after another, euen the kinges palace ſhal you ouerthrow, to make a way to eſcape, ſayeth the Lord.
Ioſu.16.a 3.re.12.c. Oſe.4.c. ‡Oſee.9.c am.2.b. Ye came to *Bethel for to worke vngraciouſnes, and haue encreaſed youre ſynnes at ‡ Gilgall: ye brought youre ſacrifyces in the mornynge, and youre tythes vnto the thyrde daye.
B Ye made a thankeofferyng of leuen, ye promyſed frewill offrynges and proclaymed thē. Suche luſte had ye, O ye chyldren of Iſrael, ſayeth the Lorde God. Therfore haue I geuen you ydle teeth in all youre Cyties, & ſcarceneſſe of breade in al youre palaces, yet wyll ye not turne vnto me, ſayeth the Lord. Whē there were but thre monethes vnto the harueſt, *I withhelde the rayne from you: yea, I rayned vpon one Citie, & not vpon another: one pece of grounde was moyſtured with rayne, and yͤ ground that I rayned not vpon, was drye. Wherefore two, yea, thre cities came vnto one, to drynke water, but they were not ſatiſfyed:
C yet wyll ye not turne vnto me, ſayeth the Lorde. I haue ſmyttē you with drouth and blaſtyng: and loke how many orchardes, vyneyardes, fygtrees and olyue trees ye had, the caterpyller hath eaten them vp. But yet wyll ye not turne vnto me, ſayeth the Lorde. Peſtylence haue I ſente among you, *as I dyd in Egypte: youre yonge menne haue I ſlayne with the ſweard, and cauſed youre horſes to bee taken captiue: I made the ſtynkynge ſauoure of youre tentes, to come vp into your noſtrels. Yet wil ye not turne vnto me, ſayeth the Lord. Some of you haue I ouerthrowen *as D I ouerthrewe Sodome and Gomorre: ſo that ye were as a brande plucte oute of the fyre. Yet wyll ye not turne vnto me, ſayeth the Lorde. Therefore, thus wyll I handle thee agayne, O Iſrael: yea euen thus wyll I handle thee. Make the redy then to mete thy GOD, O Iſrael. For lo, he maketh the mountaynes, he ordeyneth the wynde, he ſheweth man what he is aboute to do: he maketh the mornynge and the darkeneſſe, he treadeth vpō the hye places of the earth: the Lorde GOD of Hoſtes is hys name.

The. v. Chapter.

A complaynt of the captiuitie of Iſrael.

HEare this worde, O ye houſe of Iſrael: and why? I muſte make thys mone for you. The virgyn Iſraell ſhall fall, and neuer ryſe vp agayne: ſhe ſhalbe caſte downe vpon her owne ground, and no manne ſhall helpe her vp. For thus ſayth yͤ Lord god: Where as there dwelt a thouſand in one citie, there ſhalbe lefte ſcarce an hundred therin: and where there dwelt an. C. there ſhall ſcarce ten be left, in the houſe of Iſrael. Neuertheleſſe thus ſayth the Lord vnto the houſe of Iſraell: Seke after me, and ye ſhall lyue, B but ſeke not after Bethel.

Come not at Gilgal, and go not to Berſaba: for Gilgal ſhall bee caryed awaye captyue, ⁊ Bethell ſhall come to nought.
Seke the Lorde, that ye maye lyue: leſte the houſe of Ioſeph bee brente with fyre and conſumed, and leſte there be none to quenche Bethell.

Ye turne the lawe to wormewood, and caſte downe ryghteouſneſſe vnto the grounde. *Ye forſake the Lorde that maketh the ſeuen ſtarres, and the Orions, C that turneth the nyght into daye, and of the daye he maketh darkneſſe. *He calleth the waters of the ſea, and poureth them out vpon the playne grounde: the Lorde is his name. He rayſeth deſtructiō vpon the myghtye people, and bryngeth downe ẏ ſtrong holde. But they owe him euil wil, ẏ reproueth them openly: ⁊ whoſo telleth thē the plaine truth, they abhor him. For ſo muche then as ye oppreſſe the poore, ⁊ rob him of his beſt ſuſtenaunce: *therfore wheras ye haue builded houſes of ſquare ſtone, ye ſhal not dwell in them.
Maruelous pleaſaunt vyneyardes ſhall you plant, but the wyne of thē ſhal ye not drynke: and why? as for the multitude of your wickedneſſes ⁊ your ſtout ſinnes, I D know thē right wel. Enemyes are ye of ẏ righteous, *ye take rewardes, ye oppreſſe the poore in iudgement. Therfore ẏ wyſe muſt now be fayne to holde his tong, ſo wicked a time is it. Seke after the thyng that is good, and not euil, ſo ſhal ye lyue: yea, the Lorde God of hoſtes ſhalbe with you, accordyng to youre owne deſyre.
*Hate the euill, ⁊ loue the good: ⁊ ſet vp right again in the porte: ⁊ (no doubt) the Lord god of hoſtes ſhalbe merciful vnto the remnaunt of Ioſeph. If no (ſayth the E Lord God, ẏ God of hoſtes) there ſhalbe mourning in al ſtretes: yea, they ſhal ſay in euery ſtrete: alas, alas. They ſhal call the houſbandmā to lamentacion, ⁊ ſuche as can mourne to mourning. In al vineyardes there ſhalbe heuyneſſe, for I wyll come amōg you, ſayth the Lord. Woe be vnto them that deſyre the day of ẏ Lord.
Wherfore woulde ye haue it? As for the day of the Lord, it ſhalbe darke and not cleare. Yea, lyke as when a man runneth frō a Lyon ⁊ a Bear meteth with him: or when he cōmeth into the houſe, ⁊ leaneth his hande vpon the wall, a ſerpente byteth hym. Shall not the day of the Lorde be darke *and not cleare? ſhall it not bee cloudye, and no ſhyne in it? ⁊ I hate and abhorre your holy dayes: and where as ye cenſe me when ye come together, I wil F not accepte it. And though ye offer me brent offeringes and meatofferinges, yet haue I no pleaſure therein. As for youre fatte thanke offerynges, I wyll not loke vpon them. Away with that noyſe of thy ſonges. I wyll not heare thy playes of muſycke: but ſee that equitye flow as the water, and ryghteouſneſſe, as a myghtye G ſtreame. O ye houſe of Iſrael, *gaue ye Iere.7.c me offerynges and ſacryfices thoſe fortye Actes.7.e yeares long in the wylderneſſe? yet haue ye ſet vp tabernacles to youre *Moloch, Leui.20.a and ymages of your ydols: yea, and the 3.reg.11.f. ſtarre of youre God Rempha, fygures whiche ye made to worſhyp them. Therfore will I cauſe you to be caryed awaye beyonde Damaſcus, ſayeth the Lorde, whoſe name is the God of hoſtes.

The.vi.Chapter.

Agaynſt ẏ prynces of Iſrael lyuing in pleaſures.

O Woe bee to the proude welthy in A Syon, to ſuche as thynke them ſo Luke.6.c ſure vpon the mount of Samaria: which hold themſelues for the beſt of the world, and rule the houſe of Iſrael, euen as they luſt. Go vnto Calne, and ſee: and from thence get you to Hemath the great citie, ⁊ ſo goe downe to Gath of the Philyſtines: bee they better at eaſe then theſe kyngdomes, or the border of theyr lande wyder then youres? Ye are taken out for the euill daye, euen ye that ſyt in the ſtole B of wylfulnes. Ye that lye vpon beddes of yuerye, and vſe your wantonneſſe vpon your couches: ye that eate ẏ beſt lambes of the flocke, and the fatteſt calues of the droue: ye that ſynge to the lute, ⁊ in playing of inſtrumētes compare your ſelues vnto *Dauid: ye that drynke wyne out Iob.21.b of goblettes, ⁊ anoynt your ſelues wyth Eſay.5.b the beſt oyle, but no man is ſorye for Ioſephs hurte. Therfore, now ſhal ye be the fyrſte of them, that ſhalbe led awaye captyue, ⁊ the luſty chere of the wilfull ſhall C come to an ende. *The Lorde God hathe Iere.2.c ſworne euen by himſelfe (ſayth the Lorde Amos.8.a God of hoſtes) I hate ẏ pryde of Iacob, and I abhorre his palaces: I wyll geue ouer the cytie, with all that is therein: ſo that though there remayne ten menne in one houſe, they ſhall dye. So theyr nexte kynſfolkes and the dead buryars ſhall take them, and carye awaye theyr bones, and ſaye vnto hym, that is in the innermer houſe: is there yet any moe by thee?

And

Deu.8.b And he ſhall anſwere : they are all gone, holde thy tounge (ſhall he ſaye) * for they woulde not remembre the name of the D Lorde. Beholde, the Lorde is mynded to ſmyte the great houſes, ſo that they ſhall decay: and the lytle houſes, that they ſhal cleaue a ſunder. Who canne runne wyth horſes, or plow with oxen vpon the hard rockes of ſtone? For why, ye haue turned true iudgemente into bytterneſſe, and the frute of righteouſneſſe into wormewood.
Yea, euen ye yͤ reioyce in vayne thinges, ye that ſay: haue not we obtained hornes in oure owne ſtrength? Well take hede, O ye houſe of Iſrael, ſayeth the Lorde God of hooſtes: I wyll bryng a people vpon you, whiche ſhall trouble you from the waye that goeth toward Hemath vnto the broke in the medowe.

The. vii. Chapter.

Of the captyuitie of Iſrael and Iuda.

A THE Lorde God ſhewed me ſuche a vyſyon: beholde, there ſtode one that made Greſhoppers, euen when the corne was ſhotyng forth, after the kyng had clypte his ſhepe. Nowe when they vndertooke to eate vp all the grene thynges in the lande, I ſayde: O Lorde God, be mercyfull, I beſeche thee, who ſhould els helpe vp Iacob that is brought ſo lowe? So the Lorde was gracyous therin, and the Lorde ſayde: well, it ſhall not be. Againe, the Lorde ſhewed me this viſion: behold, the Lorde God called the fyre to puniſhe withall, and it deuoured the greate depe: yea, it conſumed a parte alreadye. Then ſayde I: O Lorde God, hold thyne hand: for who ſhoulde els helpe vp Iacob that B is brought ſo lowe? So the Lorde was mercyfull therein, and the Lorde God ſayde: well, it ſhall not bee. Moreouer he ſhewed me this vyſyon: beholde, the Lorde ſtode vpon a plaſtered wall, and a maſons trowell in his hande. And the Lorde ſayde vnto me: Amos, what ſeeſt thou? I anſwered: a maſons trowell.
Then ſayde the Lorde: beholde, I wyll lay the trowel amonge my people of Iſrael, and wyll nomore ouerſe them, but the hye hylchapels of Iſaac muſt be layd C waſte, and the churches of Iſrael made 4.re.17.a deſolate: * and as for the houſe of Ieroboam, I wyll ſtande vp againſt it wyth the ſwearde. Upon this ſente Amaſiah the prieſt to Bethell vnto Ieroboam the 3.re.13.b, kyng of Iſrael, ſaying: * Amos maketh the houſe of Iſrael to rebell againſt thee:
the lande cannot away with his wordes.
For Amos ſayeth: Ieroboam ſhall dye with the ſweard, and Iſrael ſhalbe led away captyue out of their owne lãde. And Amaſiah ſayd vnto Amos. Get the hence * (thou that canſt ſee ſo well) and flee into the lande of Iuda, gette the there thy lyuing & prophecy there: and prophecy nomore at Bethel, for it is the kinges chappel, & the kinges court. Amos anſwered, & ſayd to Amaſiah: As * for me I am neither D Prophete, nor Prophetes ſon, but a keper of catel. Now as I was breakyng downe molberyes, & goyng after the cattel, the Lorde tooke me, & ſayde vnto me: Go thy waye, & prophecy vnto my people of Iſrael. And therfore heare thou nowe the worde of the Lord: Thou ſayeſt: prophecy not againſt Iſrael, and ſpeake nothing againſt the houſe of Iſaac. Wherfore thus ſayth the Lorde: Thy wyfe ſhal bee defyled in the cytie, thy ſonnes and daughters ſhalbe ſlaine with the ſweard, and thy lande ſhalbe meaſured out with the lyne. Thou thy ſelfe ſhalt dye in an vncleane lande, * and Iſrael ſhall be dryuen out of his owne countrye.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

Agaynſt the rulers of Iſrael. The Lord ſweareth that he wyl fulfyl the thynges which he hath determyned agaynſt Iſrael.

THe Lorde God ſhewed me this A viſion: and behold, there was a maund with ſomer frute. And he ſaid: Amos what ſeyſt thou?
I anſwered: a maunde with ſomer frute.
Then ſayde the Lorde vnto me: the ende commeth vpon my people of Iſrael, I wyll nomore ouerſe them. In that daye ſhall the ſonges of the temple be turned into ſorowe, ſayeth the Lorde God: manye dead bodyes ſhall lye in euery place, B and be caſt forth ſecretly. * Heare this, O ye that oppreſſe the poore, and deſtroye the nedye in the lande, ſaying: When wyl the newe moneth be gone, that we maye ſell vytayle, and the Sabboth, that we maye haue ſcarceneſſe of corne to make the buſhell leſſe, and the ſycle greater?
We ſhall ſette vp falſe weyghtes, that we may gette the poore vnder vs wth theyr money, and the nedye alſo for ſhoes: yea, lette vs ſell the chaffe for corne. * The C Lorde hathe ſworne agaynſte the pryde of Iacob: theſe workes of theyrs wyll I neuer forgette. Shall not the lande tremble, and all they that dwell therein, mourne for this ? Shall not theyr de-struccyon come vpon them lyke a water streame, and flow ouer them as the floud of Egypte ? * At the ſame tyme (ſayeth the Lorde God) I ſhall cauſe the ſunne to goe downe at noone, and the lande to bee darke in the clere daye. * Youre hye feaſtes wyll I turne to ſorowe, and your ſonges to mournyng: I wyll bryng ſackcloth vpon all backes, and baldneſſe vp-on euerye head: yea, ſuche a mournyng wyll I ſende them, * as is made vpon an only begotten ſonne, and they ſhall haue a myſerable ende. Behold, the tyme com-D meth (ſayeth the Lorde God) that I ſhal ſende an hunger into the earthe, not the hunger of breade, nor the thyrſte of water, but an hunger to heare the woorde of the Lorde: ſo that they ſhall goe from the one ſea to the other: yea, from the north vnto the eaſt, runnyng aboute to ſeke the woorde of the Lorde, and ſhall not fynde it. In that time ſhall the fayre vyrgines and the younge men peryſh for thyrſte: yea, euen they that ſweare in the execrable calfe of Samaria, and ſaye: as truelye as thy God lyueth at Dan, and as truelye as thy God lyueth at Berſaba. Theſe ſhall fall and neuer ryſe vp agayne.

The.ix. Chapter.

Threatnynges agaynſte Iſrael. No manne can eſcape the hande of God.

I Sawe the LORDE ſtan-A dyng vpon the aultare, and he ſayde: ſmyte the doore cheke, that yͤ poſtes may ſhake wythall. For theyr couetouſneſſe ſhall fall vp-on all theyr heades, and theyr poſterytie ſhall be ſlayne with the ſwearde. * They ſhall not flee away, there ſhall not one of them eſcape nor be delyuered. * Though they were buryed in the hell, my hande ſhall fetche them from thence: though they clyme vp to heauen, yet ſhall I caſt them downe: though they hyde themſelues vpon the toppe of Carmell, yet ſhall I ſeke them oute, and bryng them from thence: though they crepe downe from my ſyght into the depe of the ſea, I ſhall commaunde the ſerpente, euen there to byte them. If they go awaye before theyr enemyes into captiuytie, then ſhall I commaunde the ſwearde, there to ſlaye them. Thus wyll I ſette myne B eyes vpon them, for theyr harme and not for theyr wealth. For when the Lorde God of hooſtes toucheth a lande, it con-ſumeth awaye, and all they that dwell therein, muſte nedes mourne: And why? theyr deſtruccion ſhall aryſe as euerye ſtreame, and runne ouer them, as the the waters as the ſea, and powreth them out vpon the playne grounde: his name houſe of Iacob, ſayeth the Lorde. Zac.13.b

For loe, this I promyſe: though I Rom.9.c. ſyfte the houſe of Iſrael amonge all na-cions (lyke as they vſe to ſyfte in a ſyue) yet ſhall not the ſmaleſt grauell ſtone fal vpon the earth: But all the wycked doers of my people, that ſaye: Tuſhe, the plage is not ſo nye, to come ſo haſtelye vpon vs: thoſe ſhall peryſhe wyth the ſwearde. * At that tyme wyll I buylde Acte.15.c agayne the tabernacle of Dauyd, that Mich.7.b is fallen downe, & hedge vp hys gappes, D and looke what is broken, I ſhall repayre it: yea, I ſhall buylde it agayne, as it was afore tyme, that they may poſſeſſe the remnaunte of Edom: yea, and all ſuche people as cal vpon my name, with them ſayeth the Lord whiche doeth theſe thynges. Beholde, the tyme commeth (ſayeth the Lorde) that the plowmanne ſhall ouertake the mowar, and yͤ treader of grapes hym that ſoweth ſeede. * The Ioel.3.c mountaynes ſhall droppe ſwete wyne, and the hylles ſhall be frutefull, and I wyll turne the captyuitie of my people of Iſrael: they ſhall repayre the waſte Cyties and haue them in poſſeſſyon, they ſhall plant vyneyardes, and drynke the wyne thereof, they ſhall make gardens, and enioy the frutes of them. And I wil plant them vpon their owne ground, ſo that I wil neuer roote them out again from theyr lande whiche I haue geuen them, ſayeth the Lorde thy God.

Agaynſte Edom and the truſt that they had in ryches.

A THIS is the vyſion that was ſhewed vnto Abdye. Thus hath the Lord God ſpokẽ vpon *Edom. We haue heard of ẏ Lord that there is an embaſſage ſente among the heathen: Up, let vs aryſe, and fyght agaynſt them. Beholde, *I wyll make the ſmall amonge the heathen, ſo that thou ſhalt be vtterlye deſpyſed. The pryde of thyne herte hath lyfte thee vp, thou that dwelleſt in the ſtronge holdes of ſtone, and haſte made thee an hye ſeate. Thou ſayeſt in thyne harte, who ſhall caſte me downe to the grounde? *But though thou wenteſt vp as hye as the Aegle, and madeſt thy neſt B aboue among the ſtarres: yet woulde I plucke thee downe from thence, ſayeth the Lorde. Yf the theues and robbers came to the by nyght, thou takyng thy reſt: ſhould they not ſteale, tyll they had enough? Yf the grape gatherers came vpon thee, woulde they not leaue the ſumme grapes? But howe ſhall they ryppe Eſau, and ſeke oute his treaſure? Yea the menne that were ſworne vnto thee, ſhall dryue thee oute of the borders of thyne owne lande. They that be now at one wyth thee, ſhall dyſceyue thee: and ouercome thee: Euen they that eate C thy breade, ſhall betraye thee, or euer thou perceyue it. * Shall not I at the ſame tyme deſtroye the wyſemenne of Edom, and thoſe that haue vnderſtandyng from the mounte of Eſau? Thy gyauntes (O Theman) ſhall bee afrayde, for thorowe the ſlaughter, they ſhall bee all ouerthrowen vpon the mounte of Eſau. Shame ſhall come vpon thee for the malyce that thou ſhewedſte to thy *brother Iacob: yea, for euermore ſhalt thou peryſhe, and that becauſe of the tyme, when thou dydeſt ſette thy ſelfe agaynſte hym, euen when the enemyes caryed awaye his hoſte, and when the aleauntes came in at his portes, and caſte lottes vpon Ieruſalem, and thou thy ſelfe waſte as one of them. Thou ſhalt nomore ſee the daye of thy brother, thou D ſhalt nomore behold the tyme of his captiuitie: thou ſhalt nomore reioyce ouer the chyldren of Iuda, in the daye of their deſtruccion, thou ſhalt trymphe nomore in the tyme of theyr trouble. Thou ſhalt nomore come in at the gates of my people, in the tyme of theyr decay: thou ſhalt not ſee theyr miſerye in the daye of theyr E fall. Thou ſhalt ſende oute no man agaynſt theyr hooſte, in the daye of theyr aduerſytie: neyther ſhalte thou ſtande waytyng any more at the corners of the ſtretes, to murther ſuche as are fled, or to take them preſoners, that remayne in the daye of theyr trouble. For the daye of the Lorde is harde by vpon all the heathen. *Lyke as thou haſte done, ſo ſhalte thou be dealte wythall, yea, thou ſhalt be rewarded euen vpon thyne head. For lykewiſe as ye haue dronken vpon myne holy hyll, ſo ſhall all heathen drynke contynually: yea, drynke ſhal they & ſwalow vp, ſo that ye ſhall bee as though ye had neuer been. But vpon the mounte Syon ſhall the ſaluacion bee, and holyneſſe: F theſe ſhall bee holy, and the houſe of Iacob ſhall poſſeſſe euen thoſe, *that had themſelues afore in poſſeſſyon. Moreouer, the houſe of Iacob ſhall bee a fyre, the houſe of Ioſeph a flame, & the *houſe of Eſau ſhall bee the ſtrawe whiche they ſhal kyndle and conſume, ſo that nothing ſhall bee lefte of the houſe of Eſau: the Lorde hymſelfe hathe ſayde it. They of G the ſouthe ſhall haue the mounte of Eſau in poſſeſſyon: and looke what lyeth vpon the grounde, that ſhall the Phylyſtynes haue: the playne fieldes ſhall Ephraim and Samaria poſſeſſe: and the mountaynes of Galaad ſhall Beniamin haue: And this hooſte ſhall bee the chyldren of Iſraels pryſoners. Nowe what ſo lyeth from Canaan vnto Zareptah, and in Sepharad, that ſhalbe vnder the ſubieccion of Ieruſalem, and the cytyes of the ſouth ſhall inherite it. Thus they that eſcape vpon the hyll of Syon, ſhall go vp to puniſh the mount of Eſau, *and the kyngdome ſhalbe the Lordes.

The booke of the Prophete Jonas.

The fyrſte Chapter.

Of the flight of Jonas when he was ſet to preach, a tempeſt ariſeth and caſteth hym in the ſea for his diſobedience.

THe worde of the Lord, came vnto* Jonas the ſone of Amithay, ſaying:‡ Ariſe, and get the to Ninyue yͤ* greate citie: and preache vnto thē, how that‡ theyr wickednes is come vppe before me. And Jonas made him readye to flye vnto Tharſis from the preſence of the Lorde, and gat him downe to Joppa: where he founde a ſhip ready for to goe vnto Tharſis. So he paid his fare, and went aboarde: that he might go with them vnto Tharſis, from the preſence of yͤ lord. But the lorde hurled a great wynde into the ſea, and there was a mightye tempeſt in the ſea, ſo that the ſhyp was in ieopardy of going in pieces. Then the maryners were afrayde, and cried euery manne vnto his God: and the goodes that wer in the ſhip they caſte into the ſea, to lyghten it of thē. But Jonas gat him vnder the hatches, where he layed hym downe and ſlūbred.
So the maiſter of the ſhippe came to B hym, and ſaide vnto him: why ſlumbreſte thou? Vp cal vpon thy god: If God (happly) wil thinke vpon vs, that wee periſhe not. And they ſayd one to another: come let vs caſt lots, that we may know, for whoſe cauſe we are thus troubled.* And ſo they caſt lots, ⁊ the lot fel vpō Jonas. Thē ſaid they vnto hym: tel vs, for whoſe cauſe are we thus troubled? what is thine occupacion? whence commeſt thou? (and whither goeſte thou?) what countrey man art thou? and of what nacion? He aunſwered them: I am C an Ebrue, and I feare the Lorde God of heuen, whiche made bothe the ſea and the dry lande. Then were the men exceadinglye afrayde, and ſayde vnto hym: why dideſte thou ſo? (for they knewe, that he was fled from the preſence of the Lorde, becauſe he had tolde them) and ſayde moreouer vnto hym: what ſhall wee doe vnto the, that the ſea maye ceaſſe from troubling vs? (for the ſea wrought, and was troublous:) he anſwered them: take me, and caſte me into the ſea, ſo ſhall it lette you bee in reſte, for I wotte it is for my ſake, that thys greate D tempeſte is come vpon you. Neuertheleſſe the menne aſſayed with rowyng to bryng the ſhippe to lande: but it woulde not be, becauſe the ſea wroughte ſo: and was ſo troublous agaynſt them. Wherefore they cryed vnto the Lord, and ſaid:* O Lorde *deu. 21. b let vs not periſhe for this mans death, neyther laye thou innocente bloude vnto oure charge: for thou, O Lorde haſt done, euen as thy pleaſure was. So they tooke Jonas ⁊ caſt him into the ſea, and the ſea lefte ragyng. And the men feared the Lord exceadinglye, doynge ſacrifices and makinge vowes vnto the Lorde.

The. ii. Chapter.

Jonas is ſwalowed of a whale. The prayer of Jonas

So was Jonas in yͤ belly of yͤ fiſh thre dayes and thre nightes.
And Jonas prayed vnto the Lorde hys God, out of the fiſhes bellye, and ſayde:*
In my trouble I called vnto the Lorde, ⁊ *pſa. 120. c he hearde me: out of the belly of hell, I cried, and thou heardeſt my voice. Thou haddeſt caſt me downe depe in the middeſte of the ſea, and yͤ floud coumpaſſed me about: B yea, all *thy waues and roules of water *pſa. 42. d went ouer me. I thought that I had bene

The waters coumpaſſed me, euen to the verye ſoule: yͤ depe laye aboute me, and the wedes wer wrapt aboute mine heade. I wēt down to the botome of the hilles, and was barred in with earth for euer. But yͧ, C O lord my god, haſt broughte vp my lyfe againe out of corrupcion. When my ſoule fainted within me, I thought vpon yͤ lord: ⁊ my prayer came in vnto the, euē into thy Lorde ſpake vnto the fiſhe, and it caſte out Jonas agayne vpon the drye lande.

The. iii. Chapter.

Jonas is ſent agayne to Ninue. The repentaunce of the kyng of Ninyue.

THen came the worde of the lorde vnto Jonas agayne, ſayinge:* A vp and get thee to Ninyue that Jona. 1. a greate Citye, and preache vnto them the preaching which I bad thee. So Jonas aroſe and wente to Ninyue at the Lordes commaundemente. Ninyue was a greate cytye vnto God, namelye of three B dayes iourneye. And Jonas wente to and entred into the city, euen a dayes iourney: & cried, ſaying: Ther are yet fourty dayes, *Eſa.37.a & then ſhal Niniue be ouerthrowen. *And the people of Ninyue beleued God, & proclamed faſtyng, and arayed themſelues in ſackecloth, as wel the great as the ſmal of them. And the tidinges came vnto the king of Ninyue, whiche roſe out of hys ſeate, and dyd his apparell of, and put on ſackecloth, and ſat l, yin downe in aſhes.

C And it was cryed and commaunded in Ninyue, by the auctority of the kyng and Mat.12.d his lordes, ſaying: *ſe that neither manne, Luke.11.c nor beaſt oxe, or ſhepe, taſt ought at all: & that they neyther fede nor drynke water, but put on ſackecloth both man and beaſt: Jere.18.a and crye mightely vnto God: *Yea, ſe that euery man turne from hys euil waye, and from the wickednes that he hath in hand.
Who can tell? God maye turne and repēt, and ceaſſe from his fearce wrath, that wee periſhe not. And when God ſawe theyr workes how they turned from theyr wicked waies: *he repented on the euil, which it not.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Jonas is reproued of God.

A Therefore Jonas was ſore diſcontente therefore J haſted rather to flye vnto

Lord: art thou ſo angry? And Jonas gat hym out of the cytie, and ſat downe on the B Eaſt ſide therof: & ther made him a booth, & ſat vnder it in the ſhadowe, til he might ſee what ſhoulde chaunce vnto the cytye.

And the Lorde God prepared a wylde vyne, whiche ſprang vp ouer Jonas, that he myght haue ſhadowe aboue his heade, to deliuer hym oute of his payne. And Jonas was exceading glad of the wild vine.
But vpon the nexte morowe againſte the C ſprynge of the daye, the Lorde ordeyned a worme, whiche ſmote the wylde vyne, ſo that it withered away. And whē the ſunne was vp, God prepared a feruente Eaſte winde: and the ſunne bet ouer the heade of Jonas, that he faynted again, and wiſhed vnto his ſoule that he might dye, and ſaid: It is better for me to dye, then to liue. And God ſayd vnto Jonas: Art thou ſo angry for ẏ wilde vine? And he ſaid: yea, very angry am J, euē vnto the death. And the lord ſayd: thou haſt compaſſion vpon a wylde vine, whereon thou beſtowedſt no labour, nor madeſt it grow, whiche ſprange vp in one nighte, and peryſhed in another. And ſhould J not then haue compaſſion vpon Ninyue that great citye, wherein there are aboue an hundred and. xx. M. perſones, ẏ

Of the deſtruccion of Samaria becauſe of their idolatry.

THis is the worde of ẏ lorde, that came vnto Micheas ẏ Moraſtite in the dayes of * Jothā ‡ Ahas and * Jehezkiah kinges of Juda: which

A Wo vnto them yͭ imagin to doe

The first Chapter.

Of the deſtruccion of Niniue and of the deliueraunce of Iſrael.

A This is the heauy burthen of Niniue, which Nahũ of Elchos did wryte as he ſaw it. * The lord is a gelous god, & a taker of vengeance is the lorde, & wrothful. * The lord taketh vengeaunce of hys enemies, & reſerueth diſpleaſure for his aduerſaries. * The Lord ſuffereth long, he is of great power, and ſo innocent, ẏ he leaueth no man faultles before him. The Lord goeth furth in tempeſt & ſtormy wether, the cloudes are ẏ duſt of his feete. When he reproueth the ſea, he dryeth it vp, & tur-

B neth al ẏ floudes to drye lande: Baſan is deſolate, Charmel & the pleſure of Libanus waſteth awaye. The mountaynes tremble for him, ẏ hilles conſume. At the ſight of him, ẏ erth quaketh: yea ẏ whole world, & al that dwel therin. * Who may endure before hys wrath? Or who is able to abide his grim diſpleſure? His anger taketh on like fyre: & the hard rockes are clouen in ſunder before him. Ful gracious is ẏ lord, and a ſtrong holde in the tyme of trouble, he knoweth them ẏ put their truſt in him: when ẏ floude renneth

C ouer, & deſtroyeth the place, & when the darknes foloweth ſtil vpon his enemies. What do ye imagin thē againſt ẏ lord on thys maner? (Tushe, when he hath once made an ende, there ſhall come no more trouble.) For lyke as ẏ thornes ẏ ſticke together, & as the drye ſtraw: ſo ſhal the dronkerdes be conſumed together, euen when they be ful. There come out of the, ſuch as imagine miſchiefe: & geue vngracious counſel againſt the lord. Therfore thus ſaieth the lord: let them be as well prepared, yea, & as many as they can, yet ſhal they be hewen down, & paſſe awaye.

D And as for thee, I wil vexe thee, but not vtterly deſtroye thee. And nowe will I breake hys rodde from thy backe, and burſt thy bondes in ſundre. But the lord hath geuen a commaũdement concerning thee, that there ſhal come no more ſeede of thy name. *The carued and caſten ymages will I roote out of the houſe of thy God. Thy graue ſhall I prepare for thee, and thou ſhalt be confounded.

The.ii. Chapter.

He deſcribeth the victory of the Caldees againſt the Niniuites.

A Behold, *vpon the moũtaynes come the fete of hym, that bryngeth good tidinges, ⁊ preacheth peace. O Iuda, kepe thy holye dayes, perfourme thy promiſes: for Beliall ſhal come no more in thee, he is vtterly rooted out. The ſcaterer ſhal come vp agaynſte thee, and lay ſiege to the caſtel. Loke thou wel to the ſtretes, make thy loynes ſtronge, arme thy ſelfe withal thy might: for the lorde ſhal reſtore agayne the glorye of Iacob, lyke as the glory of Iſrael. The deſtroyers haue broken them downe, and marred the vyne branches. The ſhylde of his gyauntes gliſtreth, his men of warre are clothed in purple. His charrettes are as fyre, when he maketh him forwarde: and hys ſpeare ſhaftes are ſoked in venome.

B The charets rolle vpon the ſtretes, and welter in the hye wayes. They are to looke vpon lyke creſſets of fyre, and goe ſwiftly as the lightning. When he doeth but warne hys gyantes, they fal in theyr aray, ⁊ haſtely they clime vp the walles: yea, the engins of the warre are prepared already. The water portes ſhalbe opened, and the kinges palace ſhal fal. The quene herſelfe ſhalbe led away captiue, and her gentlewomẽ ſhal mourne as the doues, and grone within theyr heartes. *Niniue is like a poole ful of water, but then ſhall they bee fayne to flee. Stande, ſtande, (ſhal they crye) and there ſhal not one turne backe. Awaye with the ſyluer, away with the golde, for here is no ende of treaſure. There ſhalbe a multitude of all maner of coſtely ornamentes. Thus muſte ſhe be ſpoyled, emptied, and cleane ſtrypped out: that theyr heartes may be melted awaye, theyr knees tremble, all C theyr loynes bee weake, and theyr faces blacke as a pot. Where is now the dwellyng of the Lyons, and the paſture of the Lyons whelpes? where the Lyon and the Lyoneſſe went with ỹ whelpes, and no man frayde them away? But the Lyon ſpoyled ynough for hys young ones, and deuoured for hys Lyoneſſe: he filled his dennes with his pray, and his dwelling place with that he had rauiſhed. Beholde, I wil vpon thee, ſayth the lord of hooſtes, and wil ſette fyre vpon thy charets that they ſhal ſmoke withal, and the ſworde ſhal deuoure the young Lyons. I wil make an end of thy ſpoyling from out of the erth, and the voyce of thy meſſengers ſhal no more be hearde.

O that I might reſt in the daye of trouble, that I might go vp vnto our people, whiche are all readye pꝛepared. Foꝛ the figtrees ſhall not be greene, and the vynes ſhall beare no fruite. The labour of the olyue ſhalbe but loſt, and the lande ſhal bꝛyng no coꝛne: the ſhepe ſhall be taken out of the folde, and there ſhall be no cattel in the ſtalles. But as foꝛ me, I wil be glad in the loꝛd, and wil reioyce *pſal.18.b in God my ſauiour.*The Loꝛd God is my ſtrengthe, he ſhall make my feete, as the feete of hartes: and he which geueth the victoꝛy ſhall bꝛing me to my hye places, ſinging vpon my Pſalmes.

The firſt Chapter.

Thꝛeatninges agaynſt Iuda and Ieruſalem, becauſe of theyꝛ ydolatry.

A THys is the woorde of the loꝛde, whiche came vnto Sophonye, the ſonne of Chuſy, the ſonne of Gedolia: the ſonne of Amariah, the ſonne of Hezekiah, 4.Re.21. and.23. in the tyme of*Ioſiah, the ſonne of‡A- 4.re.12.b monking of Iuda. I will gather vp all thinges in the lande, (ſayeth the Loꝛd) I wil gather vp man and beaſte: I wil gather vp the foules in the ayꝛe, ⁊ the fiſhe in the ſea, (to the great decay of the wicked) and will vtterly deſtroye the menne out of the lande, ſayeth the Loꝛde. I will ſtretche oute myne hande vpon Iuda, B and vpon al ſuch as dwel at Ieruſalem. Thus will I roote oute the remnaunte of Baal from thys place, and the names of the Remurims and pꝛieſtes: yea, and ‡ſuche as vpon their houſetoppes wurſhyppe and bowe themſelues vnto the Hooſte of heauen: whiche ſweare by the loꝛd, and by their Malchom alſo: which ſtarte abacke from the Loꝛde, and neyther ſeeke after the Loꝛde, noꝛ regarde hym.*Be ſtyll at the pꝛeſence of the loꝛd God, foꝛ the day of the loꝛd is at hande: yea, the Loꝛd hath pꝛepared a ſlayne offeryng, and called hys geaſtes thereto. And thus ſhall it happen in the daye of the Loꝛdes ſlayne offeryng. I will viſit the pꝛynces*the kinges childꝛen: and all ſuche as weare ſtraunge clothynge. In the ſame day alſo wil I viſit al thoſe that treade ouer the thꝛeſhold ſo pꝛoudly, whiche fyll theyꝛ Loꝛdes houſe with robbery and falſehead. At the ſame time (ſayeth the Loꝛde) there ſhalbe hearde a great crye from the*fyſhe poꝛte, and an howelyng from the other poꝛte, and a greate murther from the hylles. Howle ye that dwel in the mylle, foꝛ all the marchaunt people are gone: and al they that were laden with ſyluer, are rooted oute.

At the ſame tyme will I ſeeke thorowe Ieruſalem with lanterns, and viſyte them that continue in their dꝛegges, and ſaye in theyꝛ heartes: *Tuſhe, the Loꝛde will dooe neyther good noꝛ euil. Theyꝛ goodes ſhall bee ſpoyled, and theyꝛ houſes layd waſte: ‡they ſhal build houſes, and not dwell in them, they ſhal plante vineyardes, but not dꝛynke the wyne thereof.

D For the greate * daye of the Loꝛde is at hande, it is harde by and cummeth on apace. Hoꝛrible is the tydynges of the Loꝛdes daye, then ſhall the Gyaunte crye oute: foꝛ that daye is a daye of wꝛathe, a daye of trouble and heauynes, a daye of vtter deſtruccyon and miſery, a darke and glomyng day, a cloudye and ſtoꝛmy daye, a day of the noyſe of trumpets ⁊ ſhawmes, agaynſt ỹ ſtrong cities and hye towers. I wil bꝛyng the people into ſuch vexacyon, that they ſhall goe about lyke blyndemen, becauſe they haue ſinned againſt the lord. Theyr bloud ſhal be ſhed as the duſt, and theyr bodyes as the myre. *Neither their ſiluer nor their golde ſhalbe able to delyuer them in that B wrothful day of ye lorde, but the *whole land ſhalbe conſumed thorow the fyre of his gelouſy: for he ſhal ſoone make clene riddaunce of all them that dwell in the lande.

The.ii.Chapter.

He moueth to returne to god, prophecying vnto the one, deſtruccion, and to the other deliuerance.

A Examine your ſelues and ſearche, O thou nacion, that haſt no deſyre to the law, or the thing go furth that God hath concluded, ⁊ or the tyme come wherin man ſhal paſſe away as the duſt: or the fearfull wrath of the lorde come vpon you: yea, or the day of the Lordes ſore dyſpleaſure come vpon you. Seke the lord all ye meke hearted vpon earth, ye that worke after his iudgemente: ſeke ryghteouſnes, *ſeeke lowlineſſe, that ye may be defended in the wrothfull day of the lorde: ‡For Gaza ſhalbe deſtroyed, ⁊ Aſcalon ſhalbe layde waſte. They ſhall caſt out Aſdod at the noone day, and Ac- B caron ſhalbe pluct vp by ye rotes. Woe vnto you that dwel vpon the ſea coaſte, ye murtherous people: the worde of the Lorde ſhall come vpon you. O Canaan, thou lande of the Philiſtines, I will deſtroye the, ſo that there ſhal no man dwel in the any more: and as for the ſea coaſt, it ſhalbe heardmens cotages and ſhepefoldes: yea, it ſhalbe a porcion for ſuche as remayne of the houſe of Iuda, to fede therupon. In the houſes of Aſcalon ſhal they reſt toward night: for the lord their god ſhal viſit them, ⁊ turne away theyr captiuitie. *I haue heard the deſpyte of Moab, and the blaſphemyes of the chil- C dren of Ammon, how they haue ſhamefully intreated my people, and magnifyed themſelues within the borders of their land. Therfore, as truely as I liue (ſayeth the Lord of hooſtes the God of Iſraell) Moab ſhalbe as Sodome, and Ammon as Gomorra: euen drye thorne hedges, ſalt pittes, and a perpetual wilderneſſe: The reſydue of my folke ſhall ſpoyle them, the remnaunt of my people ſhall haue them in poſſeſſion. *This ſhal happen vnto them for theyr pryde, becauſe they haue dealt ſo ſhamefully with the Lord of hooſtes people, and magnyfyed themſelues aboue them. The Lord ſhalbe grimme vpon them, *and deſtroy *Eſai,2,e al the goddes in the lande. And all the Iles of the Heathen ſhall wurſhyp him, euery manne in hys place.

D Ye Morians alſo ſhal peryſhe with my ſweorde: yea, he ſhal ſtretche out his hande ouer the north, and deſtroy Aſſur. *As for Niniue, he ſhall make it deſo- *tob,14,6 late, drye and waſte. The flockes and al the beaſtes of the people, ſhall lye in the myddeſt of it: Pellicanes and ſtorkes ſhall abyde in the vpper pooſtes of it, foules ſhall ſyng in the windowes, and rauens ſhall ſytte vpon the balkes, for the borders of Cedre ſhalbe riuē down. This is the proude ⁊ careles citye, that ſayde in her hearte. *I am, and there is 4,Re,19,e els none. Eſa.47.b O howe is ſhe made ſo waſte, that the beaſtes lye therein: Whoſo goeth by, mocketh her, and poynteth at her with hys fynger.

The.iii.Chapter.

Agaynſte the gouerners of Ieruſalem, of the callyng of al the gentiles. A comforte to the reſidue of Iſrael.

A Woe to that abhomynable, fylthye, and cruel citie: whiche will not heare nor be refourmed. Her truſte is not in the Lord, neyther wil ſhe holde her to her God. Therfore will I roote out thys people, and deſtroye theyr towers: yea, and make theyr ſtreates ſo voyde that no manne ſhall goe therein. Theyr cities ſhal bee broken downe, ſo that no bodye ſhal bee lefte nor dwell there any more

B I ſaid vnto thē: O feare me, ⁊ bee contēt to be refourmed. That their dwelling ſhould not be deſtroyed, ⁊ ye there ſhould happē vnto them none of theſe thinges, wherwith I ſhal viſite them. But neuertheles, they ſtand vp early, to folow the fylthynes of their owne ymaginacyons.

The booke of the Prophete Aggeus.

The first Chapter.

The time of the prophecy of Aggeus. An exhortacion to builde the temple againe.

IN the seconde yere of kyng *Darius, in the .vi. moneth the firſt day of the moneth, came the woord of the lord (by the Prophet Aggeus) vnto *Zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel the prince of Iuda, and to Ieſua yͤ ſonne of Ioſedech the hye prieſt, ſaying: Thus ſpeaketh the Lorde of hoſtes, and ſayth. This people doeth ſay: The tyme is not yet come to builde vp the lordes houſe. Thẽ ſpake yͤ lord by yͤ prophet Aggeus, and ſayd. *Ye your ſelues can fynd tyme to dwell in ſyled houſes, and ſhall thys houſe lye waſt? Conſidre now your own wayes in your heartes (ſayeth the lorde of hoſtes.) *Ye ſowe much, but ye bryng litle in: ye eate, but ye haue not ynough: ye drynke, but ye are not fylled: ye decke your ſelues, but ye be not warme: and he that earneth anye wages, putteth it in a broken purſe. Thus ſayeth the lorde of hoſtes. Conſidre your owne wayes in your heartes, get you vp to yͤ moũtayn, fetche wood, & builde vp the houſe *yͭ it may bee acceptable vnto me, and that I may ſhew myne honour, ſayeth the lord. Ye looked for much, and loe, it is come to litle: and thoughe ye bryng it home, yet doe I blow it away. And why ſo, ſayth the Lord of hoſtes? *Euen becauſe that my houſe lyeth ſo waſt, & ye runne euery manne vnto hys owne houſe. Wherfore the heauen is forbydden to geue you any dewe, and the earth is forbidden to geue you increſe. *I haue called for a drouth both vpon the land and vpon the mountaynes, vpon corne, vpon wyne, and vpõ oyle, vpon euery thing that the grounde bringeth furth, vpon men & vpon cattel, yea, & vpon al handy labour. Now whẽ Zorobabel yͤ ſonne of Salathiel, & Ieſua the ſonne of Ioſedech the hye prieſt with the remnaunte of the people, hearde the voyce of the Lorde theyr God, and the woordes of the prophete Aggeus (lyke as the Lorde theyr God had ſent hym) the people dyd feare the Lorde. Then Aggeus the Lordes aungell ſayed in the lordes meſſage vnto ẏ people: ‡ I am with you ſaith the lord. * So the lord waked vp the ſpirit of zorobabel the prince of Iuda, and the ſpirite of Ieſua the ſonne of Joſedech the hye prieſt, and the ſpirite of ẏ remnaunt of al the people: ẏ they came ⁊ laboured in ẏ houſe of ẏ lord of hoſtes their god.

The.ii. Chapter.

He ſheweth that the goodlynes of the ſeconde temple ſhall exceade the fyrſte, becauſe of the comming of Chriſte.

A VPon the. xxiiii. day of the ſyxte moneth, in the.ii. yeare of kyng Darius, the.xxi. day of the .vii. moneth, came the woorde of the lord by ẏ prophet Aggeus, ſaying: ſpeake to zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel, prince of Iuda, ⁊ to Ieſua the ſonne of Ioſedech the hye prieſt, and to the reſidue of the people, and ſaye: * Who is left amonge you, ẏ ſawe this houſe in her firſte bewtye? But what thinke ye now by it? Is it not i your eyes, euen as though it wer nothing? Neuertheleſſe, bee of good chere, O zorobabell (ſayeth the lord) * be of good coumfort, O Ieſua thou ſonne of Ioſedech, the hie preſt: take good heartes vnto you alſo, al ye people of the lande, ſayeth the lorde of hooſtes, and do according to the word (* for I am with you, ſayeth the lorde of hooſtes) lyke as I agreed with you, when ye came oute of the land of Egipt: and my ſpirit ſhalbee B amonge you, feare ye not. For thus ſayeth the lorde of hoſtes: * Yet once more wil I ſhake heauen and earth, the ſea, and the dry lande: yea, ‡ I wil moue al heathen, and the comfort of al heathen ſhal come, and ſo wil I fyl this houſe with honor, ſayth the lord of hooſtes. * The ſiluer is mine, ⁊ the gold is mine, ſaith the lord of hoſtes. Thus the glory of the laſt houſe ſhalbee greater then the fyrſt, ſaieth the lorde of hooſtes: and in C this place wil I geue peace, ſayth the lord of hoſtes. The.xxiiii. day of the.ix. moneth, in the ſecōd yeare of king Darius, came the word of ẏ lord vnto the prophet Aggeus, ſaying: Thus ſaith the lord god of hoſtes. Aſke the prieſtes concernyng the lawe, and ſaye: * yf one beare holy fleſhe in his coate lap, and with his lap do touche the breade, potage, wine, oyle, or any other meat, ſhal he be holy alſo? The prieſtes anſwered and ſayde: No. Then ſayde Aggeus: Nowe yf one beyng defiled with a dead carcaſe touch any of theſe: ſhall it alſo be vncleane? The prieſtes gaue aunſwere, and ſayde: * yea, it ſhall be vncleane. Then Aggeus anſwered and ſaid: euē ſo is this people and this nacion before me, ſaith the lord: and ſo are all the workes of theyr handes, yea, and all ẏ they offer, is vncleane. And now (I praye you) conſider frō this day forth, and howe it hathe gone wyth you afore or euer there was layde one ſtone vpon another in the temple of the Lorde: that when ye came to a corne heape of .xx. buſſhelles, there were ſcarce ten: * and ẏ when ye came to ẏ wine preſſe for to power out .l. pottes of wine, there wer ſcarce .xx. For I ſmote you with heate, blaſting and hayle ſtones, in all the labours of your hādes: yet was ther none of you, that would turne vnto me, ſaith the lorde. D Conſider then from this daye foorth and afore: namely, from the. xxiiii. daye of the.ix. moneth, vnto the daye that the foundacion of the Lordes temple was layde: marke it wel, * is not ẏ ſede yet in ẏ barne? haue not the vines, the figtrees, the pomgranates, and oliue trees ben yet vnfruitful? but from this daye forth, I ſhal make them to proſper. Moreouer the.xxiiii. daye of the moneth came the word of the Lorde vnto Aggeus agayne, ſaying: Speake to zorobabell the prince of Iuda, and ſaye: I wil ſhake both heauen and yearth, and ouerthrowe the ſeate of the kingdoms, yea, and deſtroy the mighty kingdom of ẏ heathen: I wil ouerthrow ẏ charettes, ⁊ thoſe that ſit vpon them, ſo that bothe horſe and man ſhal fal down, euery man through his neighbors ſweord: and as for thee, O zorobabel (ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes) thou ſonne of Salathiell my ſeruaunte: I wil take the (ſayeth the lord) at the ſame time, and make the as a ſeale, for I haue choſen thee, ſayeth the Lorde of Hooſtes.

The booke of the Prophete zacharye.

The fyrſte Chapter.

He moueth the people to returne to the Lorde, and to eſchew the wickednes of their fathers. He prefygureth Chriſte and hys Apoſtles.

A IN the eyght moneth of the ſeconde yeare of King Darius, came the worde of the Lorde *Mat.23.e vnto *zachary the ſōne of Barachias, the ſonne of Addo, ẏ Prophete, ſaying: The lord hath bene ſore diſpleaſed at youre forefathers. And ſaye thou vnto them: thus ſayeth the Lorde of *Jer.3.c hoſtes: *Turne ye vnto me (ſaith the lord Mala.3.b of hooſtes) and I wyl turne me vnto you, ſayth the lorde of hoſtes. *Bee ye not lyke *Ez.44.a youre forefathers, vnto whome the Pro-Pſa.78.a phetes cried aforetime, ſaying: Thus ſaith the lord god of hoſtes: *Turne you from your euil wayes, and from your wicked ymaginacyons. ‡But they would not heare nor regarde me, ſayeth the lorde. What is nowe become of your forefathers, and the prophetes? are they yet ſtyl aliue? But did not my wordes and ſtatutes (which I cō-B maunded by my ſeruauntes ẏ prophetes) touche youre forefathers? Upon this they gaue aunſwere, and ſayde: lyke as the lord of hoſtes deuiſed to do vnto vs, according to our owne wayes and imaginacions, euen ſo hath he delt with vs. Upon ẏ .xxiiii day of the .xi. moneth, which is the moneth Sebat, in ẏ ſeconde yere of Darius, came the woorde of the lorde vnto zacharye the ſonne of Barachias, the ſōne of Addo, the prophete, ſaying: I ſawe by night, and lo, *Zac.6.a there ſat one vpon *a red horſe, and ſtoode Apoc.6.a. ſtyll among the myrre trees, that were be-neth vpon the grounde, and behynde hym were there red, ſpeckled, and white horſes.
Then ſayd I: O my lorde, what are theſe?
C And the angell that talked with me, ſayde vnto me: I will ſhewe thee what theſe bee.
And the man that ſtode amonge the myrre trees aunſwered and ſayde: Theſe are they whome the lorde hath ſente to go through the world. And they anſwered the angel of the lord, that ſtode among the myrre trees, and ſaid: We haue gone through ẏ world:
and beholde, all the worlde dwell at eaſe, and are careleſſe.

Then the lordes aungell gaue aunſwere, and ſayde: O lorde of hooſtes, howe longe wylt thou bee vnmercifull to Jeruſalem, and to the cities of Iuda? *with whome thou haſt bene diſpleaſed nowe theſe three ſcore and ten yeares. So the Lorde gaue a louing and a coumfortable anſwer vnto the angell that talked with me. And the angel ẏ comoned with me, ſayd vnto me: Crye thou, and ſpeake: Thus ſayth the Lord of hoſtes. I am excedyng gelous ouer Jeru-ſalem and Sion, and ſore diſpleaſed at the careleſſe Heathen: for wher as I was but a litle angry, they did their beſte ẏ I might D deſtroye them. Therefore thus ſayeth the Lorde: *I wyll turne me agayne in mercy toward Jeruſalem, ſo that my houſe ſhall be buylded in it, ſayth the lorde of hooſtes: yea, and the plummet ſhall be layde abrode in Jeruſalem, ſaieth the Lord of hooſtes.

Crye alſo, and ſpeake, thus ſaith the Lorde of hoſtes: My cities ſhalbe in good proſperitie agayne: the lorde ſhall yet com-forte Syon, and choſe Jeruſalem. Thē lift I vp mine eyes and ſawe, and beholde .iiii. hornes. And I ſayd vnto ẏ angel that talked with me: what be theſe? he aunſwered me. *Theſe are the hornes whiche haue ſcatered Juda, Iſraell, and Jeruſalem abrode. And the lorde ſhewed me foure carpenters. Then ſaide I: what wil theſe do?

He aunſwered and ſayde. Thoſe are the hornes whiche haue ſo ſtrowed Juda abrode, that no man durſt lift vp his head: But theſe are come to fraye them awaye, & to caſt out the hornes of the gētiles: which lyft vp their horne ouer the land of Juda, to ſcater it abrode.

The .ii. Chapter.

The renewyng of Jeruſalem and Juda.

I Lyft vp mine eyes agayne, and I loked: and behold, *a man with a meaſure line in his hand. Then ſaid I: whither goeſt thou? & he ſaid vnto me: To meaſure Jeruſalem, that I maye ſee howe longe and howe brode it is. And beholde, the angel that talked with me, wente his waye foorth. Then wente there out another aungel to mete hym, and ſayde vnto hym: Runne, ſpeake to thys yong man, and ſaye: Jeruſalem ſhalbe inhabited without anye wall, for the verye B multitude of people and cattell that ſhalbe therein: *Yea, I my ſelfe (ſayeth the lorde) will bee vnto her a wall of fyre rounde about, and will be honoured in her. O gette you forth, O flie from the land of ẏ north, ſayeth the lorde, ye *whome I haue ſcate-red into the foure wyndes vnder heauen, ſayth the Lord. Saue thy ſelfe, O Syon, thou

thou that dwelleſte wyth the daughter of Babilon, for thus ſaith the lord of hoſtes.
After yͤ glorious power hathe he ſente me out to yͤ Heathen, which ſpoiled you, *for whoſo toucheth you, ſhal touche yͤ apple of his own eye. Behold, I will lift vp my hād ouer them: ‡ſo that they ſhal be e ſpoyled of thoſe, which afore ſerued them: and ye ſhal knowe yͤ the lorde of hoſtes hath ſent me.
C Be glad, & reioyce, O daughter of Sion: for lo, *I am come to dwell in the middeſt of the, ſaith the lorde: at the ſame time there ſhal many heathen cleaue to the lord, & ſhal bee my people. Thus wyll I dwell in the middeſt of thee, and thou ſhalt know that D yͤ lord of hoſtes hath ſent me vnto the. The Lorde ſhal haue Juda in poſſeſſion for his parte in the holye grounde, and ſhall choſe Jeruſalem yet agayne. *Let all fleſhe bee ſtill before the lorde, for he is ryſen oute of hys holy place.

The. iii. Chapter.

Of the lawe & hye eſtate of Chriſte vnder the figure of Jeſua the prieſt. A prophecye of Chriſte.

A AND he ſhewed me Jeſua the hie prieſt ſtandyng before the angell of the lorde: ‡and Satan ſtode at hys right hand to reſiſt him. And yͤ lord ſaid vnto Satan: The lord reproue the (thou Satan) yea, the lorde that hathe choſen Jeruſalem, reproue thee. Is not this a brande taken out of the fyre? Nowe B Jeſua was clothed in vncleane raymente, and ſtode before the angel, which anſwered and ſayde vnto thoſe that ſtode before him: take away yͤ foule clothes from hym.
And vnto hym he ſayde: Beholde, I haue taken awaye thy ſynne from the, and wyll decke the with chaunge of raymente. He ſayde moreouer, ſette a fayre myter vpon his heade. So they ſette a fayre myter vpō his head, and put on clothes vpō him, and the angel of the lorde ſtode there. Then the C aungell of the lorde teſtifyed vnto Jeſua, and ſpake: thus ſayeth the Lorde of Hoſtes. If thou wilt walke in my wayes, and kepe my watche: thou ſhalte rule my houſe, and keepe my courtes, and I wyll geue the place among theſe that ſtand here.
Heare (O Jeſua) thou hye pryeſte, thou & thy frendes that dwel before thee, for they D are wonderous people. Beholde, I wyll bryng forth *the braunche of my ſeruaūt: for loe, the ſtone that I haue layed before Jeſua: vpon ‡one ſtone ſhall be ſeuen eyes.
Beholde I wyll hewe hym out (ſayeth the lorde of hoſtes) and take awaye the ſynne of the lande in one daye. Then ſhall euerye man cal for hys neighboure vnder the vine & vnder the figtre, ſaith the lord of hoſtes.

The. iiii. Chapter.

The viſion of the golden candleſtycke and the expoſicion thereof.

AND the angell that talked with me, came againe and waked me A vp, as a man that is rayſed out of his ſlepe, and ſayde vnto me: what ſeeſt thou? And I ſaid: I haue loked, and beholde a candelſticke all of golde with a boule vpon it, and his ſeuē lampes therin: and vpon euery lampe ſeuen ſtalkes.
And *two oliue trees thereby, one vpon the ryght ſide of the boule, & the other vpō Apoc. 11.a the lefte ſyde. So I aunſwered, and ſpake to the angell that talked with me, ſayinge: O my Lord, what are theſe? the angel that talked with me, anſwered and ſayde vnto B me: knoweſte thou not what theſe bee? and I ſayd: No my lord. He anſwered and ſaid vnto me: This is the worde of the Lorde vnto zorobabel, ſaying: *Nether through an hoſte of men, nor through ſtrength, but Eſay. 11.a through my ſpirit, ſaith the lord of hoſtes.
What art thou, thou greate mountain before zorobabell? thou muſt be made euen.
And he ſhall bryng vp the fyrſt *ſtone, ſo yͤ C men ſhall crye vnto him: good lucke, good Eſa. 28.c.

The. v. Chapter

The vyſyon of the flyinge booke, ſygnyfiynge the curſe of theues, and ſuche as abuſe the name of God: by the vyſyon of the meaſure is ſygnyfyed yͤ bryngyng of Juda to Babylon.

So

A SO I turned me, lifting vppe mine eyes, and looked: and beholde, a flyinge boke. And he ſaid vnto me: what ſeeſte thou? I aunſwered: I ſee a flying boke of .xx. cubites longe, and .x. cubites brode. Thē ſaide he vnto me: This is yͤ curſe yͤ goeth forth ouer the whole earth: for al theues ſhalbe iudged after this boke, B ⁊ all ſwearers ſhalbe iudged according to the ſame: ⁊ I wil bring it forth (ſaith yͤ lord of hoſtes,) ſo that it ſhal come to yͤ houſe of the thefe, and to the houſe of him that falſly ſweareth by my name: ⁊ ſhal remain in his houſe and conſume it, with the timber and ſtones thereof. Thē the Angel that talked with me went forth, and ſaid vnto me: lyft vp thine eyes, and ſe what is this that goeth forth. And I ſayd: what is it? He aunſwered: C this is a meaſure goynge oute. He ſayde moreouer: Euen thus are they (that dwel vpon the whole earth) to loke vpon: And behold, there was lyft vp a talente of leade: and loe, a woman ſate in the middeſt of the meaſure. And he ſaid: this is vngodlines. So he caſt her into the middeſt of yͤ meaſure, and threw the lompe of leade into D the mouth of the meaſure. Then lift I vp myne eyes, and looked: and beholde, there came out two women, and the winde was in theyr winges (for they had winges like the winges of a ſtorke) and they lift vp the meaſure betwyxt the earth and the heauē. Then ſpake I to the angel that talked with me: whither wyll theſe beare the meaſure? *gen.10.b And he ſaid vnto me: into the land of *Synear, to buylde them an houſe, whiche whē it is prepared, the meaſure ſhalbe ſet there in his place.

By the four charettes he deſcribeth the proſperitye of foure kingdomes.

A MOreouer, I turned me liftynge vp mine eyes, and loked: and behold, ther came four charettes out from betwixte two hylles, whiche hylles were of braſſe. In the fyrſte *zach.1.b Apo.6.a charet were *read horſes, in the ſecond charet were blacke horſes, in the thyrde charet wer white horſes, in the fourth charet wer horſes of diuers colours, and ſtrong. Thē ſpake I, and ſayde vnto the Angel that talked with me: O lord, what are theſe? The B Aungel aunſwered, and ſayde vnto me: Iere.4.d *These are the .iiii. windes of the heauen, whiche be come forth to ſtande before the ruler of all the earth. That with the blacke horſe wente into the lande of the north, and the white folowed them ⁊ the ſpekled horſes went forth toward yͤ ſouth. Theſe horſes were very ſtrong, ⁊ went out, ⁊ ſought to go and take their iourney ouer yͤ whole earth. And he ſaide: get you hence and goe through the worlde. So they wente throughout the world. Then cryed he vpon me, ⁊ ſpake vnto me, ſayinge: beholde, theſe C that goe towarde the north, ſhall ſtyll my wrath in the north countrey. And yͤ worde of the Lord came vnto me ſaying: Take of the priſoners that are come from Babilō: namelye, Heldai, Tobiah, and Idaia: and come thou the ſame daye, and goe into the houſe of Ioſiah, the ſonne of Sophony. Then take gold ⁊ ſiluer, and make crownes thereof, and ſette them vpon the heade of Ieſua, the ſonne of Ioſedech, the hie prieſt, and ſpeake vnto hym. Thus ſayeth yͤ lord of hoſtes: Behold, the man whoſe name is *the braunche: and he that ſhall ſpryng vp after hym, *ſhall buylde vp the temple of yͤ Lorde, yea, euen he ſhal buylde vp the temple of the Lorde. *He ſhal beare the praiſe, he ſhall ſit vpon the Lordes trone, ⁊ haue D the dominion. *A prieſte ſhall he be alſo vpon his trone, and a peaceable councel ſhal be betwixte them bothe. And the crownes ſhalbe in the temple of the Lorde, for a remembraunce vnto Helem, Tobiah, Idaiah, and Hen, the ſonne of Sophony, and ſuche as be far of, ſhall come and buyld the temple of the Lorde, that ye maye knowe how that the lorde of hoſtes hath ſente me vnto you. And this ſhall come to paſſe, yf ye wil hearken diligently vnto the voyce of the lorde youre God.

The .vii. Chapter.

The eſtimacyon of faſtyng without mercie, the diſpyſyng of charitye, and the obſtinacy of the people.

IT happened alſo in yͤ fourth yere of kyng Darius, that yͤ A worde of the lord came vnto Zacharie in the fourth daye of the ninth moneth, whiche is called, Caſleu: what time as Saraſar and Rogomelech ⁊ the men yͤ wer wyth them, ſente vnto Bethell for to praye before the lorde, and that they ſhoulde ſaye vnto the prieſtes, which wer in the houſe of the lord of hooſtes, and to the prophetes: Should I wepe in the *fyfth moneth, and abſtaine as I haue done now certain yeares? Thē came the woorde of the Lorde of hooſtes vnto me, ſaying: Speake vnto al the people

ple of the land, and to the prieſtes, and ſaye: B When ye faſted and mourned in the fyfth *and.vii.moneth (now this.lxx.yeares) did ye faſte vnto me? when ye dyd eate alſo and drynke, dyd ye not eate and drynke for your the lord ſpake by his prophetes afore tyme whẽ Jeruſalem was yet inhabited and welthy, ſhe and the cities roũde about her? whẽ there dwelt men, both towarde yͤ ſouth and in the playne countries? And the worde of C the lord came vnto Zacharye, ſaying: Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes: *Execute true iudgement: ſhew mercy and louynge kyndnes, euery man to his brother. Do the wyddowe, the fatherleſſe, the ſtraunger & poore no wronge: and let no man ymagyne euyll agaynſte his brother in his herte. *Neuertheleſſe, they woulde not take hede, but turned their backes, and ſtopped their eares, that they ſhoulde not heare: yea, they made their hertes as an adamant ſtone, leſte they ſhoulde heare the lawe and wordes *which the Lorde of hooſtes ſent in his holye ſprite by the Prophetes afore tyme. Wherefore, D the Lord of hooſtes was very wroth at thẽ.

And thus is it come to pas *that lyke as he ſpake & they woulde not heare, euen ſo they cryed, and I woulde not heare (ſayeth the Lord of hooſtes:) but ſcattered them amõg all Gentyles, whom they knewe not. Thus the lande was made ſo deſolate that there trauailed no man in it, neither to nor fro: for that pleaſaũt lande was vtterly layed waſt.

The.viii.Chapter.

Of the returne of the people vnto Jeruſalem, & of the mercie of God towarde thẽ. Of good workes. The callynge of the Gentiles.

A SO the worde of the Lorde came lyke as I deuiſed to puniſh you, what tyme as your fathers prouoked me vnto wrath, ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes, and ſpared not: Euen ſo am I determyned nowe in theſe and Jeruſalem, therfore feare ye not. Nowe the thinges yͭ ye ſhal do, are theſe: *Speake *Eph.4.c Zach.7.b euery man the truthe vnto his neyghbour, Mala.2.b execute iudgement trulye and peaceablye loue no falſe othes: for all theſe are the thinges that I hate, ſayth the Lorde. And the word of the lord of hooſtes came vnto me, ſaying: thus ſaith the Lord of hooſtes: The the Lorde of hooſtes. I will go with you, yea, muche people and myghtye Heythen ſhall come and ſeke the lorde of hooſtes at Jeruſalem, and to praye before the Lorde. Thus ſayeth the lorde of hooſtes: In that tyme ſhall ten men (out of all maner of languages of the Gentyles) take one Jewe by the hemme of hys garmente, and ſay: we wil go with you, for we haue heard that God is amonge you.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

The waſtyng of the churche vnder the fygure of Jeruſalem. Of the kyngdome of the Lorde.

Beholde,the daye of the Lord commeth that thou ſhalt be ſpoyled and robbed, A for I wyll gather together al the heathen to fyghte agaynſte Jeruſalem,ſo that the cytie ſhalbe wonne,the houſes ſpoyled,& the wemẽ defiled. The halfe of the citie ſhall go awaye into captiuitie,& the reſydue of the people ſhal not be caried out of yͤ citie. After that ſhal the lord go forth to fyght againſte thoſe heathẽ,as men vſe to fyght in yͤ day of batell. Then ſhall his fete ſtande vpon the B mounte Oliuete, that lyeth vpon the eaſte ſyde of Jeruſalem. And the mount Oliuete ſhall cleaue in two,eaſt ward & weſtwarde, ſo that there ſhalbe a greate valeye,and the halfe mount ſhall remoue toward yͤ north,& yͤ other toward yͤ ſouth. And ye ſhal flee vnto the valey of my hylles,for the valeye of the hilles ſhal reache vnto Aſal. Yea,flee ſhal ye *like as ye fled for yͤ earthquake in yͤ daies of Oſiah kynge of Juda. And the lorde my God ſhal come,and al ſayntes with him.
In that day ſhal it not be light,either cleare or dymme.*Thys ſhall be that ſpecial daye whych is knowen vnto the lord,nether day nor nyght, but aboute the euenynge tyme it ſhall be lyghte.
*In yͤ time ſhall there waters of life runne out from Jeruſalem:the halfe parte of them towarde the eaſte ſea,and the other halfe towarde the vttermoſt ſea,and ſhall continue bothe

both ſūmer and wynter. * And the lord him ſelfe ſhalbe kyng ouer al the earth.

C At that tyme ſhal there be one Lorde only, & hys name ſhall be but one. Men ſhall go aboute the whole earthe, as vpon a fielde, from Gibia to Rennon, & from the ſouth to Jeruſalem. She ſhall be ſet vp, & inhabited in her place: from BenJamins porte, vnto the place of the fyrſte porte, and vnto the corner porte: & from yͤ towre of * Hananeel, vnto the kynges wyne preſſes.

There ſhal mē dwel, & there ſhalbe nomore curſyng, but Jeruſalē ſhalbe ſafely inhabyted. Thys ſhall be the plage, wherwyth the lorde wyl ſmyte al people, that haue fought agaynſte Jeruſalem. Namely, theyr fleſhe ſhal conſume away, though they ſtande vpō theyr feete, theyr eyes ſhalbe corrupt in theyr holes, and theyr tong ſhal conſume in theyr mouth. In that daye ſhall the Lord make a great ſedicion among them, ſo that one man ſhall take another by the hande, & laye his handes vpon the handes of his neighbour. * Juda ſhal fyght alſo againſt Jeruſalem, and the goodes of all the heathen ſhall be gathered together rounde about: gold and ſiluer, & a very greate multitude of clothes.

And ſo ſhall thys plage go ouer horſes, mules, cameis, aſſes, and al the beaſtes that ſhall be in the hooſt, lyke as yonder plage was. Euery one that remayneth then of al yͤ people, whyche came agaynſte Jeruſalem, ſhall go vp yearelye, to worſhyp the kinge (euen the Lord of hooſtes) * and to kepe the feaſt of tabernacles. And loke what generacyon vpō the earth goeth not vp to Jeruſalē for to worſhyp the kynge (euen the Lord of hooſtes) vpon the ſame ſhal come no rayne. Yf the kynred of Egypte go not vp, and come not, it ſhal not rayne vpon thē nether.

D Thys ſhall be the plage wherewyth yͤ lorde wyl ſmyte all the Heathen, that come not vp to kepe yͤ feaſt of tabernacles: yea, this ſhal be the ſynne plage of Egypt, and the ſynne plage of al people that go not vp to kepe yͤ feaſt of tabernacles. At that tyme ſhall the rydyng gere of the horſes be holy vnto the lord, and yͤ kettels in the lordes houſe ſhalbe lyke the baſens before the aulter: yea, all the kettels in Jeruſalē and Juda, ſhall be holy vnto the lord of hooſtes, & all they that ſlaye offrynges, ſhall come and take of them, and dyght thē therein. And at that tyme there ſhall be no mo Cananites in the houſe of the Lorde of hooſtes.

¶ Joſias holdeth Paſſeouer. After hys death is Jechonias hys ſonne made kynge in his ſteade: whō the kynge of Egypte putteth out, and ſetteth in his brother Joachim. Jeruſalem is deſtroyed. and Sedechias is taken.

A 2.Par.25.a 4.Re.23.e. AND * Joſias held the feaſt of Eaſter in Jeruſalem vnto the LORDE and ſlewe yͤ Paſſeouer the .xiiij. daye of the fyrſte moneth. He ſet the preaſtes alſo in order (accordyng to theyr daylye curſes) beynge arayed in longe garmentes in the temple of the LORD. And he ſpake vnto the Leuites yͤ holye miniſters of Jſrael that they ſhulde halowe them ſelues vnto the LORD, to ſet the holy Arke of yͤ LORDE, in the houſe yͭ kynge Salomon the ſonne of Dauid had builded, ⁊ ſayde: ye ſhall nomore beare the Arke vpō youre ſhulders. Nowe ſerue your LORDE ⁊ take yͤ charge of his people of Jſrael, after your villages ⁊ your tribes accordinge as kynge Dauid yͤ kynge of Jſrael hath ordeyned, and accordynge as Salomon hys ſonne hath honorably prepared: yee, loke yͭ ye al do ſeruice in yͤ temple accordynge to theyr ordrynge ⁊ diſtribucion of the principall men whych are appointed out of the tribes, to do ſeruice for the chyldren of Jſrael. Exod.12.d. *Kyll yͤ Paſſeouer, and prepare offringes for youre brethren, ⁊ do accordyng to the commaundemente of yͤ LORDE, whyche was geuen vnto Moſes. And vnto yͤ people yͭ was founde Joſias gane .xxx. thouſande of ſhepe, lambes, kyddes, ⁊ goates, ⁊ thre thouſand oxē. These yͤ kynge (of hys kynglye liberalite) gaue vnto the people, accordyng as he had promiſed: ⁊ to yͤ preſtes for yͤ Paſſeouer, he gaue two thouſāde ſhepe, ⁊ an hundred oxē. Moreouer Jechonias, ⁊ Semeias, and Nathanael his brethrē, and Haſabias, Jehiel, ⁊ Joſabab gaue them to the paſſeouer, fyue thouſande ſhepe, and fyue hundred bullockes.

B And whē theſe thinges were brought to paſſe, the preaſtes ⁊ the Leuites ſtode goodly in theyr ordre, and had yͤ vnleuened bread thoroweout the tribes. And after the ordrynge of yͤ principall men in the tribes, they offered vnto yͤ LORDE in the ſyghte of the people accordynge * as it is wrytten in the boke of Moſes, and ſo they roſted the Eaſter lambe as accordiug was. As for the thanckeofferynges and the other, they dight in the kettelles and pottes, ⁊ ſet them before the people wyth good wyl, and afterwarde before thē ſelues and the preaſtes. For the preaſtes offerede yͤ fat vntyl the tyme was expired, but the Leuites prepareh for them ſelues ⁊ for theyr brethren the chyldren of Aaron. The holy ſyngers alſo, the chyldrē of Aſaph ſtode in theyr order, accordinge as Dauid deuyſed. So dyd Aſaph, Zachary, and Jeduthū, which were appointed by the kynge. Moreouer yͤ porters ⁊ dore kepers ſtode by the doores and that diligently, ſo yͭ none went out of hys ſtādynge and ſeruice: for theyr brethrē (the Leuites) prepared for thē. Thus were all thinges perfourmed, yͭ belonged to the offeringe of the LORD. In that daye they helde the Paſſeouer and offered thanckeofferynges beſyde the ſacrifice of the LORD accordinge to the commaundement of kyng Joſias.

C So the chyldren of Jſrael whiche were thē preſent, helde an honorable Paſſeouer, and the feaſte of ſwete breade ſeuen dayes longe. yee, ſuche a Paſſeouer was not kepte in Jſrael from the tyme of the Prophete Samuel. And all the kynges of Jſrael, helde not ſuche an Eaſter as thys, whych kinge Joſias held, and the preaſtes, the Leuites the Jewes, aud all Jſrael, ⁊ al them that were at Jeruſalem. And in the eyghttene yeare of the raigne of Joſias, was this Paſſeouer kepte. And wyth a perfecte herte dyd kynge Joſias order all his workes before the LORD, aud yͤ thinges yͭ were wryttē of hym in times paſte, concernyng thoſe yͭ ſynned and were vngodly agaynſt yͤ LORD before al yͤ people: ⁊ that ſought not the worde of the LORD vpon Jſraei.* After all theſe actes of kynge Joſias, Pharao yͤ kynge of Egypt wēt vp ⁊ came toward Carchamin by Euphrates, ⁊ Joſias went to mete hym. Then ſent the kyng of Egypt to Joſias, ſaiing: what haue J to do with the, king of Juda? J am not ſēt of yͤ LORD to fight agaynſt the, for my warre is vpon Euphrates, go thou thy way home agayne in al yͤ haſt. And Ioſias wolde not turne agayne vpon his charet, but vnder toke to fyght agaynſt hym, ⁊ harkened not vnto yͤ worde of the prophet, whych he told hym out of the mouth of GOD, but pitched battayle agaynſt him in yͤ felde of Mageddo. And yͤ princes D preaſed to kynge Ioſias. Then ſaide yͤ kynge vnto his ſeruantes. Cary me a

And immediatly his ſeruantes toke hym away out of the fronte of the battayle. Then ſat he vp vpon the ſeconde

The ij. Chapter.

¶ Cyrus geueth licence to the Jewes to retourne to Jeruſalem, and reſtoreth thẽ the veſſels of the temple. After that are there letters ſente to Artaxerxes: whyche accuſe the Jewes for buyldyng of the citie: and ſo is the buyldynge dryuen of vntyl the ſeconde yeare of Darius.

A 2.Par.36.d NOw *when kyng Cyrus raygned ouer yͤ Perſians, ⁊ when yͤ LORD wolde perfourme yͤ worde that he had promiſed by the mouthe of the prophet Jeremy: yͤ LORDE rayſed vp the ſpreite of Cyrus, the kyng of the Perſians: ſo that he cauſed his wrytynge to be proclamed thorow out hys whole realme, ſaying: Thus ſayeth the kynge of Perſians: The LORD of Iſrael that hye LORD hath made me kyng of the lande, and cõmaunded me to buyld hym an houſe at Jeruſalem in Jewry. yf ther be any nowe of your peple the LORDE be wyth hym, ⁊ go vp wͭ him to Jeruſalem. And all they yͭ dwel rounde aboute yͤ place ſhal helpe them, whether it be wͭ gold wyth ſyluer, with gyftes, wͭ horſes and neceſſary catel, ⁊ al other thynges yͭ are brought wͭ a fre wyl to yͤ houſe of the LORD at Jeruſalẽ,

B Then the principal men out of the trybes ⁊ vyllages of Juda ⁊ BenJamin ſtode vp: ſo dyd the preaſtes alſo and yͤ Leuites (whome yͤ LORD had moued) to go vp, ⁊ to buyld yͤ houſe of yͤ LORDE at Jeruſalẽ. And they yͭ were about thẽ helped them wͭ all maner of gold, ⁊ ſyluer, and catel alſo, ⁊ with many liberall gyfts, ⁊ thys dyd many one, whoſe mynde was ſtered vp therto. 1.Eſd.1.c. *Cyrus alſo brought forth yͤ veſſels, ⁊ ornamentes, yͭ were halowed vnto the LORD, which Nabuchodonoſor yͤ kynge of Babylon had caryed awaye from Jeruſalẽ and cõſecrated them to hys Idol ⁊ image, and delyuered them to Methridatus, hys treaſurer, ⁊ by hym they were delyuered to Salamanaſar yͤ debite in Jewry. And thys was yͤ nombre of them. ii. M. and. iiii. C. ſyluer boules. xxx. ſiluer baſens. xxx. baſens of gold. ij. M. ⁊ iiij. C. veſſels of ſyluer, and a. M. beſide All the veſſels of golde ⁊ ſyluer were. v M. viij. C. and lx. Theſe were nombred vnto Salamanaſar, to them yͭ were come agayne wyth him to Jeruſalem out of yͤ captiuite of Babylon. 1.Eſd. *Nowe in yͤ tyme of kynge Artaxerxes the kyng of Perſia theſe mẽ: Baleus and Mithridatus, Sabellius, Rathimus, Balthemus, Semelius the ſcribe, and other yͭ dwelt in Samaria and in other places vnder yͤ dominion therof, wrote a letter vnto kyng Artaxerxes, wherin they cõplayned vnto the kynge of them in Jewry ⁊ Jeruſalẽ. C The letter was made after thys maner. Syr thy ſeruauntes Rathimus, yͤ ſtory wryter, Sabellius the ſcribe, ⁊ other iudges of yͤ courte in Celoſyria, ⁊ Phenices. Be it knowen ⁊ manifeſt to our lorde yͤ kynge, yͭ the Jewes whyche are come vp frõ you vnto vs into yͤ rebellious ⁊ wycked citie, begynne to buyld it agayne, ⁊ the walles about it, and to ſet vp yͤ temple a newe Nowe yf this citie ⁊ the walles therof be ſet vp agayne they ſhal not onely refuſe to geue trybutes ⁊ taxes, but alſo rebel vtterly agaynſt yͤ king. And for ſo moche as they take this in hãde nowe a boute the tẽple, we thoughte it reaſõ, to thincke no ſcorne of it but to ſhewe it vnto our lorde yͤ kynge, and to certifie hym therof: to yͤ intente yͭ yf it pleaſe the kynge, he maye cauſe it to be ſoughte in yͤ bookes of olde: ⁊ thou ſhalte fynde ſuch warnynge wryten, and ſhalt vnderſtãde yͭ thys citie hath alwaye ben rebellious and diſobediente, that it hathe ſubdued kynges and cities, ⁊ that yͤ Jewes which dwel therin, haue ben a rebellious, obſtinate vnfaythful, and fyghtynge people, for the whyche cauſe thys citie is waſted. Wherfore nowe we certifie oure lorde the kyng, that yf thys citie be buylded ⁊ occupyed agayne, and the walles therof ſet vp a newe, thou canſt haue no paſſage into Celoſyria and Phenices.

Then wrote the kynge to Rathimus the ſtory wryter, to Balthemus, to Sabellius, the ſcrybe and to the other officers and dwellers in Syria, ⁊ Phenices, after thys maner: I haue red yͤ epiſtle whyche thou ſenteſt vnto me, and haue commaunded to make diligent ſearche, and hahe found, yͭ the citie hath euer reſiſted kynges, yͭ the ſame people are diſobediẽt, ⁊ haue cauſed muche warre, ⁊ yͭ myghtye kynges haue raygned in Jeruſalẽ, whyche alſo haue rayſed vp taxes of Syria, ⁊ Phenices. Wherfore I haue commaunded those people, yͭ they ſhal not buyld yͤ citie, they make nomore in it, and that they procead no forther with the buyldyng, for ſo muche as it myghte be the cauſe of warre and dyſpleaſure vnto kynges.

Nowe when Rathymus and Sabellius the ſcribe ⁊ the rulers in the lande had red the wrytynge of kyng Artaxerxes, they gat them togeather, and came in all the haſte to Jeruſalem wyth an hooſt of horſemen, and wyth much people of foote, and forbade thē to buylde. And ſo they left of from buyldynge of the temple, vnto the ſeconde yeare of kynge Darius.

The iij. Chapter.

¶ Darius maketh a feaſt. The thre ſentences of the thre yonge men, of the whych, the fyrſt is declared.

Kyng Darius made a great feaſt vnto hys ſeruaūtes, vnto al A hys courte, and to al yͤ officers of Medea and Perſia, yee to al the debites and rulers yͭ were vnder hym, frō India vnto Ethopia, an hundred and xxvij. countrees. So whē they had eaten and droncken, beynge ſatiſfyed, and were gone home agayn. Darius the kynge went into his chaṁbre, layde hym downe to ſlepe, ⁊ ſo awaked.

B Then the thre yonge mē that kepte yͤ kynges perſon, and watched hys body, commoned amonge thē ſelues, ⁊ ſpake one to another: let euery one of vs ſaye ſome thyng, ⁊ loke whoſe ſentēce is wyſer ⁊ more excellēt then yͤ other, vnto hī ſhal kyng Darius geue great gyftes, ⁊ cloth hym wͭ purple, he ſhal geue hym veſſels of golde to drynck in, clothes of golde ⁊ coueringes, he ſhal make him a coſtly charet ⁊ bridle of gold, he ſhal geue hym a bonet of whyte ſylke, ⁊ a chayne of gold a bout his necke: yee, he ſhalbe the ſeconde and principall next vnto king Darius, and yͭ becauſe of his wyſdom, ⁊ ſhalbe called yͤ kynges kinſmā.

C So euery one wrote his meanynge, ſealed it ⁊ layde it vnder the kynges pelowe, ⁊ ſayde: when the kynge aryſeth, we wyl geue hym our wryttynges, and loke whoſe worde the kyng ⁊ hys chefe Lordes iudge to be the mooſte wyſelye ſpokē, the ſame ſhall haue the victorie. One wrote: Wyne is a ſtronge thynge The ſeconde wrote: The kyng is ſtronger. The third wrote: Womē haue yet more ſtrengthe, but aboue al thynges yͤ truth beareth a waye the victorie. Nowe whē yͤ kyng was ryſen vp, they toke theyr wrytynges ⁊ delyuered thē vnto hym, ⁊ ſo he red thē. Then ſent he forth to call al his chefe Lordes, ⁊ al the debites ⁊ rulers of yͤ countrees of Medea ⁊ Perſia. And whē they were ſet downe in the coūſayle, the wrytinges were red before thē. And he commaunded to call for the yonge mē yͭ they myght declare theyr meanynges thē ſelues by mouth: So when they were ſent for, ⁊ came in, the kynge ſayde vnto thē, ſhewe vs and make vs vnderſtāde what the thynges are yͭ ye haue wrytten. Then begā the D fyrſt (whyche had ſpoken of the ſtrēgth of wyne) and ſayde. O ye men *wyne is Pro.20.a. meruelous ſtrōge, ⁊ ouercommeth thē yͭ drycke it: it deceaueth the mynde ⁊ bryngeth bothe yͤ poore mā ⁊ the kynge to dotage ⁊ uanite. Thus doth it alſo wͭ the bondmā ⁊ wͭ the fre, with the pore ⁊ ryche, it taketh a way theyr vnderſtandyng, ⁊ maketh thē carelesse ⁊ mery, ſo yͭ none of thē remembreth any heuineſſe, or det, or dutye. It cauſeth a man to thyncke alſo, yͭ the thyng that he doth is honeſt ⁊ good, and remembreth not yͭ he is a kyng, nor that he is in autoritye and that he ought not to do ſuche thynges. Moreouer when mē are drynckynge, they forget al frēdeſhip, al brotherly faythfulnes ⁊ loue: but as ſone as they are dronkē, they drawe out the ſwerd ⁊ wil fyghte: ⁊ whē they are layde downe frō yͤ wyne, ⁊ ryſen vp agayne, they cā not tel what they dyd: iudge ye nowe is not wyne yͤ ſtrongeſt? For who wold els take in hāde to do ſuch thīges? And whē he had ſpokē this, he held his tōg.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ The declaration of the two laſte ſentences of the yonge mē, propounded in the Chapter before, of whyche the laſte is, that verite beareth the victorie in all thynges and is mooſte cōmended and alowed. Darius wryteth letters to all the rulers vnď hym, that they ſhoulde ayde Zorobabel, to the buylding of Jeruſalem.

A Then the ſecōd (whych had ſayde: that the kynge was ſtronger) begā to ſpeake. O ye men are not they the ſtrongeſt and moſt excellent that cōquere the laud ⁊ the ſee, and al that is in the ſee and in yͤ earth? Now is yͤ king Lord of al theſe thynges, ⁊ hathe dominion of them all, and loke what he commaundeth, it is done. Yf he send his men forth a warfare, they go ⁊ breake downe hylles, walles, and toweres. They are slayne, and (slaye other men) them selues, ⁊ ouerpasse not the kinges worde. Yf they get the victorie, they bringe the kyng al the spoyle. Lykewise the other that medle not wᵗ warres and fyghtyng, but tyl yͤ gronde: whē they reape they bryng tribute vnto the king. And yf yͤ king alone do but cōmaūd to kyl, they kyl: yf he cōmaūd to forgeue: they forgeue: yf he cōmaunde to smyte, they smyte: yf he byd dryue awaye, they dryue awaye: yf he cōmaund to buyld, they buyld: yf he cōmaunde to breake downe, they breake downe: yf he cōmaūd to plāt, they plāt.

B The comen people and the rulers are obedient vnto hym. And the kynge in yͤ meane seasō sytteth hym downe, eateth and dryncketh and taketh his reste: thē kepe they watch round about the kynge, and not one of thē dare get him oute of the waye, to do hys owne busynes, but must be obedient vnto yͤ kyng at a worde. Judge ye nowe, O ye mē howe shuld not he go farre aboue, vnto whō mē are thus obediēt? And when he had spoken thus, he held hys tōge. The thyrde, whose name is Zorobabel, whyche had spoken of wemen, and of trueth begane to saye after this maner: O ye men, it is not the great kynge, it is not the multitude of mē, neyther is it wyne that excelleth: who is it then that hath the lordshyp ouer them? Haue not wemen borne the kynge, and all the people that rule those thinges? Haue not wemen borne them and brought them vp, that plante the vines, where oute yͤ wyne commeth? They make garmētes for all men, they geue honoure vnto al men and without wemen can not men lyue. Yf they gather golde and syluer and all precious thynges, and se a wel fauored woman, they leaue altogether ⁊ turne theyr eyes onely vnto the woman, and gape vpon her, and haue more desire vnto her, then vnto the syluer and golde, or any maner of precious thynge.

C Gene.2.d. Math.19.a. 1.Cor.6.d. Ephe.5.g. *A man leaueth hys father yͤ broughte hym vp, leaueth his owne natural coūtree, and cleaueth vnto the woman, yee, he ieopardeth his lyfe wyth the woman ⁊ remembreth neyther father, nor mother, nor countrye. By thys thē ye must nedes knowe that wemen haue dominion ouer you.

Doth it not greue you? A man taketh hys swearde ⁊ goeth his waye, to steale, to kyl, to murther, to sayle on the see, and seyth a Lion, and goeth in the darcknes: ⁊ when he hath stolen, dysceaued ⁊ robbed, he bryngeth it vnto his loue. Agayne, a mā loueth his wyfe better thē father or mother: yee, many one ther be, that run out of theyr wyttes ⁊ become bōdmen for theyr wyues sakes many one also hath perished, haue ben slayne, ⁊ haue synned because of wemē.

D And nowe beleue me I knowe a kynge, whych is great in his power, and all landes stande in awe of hym, ⁊ no man dare laye hande vpon hym: yet dyd I se, that Apame, (the doughter of the great kyng Bartacus) the kynges concubine, sat besyde the kyng vpon the ryght hand, and toke of his crowne from his head, and set it vpō hyr owne head, and smote the kyng wyth her left hād. Moreouer the kynge loked vpon her wyth open mouth yf she laughed vpō hym, he laughed also, but yf she toke any displeasure with hym, the kyng was fayne to flatter her, and geue her good wordes, tyll he had gotten her fauoure agayne.

O ye men, are not wemen then stronger? Great is the earth, ⁊ hye is yͤ heauen. Who doth these thinges? Then yͤ king ⁊ yͤ princes loked one vpō another So he begāne to speake of the truth: O ye men: are not wemē strōger? Great is the earth, hie is the heauen, swyft is the course of the sunne, * he compasseth the heauē rounde aboute, and fetcheth his course againe to his owne place in one day. Is he not excellent that doth this? yee, great is the truth, ⁊ stronger then all thynges. All the earth calleth vpon yͤ truth, the heauē prayseth it, al workes shake and tremble at it, and wyth it is no vnryghteous thynge. Wyne is vnryghteous: the kynge is vnryghteous: wemen are vnryghteous: all the chyldrē of mē are vnryghteous: ye, al theyr workes are vnryghteous, and there is no truth in thē: in theyr vnryghteousnes also shal they be destroyed and peryshe. As for the truth *it endureth, ⁊ is alwaye strōge: it lyueth ⁊ cōquereth for euer more: worlde wythout ende.

The truth accepteth no persons: it putteth no difference betwixte ryche or poore, betwixte the myghtie or ſymple, but doth ryght vnto euerye man, whether they be euel or good, ⁊ al mē are louyngly dealt withall in yͤ workes of it. In the iudgement of it, there is no vnryghteous thyng but ſtrength, kyngdome power, and maieſtie for euermore. Bleſſed be the GOD of truth. And wyth yͭ he helde his tonge, ⁊ al yͤ people cryed ⁊ ſayd: Great is yͤ truth, and aboue al. Thē ſayd yͤ kyng vnto hym: Aſke what thou wylt more then is appoynted in the wrytynge and I ſhall geue it yͤ, for thou art founde wyſer then thy companyons, thou ſhalt ſyt next me, and be my kynſman. Thē ſayde he vnto the kynge: Remembre thy promiſe ⁊ vowe, whych thou haſt vowed and promiſed (in the daye when thou cammeſt to thy kyngdome) to buylde vp Ieruſalem, and to ſende agayne all yͤ veſſels and Iewels that were taken awaye out of Ieruſalem: whyche Cyrus ſeparated, when he offred in Babylon, and wolde ſende thē agayne. And thy mynde was to buyld vp the temple, which yͤ Edomites brent when Ieruſalem was deſtroyed by the Chaldees. Thys onely (O kyng) is the thige that I require, this is thy maieſtye, whych I deſire and aſke of the, that thou performe the vowe, which thou with thyne owne mouth haſt made vnto the kyng of heauen:

f Then Darius the kyng ſtode vp, and kyſſed hym, *⁊ wrote a letter vnto all yͤ debites ⁊ ſhreues, to al yͤ Lordes and nobles, that they ſhuld conuey hym forthe, and all them yͭ wolde go vp wͭ hym. He wrote a letter alſo vnto al the ſhreues that were in Celoſyria and Phenices, and vnto Lybanus, yͭ they ſhulde drawe Cedre trees from Lybanus vnto Ieruſalem, to buyld yͤ citie wythall. Moreouer, he wrot vnto al the Iewes yͭ were gone out of his realme into Iewry because of the fredome, yͭ no officer nor ruler, nor ſhreue, ſhuld come to theyr dores, ⁊ yͭ al theyr lande whych they had conquered, ſhuld be fre ⁊ not tributarie, and yͤ Edomites ſhuld geue ouer yͤ cities ⁊ villages of yͤ Iewes, whyche they had taken in: yee, and yͭ they ſhuld yearely geue twentye talentes to the buyldyng of the temple, vntyl the tyme that it were finiſhed, ⁊ to the dayly halowynge of the brentofferynges (as it is commaunded) ten talentes yearly alſo: And yͭ al they which came frō Babylon to buyld yͤ citie, ſhuld haue fre libertie: they ⁊ theyr chyldren, and al yͤ preaſtes

He wrote the greatnes alſo and commaunded that yͤ holye garmētes ſhulde be geuen them wherin they miniſtred: ⁊ wrote that cōmaundementes ſhuld be geuen to the Leuites, vntyl the daye yͭ the houſe were finiſhed, and Ieruſalem builded vp, ⁊ commaūded yͭ al they that watched yͤ citie ſhulde haue theyr porcions ⁊ wages. He gaue ouer al the veſſels that Cyrus had ſeparated frō Babylon, and al that Cyrus had geuen in commaundemēt, yͤ ſame charged he alſo, yͭ it ſhulde be done, and ſent vnto Ieruſalem. G Nowe when thys yonge man was gone forthe, he turned his face towarde Ieruſalem, ⁊ prayſed yͤ kynge of heauē, ⁊ ſayd: *Of the cōmeth yͤ victorie of the cōmeth wyſdom ⁊ clearenes, ⁊ I am thy ſeruaūt. Bleſſed art thou whyche haſt geuē wyſedō: the wyll I prayſe O LORDE, thou God of our fathers.

Ecclesi.i.

And ſo he toke the letters, and wente vnto Babylon. And when he cam there he tolde this vnto al his brethren that were at Babylon, and they prayſed the GOD of theyr fathers, that he had geuē thē refreſhynge ⁊ libertie to go vp and to buyld Ieruſalem ⁊ the temple (wherein yͤ name of the LORDE is called vpō) and they reioyſed wyth inſtrumentes and gladnes ſeuen dayes longe.

1.Eſdr.4.a. *Then came the enemyes of the trybes of Iuda and BenIamin, to knowe what that trompettynge and noyce of ſhawmes myght be. And they perceyued that it was they whych were come agayne out of captiuite, & wolde buyld the tẽple vp a newe vnto yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael. So they wẽt to Zorobabel, & Ieſua, and the rulers of the villages, & ſayd vnto them. Shal we buyld wᵗ you alſo: For we likewiſe haue heard your LORD, & we walke after yͤ ſame maner from the dayes of Azbaſareth the kyng of Aſſyria, which brought vs hyther. Thẽ Zorobabel and Ieſua, & the rulers of the villages of Iſrael, ſayd vnto thẽ: It is not mete, that ye ſhulde buylde yͤ temple of our GOD with vs, we our ſelues alone wyl buylde vnto the LORDE, 1.Eſdr.1.a. lyke*as Cyrus the kynge of the Perſians hath commaunded vs.

But the Heathen in yͤ land layde them ſelues agaynſt thoſe yͤ were in Iewry, held vp the buildynge from them, layed wayte vpon thẽ preuelye, ſtopped ſuche as brought any thynge to them, forbad them to buylde, and hyndred thoſe that made them paſſage, that the buyldyng ſhulde not be finiſhed: and thys continued ſo longe as kynge Cyrus liued: and ſo they put of the buyldinge for the ſpace of two yeares, vntyll the raygne of kynge Darius.

The vj. Chapter.

¶Aggeus and Zachary prophecied. They buylde the temple wyth out let or hynderaunce: by the commaundement of Darius.

A Not withſtanding: in the ſecõd yeare of the raygne of Darius. 1.Eſdr.5.c. *Aggeus, and Zacharie yͤ ſonne of Addo, prophecied vpon them in Iewry, and Ieruſalem, in yͤ name of the GOD of Iſrael: Agge.1.c *Then Zorobabel, the ſonne of Salathiel, and Ieſua, the ſonne of Ioſedec ſtode vp & begãne to build the houſe of the LORD at Ieruſalem, when the prophetes of the LORD helped thẽ. At yͤ ſame time came Siſẽnes yͤ vnderſhreue in Syria, and Phenices, with the lanlordes and hys companions, & ſayde vnto them, Who hathe bydden and commaunded you to buylde the houſe to make the roofe and al other thinges agayne: And who are the worcke men: that buyld thẽ: Neuertheles, the elders of yͤ Iewes had ſuche grace of yͤ LORD, that they wold not be lette (though they were prouoked therto) but buylded on ſtyl vntyl the tyme yͤ kynge Darius were certified thereof, & an anſwere receaued from hym. The letter that theſe men ſente vnto kynge Darius was after thys maner.

Siſennes the vnderſhreue in Cyria, & Phenices and the lanlordes wᵗ theyr companyons, whych are hed rulers in Syria, and Phenices, ſend theyr ſalutacion vnto Darius yͤ kyng. We certifie the Lord the kynge, that we came in to the lande of Iewry and went to Ieruſalem where we found them buylding the great houſe of GOD, and the tẽple, wyth greate coſtly freeſtone, & wyth goodly tymber for yͤ walles: yee, they make greate haſte wyth the worcke, & helpe one another, and it goeth forthe proſperouſly in theyr handes, and with great diligence & worſhip it is made. Thẽ aſked we the elders who had cõmaunded thẽ to make vp the houſe and yͤ buyldynge, and thys we dyd to the entẽte that we mighte certifie the perfectly, and wryte vnto the the names of thoſe that were the rulers of the worcke. So they gaue vs thys anſwere: we are the ſeruaũtes of the LORD, whych made heauen and earth, & as for thys houſe, it hath ben buylded and ſet vp afore time by yͤ great and mightie kynge of Iſrael. But when our fathers prouoked GOD vnto wrath, & ſynned againſt the GOD of Iſrael, he gaue thẽ ouer into the power of Nabuchodonoſor kyng of Babylon the kyng of the Chaldees whyche brake downe yͤ houſe and brent it, & caryed awaye the people pryſoners vnto Babylon.* Neuertheles, in the fyrſte yere that kynge Cyrus raigned at Babylõ Cyrus the kynge wrote and commaũded to buyld vp the houſe agayne, and al the ornamẽtes that Nabuchodonoſor caryed away from Ieruſalem vnto Babylon, and appropriated vnto hys owne tẽple, theſe brought Cyrus forth agayne, and delyuerd them to Zorobabel and to Salmanaſar, the vnderſhreue: commaundynge them, yͤ they ſhulde bryng thoſe ſame ornamentes agayne to Ie-to Jerusalem, into the temple, ⁊ begynnyng from yͤ time forth, to buyld the tēple agayne, in hys owne place. Then Salmanaser laide the fundacion of the LORDES house at Jerusalem ⁊ euer sence they haue buylded, and yet is not ended. And therfore, O kyng yf thon thynckest it good, let it be sought in the libraries aud rolles of kynge Cyrus. Yf it be funde then, that it is done wyth the councell and consente of kynge Cyrus, and yf our lorde the king be so minded, C let him writ vnto vs therof.

Er.6.d. 4.c. *Then commaunded kynge Darius to seke in the libraries, ⁊ so at Ecbatanis in a litle citie of Media there was founde suche a wry[illegible]e. In the fyrst year of yͤ raygne of Cyrus yͤ same kyng Cyrus commaunded yͭ the house of the LORDE at Jerusalē shulde be buylded againe, and odors there to be made cōtinually vnto the LORDE, whose hyght shalbe .x. cubites and yͤ bredhe .lx. cubites ⁊ .iiij. square with thre hewē, stones wͭ lofte of timber of yͤ same conntrye: yee, with a newe loft, and the expences therof to be geuē of yͤ house of yͤ kynge Cyrus, and the ornamētes of golde ⁊ siluer that Nabuchodonozor toke out of the house of the LORDE shalbe set agayne in the temple at Jerusalem, where they were afore. D Sisennes also the vndershreue in Syria, ⁊ Phenices, yͤ princes, and theyr cōpanions ⁊ the other yͭ be head rulers in Syria ⁊ Phenices, shal not medle nor haue any thing to do with yͤ place. I Cyrus haue commaunded also, that they shal buyld the house of yͤ LORD hole vp, and haue ordayned thē, to helpe those yͭ be come out of captiuite, tyll yͤ house of yͤ LORD be finished and out of yͤ tribute ⁊ taxinge yͭ is yearly raised vp in Syria ⁊ Phenices, diligently to geue them a certayne sūme of the offering of yͤ LORDE: ⁊ the same to be deliuered vnto Zorobabel yͤ officer that he there wythall, may ordayn oxē, rammes, lambes, corne, salt, wyne, and ayle, and that continuallye euerye yeare after the expences Er.6.b. * whych the preastes yͭ be at Jerusalē shewe to be made dayly, thys shalbe geuen vnto them without de laye, yͭ they may offer sacrifices dayly to yͤ hiest GOD, for the kynge and for hys seruaūtes and to praye for theyr lyues. Let it be proclaymed also on euery side, yͭ whosoeuer breaketh or despiseth this cōmaundemente of yͤ kinge, shalbe hanged vpon a galowes (made of his owue good) and al his goodes shalbe seasoned vnto yͤ king. The LORD therfore whose name is there called vpon roote ont, and destroy al yͤ kynges and people yͭ vnder take by violence to hinder yͤ same, or to deale vncurteously with yͤ house of the LORD at Jerusalē. I Darius yͤ kyng haue ordayned yͭ these thiges shal be done wyth al diligēce.

The vij. Chapter

¶ The temple is finished and dedicated, and the feast of the unleuened breade is holden.

THen Sisennes the vndershreue in Celyseria, aud Phenices, ⁊ yͤ other landlordes wytht heyr cōpanyons, obeyed yͤ thinges that kynge Darius had ordeined, and were diligent in yͤ holi worckes, and were felowhelpers with yͤ olde rulers of yͤ Jewes, And so the worke of the Sanctuarie went forth and prospered, when Ageus ⁊ Zachari prophecyed. And they perfourmed all thinges thorowe the cōmaundemēt of the LORD GOD of Israel, and after the deuyce of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes, kynges of Persia. A

And thus was oure honse finished vnto the .xxiiij. daye of the moneth Adar in the .vj. yeare of kynge Darius And the chyldren of Israel, the prestes and Leuites, ⁊ the other yͭ were come out of captiuite: ⁊ such as were ioyned vnto them, did according as it is written in the booke of Moses. Aud in yͤ dedicaciō of yͤ tēple, they offered an .C. Oxē, two hundred rammes .iiij. C. lābes, and .xij. goates, for the synnes of Israel, after yͤ nomber of the tribe of Israel. The preastes also and the Leuites stode araied in theyr preastly garmēts, after the tribes, ouer all the worckes of the LORD GOD of Israel, accordinge to the boke of Moses, aud yͤ porters by all yͤ dores. B

And the chyldren of Israel (wyth those that were come out of captiuite) helde the passeouer the fourtene daye of yͤ first moneth, when the preastes and the Leuites were sanctified. They that came oute of captiuite were not all sanctified together. Bnt the Leuites were sanctified together, and so all they that came out of captiuite, kylled the Easter lambe for their brethren for the preastes, and for them selues. And the chil- C

The viij. Chapter.

¶Eſdras cauſeth the people to aſſemble and come together: And then redeth them the lawe. They kepe the feaſt of the tabernacle.

A 1.Eſdr.7.d. AND after hym* when Artaxerzes the kyng of the Parſiãs raygned there went vnto him Eſdras the ſõne of Saraias, the ſonne of Azarias, the ſonne of Helchiach, the ſonne of Sallum ẏ ſonne of Saddoch, the ſonne of Achitob, the ſonne of Amarias, the ſone of Azarias, the ſonne of Boccus, the ſõne of Abiſu, the ſonne of Phineas, the ſonne of Eleazer, the ſonne of Aaron ẏ fyrſt preaſt. Thys Eſdras wente vp from Babylon (for he had good vnderſtãdynge in the lawe of Moſes that was geuen of the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, to be taught and done in dede) And the kyng fauoured him, and dyd hym great worſhyp and honoure, after al hys deſires. There wente vp ẇ hym alſo certayne of the chyldren of Iſrael, of the preaſtes, of the Leuites, of the ſyngers, porters, and miniſters of the temple at Ieruſalem.

In the ſeuenth yeare of the raygne of kynge Artaxerxes, in ẏ.v. moneth, that is in the. vij. yeare of the raygne, they went frome Babylon in the new mone of the.v. moneth and came the hye way to Ieruſalem after hys commaundemente, lyke as the LORDE hath proſpered theyr iourney. For in theſe Eſdras gat great inſtruccion, that he ſhuld leaue none of the thinges be hynde, whych are in the lawe and commaundements of GOD. And he taught hole Iſraell all ryghteouſnes and iudgementes.

B Then came the Secretaries of kyng Artaxarxes, ⁊ delyuered the wryttynges (that were come from Artaxerxes the kyng) to Eſdras the preaſt and reader of the lawe of the LORD. And thys is the copie of ẏ letter. Kyng Artaxerxes ſendeth hys gretyng vnto Eſdras the preaſt and reader of the lawe of the LORDE. Of frendeſhyp and good wyll, I haue ordayned and charged, if there be any of the Iewes, of the preaſtes ⁊ Leuites in my realme, whych deſireth and is content to go wyth the vnto Ieruſalem, that he may do it. Therfore, yf any be mynded to beare the company, let thẽ come together, and go wyth the (lyke as I am contente ⁊ my ſeuen frẽdes, my coũcelers) to ſe what they do at Ieruſalem and in Iewrye, ⁊ to kepe ẏ thinges (accordynge as thou haſt,) in the law of the LORD, and to brynge the gyftes vnto GOD the LORDE of Iſrael that I and my frends haue promiſed to Ieruſalem, and al the ſyluer and golde that is in the country of Babylon, vnto the LORDE to Ieruſalem, ẇ the thyng that is geuen for the people in the Lordes temple at Ieruſalem: yee, that the ſame ſyluer ⁊ gold maye be gathered, ⁊ oxen, rammes, ſhepe, and goates, and other that belonge to theſe thynges: and that they may offer ſacrifices vnto the LORDE, vpon the aulter of theyr LORD whych is at Ieruſalem.

And what ſo euer thou and thy brethren wyl do wyth the ſyluer and golde, ẏ do after thy mynde, accordynge to the cõmaundemente of the LORD thy GOD, ⁊ lykewyſe wyth the holye veſſels that are geuẽ the, for the ſeruice of the houſe of ẏ LORD thy GOD, and other thynges what ſoeuer is neceſſarie for the worke of the temple, that ſhalbe geuẽ of the kinges treaſure, and loke what thou ẇ thy brethren wylt do wyth the golde ⁊ ſyluer, that do after the wil of ẏ LORD And I kyng Artaxerxes haue cõmaunded the kepers of the treaſures in Syria and Phenices that whatſoeuer Eſdras the preaſt and reader of ẏ lawe of the LORD doth wryte, it ſhalbe geuen hym, tyl an. C. talentes of ſiluer, and of gold in lyke maner. Of corne alſo an C. meaſures, ⁊ tyl an. C. veſſels of wyne and other plenteous thynges without nomber. Let al thinges be done after ẏ lawe of the hyeſt GOD, that the wrath of GOD aryſe not in ẏ realme of ẏ kyng and of his ſonnes. I commaũd you alſo that ye require no taxe nor tribute of ẏ preaſtes, Leuites, ſyngers, ⁊ miniſtres of the temple, nor of ẏ wryters, ⁊ ẏ no man haue autorite to medle any thing againſt them. As for the, O Eſdras, ſet thou iudges and arbiterers in the hole land of Syria ⁊ Phenices, after the wiſedome of GOD, ⁊ learne al ſuch as are ignoraunt in the lawe of GOD thy Lorde, and let all them that offende againſt the lawe, be puniſhed: whether it be with death, wͭ payne, to be condēned in mony, or to be baniſhed.

7.a. Then ſayde Eſdras the wryter. Bleſſed be the GOD of our fathers, yͭ hath geuen ſo good a mynde and wyll into the herte of the kynge to magnifie hys houſe that is at Ieruſalem, and hath made me to be accepted in the ſyght of the kynge, of his councel, of his frendes ⁊ of his nobles, ⁊ ſo I was ſtedfaſt in my mynde, accordynge as yͤ LORD my GOD helped me, ⁊ choſe men out of Iſrael to go with me. 8.b. *And theſe are the heades (after theyr kynreds and houſes of theyr fathers) that went vp wyth me from Babylon out of the kyngedome of Artaxerxes. Of the ſonnes of Phares: Gerſonius. Of yͤ ſonnes of Siemirath Amenus. Of the ſonnes of Dauid. Accus, the ſonne of Cecilia.

Of the ſonnes of Phares, Zachary, and with hym there turned agayne an C. and. l. men. Of the ſonnes of the captayne of Moabilon, Zarey, ⁊ wͭ him. ii. C. l. mē. Of the ſonnes of Zachnes Iechonias, Zecholt, ⁊ wyth hym. ii. C. l. mē. Of the ſōnes of Salamaaſias, Gotholie, lxx. wyth hym: Of yͤ ſōnes of Zaphacia, Zaryas, Mihelie, ⁊ wyth hym lxxx. Of the ſōnes of Iob, Abdias, Iehely, and wyth hym. ii. C. ⁊. xii. men. Of yͤ ſonnes of Baania. Salimoth. the ſonnes of Ioſaphia, and wyth hym, an hũdred and thre ſcore men. Of the ſonnes of Beer, Zacharie, Behei, and wyth hym two hundred and, viij. men. Of Eſead, Ioannes, Ezecham, and wyth hym an hundred and ten men Of the ſonnes of Adonicam, thoſe that were yͤ laſt, and theſe are theyr names. Eliphalam: the ſonne of Gebel, and Semeias, and wythim. lxx men. All theſe called I together by the water Thia, where we pytched our tente thre dayes: ⁊ there I muſtred them.

D 8.b. *As for the ſōnes of the preaſtes and Leuites, I founde none there. Then ſente I vnto Eleazar, ⁊ Eccelom, and Maſinam, ⁊ Malabam and Enaathā, and Samea, ⁊ Ioribimathā, Eunagā, Zachary, Moſolamun (theſe were the elders and mē of experience) and I ſēt them worde that they ſhuld come vnto Loddus, wyich was by the place of the treaſury, and commaunded them that they ſhulde ſpeake vnto Loddus and to hys brethren, ⁊ to thoſe yͭ were in the treaſurye, to ſende vs ſuch mē, as myghte execute the preaſtes office in the houſe of the LORDE onr GOD, and wyth yͤ myghtye hande of oure LORD GOD thei brought vnto vs men of good experience, from a monge the ſonnes of Moolyus, the ſonne of Leui, the ſonne of Iſrael, Sebeiam, and the ſōnes and his brethren Aſbin, ⁊ Anin, of whom there were. xviij. From among the chyldren of yͤ ſonnes of Cananeus, ⁊ their ſonnes were. xx. men. And of them that ſerued in the temple, whom Dauid had ordeined and the principall men yͭ miniſtred for the worke vnto the Leuites in the temple two. C. xx. men whoſe names are all tokened vp in wrytynge.

E 1.Eſdr.8.1 *Then commaūded I a faſtynge vnto the yonge men before the LORDE, yͭ I myght deſire of hym a proſperus iourni, ⁊ a good way for vs: yee, for vs: for oure chyldren and for the Catell, becauſe of the layinges awayte, and I durſt not reqnire of the kynge men of horſe and of foote: to conuei vs ſafely againſt our enemies, for we had ſaide vnto the kynge, that the power of the LORD our GOD ſhulde be with thē that ſeke hun wͭ theyr hole herte. And therefore, we ſoughte GOD oure LORDE earneſtly becauſe of theſe thynges, and he was mercifull vnto vs, and hearde oure prayer, And I ſeperated from a mong the rulers of the people, and from the preaſtes of the temple. xij. men and Sebeia, and Aſania, and. x. men of theyr brethrē wyth them. And weyed them the golde and the ſyluer and all the preaſtly ornamentes of the houſe of our GOD, whiche the kynge and his councel: and hys princes and whole Iſraell had geuen. And when I had weyed it, I gaue them an. C. l. talentes in ſiluer veſſel, an hundred talētes of gold and of golden veſſell, ſeuen tymes twentye, and veſſels of other metall (yee, of good metal) xij. gliſterynge as the golde, and ſayd vnto them, ye are holy vnto the LORD, and the veſſels are holy, and the golde, and the ſiluer is promiſed vnto the LORD GOD of oure fathers.

Bo

Be diligente nowe, and kepe it, vntyl the tyme that ye deliuer it to the rulers of the people, to the pꝛeaſtes, to the Leuites, and to the pꝛincipall men of the cities of Iſrael in Ieruſalem and in the chamber of the houſe of our God.

1.Eſd.8.d. *So the preaſtes ⁊ Leuites whych receaued of me the golde, yͤ ſyluer, and the veſſell, bꝛonghte it vnto Ieruſalem into the temple of the LORD. And from the ryuer of Thia, we bꝛake vp the twelue daye of the fyꝛſt moneth, til we came to Ieruſalem. And when yͤ thyꝛde daye was paſt, the weyed golde and ſyluer was delyuered in the houſe of the LORDE the foꝛth daye vnto Marimoth, the ſoune of Ioꝛ the pꝛeaſt, and wyth hym was Eleazar the ſõue of Phineas. and wyth them were Ioſabdus the ſonnes of Iaſnet: Medias, and the ſõne of Banus, and certayne of the Leuites, to the nomber ⁊ to the weyght: and yͤ weyght of them was wꝛyttẽ vp the ſame tyme. As foꝛ thoſe that were come out of captiuite, they offered ſacrifice vnto yͤ LORDE the GOD of Iſrael: euen twelue oxẽ foꝛ all Iſrael. lxxxvi. rammes. lxxij. ſhepe. xij. goates foꝛ ſynne, twelue kyne foꝛ a thãcke offering, al to the ſacrifice of the LORD. And the kinges commiſſion delyuered they vnto the ſtewardes and deputies of the kynge, and to the vnder ſhꝛeues in Celocyꝛia, and Phenices.

1.Eſdr.9.d. *Nowe when thoſe thynges were done the rulers came vnto me, and ſayde: The generacion of Iſrael, the pꝛinces, the pꝛeaſtes and Leuites, the ſtraunge people and indwellers of the lande haue not put a waye theyꝛe vncleneſſe, from the Cananites, Hethites, Phereſites, from the Moabites, Egypcians, ⁊ Idumites. Foꝛ both they and theyr ſõnes haue mingled them ſelues with the daughters of them, and the holy ſeede is mixte wyth the outlandyſhe Heathẽ and ſince the begining of theyꝛ raygne haue the rulers and heades ben partakers of theyꝛ wikednes.

1.Eſdr.9.d. *As ſone as I had herde theſe thynges, immediatly I rent my holye garmentes, and pulled out the heare of my heade and my bearde, and ſate me downe ſoꝛofull and heuy. So al they yͭ were moued thoꝛowe the wꝛohe of the GOD of Iſeael, came vnto me, and ſat ſtyl: ful of heuynes, vntyl the euenynge ſacrifice. Theu ſtode I vp frõ faſtyng, hauing rent clothes and the holy garmẽte, kneled downe vpon my knees, held vp my handes vnto yͤ LORD, ⁊ ſayde: O LORD I am confounded and aſhamed befoꝛe thy face, foꝛ oure ſinnes are become many vpõ our heades: and our wyckedneſſes are exalte vnto the heuen, foꝛ ſynce the tyme of oure fathers, we are in greate ſinne vnto thys daye. And foꝛ yͤ ſynnes of vs and oure fathers, we with our bꝛethꝛẽ and wyth our pꝛeaſtes haue ben delyuered vnto the kinges of yͤ erath: into the ſwerd and into captiuite aud became a ſpoyle wyth cõfuſion and ſhame vnto thys day. And nowe O LORDE GOD, howe greate is thy mercye that we haue gotten of the, in that thou haſt lefte vs a name and a root in the place of thy Sanctuarye, to dyſcouer oure lyghte in the houſe of the LORDE oure GOD, and haſte geuen vs meate at all tymes of oure miniſtraciõ. And whẽ we were in captiuitie we were not foꝛſaken of the Loꝛde our GOD, but he made the kynges of Perſia grations, ⁊ fauoꝛable vnto vs: ſo that they gaue vs vitayles, and meate: yee, and leaue to buylde vp the temple of our Lord GOD agayne, to repaire the waſted places of Sion: ⁊ to dwel in Iewꝛye and Ieruſalem. And nowe O Loꝛde what ſhal we ſaie, hauynge all theſe thinges in poſſeſſion: Foꝛ we haue bꝛoken thy commaundemẽtes: which thou gaueſt vnto vs bythy handes of thy ſeruaũtes the pꝛophetes: ſaying. The land that ye go vnto, and that is geuen you foꝛ an herytage to haue in poſſeſſion, is defyled with the vncleneſſe ⁊ filthyneſſe of the Heathen and with their abomination haue they poluted it altogether. Therfore ſhal ye not ioyne youre daughters vnto theyꝛ ſonnes, noꝛ marye youre ſõnes vnto theyꝛ daughters. Moꝛeouer ye ſhal not ſeke to make peace wyth them that ye maye encreſe and eat the beſt in the land, and that ye maie deuide the enheritaũce of the lãd, vnto youre chyldꝛẽ foꝛ euer moꝛe. As foꝛ yͤ thing that nowe happened vnto vs, it cõmeth all foꝛ our wycked woꝛkes and greate ſinnes iet haſt thou geuen vs ſuch a roote that we are come agayne into oure lande, an we are ſo wyked that we haue bꝛoken thy ſtatutes ⁊ commaundementes agayne: and myngled oure ſelues with the vnclenes of the outlandiſh Heathen. O Loꝛ-

O LORD, art thou angry with vs? wilte thou roote vs cleane out yͭ our roote ⁊ name remayne nomore? O LORD: GOD of Iſrael thou art true, for our rote ēdureth yet vnto this preſēt day. And beholde, now are we before thē in oure ſines, nowe cā we not ſtāde before the in thē.

10.a. *And when Eſdras wyth his prayer hadde knowledged the ſynne, wepinge and lying flat vpon the ground before the tēple, there gathered vnto hym frō Jeruſalem agreate multitude of men and wemen, of yong men, and maydēs for there was a very great wepynge, and mournynge in the congregacion. So when Jechonias the ſonne of Jehely one of the children of Iſrael cryed, he ſayde vnto Eſdras: we haue ſynned againſt yͤ LORDE, becauſe we haue maryed outlandiſhe wemen of the Heathē Now art thou ouer all Iſrael. We wil ſware an oth thefore vnto the LORDE that we ſhal put away all our wyues whych we haue taken of the Heathen, wyth theyr chyldrē, lyke as it is appointed the by our fore elders. Stād vp thē open thou it playnli vnto vs, according to the lawe of the LORD, for the matter belongeth vnto the, and we wyl helpe the, quyte thy ſelfe manly. So Eſdras aroſe, and toke an othe of the rulers, of the preaſtes, and of the Leuites and of Iſrael, to do after theſe thynges: and they ſware.

¶After Eſdras had red the lawe / the people put a waye theyr ſtraunge wyues / and then returned euery man merelye vnto his owne dwellinge.

A 10.b. Then Eſdras ſtode vp from the courte of the temple wythout, and went into the chamber of Jonathas the ſonne of Nabaſus, and remayned there ⁊ dyd eat no meat, nor dornk dryncke: for the multide of the wyckednes of the people. And there was made a proclamation in all Jewry and at Jeruſalem, for al ſuch as were gathered at Jeruſalem oute of captiuitie, that whoſoeuer came not to Jeruſalem within two or thre daies (accordynge to the iudgemente of the old Lordes of the councel) his goodes ſhuld be taken from hym, and be excluded from the congregacion of the captiuite. And in thre dayes were all they of yͤ tribe of Juda ⁊ Ben Jamin gathered together at Jeruſalem, the twētie daye of the ix. moneth. And the whole multitude ſat trymblynge in the courte of the temple for it was wynter. So Eſdras roſe vp, and ſayde vnto them, ye haue done vnryghtteouſlye in yͭ ye haue taken outlandyſh wyues to maryage, ⁊ ſo to encreaſe the ſinnes of Iſrael. And nowe knowledge the ſame, ⁊ geue prayſe vnto the LORDE GOD of our fathers, ⁊ perfourme hys wyl, departinge B from the Heathen of the lande, and from the outlandyſh wyues. Then cryed yͤ hole multitude wyth a loud voyce, and ſayd: lyke as thou haſt ſpokē, ſo wil we do: but forſomuche as yͤ people are many, and the wynter heare, we maye not ſtonde without the houſe: Agayne this worke ys not a thyng that cā be finiſhed in a day or two. For we be many yͭ haue ſinned in theſe thiges. Ordayne therfore yͭ the rulers of the multitude, ⁊ they yͭ dwel wͭ vs, and as mani as haue outlandyſhe wyues that yͤ preſtes alſo and iuges of euery place may ſtande in the tyme appoynted, tyll they ſwage yͤ wrath of the LORDE in thys buſines.

Then Jonathas the ſonne of Ezely, ⁊ Ezias ⁊ Thecā receaued the charge of this matter, ⁊ Leius, ⁊ Bozoranus and Sabatheus helped thē thereto. After thys all they ſtode vp yͭ were come oute of captiuite. And Eſdras the preaſt choſe vnto hym the principall men from among the fathers according to theyr names, ⁊ in yͤ newe mone of yͤ .x. moneth they ſat together, to examine this matter And ſo yͤ matter was a determininge (concerninge the men that had outlandyſhe wyues) vntil the newe mone C of the firſt moneth. ¶The Sinagog fyndeth faute wyth her owne thyldren. The gentyles are called.

A THus ſayeth the LORDE: I brought this people out of bōdage, I gaue thē my cōmaundementes, by my ſeruauntes the prophetes, whych they wold not heare, but diſpiſed my councels. The mother that bare them, ſayth vnto thē: Go your way ye chyldren, for I am a wyddowe and forſaken: I brought you vp wyth gladneſſe, but with ſorowe ⁊ henyneſſe haue I loſt you: for ye haue ſynned before the LORD oure GOD, ⁊ done the thynge yͭ is euel before hym. But what ſhal I nowe do vnto you: I am awyddow ⁊ forſaken: go your way O my chyldren, and aſke mercye of yͤ LORDE. As for me, O father, I call vpon yͤ for a witnes ouer the mother of theſe children which wolde not kepe my couenaunt, yͭ thou brynge them to confuſion, and theyr mother to a ſpoyle yͭ ſhe bear nomore. Let theyr names be ſcatered abroad amonge the Heathē. Let them be pute ut of yͤ earthe, for they haue thoughte ſcorne of my couenaunte.

Wo be vnto the Aſſur, thou yͭ hydeſte the vnryghteouſnes by yͤ. Thow wycked people remembre* what I dyd vnto Sodome, ⁊ Gomore, whoſe lande is turned to pyteh ⁊ aſſhes. Euen ſo wyl I do vnto al thē, yͭ heare me not, ſayeth the Almyghtie LORDE. Thus ſayeth yͤ LORDE vnto Eſdras: tell my people, yͭ I wyl geue thē yͤ the kyngedome of Ieruſalē, which I wolde haue geuē vnto Iſrael. Theyr glorie alſo wil I take vnto me, ⁊ geue thē yͤ euerlaſtig tabernacles, whyche I had prepared for thoſe.

And in the middeſt of them there was a yōge man of an hye ſtature, more excellent thē all they, ⁊ vpon euery one of theyr heades he ſet garlādes, and was euer higher and hygher, which I merueled at greatlye. So I aſked the angel, and ſayde: Syr, what are theſe? He aunſwered ⁊ ſayde vnto me: Theſe be they, that haue put of the mortal clothynge, and put on the immortal, and haue teſtified and knowleged the name of GOD Nowe are they crowned, and receaue the rewarde.

Then ſayde I vnto the angel: what yōge perſone is it, that crouneth them, and geueth them the Palmes in theyr handes? So he anſwered, ⁊ ſayde vnto me: it is the ſonne of GOD, whome they haue knowleged in the world. Then began I greatly to commend them, that ſtode ſo ſtyfly for the name of yͤ LORD. And ſo the angel ſayd vnto me: Go thy way, and tell my people, what maner of thynges: and howe greate wonders of the LORDE thy GOD, thou haſte ſene.

¶The Angel reproueth Eſdras/ becauſe he ſemed to enter into the profunde iudgementes of God.

Then ſayde I: yee, my LORDE. And he aunſwered me, ⁊ ſayd: I am ſente to ſhewe yͤ thre wayes, ⁊ to ſet forth yͤ ſimilitudes before yͤ: where of yf thou canſte declare me one, I wyll ſhewe the alſo the way, yͭ thou deſireſt to ſe: And I ſhall ſhewe the from whence yͤ wycked herte cõmeth. And I ſayde: Tell on my LORDE. Then ſayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, weye me the weyght of the fyre, or meaſure me yͤ blaſte of yͤ wynde, or call me agayne the daye that is paſte. Thē aunſwered J ⁊ ſayde: What man borne is hable to do that? why requireſt thou ſuche of me? And he ſayd vnto me: yf J ſhuld aſke yͤ howe depe dwellynges are in the ſee? Or howe great waterſprynges are vpon the firmamēte? Or howe greate waterſprynges are in yͤ begynnynge of the depe? Or whych are yͤ out goynges of Paradyſe? And vpon this Jeremiel the Archangel gaue them aunſwere, ⁊ ſayde: Euen when the nombre of the ſeedes is fylled in you, for he hath weyed the worlde in the balaunce: in meaſure and nombre hath he meſured the time, and moueth it not vntill ẏ ſame meaſure be fulfylled. Then ſayde I: No LORDE that can ſhe not. And he ſayde vnto me: In hell ẏ ſecret places of ſoules are lyke the preuye chambre of a woman that trauayleth, and maketh haſt, whē the tyme and neceſſite of the byrth is at hand: Euen ſo doth ſhe haſt to deliuer it that is committed vnto her. The v. Chapter.

¶ Eſdras and the Angell commen together.

NEuertheleſſe, as concernīge ẏ tokens, marcke thys: Beholde ẏ daies ſhal come that they whiche dwel vpō earth, ſhalbe takē in a greate nōbre, ⁊ ẏ waye of ẏ truthe ſhalbe hyd, ⁊ the lande ſhalbe barrē frō fayth: but * iniquitie ſhal Mathe. haue ẏ vpper hād, like as thou haſt ſene nowe, ⁊ as thou haſt hearde lōge ago. And ẏ lande ẏ thou ſeyſte nowe to haue rule, ſhalte thou ſhortlye ſe waſte. But yf GOD graūt ẏ to lyue, thou ſhalt ſe after ẏ thyrde trōpet ẏ the ſūne ſhal ſodēly ſhine agayne in the nyght, ⁊ ẏ mone iij times in ẏ daye, ⁊ bloude ſhall drop out of the wood, ⁊ ẏ ſtone ſhal geue hys voyce, ⁊ ẏ people ſhalbe vnquyet: ⁊ euē he ſhal rule, whōe they hope not ẏ dwel vpō earth, and the foules ſhal flyt, and the Sodomitiſh ſee ſhal caſt out his fiſhe, and make a noyſe in the nyght, whych many ſhall not knowe, but they ſhall all heare the voyce therof.

There ſhalbe a cōfuſion alſo in many places, ⁊ ẏ fyre ſhalbe oft ſent agayne, ⁊ ẏ wyld beaſtes ſhal go theyr way ⁊ mōſterous wemē ſhal beare mōſtres, ⁊ ſalte waters ſhalbe founde in ẏ ſwete: one frende ſhall fyght agaynſt another: thē ſhal wyt ⁊ vnderſtādyng be hyd ⁊ put aſyde into theyr ſecret places, ⁊ ſhalbe ſought of many, ⁊ yet not be found: thē ſhal vnryghteouſnes ⁊ volupteouſnes haue the vpper hande vpon earth. One lande alſo ſhal aſke another, ⁊ ſaye: Is righteouſnes gone thorowe ẏ? And it ſhal ſaye: Noo. At ẏ ſame time ſhal mē hope, but nothyng optayne: they ſhal labour, but theyr waies ſhal not proſpere

To ſhewe ẏ ſuch tokēs I haue leue ⁊ yf thou wylt praye agayne, ⁊ wepe as nowe, ⁊ faſte ſeuē dayes, thou ſhalte heare yet greater thīges. Then I awaked, ⁊ a fearfulnes wēt thorowe al my bodie, ⁊ my mīde was feble ⁊ careful, ſo B ẏ I almoſt ſouned wythall. So ẏ Angel ẏ was come to talke wᵗ me, helde me, cōforted me, ⁊ ſet me vp vpō my fete

And in the ſecōde nyght it happened, that Salathyel the captayne of ẏ people came vnto me, ſayinge: Where haſt thou ben? ⁊ why is thy countinaunce ſo heuy? Knoweſt thou not that Iſrael is committed vnto the in ẏ lande of theyr captiuitie? Up then and eate, ⁊ forſake vs not, as the ſheperde that leaueth his flocke in yͤ handes of yͤ wicked wolues. Then ſayde I vnto hym: Go thy wayes from me ⁊ come not ny me: and he herde it, ⁊ as I ſayde, ſo went he his waye fro me. And I faſted ſeuē dayes mournynge ⁊ wepynge, lyke as Uryell yͤ Angel commaunded me. And after ſeuē dates it happened yͭ the thoughtes of my hert were very greuous vnto me agayne, ⁊ my ſoule receaued yͤ ſpirite of vnderſtandynge, and I begane to talke with the mooſt Hygheſt agayne ⁊ ſayde: O LORDE LORDE, of euerie woode of yͤ earth ⁊ of al yͤ trees therof, thou haſte choſen yͤ one only vineyarde: and of al lādes of yͤ whole worlde, thou haſt choſen yͤ one pit, ⁊ of floures of yͤ grounde, thou haſt choſē yͤ one lylye: and of al the depthes of the ſee: thou haſte fylled yͤ one ryuer: ⁊ of al buylded cities thou haſte halowed Syon vnto thy ſelfe: ⁊ of al yͤ foules yͭ are created, thou haſt named the one doue, ⁊ of al the cattel yͭ are made thou haſt prouided yͤ one ſhepe: ⁊ amōge al the multitude of folkes: thou haſte gotten the one people, and vnto thys people whome thou louedeſt, thou gaueſte a lawe, that is proued of all.

And nowe, O LORD. why haſt thou geuē thys one people ouer into manye? And vpō thy oune roote thou haſte prepared other, and why haſt thou ſcatered thy oūe onely people amōgie many whyche treade them downe? yee, which haue euer wythſtāde thy promiſes, and neuer beleued thy couenauntes.

And thoughe thou were enemie vnto thy people, yet ſhuldeſt thou puniſh thē C wyth thine owne handes. Nowe when I had ſpoken theſe wordes, the Angel yͭ came to me the nyght afore, was ſente vnto me, ⁊ ſayde vnto me: Heare me, and herken to the thynge that I ſaye, ⁊ I ſhal tell the more. And I ſayde: Speake on my LORDE. Then ſayde he vnto me: Thou arte ſore vexed and troubled for Iſraels ſake. Loueſt thou that people better then hym that made them? And I ſayde: No LORD: but of very greſe and compaſſion haue I ſpoken. For my reynes payne me euery houre, becauſe I wolde haue experience of the waye of the mooſt Hygheſt, and to ſeke out parte of hys iudgemente. And he ſayde vnto me, that thou mayeſt not.

And I ſayde: wherfore LORD? Whereunto was I borne thē? or whi was not mi mothers chyldebed then my graue? So had I not ſene yͤ miſerie and trouble of Iacob, and the trauayle of my people of Iſrael.

And he ſayde vnto me: Nombre the thynges yͤ are not yet come: gather me together the droppes that are ſcatered abrode: make me yͤ floures grene agayne, that are wythered: open me yͤ thyng that is cloſed, and bryng me forth the windes, that are ſhut vp: ſhewe me the image of a voyce, and then ſhall I declare the thynge, yͭ thou laboreſt to knowe. And I ſayde: O LORDE LORDE, who maye knowe theſe thynges, but he that hath not hys dwellynge with mē. As for me, I am vnwyſe, howe maye I then ſpeake of theſe thynges wherof thou aſkeſt me?

Then ſayde he vnto me: lyke as thou canſt do none of theſe thinges yͭ I haue ſpokē of, euē ſo canſt thou not fynde out my iudgement: or in the ende, the loue that I haue promiſed vnto my people. And I ſayde: Beholde, O LORDE yet arte thou nye vnto them yͭ haue no ende: and what ſhall they doo yͭ haue ben before me, or we that be nowe, or they yͭ ſhall come after vs? And he ſayde vnto D me: I wyll lyken my iudgemente vnto a rynge. Lyke as there is no ſlackeneſſe of the laſte, euen ſo is there no ſwifteneſſe of the fyrſte. So I aunſwered and ſayde: couldeſte thou not make thoſe (yͭ haue ben made, and be nowe, and that are for to come at once, yͭ thou myghteſt ſhewe thy iudgemente the ſooner? Then aunſwered he me, ⁊ ſayde: The creature maye not haſten a boue the maker, neyther maye the worlde holde them at once, that ſhalbe created.

And I ſayde: Howe haſt thou ſayd then vnto thy ſeruaunt, that thou liuig maker, haſt made the creature lyuyng at once, and the creature bare it? euē ſo myghte it nowe alſo beare thē yͭ be preſent, at once. And he ſayd vnto me? Aſke yͤ chilbede of a womā, ⁊ ſay vnto her: yf thu bringeſt forthe chyldrē, why doeſt thou it not together, but one after another? Praye her therfore to brige forth x. children at once. And I ſayde ſhe can not, but muſt do it one after another. Then ſayde he vnto me: Euen ſo haue I geuen a chyldebed vnto the earth: for thoſe that be ſowen vpon it by proceſſe of tyme. For lyke as a yõge chylde may not brynge forth the thynges that belonge to the aged: euen ſo haue I ordeyned the worlde whych I made.

And I aſked, & ſayde: Seynge thou haſt nowe geuẽ me awaye, I wyl ſpeake before the: for our mother of whom thou haſte tolde me, is yet yõge, & nowe ſhe draweth ny vnto age. He aunſwered me & ſayde: Aſke a womã yͭ beareth chyldren, & ſhe ſhall tell the. Saye vnto her: wherefore are not they (whome thou haſte nowe brought forth) lyke thoſe yͭ were before yͤ: but leſſe of ſtature: And ſhe ſhal aunſwere yͤ: They yͭ be borne in the youth of ſtrength, are of one faſhion, & they that are borne in yͤ tyme of age, (when yͤ chyldbed fayleth) are otherwyſe. Conſider nowe thy ſelfe, howe that ye are leſſe of ſtature, then thoſe that were before you, and ſo are they that come after you, leſſe then ye: as the creatures whych nowe begin to be olde, and haue paſſed ouer yͤ ſtrengthe of youthe. Thẽ ſayde I: LORDE I beſeche the, yf I haue funde fauoure in thy ſyghte, ſhewe thy ſeruaunte, by whome doeſt thou vyſet thy creature:

The vj. Chapter.

¶ The Aungel inſtructeth Eſdras, and geueth hym aunſwere to hys queſtions.

A AND he ſayde vnto me: In the beginnynge when yͤ grounde was made, before the worlde ſtode, or euer the wyndes blewe, before it thondred and lightened, or euer the fundacions of Paradyſe were layd, before the fayre floures were ſene or euer the moueable powers were ſtablyſhed, before the innumerable multitude of Angels were gathered together, or euer the hyghneſſes of the ayre were lyfted vp, afore the meaſures of yͤ firmamẽt were named, or euer yͤ chimneis in Syõ were hote, or thes preſent yeares were ſought out, & or euer yͤ inuecions of them that nowe ſinne, were put aſyde, before they were ſealed that now gather fayth for a treaſure: then dyd I conſider & ponder al theſe thynges, & all they were made thorowe me, & thorowe none other: by me alſo they be ended, & by none other, Then anſwered I, and ſayde: whych ſhalbe the parting aſunder of the tymes: Or when ſhalbe the ende of the fyrſte, and the beginnynge of it yͭ foloweth And he ſayde vnto me: From Abraham vnto Iſaac (when Jacob and Eſau were borne of him) Jacobs hãde helde fyrſte the hele of Eſau: for Eſau is the ende of thys worlde, and Jacobe is the beginninge of it that foloweth. The hande of man betwyxt the hele and the hande. Other queſtion (Eſdras) aſke thou not.

I anſwered then & ſayd: O LORDE LORDE, yf I haue funde fauoure in thy ſyght, I beſech the ſhewe thy ſeruaunte the ende of thy tokens, wherof thou ſhewedſt me parte the laſt nyghte So he aunſwered and ſayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfect voyce & ſounde. There ſhal come a greate mocion, but the place wher thou ſtandeſt ſhall not be moued And therfore whẽ thou heareſt the wordes be not afrayed, for of the ende ſhal the worde and fundacion of the earth be vnderſtande. And why: yͤ worde therof trẽbleth and quakethe for it knoweth, that it muſt be chaunged at yͤ end. And it happened, that when I had herde it, I ſtode vp vpon my fete: and herkened. And beholde, there was a voyce yͭ ſpake & the ſounde of it was lyke the ſounde of many waters, and it ſayde: Beholde, the dayes come, that I wyll begynne to drawe ny, and to viſet them that dwell vpon earth, and wyll begynne to make inquiſicion of them, what they be that haue burnt equite wyth vnryghteouſnes, and when the lowe eſtate of Syon ſhalbe fulfilled: and when the world, that ſhal vaniſhe away ſhalbe ouerſealed, then wil I do theſe tokẽs.

B The bookes ſhalbe opened before the firmament, & they ſhall ſeall together, and the chyldren of a yeare olde ſhall ſpeake wyth theyr voyces: the wemen with chylde ſhal brynge forth vntymely, chyldren of thre or foure monethes olde: and they ſhall lyue, and be rayſed vp: and ſodenly ſhall the ſowen places appere as the vnſowen, the full ſtore houſes ſhal ſodenly be founde emptye, and the trompete ſhall geue a ſounde, whyche whẽ euerye man heareth, they ſhalbe haſtely afrayde. * At that tyme ſhall frendes fyghte one agaynſt another lyke enemyes, and the earthe ſhal ſtande in feare wyth them.

The ſpringes of the wells ſhal ſtand ſtyl, and in.iij. houres they ſhal not renne. Whoſouer remayneth from al theſe thinges that I haue tolde yͤ: ſhal eſcape and ſe my ſaluacion, ⁊ the ende of youre woꝛlde. And the men that haue receaued, ſhal ſee it, they that haue not taſted death from theyꝛ byꝛth: and the hert of the indwellers ſhalbe chaunged, and turned to another meanyng, foꝛ euel ſhalbe put out: ⁊ dyſceate ſhalbe quenched. As foꝛ fayth, it ſhall floꝛiſh, coꝛrupcion ſhalbe ouer come, and yͤ truth, which hath bene ſo lõg with out frute, ſhalbe declared. And it happened when he talcked wͭ me, that I loked demuerly vpõ him befoꝛe whom I ſtode, ⁊ theſe woꝛdes ſaide he vnto me: I am come to ſhewe yͤ, yͤ time of yͤ night foꝛ to come.

yf thou wylte pꝛaye yet moare, ⁊ faſte ſeuen dayes agayne, I ſhal tell the moare thynges, ⁊ greater then befoꝛe: foꝛ thy voyce is harde befoꝛe yͤ Hygheſt: foꝛ why: the myghtye hath ſene thy ryghteous dealynge, he hathe ſene alſo thy caſtitie, whych thou haſt had euer C ſence thy youthe: and therfoꝛe hathe he ſente me to ſhewe the all theſe thynges, and to ſaye vnto yͤ. Be of good cõfoꝛte, ⁊ feare not, ⁊ haſte not wͭ the tymes yͭ are paſte, to thincke vaine thynges, and make not haſte of the latter tymes.

And yt happened after thys, that I wepte agayne, ⁊ faſted ſeuẽ dayes in lyke maner, yͭ I myght fulfyl yͤ thꝛe wekes which he tolde me. In yͤ.viii. nyght was my hert vexed with in me agayne. And I began to ſpeake befoꝛe yͤ Hyeſt: foꝛ my ſpirite was greatly ſet on fyer, ⁊ my ſoule was in diſtꝛeſſe: ⁊ I ſayde: O LORD thou ſpakeſt vnto thy creature from yͤ beginnyng (euẽ yͤ firſt daye) ⁊ ſaydſt: * Let Heauen and earth be made, and thy woꝛd was a perfect woꝛke

And then was there yͤ ſpirite, and the darckneſſes were yet on euery ſyde, ⁊ ſilence: there was no mans voyce as from the. Then commaundeſt thou a fayꝛe lyghte to come foꝛth oute of thy treaſures, that thy woꝛke mighte appeare and be ſene.

Upon the ſecond day thou madeſt the ſpirite of yͤ firmamente, and commaundeſt it to part a ſunder, ⁊ to make a diuiſion betwyxt yͤ waters, yͭ the one parte myght remayne aboue, ⁊ yͤ other beneth. Upon yͤ iii day thou bꝛoughteſt to paſſe, that the waters were gathered in the. vij. part of the earth. vj. partes haſt thon dꝛied vp and kepte them, to thyntente that men moghte ſow ⁊ occupy huſbandꝛy therin. As ſone as thy woꝛd went foꝛth, yͤ woꝛcke was made. Foꝛ immediatly there was great ⁊ innumerable frute ⁊ many diuerſe pleaſures ⁊ deſires of temptacion: floures of changeable coloure and ſmell, and thys was done the.iij.daye.

Upon yͤ.iiij.daye thou commaudeſt D that the ſune ſhulde geue hys ſhyne, ⁊ the moone her lyght: the ſtarres dydſt thou ſet in oꝛdꝛe ⁊ gaueſt thẽ acharge, to do ſeruice euen vnto man yͭ was foꝛ to be made. Upon the.v. day thou ſaydſt vnto the.vij.parte*(wher yͤ waters were gathered) yͭ they ſhulde brig foꝛth diuers beaſtes, foules ⁊ fyſhes. And ſo it came to paſſe, that the dome waters ⁊ without ſoule, bꝛought foꝛth liuyng beaſtes at the commanudemẽt of GOD. that all people mighte prayſe thy wonderouſe woꝛckes. Then dydſt thou pꝛeſerue two ſoulles yͤ onne thou caldſt Enoch: and the other Leuiathã: ⁊ dydſt ſeparate the one from the other: foꝛ yͤ vij.parte (namelye where yͤ water was gathered together) myght not holde thẽ both. Unto Enoch thou gaueſt one part, which was dꝛyed vp yͤ iij.daye, yͭ he ſhuld dwell in yͤ ſame parte, where are, a.M. hylles. But vnto Leuiathan thou gaueſt yͤ vii.parte, namely yͤ moiſt: ⁊ haſt kept hym to deuoꝛe what thou wylt and when. Upon the. vj.day thou gaueſt commaundemẽt vnto the eaꝛth, that befoꝛe yͤ, it ſhuld bꝛyng foꝛth beaſtes, cattell, and al yͭ crepe: and (beſyds thys) Adam alſo, whome thou madſt LORD of al thy creatures. Of hym come we al, ⁊ the people alſo whome thou haſte choſen ſpecially vnto thy ſelfe. All thys haue I ſayde nowe and ſpoken befoꝛe the, that I myghte ſhewe howe yͤ the woꝛlde is made foꝛ oure ſakes. As foꝛ the other people whyche alſo come of Adam thou haſte ſayde that they are nothynge, but be lyke a ſpytle, and haſt lykened the abundaunce of them vnto a dꝛop yͭ falleth from the roſe of yͤ houſe.

The. vij. Chapter.

❡The Angel ſhweth Eſdras many thynges to come.

A AND it happened after that I had ſpoken oute theſe wordes there was ſẽte vnto me an Angell, whyche had ben by me alſo the nyghtes afore and he ſayde vnto me: vp Eſdras, and heare yͤ wordes yͭ I am come to tel the And I ſayde ſpeake on LORD my GOD Then ſayde he vnto me. The ſee is ſet in a wyde place that it myghte be deape and greate, but the entraunce is narowe and ſmall lyke a riuer.

For who wolde go into the ſee, to looke vpon it and to rule it? yf he went not thorowe yͤ narowe, howe myghte he come into the brode?

Item an other: A citie is buylded and ſet vpon a broade felde, and is full of al goodneſſe the entraunce is narrowe and ſodayne, lyke as yf there were a fyre at the ryghte hande, and a depe water at the lefte, and as it were oneli one ſtrait pathe betwixte them both, ſo ſmale, yͭ there coulde but one man go there.

yf thys citie nowe were geuen vnto an heyre, and he neuer wente thorowe the parlous waye, howe wold he receaue his inheritaunce. And I ſayde: It is ſo LORDE. Then ſayde he: Euen ſo is Iſrael alſo a porciõ. And why? for ther ſakes haue I made the worlde: and when Adam tranſgreſſed my ſtatutes, then was the thynge iudged that was done. Then were the entraunces of yͤ worlde made narowe, full of ſorowe & trauayle. They are but fewe and euell, full of parelles and laboure. For the entraunces of the fore world were wyde & ſure, and broughte immortall frupte.

yf they nowe whyche are entred into thys world, maye not cõprehend theſe ſtrayt and vayne thynges, much leſſe may they comprehend and vnderſtand yͤ ſecret thiges. Why dyſquieteſt thou thy ſelfe then, ſeing thou arte but a corruptible man? And what woldeſt thou knowe where as thou art but mortall? And why haſt thou not receaued into thyne herte the thynge yͭ is for to come, but that is preſent.

Then ſayde I: O LORDE LORDE, *B thou haſte ordyned in thy lawe, that yͤ ryghteous ſhulde inheret theſe thynges, but that the vnfayethfull and vngodlye ſhulde periſhe. Neuertheleſſe, the ryghteous ſhall ſuffer the ſtrayte and hope for yͤ wide: for they that haue lyued vngodlye & hath ſuffered yͤ ſtrayte, ſhal not ſee the wyde.

And he ſayde vnto me: There ys no iudge aboue GOD, and none that hath vnderſtãding aboue yͤ hyeſt. For there be many yͭ periſhe, becauſe thei diſpiſe the lawe of GOD yͭ is ſet before them. for GOD hath geuẽ ſtrayt commaũdement to ſuch as come, that they knowe what they do, and howe they ſhulde lyue: and if they kepte thys, they ſhulde not be puniſhed.

Neuertheleſſe, they were not obediẽt vnto hym. but ſpake againſt hym: Imagined vayne thynges: and purpoſed to ſinne: and ſaide moreouer, yͭ there was no GOD, and that GOD regarded it not Hys waies haue thei not knowen, his lawe haue they diſpiſed, and denied his promiſes: in hys ſtatutes and ordinaũces haue they not ben faythfull and ſteadfaſt, and hathe not perfourmed hys workes.

And therfore Eſdras: vnto the full, plentie, and to the ẽptie, emptineſſe. Beholde, the tyme ſhall come, that theſe tokens whych I haue told the, ſhall come to paſſe, and the bryde ſhal apere, and yͤ earth that nowe paſſeth awaye, ſhalbe ſhewed: and whoſoeuer is delyuered from yͤ eueles ſhall ſee my wõders, For my ſonne Ieſus ſhalbe openly declared with thoſe that be with hym, and they that remayne ſhalbe mery in fouer hundred yeares.

After theſe ſame yeares ſhall my ſonne Chriſt, dye, and all men that haue lyfe: and the worlde ſhalbe turned into yͤ olde ſilence ſeuen dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgementes, ſo that no mã ſhall remayne. And after ſeuen dayes, the worlde that yet awaked not, ſhalbe raiſed vp, and ſhal dye corrupt. And the earth, ſhal reſtore thoſe that haue ſlept in her: and ſo ſhall the duſt, thoſe, that dwell in ſilence, and the ſecret places ſhall delyuer thoſe that be commytted vnto them.

And the mooſt Hygheſt ſhalbe openly declared vpon the ſeate of Judgemente, and all miſerie ſhall vanyſh awaye and longe ſufferynge ſhalbe gathered together. But the Judgement ſhall cõtinue, the truth ſhall remayne, and fayth ſhal waxe ſtrong, ỹ woꝛke ſhal folowe, C ⁊ ỹ reward ſhalbe ſhewen: ỹ ryghteouſnes ſhall wache, and the vnryghteouſnes ſhall beare no rule.

Then ſayde J. * Abꝛaham pꝛayed fyꝛſt foꝛ the Sodomites, ‡ ⁊ Moſes foꝛ ỹ fathers that ſynned in ỹ wyldeꝛneſſe, and he that came after hym foꝛ Jſrael, in ỹ tyme of Achas, and Samuel: and * Dauid foꝛ ỹ deſtruction ‡ ⁊ Salomon foꝛ them that came into the ſanctuarie * ⁊ Helias foꝛ thoſe that receaued rayne, and foꝛ ỹ dead ỹ he myghte lyue, ād Ezechias, foꝛ the people in the tyme of Sennacherib: and diuerſe other in lyke maner, whych haue pꝛayed foꝛ many.

Euē ſo nowe, ſeyng ỹ coꝛrupt is growē vp, ⁊ wyckednes increaſed, and the ryghteous haue pꝛayed foꝛ ỹ vngodly, wherfoꝛe ſhall it not be ſo nowe alſo?

He annſwered me, and ſayd: Thys pꝛeſent woꝛlde is not the ende, theꝛe remayneth muche honure in it, therfoꝛe haue they pꝛayed foꝛ the weake. But ỹ daye of dome ſhall be ỹ ende of thys tyme, and ỹ begynnyng of the immoꝛtalite foꝛ to come, wherin all coꝛrupcion is baniſhed, all voluptouſnes is lowſed al miſbeleue taken away, righteouſnes growen, ⁊ ỹ verite ſpꝛong vp. Thē ſhal no man be able to ſaue hym that is deſtroyed, noꝛ oppꝛeſſe hym ỹ hath gotten ỹ victoꝛie. J aunſwered then, ⁊ ſayde: This is mi firſt and laſt ſaying: ỹ it had bene better, not to haue geuē the earth vnto Adam, oꝛ els when it was geuen him, to kepte him ỹ he ſhulde not ſynne foꝛ what pꝛofyt is it foꝛ men nowe in thys pꝛeſente tyme, to lyue in heuineſſe and after death to loke foꝛ puniſhemente: O thou Adam, what haſte thou done: foꝛ though it was thou that ſined, thou art not fallen alone, but we all ỹ come of the. Foꝛ what pꝛofyt is it vnto vs, yf there be pꝛomiſed an immoꝛtall tyme: where as we meddle wyth deadly woꝛckes? And ỹ there is pꝛomiſed vs an euerlaſting hope, where as oure ſelues are euell and vaine, ⁊ that there are layde vp foꝛ vs dwellynges of helthe and fredome, where as we haue lyued euell, and that the woꝛſhipe of the Hyeſt is kepte to defende them wyche haue led a paciente lyfe, where as we haue walked in ỹ moſte wicked wayes of all? And that there ſhalbe ſhewed a Paradiſe, whoſe fruite indureth foꝛ euer, wherein is fredome and medicine, where as we ſhall not goo in, foꝛ we haue walcked in vnpleaſaunte places: And that the faces of them whych haue abſtayned, ſhall ſhyne aboue the ſtarres, where as oure faces ſhall be blacke and darke? Foꝛ whyle we lyued and dyd vnryghteouſly, we conſidꝛed not, that we ſhulde ſuffre deathe.

Then aunſwered he me, and ſayde: D Thys is the conſideracion and thoughte of the battayle, whyche man hathe vpon earthe: that yf he be ouer come, he ſhall ſuffre as thou haſte ſayde. But yf he get the victoꝛie, he ſhall receaue the thynge that J ſaye. Foꝛ thys is the lyfe, whereof Moſes ſpake vnto the people whyl he lyued, ſayinge: * Chuſe Deu. 30. d. the lyfe that thou mayeſte lyue: Neuertheleſſe, they beleued hym not, neyther the Pꝛophetes after hym.

No, noꝛ me, which haue ſpoke vnto thē ỹ heuyneſſe ſhulde reache vnto thē to theyꝛ deſtrutiō, lyke as ioye is foꝛ to come ouer thoſe ỹ haue ſuffered thē ſelues to be infourmed in ſaluacion.

J aunſwered then and ſayde: J knowe LORDE, that the Hyeſt is mercyfull, in that he hath mercye vpon them, whyche are not yet in the woꝛlde, and vpon thoſe alſo ỹ walcke in hys lawe: and that * he is paciente and longe ſuf Roma. 2. a. ferynge towarde thoſe that haue ſynned in theyꝛ woꝛckes, and that he is liberall to geue where as it requireth: ⁊ that he is of greate mercy, foꝛ he multipled hys louynge kyndneſſe towarde thoſe that are pꝛeſente, and ỹ are paſt, and to them wych are foꝛ to come.

Foꝛ if he multiply not hys mercyes, ỹ woꝛlde ſhall not be made lyuynge, wͭ thoſe that dwel therin. He geueth alſo: foꝛ yf he gaue not of his goodnes, ỹ thei whych haue done euell, myghte be eaſed from theyꝛ wyckednes: ỹ ten thouſand part of men ſhuld not be made lyuyng. And yf ỹ Judge foꝛgaue not thoſe ỹ be healed wͭ hys woꝛde, and yf he wold deſtꝛoy the multitude ỹ ſtryueth, there ſhlud be very fewe left in an vnnumerable multitude.

The .viii. Capter.

¶ Eſdras prayeth God rather to loke vpon hys owne mercye/then vpon the ſynnes of the people.

A AND he anſwered me ſaynge: the mooſte hygheſt made thys worlde for many, but the worlde to come for fewe. I will tell the aſimilitude Eſdras: As when thou aſkeſte the erathe, it ſhall ſaye vnto the that it geueth muche moulde wherof earthen veſſelles are made, but lytle of it, that gold commeth of. Euen ſo is it Math.21.b. wyth the worke of thys worlde.* There be many created, but fewe ſhalbe preſerued. Then aſwered I ⁊ ſayde: Then ſwalowe vp wytte (thou ſoule) and deuoure vnderſtandyng, for thou arte agreed to herken ⁊ to geue eare, ⁊ wyllyng to prophecy: for thou haſte no longer ſpace geuen the, but onelye to lyue O LORDE, wylt thou not geue thy ſeruaunte leaue, that he may pray before the, and that thou mayſte geue ſeed vnto oure herte, and buylde oure vnderſtandynge that there maye come fruyte of it: and that euerye one wyche is corrupte, ⁊ beareth the ſtate and place of a man, maye lyue?

For thou art alone, ⁊ we all are one workemanſhyp of thy handes, lyke as thou haſt ſayde, ⁊ lyke as the body is facioned nowe in the mothers wombe, ⁊ geueſt the membres, ⁊ thy creature is preſerued in fyre ⁊ water: ⁊ nyne moonethes doth thy worke ſuffer thy creature wych is facioned in her: but the thynge that preſerueth, ⁊ it that is preſerued ſhall both be kept together: and when tyme is, the wombe delyuereth yͤ thyng that is kepte ⁊ growen in her.

For thou haſte commaunded the breſtes to geue milke vnto the frute, that the thyng whych is created and facioned, maye be noriſhed for a tyme: when thou dyſpoſeſt ⁊ ordreſt it wyth thy mercye, bryngeſt it vp wyth thy ryghteouſneſſe: nurtureſt it in thy lawe, and refourmeſt it with thy vnderſtandyng, mortifieſt it as thy creature, ⁊ makeſt it lyuyng as thy worke. Seing then yͤ thou deſtroyeſt him, wich with ſo great labours is created ⁊ facioned thorowe thy conmaundement, thou couldeſt lyghtly ordayne alſo yͤ the thyng whych is made, myght be preſerued.

And thys I ſpake nowe of all men in generall, as thou knoweſte: but of thy B people, for whoſe ſake I am ſory: ⁊ of thyne inheritaunce for whoſe cauſe I mourne: and of Iſrael, for whō I am woful: ⁊ for Iacob: for whoſe ſake I am greued: therfore begyn I to pray before yͤ for my ſelfe and for thē: for I ſe the fal of vs: euen of vs, yͤ dwell vpon erth: but I haue herd the ſwiftnes of yͤ iudge which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, ⁊ vnderſtande my wordes: ⁊ I ſhall ſpeake before the.

Thys is the begynnyng of yͤ wordes of Eſdras, before he was receaued. O LORDE thou that dwelleſt in euerlaſtingneſſe, whoſe eyes beholdithe the heauens ⁊ the ayre, whoſe ſtoole is exceadyng hye, whoſe glorye and mageſte may not be cōprehendyd, before whome yͤ angels of Heauen ſtāde trēblyng (whoſe keping is in wyne ⁊ fyre,) whoſe word is true, whoſe talkynge is ſteadfaſt, whoſe commanndemente is ſtrōge, whoſe ordinaunce is fearful, whoſe lookes dryeth vp the depthes, whoſe wrath maketh the mountaynes to melte awaye, ⁊ whoſe trueth beareth witneſſe. O heare the prayer of thy ſeruaunt, and marcke wyth thyne eares the peticion of thy creature.

For whyle I lyue, I wyll ſpeake, ⁊ ſo longe as I haue vnderſtādinge, I wyll aunſwere. O looke not vpō the ſynnes of thy people whych ſerue in the trueth Haue no reſpecte vnto the wycked ſtudies of the Heathen, but to the deſire of thoſe that hath kepte thy teſtimonies wyth ſorowes. Thyncke not vpon thoſe that doe walked faynedlye before the but vpon thē, whych do feare the.

Let it not be thy wyl to deſtroy them which haue had beaſtly maners, but to looke vpō thē that haue clearli taught thy lawe. Take thou no indignacion at them, whych are whorſe then beaſtes: but loue thē, yͤ alwy haue put their truſt in thy ryghteouſnes and glory: for we and oure fathers haue all yͤ ſame ſyckenes ⁊ diſeaſe, but becauſe of our ſinnes thou ſhalt be called merciful.

For if thou haſt mercy vpon vs, thou C ſhalt be called mercyfull, where as we haue no worckes of righteouſnes, for yͤ ryghteous which haue layde vp manye good worckes to gether, ſhall out of their dedes receaue rewarde. For what is man, that thou ſhuldeſt take dyſpleaſure ſure at hym: Or wate is ẏ corruptible ⁊ mortale generacion, ẏ thou ſhuldeſt be ſo rough toward hym.

For of a truth there is no man among them ẏ be borne, but he hath dealt wyckedly: and among the faythfull there is none whych hath not done amyſſe. a.6.f. o.1.b. For in thys (O LORDE) thy ryghteouſneſſe and thy goodneſſe ſhalbe prayſed and declared, yf thou be mercyfull vnto them, wych are not rych in good worckes.

Then aunſwered he me, ⁊ ſayd: Some thynges haſt thou ſpoken a ryght and according vnto thy wordes it ſhal be. For I wyll not verely conſider the worckes of them, whych haue ſynned before the death, before ẏ iudgement, before deſtruccion: but * I wyll reioyſe ouer the worcke ⁊ thought of ẏ righteous. n.4.a. I wyll remembre alſo there pilgremage, preſeruació ⁊ reward. Lyke as I haue ſpoken nowe, ſo ſhal it come to paſſe. For as the huſbãdman ſoweth much ſeed vpon the ground, and planteh many trees, and yet al waye ẏ thinge that is ſowen or planted is not all kept ſafe, neyther doth it al take roote: Euen ſo is it of thē that are ſowen in ẏ world, they ſhall not all be preſerued.

I aunſwered thē ⁊ ſayde: yf I haue foũde grace, then let me ſpeake. Lyke as ẏ huſbande manes ſeede periſheth, yf it receaue not rayne in due ſeaſō, or yf there come to much rayne vpon it: Euen ſo periſheth man alſo wych is created wyth thy handes, and is lyke vnto thyne owne Image, and to thy ſelfe, for whoſe ſake thou haſt made all thynges ⁊ lykened hym vnto the huſbande mãs ſeede. Be not wroth at vs O LORD, but ſpare the people and haue mercy vpon thyne owne inheritaunce O be meriful vnto thy creature.

Then aunſwered he me, and ſayde: Thynges preſent are for ẏ preſent, and thiges to come for ſuch as be to cō. For thou lackeſt yet moch, ſeing thou maiyeſt loue my creature aboue me. I haue oftimes drawen ny vnto ẏ, but neuer to ẏ vnrighteous. In this alſo thou art maruelous before the hyeſt in that thou haſte humbled thy ſelfe, as it be cōmeth ẏ, ⁊ haſte not regarded thyne owne ſelfe ẏ thou arte had in ſuche honoure amonge ẏ ryghteous. Therfore ſhal greate wretchedneſſe and miſerie come vpon thē ẏ in ẏ latter tyme ſhall dwel in ẏ world, becauſe they haue walked in great pryde.

But vnderſtande thou for thy ſelfe, ⁊ ſeke oute glorie for ſuch as be lyke the: for vnto you is paradiſe opened: ẏ tree of lyue is planted, ẏ time to come is prepared, plēteouſneſſe made readye, a citie is builded for you, and reſt is prepared: yee, perfecte goodneſſe ⁊ wiſedome The roote of euel is marcked from you ẏ weakeneſſe and moth is hyd frō you, ⁊ into hel flyeth corrupcion in forgetfulneſſe. Sorowes are vanyſhed away ⁊ in ẏ end is ſhewed ẏ treaſur of immortalitie . And therfore aſke thou nomore queſtions cōſerning ẏ multitude of them ẏ periſh. For they haue takē libertie, deſpiſed ẏ hieſt, thought ſcorne of his law, ⁊ forſaken his wayes.

Moreouer, they haue troden downe Pſal.144.
hys ryghteous, ⁊ * ſayde in theyr herte, that there is no GOD: yea, ⁊ knouige ẏ thei ſhal dye. For lyke as ẏ thynge ẏ I haue ſpokē of, is made ready for you Euen ſo is thryſte and payne prepared for them. For it was not hys wyl ẏ men ſhuld come to naughte: but they wich be created, haue defyled ẏ name of hym that made them, and are vnthanckeful vnto hym, whyche prepared lyfe for thē And therfore is my iudgemente nowe at hande. Theſe thynges haue I not ſhewed vnto al mē, but vnto fewe: namelye vnto the, ⁊ ſuche as be lyke the.

Then anſwered I ⁊ ſayde: Behold O LORDE nowe haſt thou ſhewed me the multitude of the tokens, which thou wilt begyn tn do at ẏ laſte: but at what tyme ⁊ when, thou haſt not ſhewed me.

The .ix. Capter.

¶ Eſdras hath viſions ſhewed vnto hym.

HE aunſwered me then, ⁊ ſayde: Meſure thou ẏ tyme diligently in it ſelfe, when thou ſeeſt ẏ one parte of the tokēs come to paſſe, whyche I haue tolde ẏ before, ſo ſhalt thou vnderſtande, that it is the very ſame time wherin ẏ hyeſte wyll begynne to viſet ẏ worlde, whych he made. And when there ſhalbe ſene an erthquake ⁊ vprore of the people in ẏ world, then ſhalt thou wel vnderſtād that the moſte Hyeſte ſpake of thoſe thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen from the begynnyng. A

For lyke as all that is made in yͤ worlde hath a begynnyng and ende, and the ende is manifeſt: Euen ſo the times alſo of the Hyeſt haue plaine begynnynges in wonders, and ſignes, and the ende in worckynge and in tokens. And euerye one that ſhalbe ſaued, and ſhalbe able to eſcape by his workes ⁊ by faith (wherin ye haue beleued), ſhal be preſerued from the ſayde perils and ſhal ſe my ſaluation in my lande, and with in my borders, for I haue halowed me from the worlde. Then ſhall they be in carefullneſſe, whyche nowe haue abuſed my waies, and they that haue caſte thē oute diſpitefully, ſhall dwell in paynes.

For ſuche as in theyr lyfe haue receaued benefites, and haue not knowne me, and they that haue abhorred my lawe (whyle they had yet fredome, ⁊ whē they had yet open leyſure of amendemēte ⁊ conuerſion, and vnderſtode not but diſpiſed it) the ſame muſte knoue it after death in payne. And thefore be thou nomore carefulle howe the vngodly ſhalbe puniſhed, and how the ryghteous ſhalbe ſaued, and whoſe the worlde is: and when it is. Then anſwered I: and ſaide: *I haue talked before, ⁊ nowe: I ſpeake ⁊ wyl ſpeake alſo hereafter, that there be many mo of them wyche periſhe, then ſhalbe ſaued, lyke as yͤ floude is greater then yͤ dropes.

B 4.Eſd.8.a. Math.20.c.

And he auſwered me, ſayinge: lyke as the felde is, ſo is alſo the ſede: as yͤ floures be, ſo are the coloures: ſuche as the worekemau is, ſuche is the worcke: ād as the huſbandman is hym ſelfe, ſo is hys huſbandry alſo, for it was the tyme of the worlde.

And when I prepared for them that are nowe, or euer the worlde was made, wherein they ſhulde dwell, thē was there no man that withſtode me. Nowe when euery one was, and the maker alſo in the worlde which is nowe prepared, and the moneth that ceaſeth not, ⁊ the lawe whyche is vnſarcheable: their maners were corrupte. So I conſidered the worlde, ⁊ beholde, there was peril, becauſe of the thoughtes, that were come into it. And I ſawe, and ſpared them greately, and haue kepte me a wyneberye of the grapes, ⁊ a plante from amoge many generacions. Let the multitude periſhe then, wych are growē vp in vayne: and let my grape ⁊ wyneberye bekepte: euen mi plante: for wͭ great laboure haue I made it vp.

Neuertheleſſe, yf thou wylte take vpon the yet ſeuen daies mo (but thou ſhalt not faſt in them) go thy way thē into yͤ feld of floures, where no houſe is buylded: aud eate only of the floures of the felde, taſt no fleſh, drincke no wyne, but eate. Praye vnto the Hyeſte cōtinualy: ſo wyll I come, ⁊ talke wͭ the.

So I wente my waye and came into the felde wyche is called Ardath (lyke as he commaunded me) and there I ſat amonge the floures, and dyd eate of the herbes of the felde, and themeate of yͤ ſame ſatiſfied me, After ſeuen dayes I ſat vpon the graſſe, ⁊ my herte was vexed wythin me, lyke as afore: ⁊ I opened my mouth and began to talke before the hyeſte, and ſayde O LORD, thou that ſheweſt thy ſelfe vnto vs, *thou haſte declared ⁊ opened thy ſelfe vnto our fathers, in the wylderneſſe, in a place were nomā dwelleth, in a barren place when they came oute of Egypte, and thou ſpakeſt ſaying: Heare me O Iſrael, and marke my wordes thou ſeede of Iacob: Beholde, I ſowe my lawe in jou ⁊ it ſhall bring frute in you, ⁊ ye ſhalbe honoured in it for euer. For oure fathers wych receaued the lawe kepte it not, and obſerued not thy ordinaunces and ſtatutes, and the frute of thy law was not declared: for it might not: for why: it was thine *For they yͤ receaued it, periſhed becauſe they kepte not the thynge that was ſowen in them. C

It is a cuſtome when yͤ ground receaueth ſeed, or the ſee a ſhyp, a veſſel meate ⁊ dryncke, that whē it periſheth or is broken, wherin a thing is ſowen, or wherin any thynge is put: the thynges alſo periſhe and are broken: which are ſowen or put therin. But vnto vs it hath not hapened ſo, for we that haue receaued the lawe, periſhe in ſynne: and oure herte whyche alſo receaued the lawe: notwythſtādynge *the lawe periſheth not: but remayneth in hys laboure. D

And when I conſidered theſe thynges in my herte after thys maner, I loked aboute me wyth myne eyes, and vpon the ryghte ſyde, I ſawe a womā, wyche mourned ſoore, made greate lamentacion, and wepte wyth lowde voyce: her clothes were rente in peaces, ⁊ ſhe had aſſhes vpon her heade.

Then let I my thoughtes go yͭ I was in, and turned me vnto her, and ſayde: wherfore wepeſt thou? Why arte thou ſo ſory and diſcomforted? And ſhe ſaide vnto me: Syr, let me be wayle my ſelfe, and take yet more ſorowe: for I am ſore vexed in my mynde, and broughte very lowe. And I ſayde vnto her: What ayleth the? Or who hath done any thinge to the? tell me: She ſayde: I haue bene vnfruytfull and barẽ, and haue had an huſbande thyrtye yeares. And theſe thyrtye yeares I doo nothynge elles daye and nyghte, and all houres: but make my prayer to the hyeſt. After thirtye yeares GOD herde me thy hãdmayden, and loked vpon my miſerie, conſidered my trouble, and gaue me a ſonne and I was glad of hym, ſo was my huſband alſo and all my neyghbours, and we gaue greate honoure vnto yͤ myghtye. And I nouryſhed him with greate trauayle. So when he grewe vp and came to the tyme that he ſhulde haue a wyfe, I made a feaſte.

The. x. Capter.

¶ Eſdras and the woman that appereth vnto him/ commone together.

1 AND it happened, that whẽ my ſonne went into hys chambre, he fell downe, and dyed: then ouer threwe we all the lyghtes, ⁊ all my neyghboures roſe vp to comfore me.

Then toke I my reſte vntyll the ſecõde day at nyght: ⁊ when they had al reſted, yͭ myght comforte me, I reſted: and alſo roſe vp by nyghte, ⁊ fled: ⁊ am come hether into thys felde as thon ſeſt, ⁊ am purpoſed not to come in yͤ citie, but remayne here: ⁊ nether to eate nor drynke, but continualy to mourne and faſte vntyll I dye.

Then let I my meditacions and thoughtes fall that I was in, and ſpake to her in diſpleaſure: Thou folyſhe womam: ſeeſt thou not our heuyneſſe and mourninge, and what happeneth vnto vs? howe Sion oure mother is all wofull ⁊ ſory? how ſhe is cleane brought downe ⁊ ĩ miſerie? ſeeſt not hou we be al nowe in heuyneſſe ⁊ make oure mone as the wyche ar full of ſorow? ſhuldeſt thou alſo be wayle thy one ſõne? Demaunde yͤ earth and ſhe ſhal tell the yͭ it is ſhe whyche oughte (by reaſon) to mourne, for yͤ fal of ſo many yͭ growe vpõ her

For, from the begynnynge al men are borne of her, ⁊ other ſhall come: and beholde they walcke almoſte all into deſtrucciõ, ⁊ many of thẽ ſhalbe rote oute

Who ſhulde then (by reaſon) make moare mournynge then ſhe, that hath loſte ſo greate a multitude? ⁊ not thou whyche arte ſory but for one. But yf thou wodleſt ſaye vnto me: My mournyng is not lyke the mournynge of yͤ earthe: for I haue loſte the fruyte of mi bodye, whiche I bare wyth heuyneſſe: but the earthe is according to yͤ maner of the earth, and yͤ preſente multitude goeth agayne into her, as it is come to paſſe. Then ſaye I vnto yͤ: lyke as thou haſte borne wyth trauayle and ſorowe euen ſo the earth alſo from yͤ beginnynge geueth her fruyte vnto man, for him that made her. And therfore wͭ holde thy ſorowe ⁊ heauineſſe by thy ſelf, * ⁊ loke what happeneth vnto the, bare it ſtrongly. For if thou iudgeſt the marke and ende of GOD, to be righteous and good, and receaueſte hys counſayle in tyme thou ſhalte be commended therin Go thy waye then into the citie to thy huſbande.

Heb. 12. a.

B And ſhe ſayde vnto me, that wyll I not do: I wyll not go into the citie: but here wyl I dye. So I communed more wyth her, and ſayde: do not ſo, but be counſayled, ⁊ folowe me, for howe manye falles hath Siõ? Be of good comforte becauſe of the ſorowe of Ieruſalem. For thou ſeeſt yͭ oure Sanctuarie is layed waſt, oure aulter broken, oure temple deſtroyed, our playinge of inſtrumẽtes and ſinging layd downe the thanckeſgeuynge put to *ſilence, oure mirth is banyſhed a waye, yͤ lyghte of oure cãdelſticke is quenched, yͤ Arcke of yͤ couenaunte is taken from vs, all oure holye thynges are defyled, ⁊ yͤ name yͭ is called vpon ouer vs, is dyſhonoured: oure chyldren are put to ſhame oure preaſtes are brente: oure Leuites are caryed awaye into captiuitie: oure virgins are defyled, ⁊ oure wiues rauiſhed oure ryghteous men ſpoyled: and our chyldren deſtroyed: our yonge men are broughte in bondage, ⁊ oure ſtronge worthyes are become weake: ⁊ Sion whyche ſeale is yͤ greateſt of all) is looſed vp frõ her worſhyppe: for ſhe is deliuered in to yͤ handes of them yͭ hate vs.

Tob, 10. a.

And therefore ſhake of thy greate heauyneſſe and put awaye the multitude of ſorowes: that the myghtye maye be mercyfull vnto the: and that the hyeſt maye geue the reſte from thy laboure and trauayle. And it happened, yͭ when I was talkynge wyth her, her face dyd ſhyne and glyſter, ſo that I was afrayed of her, and muſed what it myghte be. And immediatly ſhe caſt out a great voyce, very fearfull, ſo that yͤ earthe ſhoke at the noyſe of the woman: & I loked. And beholde, the woman appered vnto me nomore: but there was a citie builded, & a place was ſhewed from the grounde and fundacion.

4.Eſd.4.a.

Then was I afrayed, and cryed, wͭ loude voyce, and ſaide: Where is Uriel the Angell * wyche came to me at the fyrſt? For he hath cauſed me to come in many conſideracions & hygh thoughtes, and mine ende is turned into corrupcion: and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was ſpeakynge theſe wordes, he came vnto me, and loked vpon me: and I laye as one that had bene dead, and myne vnderſtandynge was altered, ād he toke me by the ryghte hande, and cōforted me, and ſet me vpon my fete, and ſayde vnto me: what ayleth yͤ? and why is thyne vnderſtandynge vexed? and the vnderſtandynge of thy herte? and wherfore arte thou ſorye? And I ſayde: Becauſe thou haſte forſacken me: and I

haue done * accordynge vnto thy wordes, I wente into the felde, and there haue I ſene thynges that I am not able to expreſſe. He ſayde vnto me Stande vp, and be manlye, and I ſhall geue the exhorcion.

Then ſayde I: ſpeake vnto me my LORDE. forſake me not, leſt I dye in vayne: for I haue ſene, that I do not knowe. O ſhall my vnderſtandynge be dyſceaued, and my mynde? But nowe I beſeche the, that thou wylte ſhewe thy ſeruaunte of thys wondre. He aunſwered me then, and ſayd heare me, and I ſhall tell the wherfore thou arte afrayed, for yͤ hyeeſt hathe opened manye ſecret thynges vnto the.

He hathe ſene yͭ thy wayes are ryghte, and that thou takeſte ſorowe continuallye for thy people: and makeſt greate lamentacion for Sion: and therefore vnderſtande the viſion, whych thou ſaweſt a litle whyle a go after this maner. Thou ſaweſt a woman mournyng and thou haſte comforted her. Neuertheleſſe nowe ſeeſt thou the lykeneſſe of that woman nomoare, but thou thoughteſt there was a citie buylded: and lyke as ſhe tolde the of the fall of her ſonne: ſo is this the annſwere. The woman whome thou ſaweſt is Sion: and where as ſhe tolde the, that ſhe hath bene thyrtye yeares vnfruytefull and barren, thoſe are the thyrtye yeares wherin there was no offeringe made in her. D

But after thyrtye yeares Salomon buylded her and offerd, and then bare the barren a ſonne. And where as ſhe tolde the: that ſhe noriſhed hym wyth laboure, that was the dwellynge of Jeruſalem. But where as ſhe tolde that her ſonne died when ſhe came into her chambre, that is the fal of Jeruſalem. And thou ſaweſt her lykenes howe ſhe mourned for her ſonne: & what els happened vnto her, I haue ſhewed yͤ. And nowe GOD ſeeth, that thou art ſory in thy mynde, and ſuffereſt from thy hert for her, & ſo hathe he ſhewed the her cleareneſſe, & the fayreneſſe of her beauty.

And therfore I bad the remayne in the felde where no houſe is buylded. For I knewe that the hyeſte wolde ſhewe thys vnto the: therefore I commaunded the to go into the felde, where no fundacion nor buylding is. For in yͤ place where the hyeſt wyll ſhewe hys citie, there ſhalbe no mans buyldynge. And therfore feare not, and let not thyne herte be afrayed, but go thy waye in, and ſe the glorious fayre buyldynge and howe greate it is and howe great thou thinckeſt it, after the meaſure of thyne eyes, & then ſhalte thou heare as muche as thyne eares may comprehēd For thou arte bleſſed aboue many other and art called wyth the hyeſt amōgeſt the fewe. But to morowe at nyghte thou ſhalt remayne here: and ſo ſhall the hyeſt ſhewe the viſions of hye thynges, whych he wyll do vnto them that dwell vpon earth, in the laſte dayes. So I ſlept the ſame nyght, lyke as he commaunded me.

The .xi. Chapter.

¶ In thys chapter and in the two nexte enſuynge he intreateth of certayne viſions/and the interpretacions thereof.

A Then ſawe I a dreame: and behold there came vp from yͤ ſee an Aegle whiche had twelue wynges, ⁊ thre heades: And I ſawe, and behold he ſprede his wynges ouer all the earth, and all the wyndes of the ayre blewe in them, ⁊ ſo they were put together agayne.

And I behelde, and oute of hys fethers there grewe out other lytle contrarie fethers, the hedes reſted, the heades in the myddeſte was greater then the other, yet reſted it wyth yͤ reſidue.

Moreouer I ſawe, that the Aegle flewe wyth hys wynges, and raygned vpon earthe and ouer al them yͭ dwelte vpon the earthe: And I ſawe that all thynges vnder heauen were ſubiecte vnto hym, and no man ſpake agaynſte hym: no not one creature vpon earth. I ſawe alſo that the Aegle ſtode vp vpon hys clawes, ⁊ gaue a ſounde wyth hys feathers, ⁊ a voyce ſayinge after thys maner: watche not all to geather, ſlepe euery man in hys owne place, ⁊ watch for a time, but let yͤ heades be preſerued at the laſte. Neuertheleſſe, I ſawe, that the voyce went not oute of hys heades, but frō the myddeſte of hys bodye. And I nombred hys contrarye fethers, and behold, there were. viij. of them. And I loked. And beholde vpon the ryght ſide there aroſe one fether, ⁊ raygned ouer all the earth: And it happened, yͭ when it raygned, the end of it came, ⁊ the place therof appered nomore. So the nexte folowynge ſtode vp, ⁊ raygned ⁊ had a greate tyme: ⁊ it happened, yͭ when it raygned, the ende of it came alſo lyke as the fyrſte, ſo that it appered nomore.

B Then there came a voyce vnto it, ⁊ ſayde: Heare thou that haſte kepte in yͤ earth ſo long. Thys I ſaye vnto the: before thou begynneſte to appeare nomore. There ſhall none after the attayne vnto thy tyme. Then aroſe the thyrde ⁊ raygned as the other afore, ⁊ appeared nomore alſo. So wente it wyth all the reſydue one after another, ſo that euerye one raygned, ⁊ then appered nomore. Then I loked, ⁊ behold in proceſſe of tyme the fethers that folowed were ſet vp vpon the ryghte ſyde, yͭ they myghte rule alſo: and ſome of them ruled, but wythin a whyle they appered no moare: for ſome of them were ſet vp, but ruled not. After thys I loked. And behold the twelue fethers appered nomore nor the two winges, ⁊ there was nomoare vpon the Aegles body but two heades that reſted, and ſyxe fethers. Then ſaw I alſo that the ſyxe fethers were parted in two, and remayned vnder yͤ heade, that was vpon the righte ſyde, for yͤ foure contynued in theyr place. So I loked, ⁊ beholde, they that were vnder the wynges, thoughte to ſet vp thē ſelues, ⁊ to haue the rule. Then was there one ſet vp, but ſhortly it appered nomore, ⁊ the ſeconde was ſoner awaye then the fyrſte. And I beheld, and loo, yͤ two thought alſo by them ſelues to raygne, ⁊ when they ſo thought, beholde, there awaked one of the heades that were at reſt: namelye, it that was in yͤ myddeſt, for that was the greater of the two heades. And then I ſawe, that the two heades were fylled wyth hym, and the heade was turned wyth them, and were by hym, and dyd eate vp the two vnder winges that wold haue raigned.

C But thys heade put the hole earth in feare, and bare rule in yt, ouer all thoſe that dwelt vpon earth wyth muche laboure, and he had the gouernaunce of the worlde, ouer all the foules that haue bene. After thys I loked, ⁊ beholde yͤ head that was in yͤ myddeſt, ſodaynely appered no more, lyke as yͤ wynges thē came the two heades, whych ruled vpō earth, ⁊ ouer thoſe that dwelte therin. And I behelde, and lo, the heade vpon yͤ ryghte ſyde deuoured that was vpō the lefte ſyde. And I hearde a voice, whyche ſayde vnto me: loke before the, and conſidre the thynge that thou ſeeſte. Then I ſawe, ⁊ beholde, as it were a Lion yͭ roareth, rennynge haſtelye oute of the woode, and he ſente oute a mans voyce vnto the Aegle, and ſayde: Heare thou: I wil talke wyth the, and the hieſt ſhal ſaye vnto the: Is it not thou that haſte the victorie of the foure beaſtes, whom I made to raygne vpō earth and in my worlde, and that the ende of theyr tymes myght come thorow them:

D And the fourth came, and ouer ranne al the beaſtrs yͭ were paſt, ⁊ had powre ouer the worlde with great fearfulneſſe, ⁊ ouer the hole compaſſe of the earth wyth the mooſte wycked laboure: and ſo longe tyme dwelte he vpon the earth wyth dyſceate, and yͤ earthe haſte thou iudged not wyth truth. For thou haſt troubled the meke: thou haſt hurte the peaceable and quiet: thou haſte loued lyers, and deſtroyed the dwellynges of them that brought forth fruyte, ⁊ haſte caſt downe the walles of ſuche as dyd the no harme. Therfore is thy wrongfull dealynge ⁊ blaſphemye cum vp vnto the hyeſt: ⁊ thy pryde vnto the myghtie. The hyeſt alſo hath loked vpon the proude times: ⁊ beholde they are ended and theyr abominacions are fulfylled. And therfore appere nomoare thou Aegle, and thy horible winges, ⁊ thy wycked fethers, ⁊ thy vngracious heades, and thy ſynful clawes, and al thy vayne body, that the earth may be refreſhed, and come agayne to her ſelfe: when ſhe is delyuered from thy violence: ⁊ that ſhe maye hope for the iudgemente and mercie of hym that made her.

The xij. Chapter.

A AND it happened when the Lyon ſpake theſe wordes vnto yͤ Aegle, I ſawe, and beholde yͤ heade that afore had the vpper hande, appered nomore: nether dyd the foure wynges appeare any more yͤ came to hym and were ſet vp to raygne: and theyr kyngdome was ſmal and full of vproure. And I ſawe and behold they appered nomore, and the whole bodye of the Aegle was brente, and the earth was in greate feare. Then I awaked oute of the traunce of my mynde, and from greate feare, and ſayde vnto my ſpirite: Loo, thys haſt thou geuē me in that thou ſearcheſte oute the wayes of the hyeſt: loo, yet am I wery in my mynde, and verye weake in my ſpirite, and lytle ſtrength is there in me, for yͤ greate feare that I receyued thys nyght. Therfore nowe I wyll beſeche the hyeſt, that he wyll comforte me vnto the ende: and I ſayde LORDE LORDE, yf I haue founde grace before thy ſyghte, and yf I am iuſtified wyth yͤ before manye other, aud yf my prayer become vp before thy face, comforte me then, and ſhewe me thy ſeruaunte the interpretacion aud playne difference of thys horible ſyghte, that thou mayeſte perfectly comforte my ſoule: for thou haſte iudged me worthy, to ſhewe me the laſt of tymes.

And he ſayde vnto me: thys is the interpretacion of thys ſyghte. The Aegle whome thou ſaweſt come vp from the ſee, is the kingdome* whiche was ſene in the viſion of thy brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto hym, for nowe I declare it vnto the. Beholde, yͤ dayes come, that there ſhall ryſe vp a kyngedome vpō earth, and it ſhalbe feared aboue al kyngedomes that were before it. In yͤ ſame kyngedome ſhall twelue kynges raygne one after another. For the ſeconde ſhall begynne to raygne and ſhall haue moare tyme then the other twelue: and thys do the twelue wynges ſignifie, whyche thou ſaweſt: As for the voyce that ſpake, and yͭ thou ſaweſte not goo oute from the heades, but from yͤ body: it betokeneth, that after the tyme of yͤ kyngedome there ſhal aryſe greate ſtryuynges, ⁊ it ſhal ſtande in paryl of fallynge Neuertheleſſe, it ſhal not yet fall, but ſhalbe ſet into hys begynnynge: And yͤ eyghte vnder wynges whyche thou ſaweſte hange vnto yͤ wynges of hym, betoken, that in hym there ſhall aryſe eyghte kynges, whoſe tyme ſhalbe but ſmal, and theyr yeares ſwyft, and two of them ſhal beare. But when the myddeſte tyme commeth, there ſhalbe foure kepte for a tyme vntyll thyre tyme begynneth to come, that it maye be ended: but two ſhalbe kepte vnto the ende.

C And where as thou ſaweſte thre heades reſtynge: thys is yͤ interpretacion. In hys laſte, ſhall yͤ hyeſt rayſe vp thre kyngdomes, and call many agayne into them, and they ſhall haue the dominion of yͤ earth, and of thoſe that dwell therein wyth moche laboure, aboue all thoſe that were before them. Therfore are they called the heades of the Aegle: for it is they that ſhall brynge forthe hys wyckedneſſe agayne, and that ſhall perfourme and finiſhe hys laſte. And where as thou ſaweſte, that the greate heade appered nomoare, it ſiguifieth, that one of them ſhall dye vpon hys bead, and yet wyth payne: ⁊ the two that remayne ſhalbe ſlayne wyth the ſwerd. For the ſwearde of the one ſhal deuour the other: but at the laſt, ſhal he fal thorowe yͤ ſwearde him ſelfe.

And where as thou ſaweſt two vnder winges vpon the heade, yͭ is they, whome yͤ hyeſte hath kepte vnto their ende: thys is a ſmall kyngdome and full of trouble. The Lyon whome thou ſaweſte ryſynge vp, oute of the woode, ⁊ roarynge ⁊ ſpeakyng vnto the Aegle, and rebukynge hym for hys vnryghteouſneſſe, is the wynde whyche the hygheſt hath kepte for them ⁊ for theyr wyckedneſſe vnto yͤ ende: he ſhal reproue them, ⁊ rente them aſundre before them. For he ſhall ſet them lyuynge in the Iudgemente, and ſhall rebuke them yͭ ar fautie: D yͤ reſidue of my people whiche ſhall eſcape vnto min endes ſhall he delyuer wyth trouble. And ſhall make thē ioyefull, vntyl yͤ cōmyng of the day of iudgement: wherof I haue ſpoken vnto yͤ frō the beginning. Thys is yͤ dreame that thou ſaweſt: and thys is the interpretacion. Thou only haſt ben mete to knowe the ſecret of the hyeſt.

Therfore wryte all theſe thynges yͭ thou haſte ſene in a booke, ⁊ hyde them, ⁊ teache them the wyſe in yͤ people whoſe hertes thou knoweſt maye comprehende ⁊ kepe theſe ſecrettes. But wayte thou heare thy ſelfe yet ſeuen dayes mo, yͭ it maye be ſhewed yͤ whatſoeuer yt pleaſeth the hygheſte to declare vnto the: ⁊ wyth that he wente hys waye.

And when al the people perceaued, that the ſeuen dayes were paſt, ⁊ I not come againe into yͤ citie, they gathered them al together, from the leeſt vnto yͤ mooſte, ⁊ came vnto me, ād ſayde: what haue we offended the: and what euell haue we done agaynſte the, that thou forſakeſt vs, and ſytteſt here in thys place: for of all the people, thou onely arte lefte vs, as a grape of the vine, and as a candle in a darcke place, ⁊ as an hauen ⁊ ſhidpe preſerued from yͤ tempeſt. Haue we not els aduerſitye ynough, but thou muſt forſake vs: Were it not better for vs, that we had ben brente with Sion: For we are not better then they that dyed there: ⁊ they wepte, wͭ loude voyce. Then aunſwered I them, ⁊ ſayde: Be of good comforte, O Iſrael, ⁊ be not heuy thou houſe of Iacob: for the hygheſt hathe you in remembraunce, ⁊ the myghtye hath not forgotten you in temptacion. As for me, I haue not forſakē you, neyther am I departed from you; but am come into this place to praye, becauſe of the miſerie of Iſrael, that I myghte ſeke mercy for the lowe eſtate of youre Sanctuarie. And nowe go youre waye home euery man and after theſe dayes wyll I come vnto you: So the people went theyr waye into the citie, lyke as I commaūded them: but I remayned ſtyl in the felde ſeuen dayes, as the Angel bad me, ⁊ dyd eate onely of the floures of the felde, and had my meate of the herbes in thoſe dayes.

The xiij. Chapter.

A AND it happened after yͤ ſeuen dayes, that I dreamed a dreame by nyghte. And beholde, there aroſe a wynde from the ſee, that it moued all the floudes therof. And I loked and beholde, the man was ſtrong, ⁊ in creaſed wyth the cloudes of heauen: and when he turned hys countynaunce to conſider, al the thynges trymbled yͭ were ſene vnder hym: ⁊ when the voyce wēt out of hys mouth, all they brent that heard hym, lyke as the earth when it feleth the fyre.

After theſe I ſawe, and beholde, there was gathered to geather a multitude of men oute of nombre, from the foure wyndes of the heauen, to fyghte agaynſte the man that came out from yͤ ſee. And I loked and behold, he graued hym ſelfe a great mountayne, and flewe vp vpon it. But I wold haue ſene the border or place, wher oute the hyll was grauen, and I coulde not.

I ſawe after theſe, that all they whyche came to fyght a gaynſte hym, were ſore afrayed and yet they durſte fyght. Neuertheleſſe, when he ſawe yͤ fearceneſſe and violence of yͤ people he nether lyfte vp his hande nor helde a ſwearde nor any weapē: but onely (as I ſawe) he ſente oute of hys mouth as it had bene a blaſte of fyre ⁊ oute of his lyppes yͤ wynde of yͤ flame: ⁊ oute of his tong he caſte out ſparckes ⁊ ſtormes, ⁊ they were all myxte together: yͤ blaſte of fyre, yͤ wynde of the flammes, and the greate ſtorme, ⁊ fell wyth a ruſhe vpon yͤ people, whyche was prepared to fyght, ād brent them vp euery chone, ſo that of yͤ innumerable mnltitude there was nothynge ſene, but onely duſte ⁊ ſmoke. When I ſawe thys, I was afrayed.

B Afterwarde ſawe I the ſame man come downe from the mountayne, and callynge vnto hym another peaceable people, and there came muche people vnto hym: ſome were glad, ſome were ſorye, ſome of them were bonde, ſo that they were caryed and broughte forthe.

Then was I ſycke thorowe greate feare, ⁊ I awaked, and ſayde: thou haſte ſhewed thy ſeruaunte all thy wonders, from the begynning ⁊ haſte counted me worthy, that thou myghteſt receaue my prayer: ſewe me now yet the interpretacion of thys dreame. For thus I conſidre in my vnderſtandynge: wo vnto them that ſhalbe lefte in thoſe dayes, and much more wo vnto them yͭ are not lefte behynde, for they that were not lefte were in heuynes:

Nowe vnderſtande I the thynges yͭ are layed vp in the latter dayes, whiche ſhall happen vnto them, and to thoſe yͭ are not lefte behide. Therfore are they come into great parylles and many neceſſities lyke as theſe dreames declare. yet is it eaſyer, that he whyche ſuffereth hurte, come in theſe, then to paſſe awaye as a cloude oute of the worlde, and not to ſe the thynges that ſhall happen in the laſte.

C Then aunſwered he me, and ſayde: The interpretacion of the ſyghte ſhall I ſhewe the, and I wyl open to the, the thynge yͭ thou haſt required. For thou haſte ſpoken of them that are lefte behynde, ⁊ thys is the interpretacion. He that hath ſufferid payne in yͤ tyme ſhal ſaue hym ſelfe. They that be fallen into harme, are ſuche as geue workes and faythe vnto the mooſte myghtye. Knowe thys therfore, that they whyche be lefte behynde are moare bleſſed then they that be deade. Thys is yͤ meanynge of the viſion. Where as thou ſaweſt a man commyng vp from the depe of yͤ ſee, the ſame is he whome GOD yͤ hyeſt hath kepte a great ſeaſon: whyche by hys owne ſelfe ſhall delyuer hys creature ⁊ he ſhall ordre them that are left behynde. And where as thou ſaweſte, yͭ oute of hys mouth there came a blaſt of wynd, fyre and ſtorme: ⁊ howe that he lyft vp neyther ſwerd nor weapon, but that the ruſhynge in of hym deſtroyed the hole multitude yͭ came to fyghte agaynſt hym: it ſignifieth, that yͤ dayes come wherein GOD wyll delyuer them that are vpon earth, ⁊ in a traunce of mynde ſhal he come vpon them yͭ dwel in yͤ earthe. And one ſhal vndertake to fyght agaynſt another, one citie agaynſt another, one place agaynſt an Mat.24.a. other, *and one people againſt another one realme agaynſt an other. Whē this commeth to paſſe, then ſhal be ſeen that I ſhewed yͤ before: ⁊ then ſhal my ſone be declared, whome thou ſaweſt clyme vp as a man. And whē all yͤ people heare hys voyce, euery man ſhall in theyr owne land leaue yͤ battaile yͭ they haue one againſt an other: and in numerable multitud ſhalbe gathered together as they that be wyllyng to come, ⁊ to ouercome hym by fyghtynge. But he ſhall ſtande vpon the toppe ef yͤ mounte Sion. Neuertheleſſe, Sion ſhal come, and ſhalbe ſhewed, beynge prepared ⁊ buylded for al men, lyke as thou ſaweſt the hyl grauen forth wythout any handes. But my ſonne ſhall rebuke the people yͭ are come for theyr wyckedneſſe, and euel imaginacions: in to the tempeſte: and theyr paynes wherwyth they ſhal be puniſhed, are lykened vnto the flamme, and wythout any laboure ſhalhe deſtroye them, euen by yͤ lawe, which is compared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou ſaweſt, that he gathered an other peaceable people vnto hym: thoſe are the ten tribes whych were caryed away preſoners oute of theyr owne land, *in the time of Oſeas 4.Re the king, whom Salmanazar the kynge of Aſſyria toke preſoner, and caryed them ouer the water, and ſo came they into an other lande.

But they gaue them thys counſayle, that they ſhulde leaue the multitude of the Heathen and to goo forth in to a farther countrye, where neuer mankynde dwelte: yͭ they myght there kepe theyr ſtatutes, whych they neuer kepte in their owne lande. And ſo they entred in at the narowe paſſages of the water of Euphrates, and ſo GOD ſhewed tokēs D for them, *and held ſtyll the floud tyll they were paſſed ouer, for thorowe the countrye, there was a great way: namely of a year, ⁊ a halfe iourney for the ſame region is called Aſareth. Then dwelt they there vntyll yͤ latter tyme: ⁊ when they come forth agayne, the Heyghest ſhal hold ſtyl the ſpringes of the ſtreame agayne, yͭ they may go thorowe: therefore ſaweſt thou yͤ multitude wyth peace. And they yͭ be lefte byhynd of thy people, are thoſe yͭ be foūde with in my border Nowe whē he deſtroyeth the multitude yͭ is gathered together, he ſhal defende hys people that remayne, ⁊ ne, & then ſhal he ſhewe great wõders.

Then ſayde I: O LORDE LORDE, ſhewe me thys, wherfore haue I ſene yͤ man commynge vp from yͤ deape of the ſee: And he ſayd vnto me: Lyke as thou canſt neyther ſeke out nor knowe theſe thynges that are in the depe of the ſee, euen ſo mayſt thou not ſe my ſonne, or thoſe that be wyth hym, but in the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacion of the dreame which thou ſaweſt, therfore thou onely arte lightened, for thou haſt forſaken thyne owne law, & applyed thy diligence vnto myne, and ſought it. * Thy lyfe haſte thou ordred in wyſdome, and ‡ haſte called vnderſtandinge thy mother, and therefore haue I ſhewid the, the treaſure of yͤ Hygheſt. After thre dayes, I wyl ſhewe the more and talke with the more at large: yea, heuy and wõderous thynges wyll I declare vnto the.

Then wente I forth vnto the feld, geuyng prayſe and thanckes greatly vnto GOD, becauſe of thes wonders whych he dyd in tyme, and becauſe he gouerneth the ſame, and ſuche as is in tyme, and there I ſat thre dayes.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶ GOD appereth to Eſdras in the buſhe and ſheweth hym what he ſhal do.

A Upon yͤ thyrde day I ſat vnder an Oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of the buſche and ſayd: Eſdras Eſdras: And I ſayde: heare am I LORDE, & ſtode vp vpon my fete. Then ſpake he vnto me: * in the buſh dyd I appere vnto Moſes, and talked wͭ him when my people ſerued in Egypte. And ſent hym, & led my people out of Egypt, & brought hym vpon the mount Sina, where I held hym by me a longe ſeaſõ, & tolde hym my wonderous workes, and ſhewed hym the ſecretes of the tymes and the ende, & commaunded him ſaying These wordes ſhalt thou declare, and not hyde them: And nowe I ſaye vnto the: that thou laye vp in thyne herte the dreames that thou haſt ſene, and the interpretacions whych I haue ſhewed the, for thou ſhalte be receaued of all, thou ſhalt be turned, and remayne wyth my counſayle, and wyth ſuch as be lyke the, vntyll the tymes be ended. For yͤ worlde hath loſte hys youth, and the tymes begynne to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuided into twelue partes, and ten partes of it are gone al redy, and halfe of the tenth parte yet remayneth there, the whyche is after the haſte of the tenthe parte.

B Therfore, prepare and ordre thy houſe, and reforme thy people: comfort ſuche of them as be in trouble: & tell nowe of the deſtruccion: let go frome the, mortall thoughtes: caſte awaye yͤ burdens of man: put of the weake nature: laye a ſyde yͤ thoughtes that are mooſt heuy vnto the, and haſte yͤ to flye from theſe tymes: for ſuch euel and wyckedneſſe as thou haſt ſene nowe happen, ſhall they do muche whorſe. * For the weaker that the worlde and the tyme is the more ſhal ſynne and wickedneſſe increaſe in them yͤ dwell vpon earthe. For yͤ truthe is fled farre away: iniquite is harde at hand. For now haſteth yͤ viſion to come, that thou haſte ſene.

Mat.24.d.
1.Ioan.2.c.

Then aunſwered I before the, and ſayde: Beholde LORDE, I wyll goo as thou haſte commaunded me, & refourme the people which are preſent. But they yͤ ſhall be borne afterwarde, who wyl exhorte or rebuke them: Thus the world is ſet in darkenes: and they that dwell therin, are wythout lyghte, for thy lawe is brẽte: wherefore nomã knoweth yͤ thynges that are done of the, or yͤ ſhalbe done. yf I haue founde grace before the, ſende the holy gooſt into me and I ſhall wryte all that hath bene done in the worlde, ſyns the begynnynge whych was wrytten in thy lawe yͤ men maye fynde the path, & that they which wyl lyue in the later dayes, may lyue.

And he aunſwered me ſaying: Go thy way gather the people together, & ſay vnto them yͤ they ſeeke the not for fourtye dayes, but loke thou haue many boxe tables, and take wyth the Sarea, Dabria, Salemia, Echanus, and Aſiel, tehese fyue, whych are redy to wryte ſwyftly, and come hether, and I ſhall lyght a candle of vnderſtãdynge in thyne hert, whych ſhall not be put out tyll the thinges be perfourmed which thou ſhalt wryte. And them ſhalt thou declare ſome thynges openly vnto the perfeckt, and ſome thinges ſhalt thou ſhewe ſecretly vnto yͤ wiſe. To morowe this houre ſhalt thou begine to wryte.

Then wente I forth (as he commaũ-

And when this lande, & the lande of Sion was parted among yon by lot, youre fathers and ye youre ſelues alſo, haue done vnrighteouſneſſe, and haue not kept the wayes whych the Hyeeſt commaunded you. And for ſomoch as he is a ryghteous Iudge, he toke from you in tyme the thynge that he had geuen you. And nowe are ye here & your brethren amōge you. Therfore yf ſo be that ye wyll ſubdue your owne vnderſtandynge, and refourme youre hert ye ſhal be kept alyue, & after death ſhal ye optayne mercy. For after death ſhall yͤ iudgement come, when we ſhall lyue agayne:and then ſhal the names of the ryghteous be manifeſt, & the worckes of the vngodly ſhalbe declared. And when I had droncke it, my hert had vnderſtanding, and wiſdome grewe in my breſt:for my ſpirite was kept in remembraunce, and my mouth was opened, and reſtrayned nomore. The Hygheſt gaue vnderſtandynge vnto the fyue men, yͭ they wrote the hye thynges of the mighte, whyche they vnderſtode not. But in the nyghte they dyd eate bread, as for me I ſpake in the daye, and helde not my tonge by nyghte. In fourtye dayes, they wrote two hundred and foure kookes.

And it happened when the fourtye dayes were fulfylled, that yͤ Hyeſt ſpake, ſayinge: The fyrſte that thou haſte written ſpeake openly that the worthy and vnworthy maye reade it. But kepe the.lxx. laſt, that thou mayeſt ſhewe it onely to ſuch as be wiſe among thy people. For in the, is the ſprynge of vnderſtandyng, the fontayne of wyſdome, the ſtreame of knowleg. And I did ſo.

The xv Chapter.

¶The puniſhement that euell people ſhall haue: whych GOD commaundeth Eſdras to ſhewe vnto them.

Beholde, ſpeake thou in the eares of my people the wordes of prophecye, whych I wil put in thy mouth, ſaieth the LORDE: and cauſe them to be written in a letter, for it is the truth. Feare not the imaginacions agaynſt the. Let not the vnfaythfulneſſe of them trouble the, that ſpeake agaynſt the. For all the vnfaythfull ſhall dye in theyr vnfaythfulneſſe. Behold, ſayth yͤ LORD I wyll brynge plages vpon the worlde, yͤ ſwearde, hunger, dearth, and deſtructiō, for wyckedneſſe hath the vpperhande in all the earth, and theyr ſhamefull workes are fulfylled.

Wherfore ſayeth the LORDE: I wyl hold my tonge nomore vnto theyr wyckedneſſe, whyche they do ſo vngodly: neyther wyll I ſuffre them in the thynges, that they deale wythal ſo wyckedly. Beholde,* the innocent bloud of the Apoc.

me & therfore (ſayth yͤ LORDE) I will them auenge & receaue vnto me all the innocent bloude from amonge them.

*Beholde, my people is led as a flocke of ſhepe to be ſlayne. I wyll not ſuffre them nowe to dwell in Egypte but wyll brynge them oute wyth a myghtye hand and a ſtretched out arme and ſmyte it wyth plages as afore. And wil deſtroye all the lande of it. Egypt ſhall mourne, and the fundacions of it ſhal be ſmitten wyth the plage and puniſhemente, that GOD ſhall brynge vpon it.

They yͭ tyl the grounde ſhal mourne, for theyr ſeedes ſhalbe deſtroyed, thorowe yͤ blaſtīg, hayle, & horyble ſtarre falling. Wo worth yͤ world & thē yͭ dwell therin, for yͤ ſwerd & theyr deſtruccion draweh ny, and one people ſhal ſtād vp to fyght agaynſt an other, & ſweardes in theyr handes. For mē ſhalbe vnſteadefaſte and ſome ſhall do violence vnto other: they ſhall not regard theyr kynge & princes, the wayes of theyr doinges & handlynges ſhalbe in theyr power. A man ſhal deſire to go in to the citie & ſhall not be able. For thorowe theyr pryd the cities ſhalbe brought in feare, the houſes ſhall ſhake, and men ſhalbe afrayde: A man ſhall haue no pitie vpõ hys neyghboure, but one ſhal prouoke an other vnto battayle to ſpoyle theyr goodes, becauſe of the honger of breade, and becauſe of the greate trouble.

B Beholde, I gather and call together all the kynges of the earth, whych are from the vp ryſynge, from the South, from the East, and Lybanus to turne vnto them, and reſtore yͤ thynges that they haue geuen them. Like as they do yet thys daye vnto my choſen, ſo wyl I do alſo, ⁊ recompenſe them in theyr boſome. Thus ſayeth yͤ LORD GOD: My ryghte hand ſhal not ſpare the ſinners, ⁊ my ſweard ſhall not ceaſe ouer them yͭ shed innocent bloud vpon earth. The fyer is gone out frõ hys wrathe, ⁊ hath conſumed the fundacions of the earth, ⁊ the ſinners like yͤ ſtrawe yͭ is kindled. Wo worth them yͭ ſynne ⁊ kepe not my commaundementes ſayth the LORD: I wyll not ſpare thẽ. Go your waye ye chyldren from violence, defyle not my Sanctuarie: for the LORDE knoweth all them yͭ ſynne agaynſt hym, and therfore delivereth he them vnto death ⁊ deſtruccion: For nowe are yͤ plages come vpon the world, and ye ſhal remayne in them. For GOD ſhal not deliuer you becauſe ye haue ſynned agaynſte hym.

E Behold, an horrible viſion commeth from the East, where generacions of Dragons ſhal come out, and the people of the Arabies wyth many charetes, ⁊ the multitude of them ſhalbe as yͤ wynde vpõ the earth, that al they whych do heare thẽ raginge in theyr wrath maye feare ⁊ trimble. And as the wylde Boores oute of the woode, ſo ſhall they goo oute, and wyth greate power ſhal they come fightynge wyth thẽ: ⁊ ſhal waſte the porcion of the Aſſyrians Lande. F

And then ſhall the Dragons haue yͤ vpper hande, and not remembre theyr byrth, and ſhall turne about ſwearing together in great power to perſecute them. But theſe ſhalbe afyayed, and kepe ſilence at theyr power, and ſhall flee: and oue out of the lande of the Aſſyrians ſhalbe ſege them ⁊ conſume one of them, ⁊ in theyr hooſte ſhalbe feare and drede, ⁊ ſtryfe amonge theyr kynges.

Beholde, cloudes from the Eaſte, and from the North, vnto the South, and they are verye horrible to loke vpõ, full of wrath and ſtorme. They ſhall ſmyte one vpon another: and they ſhall ſmyte the great ſtarre to the earthe and theyr one ſtarre alſo: and the bloud (for the greate ſlaughter) ſhalbe as depe as frõ the belye doune, and the fylth of man like vnto the Cameles lytter: And there ſhalbe great fearfulnes and trembling vpon erth, and they that ſee the wrath, ſhall be afrayde, and a trymblyng ſhall come vpon them.

And then there ſhal come great raynes from the South, ⁊ frõ the North, and parte from the Weſte: ⁊ the wynde from the East ſhal be of great poure ⁊ ſhall ſhut them vp agayne and yͤ cloud whych was rayſed vp in wrath, and yͤ ſtarre to feare the Eaſte ⁊ Weſt wynd, ſhalbe deſtroyed: and yͤ greate cloudes ſhalbe lyfte vp, ⁊ the myghtye cloudes ful of wrath and the ſtarre: yͭ they maye make all the earth afrayed, and them yͭ dwel therin, ⁊ that they may poure out ouer all places an horible ſtarre fawlinge fyer and hayle flyinge, ſweardes, and many waters: that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers: ⁊ they ſhal breake downe the cities and walles, mountaynes ⁊ hylles, all trees, woode, and the graſſe of the medowes and all theyr frute. And they ſhal go ſtedfaſte vnto Babylõ, ⁊ make her afrayde: they ſhal come to her ⁊ beſege her, the ſtarre ⁊ al wrath ſhal they poure out vpõ her.

G Then ſhall the duſte ⁊ ſmooke go vp vnto the Heauen, and all they that be aboute her: ſhallbe wayle her: and they yͭ remaine vnder her ſhall do ſeruice vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Aſia, that comforteſte thy ſelfe alſo vpon yͤ hope of Babylon, and arte a worſhyppe of her perſone: Wo be vnto yͤ thou wretch, becauſe thou haſte made thy ſelfe lyke vnto her, ⁊ haſte dect thy daughters in whordome, that they myght triumph and pleaſe thy louers, which haue alway deſired to commit whordome wyth the: thou haſte folowed the abominable citie in al her workes and inuencions.

Therfore ſayth GOD: I wil ſend plages vpon the wedowhod: pouerte, hunger, warres and peſtilence, to waſt thy houſes wͭ deſtruccion ⁊ death, ⁊ yͤ glo- glorie of thy power ſhalbe dryed vp as a floure, when the heate riſethe that is ſente ouer the: Thou ſhalte be ſycke as a poore wyfe that is plaged ⁊ beaten of wemen, ſo that the myghtye and louer ſhall not be able to receaue the. Wolde I hate the ſayth the LORDE: yf thou haddeſt not alwaye ſlayne my choſen, exaltynge the ſtroke of thy handes, and ſayd ouer theyr death when thou waſt droncken: ſet forth the bewetye of thy countinaunce?

The rewarde of thy whordome ſhalbe recompenſed the in thy beſome. H

Lyke as thou haſt done vnto my choſen, ſayeth the LORD, euē ſo ſhall GOD do vnto the, and ſhal delyuer the into a plage, Thy chyldren ſhall dye of hunger, and thou ſhalt fal thorowe yͤ ſwearde. Thy cities ſhalbe broken downe ⁊ all thyn wiche ſhall be in the feld ſhall periſhe wᵗ the ſwearde alſo. They yͭ be in the mountaynes ſhal dye of hunger, ⁊ eat theyr owne fleſh, ⁊ dryncke theyr owne bloude for very hūger of breade ⁊ thruſt of water. Thou vnhappy ſhalt come thorowe yͤ ſee, and receaue plages agayne.

In the paſſage they ſhal caſte downe yͤ ſlayne citie, ⁊ ſhal roote out one part of thy lāde, ⁊ conſume yͤ porcion of thy glorie. Thow ſhal be vnto thē like ſtubble, ⁊ they ſhal be vnto yͤ like fyre, ⁊ ſhal conſume the: thy cities ⁊ thy lande, thy woode ⁊ thy fruytful trees ſhall they burne wᵗ the fyre. Thy chyldrē ſhal they carye awaye captiue, and looke what thou haſte, they ſhall ſpoyle it and marre the bewtye of thy face.

The. xvj. Chapter.

¶ The Heathen ſhalbe puniſhed.

A WO be vnto the Babylon ⁊ Aſia, wo be vnto yͤ Egypte ⁊, Syria girde youre ſelues wᵗ clothes of ſake and heare, ⁊ mourne youre chyldren, beſory for youre deſtrucciō is at hande. A ſwearde is ſet vpon you, ⁊ who wyll turne it backe? A fyre is kindled amonge you, ⁊ who wyl quench it? Plages are ſente vnto you, ⁊ what is he yͭ wyl dryue thē awaye? May any man dryue away an hōgry Lyon in yͤ woode? Or maye anye man quench the fyre in ſtubble when it hath begūne to burne? Maye one turne agayne yͤ arowe, yͭ is ſhot of a ſtrōge archer: The myghtye LORD ſendeth, the plages, ⁊ what is he yͭ wil dryue thē awaye? The fyre is kyndled ⁊ gone forth in hys wrathe, ⁊ what is he yͭ wil quenche it? He ſhal caſt lyghteniges, ⁊ who ſhall quenche it? He ſhal thōder, ⁊ who ſhall not be afrayde? The LORD ſhall threaten, ⁊ who ſhal not vtterly be beatē to pouder at hys preſence. The earth quaketh, ⁊ the fundacions therof: yͤ ſee aryſeth vp wᵗ waues from yͤ depe, ⁊ the floudes of it are vnquiet and yͤ fyſhes therof alſo before the LORDE ⁊ before the glory of hys power. For ſtronge is hys ryghte hande yͭ holdeth the bowe, hys arowes that he ſhoteth are ſharpe and ſhall not myſſe, whē they begynne to be ſhote into the endes of yͤ worlde.

B Beholde, the plages are ſent ⁊ ſhall not turne agayne, tyll they come vpon earth. The fyer is kyndled and ſhal not be put out, tyll it conſume the fundaciōs of yͤ earth. Like as an arowe whyche is ſhote of a myghtye archar, returneth not backeward: euē ſo the plages that ſhalbe ſente vpon earth, ſhall not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who ſhall delyuer me in thoſe dayes? There ſhall come vpon vs ſorowes and great morninge, hunger, dathe, and warres alſo and the powers ſhal ſtande in feare: And there ſhal come euels, ⁊ they ſhal tremble euery one. What ſhal I do in theſe thynges, when yͤ plages come? Beholde, hnnger, ſhaughter trouble, ⁊ anguyſhe are ſent, as ſcourges for a mēdemēt. But for all theſe thiges they ſhal not turne from theyr wyckednes, nor be alway mindfull of the ſcourges. C

Behold vytayles ſhalbe ſo good cheape vpon earth, yͭ they ſhal thincke themſelues to be in good caſe, and euen then ſhal miſchefe growe vpon earth: warres, dearth, ⁊ greate dyſquietnes. For many of them that dwell vpon earthe ſhall periſhe of hunger, and the other that eſcape the hunger, ſhall the ſwearde deſtroye: and yͤ deade ſhalbe caſt out as donge: and there ſhalbe no man to conforte them. For the earth ſhalbe waſted, and the cities ſhalbe caſt downe: there ſhalbe no man lefte to tyl yͤ earth ⁊ to ſowe it. The trees ſhall geue frute, ⁊ who ſhal plucke them of ⁊ gather thē? The grapes ſhalbe rype, and who ſhal treade them? For all places ſhalbe deſolate of men, ſo yͭ one man ſhal deſire to ſe another, or to heare hys voice. For of one whole citie there ſhalbe thre lefte, ⁊ two in the felde, whych ſhall hyde thē ſelues in the thycke buſhes, ⁊ in ẏ clyffes of ſtones, lyke as when there remayne thre or foure olyues vpon the olyue tree, or as when a vineyarde is gathered, there are lefte ſome grapes of them that diligently ſoughte thorowe the vinearde.

Euen ſo ſo in thoſe dayes there ſhalbe thre or foure lefte for them that ſearche theyr houſes wyth the ſwearde. And the earth ſhalbe lefte waſte, ⁊ the feldes there of ſhall waxe olde: and her wayes ⁊ all her pathes ſhall growe ful of thornes, becauſe no man ſhall trauaile there thorowe.

The daughters ſhall mourne, hauynge no bryd gromes: the wemen ſhal make lamentacion, hauynge no huſbandes, theyr daughters ſhall mourne hauinge no helpe of theyr bridegrome Jn ẏ warres ſhal they be deſtroied, ⁊ their huſbandes ſhall periſhe of hunger. O ye ſeruauntes of ẏ LORDE heare theſe thynges, and marcke them. Beholde, ẏ worde of the LORDE. O receaue it: behold the plages drawe nye, and are not ſlacke in taryinge. Lyke as a trauelynge woman whych after ẏ nyne moneth bringeth forth a ſonne, whē ẏ houre of ẏ byrth is come, an houre, two, or thre, a fore ẏ paynes come vppon her bodye, ⁊ when the childe commeth to the byrth, they tary not ẏ twyncklynge of an eye. Euen ſo ſhall not the plages beſlacke E to come vpon earth, ⁊ the worlde ſhall mourne, aud ſorowes ſhal come vpon it on euery ſyde.

O my people, heare my worde, make you ready to ẏ batayle: and in all euel be euen as pylgremes vpou earth * He ẏ ſelleth, let him be as he ẏ flyeth hys waye: and he ẏ byeth as one ẏ wil leaſe: Cor. 7. d.

Who ſo occupyeth marchaundiſe, as he ẏ wynneth not: ⁊ he ẏ buildeth, as he ẏ ſhal not dwel theri, he ẏ ſoweth, as one ẏ ſhall not reape: he ẏ twyſteth ẏ vinearde. as he ẏ ſhall not gather the grapes, they ẏ mary, as they ẏ ſhall get no childrē, ⁊ they ẏ mary not as ẏ wyddowes, ⁊ therfore * they that laboure, laboure in vayne. For ſtraūgers ſhall reapte theyr frutes, ⁊ ſpoile their goodes ouertrowe theyr houſes, take their children captiuie, for in captiuite ⁊ hunger ſhal they get chyldren. And they ẏ occupy their marchaūdiſe wᵗ robbery, howe long decke they theyr cities, theyr houſes, theyr poſſeſſiōs, ⁊ perſons: ẏ more wyl J puniſch thē for their ſynnes, ſayeth ẏ LORDE. Lyke as an whore enuyeth an honeſte womā, ſo ſhal ryghteouſnes hate iniquitie, whē ſhe decketh her ſelfe, ⁊ ſhall accuſe her to her face: when he cōmeth that defendeth, which ſhall make inquiſicion for all ſynne vpon earth. And therfore be ye not lyke ther vnto, nor to the worckes therof: for or euer it belonge, iniquitie ſhalbe taken a waye out of the earth: ⁊ righteouſnes ſhal raigne among you.

F Let not the ſynner ſaye, that he hath not ſinned: for coles of fyer ſhall burne vpon his heade whyche ſayeth before ẏ LORD GOD and hys glory: J haue not ſynned. Beholde, the LORDE knoweth all ẏ worckes of men, theyr imaginacions, theyr thoughtes, ⁊ theyr hertes. * For he ſpake but ẏ worde: let ẏ earht be made, ⁊ it was made: let the heauen be made: ⁊ it was made. Jn hys worde were ſtarres made ⁊ he knoweth the nombre of them. He ſearcheth the grouñde of the deepe, and the treaſures ther of he hath meaſured the ſee, ⁊ what it containeth. He hath ſhut the ſee, in the myddeſte of the waters, aud wyth hys worde hathe he hanged ẏ earth vpō ẏ waters. He ſpredeth out ẏ heauen lyke a vawte, vpon ẏ waters hath he found it. Jn ẏ deſerte ⁊ drye wylderneſſe hath he made ſprynges of water, and poles vpon ẏ toppe of ẏ mountaynes, that ẏ floudes moght poure downe from the ſtoni rockes to water ẏ earth He made man, ⁊ put hys herte in the mydeſt of the bodye, and gaue hym breth, lyfe, ⁊ vnderſtandynge, yee, and ẏ ſpirite, of ẏ Almyghtie GOD, whych made all thinges, and hath ſearched the grounde of all the ſecretes of the earth. And whē youre ſynnes are broughte forthe, ye ſhalbe a ſhamed before mē, ⁊ youre owne ſynnes ſhalbe youre accuſers in ẏ daye. What wyll ye do (Or howe wyll ye hyde youre ſynnes before GOD, ⁊ his Angelles) Beholde, GOD hym ſelfe is the

For in all places, and in the nexte cities ſhalbe agreate inſurreccion, vpon thoſe that feare the LORDE. They ſhal be lyke madmen, they ſhal ſpare no mã thei ſhal ſpoile ⁊ waſt ſuch as feare the LORDE, their goodes ſhal they talie frõ them, ⁊ ſhut them out of their houſes. Heare, O ye my beloued, ſaith yͤ LORDE: behold the dayes of trouble are at hande, but I wyll delyuer you frõ the ſame. Be not ye afrayed, diſpayre not, for GOD is oure captayne.

Who ſo kepeth my commaundementes and preceptes (ſayeth the LORDE GOD) let not youre ſynnes waye you downe, and let not youre vnryghteouſneſſe be lyfte vp. Wo be vnto them that are ſubdued vnto theyr ſynnes who ar ouer wheluid wᵗ wickedneſſe: lyke as a felde is couerid with wood and buſhes, ⁊ the path therof wyth thorues, yͭ no man maye trauayle thorowe: ⁊ ſo is he taken, ⁊ caſt in the fyer ⁊ brente.

The vi. Chapter.

¶ Yonge Tobias is delyuered from the fyſh by the Angell/ The Angell exhorteth Tobias to take Sara to hys wyfe.

A SO Tobias wente on hys waye and a dogge folowed hym, and the fyrſte nighte they abode by the water of Tigris. Then wente he oute to waſhe his feete, and behold there came forth an horible fyſh to deuoure hym. Of whõ Tobias was afrayde: and cryed wyth a lowde voyce, ſayinge: LORDE he commeth vpon me. And the Angell ſayde vnto hym: Take hym by the gyll, and drawe hym to the. And he dyd ſo, and drewe him vpon the lande. And the fyſhe beganne to leape at hys feete.

B Then ſayde the Angell vnto hym: take oute the bowels of thys fyſhe, ⁊ as for the herte, ẏ gaul and the lyuer, kepe them by the. For theſe thynges are neceſſary and good for medicine. Tobias dyd ſo, and roſted the fyſhe, and they take hym wyth them in theyr iourney: ẏ reſydue they ſalted, as much as was ſufficiente for them, tyll they came to Raga a citie of the Meedes. Then Tobias aſked the Angel, and ſayde vnto hym: I pray the brother Azaria tell me whereto are theſe thynges good of the fyſhe, ẏ thou haſte bydden me kepe.

The Angell aunſwered hym, ⁊ ſayde: yf thou layeſt a pece of the herte vpon the coales, the ſmoke therof dryueth awaye all maner of euell ſpirites, whether it be from man or from woman, ſo that from thence forth the ſame ſhal come nomore vnto thẽ. The gaul is good to annoint or to ſtryke the eyes withal where as there is any blemyſh in thẽ, ſo that they ſhalbe hole. C

And Tobias ſayde vnto hym, where wylt thou that we remayne? The Angel aunſwered and ſayde: Here is a nie kynſmã of thyne, one Raguel by name, which hath a daughter called Sara, ⁊ hath nether ſonne nor daughter but her. All hys good belongeth vnto the if thou muſte mary her, and therfore deſire her of her father, and he ſhal geue her the to wyfe. Then anſwered Tobias and ſayde: As I vnderſtane, ſhe hath ben maryed vnto. vij. huſbandes, and they alare dead: and I haue herde ſay that the deuel ſlewe them. I am afrayd therfore, leſt ſuche thynges happen vnto me alſo: which yf it came to paſſe (ſeing I am the only ſõne of my father and my mother) I ſhulde brynge them i theyr age wͭ ſorowes to their graues.

Then ſayde the Angell Raphel vnto D hym: Heare me and I wyll tell ẏ what they be, of whom the deuyl hath power Namely, they that receaue maryage of ſuche a facion, that they ſhute GOD out from them, and from theyr hert ãd geue them ſelues to theyr owne luſt, euen as it were an horſe ⁊ mule, which haue no vnderſtandynge: vpon ſuche hath the deuyll power. But when thou takeſt her, and arte come into the chamber, wytholde thy ſelfe from her thre dayes, and geue thy diligence vnto nothynge but vnto prayer wyth her.

And in the fyrste nyghte, rost the lyuer of yͤ fyshe, & yͤ deuyll shalbe dryuen a waye. The seconde nyght shalte thou be receauid into the cõpany of the holy patriarkes. The thyrd nyght shalte thou optaine yͤ blessing of GOD, so that whole chyldren shalbe borne of you. After the thyrde nyghte take the mayden in the feare of GOD: and more for yͤ desyre of children, then for any fleshly luste: that in the seed of Abraham thou mayest optayne yͤ blessynge in chyldren

The vij. Chapter.

¶ Yonge Tobias and the Angel come to the house of Raguel. He requireth Raguels daughter to wyfe/and obtayneth her.

1 Then went they into Raguel, which receaued them ioyfully And when Raguel loked vpõ Tobias he said vnto Anna his wyfe. Howe like is this yonge man vnto my systers sõne? And whẽ he had spoken this he sayd whẽce be ye good brethrẽ? They sayde Of yͤ tribe of Nephtalim oute of yͤ captiuitie of Nineue. Thẽ sayd Raguel vnto them: knowe ye my brother Tobias? Thy said: yee, we knowe him wel. And whẽ they had spoken much good of hym, yͤ Angel sayde vnto Raguel. Tobias of whome thou askest is thys yonge mans father.

Then Raguel bowed hym selfe downe and wepte, toke hym aboute yͤ neke & kysed him, & sayde: GODS blessyng haue thou my sonne, for thou arte the sonne of a good vertuous man. And Anna B his wyfe, & Sara his daughter wepte also. Nowe when they had talked together, Raguel bad kyll a wether, & to make a feast: And when he prayed them to syt downe to dyner, Tobias sayde: I wyl nether eate nor drike here this day except thou fyrst graũt me my peticion & promise me to geue me thy daughter Sara. Whẽ Raguel herde this he was astounid: for he knewe, what had happened vnto yͤ other. vij. men yͭ went in vnto her, & he began to feare, yͭ it shulde chaũce vnto hym also in lyke maner

And whyle he stode so in doubte, & gaue the yonge mã no answere, yͤ Angell sayde vnto hĩ Feare not to geue hĩ thy daughter, for vnto thys man yͭ feareth GOD belongeth thy daughter to wyfe, therfore might none other haue her.

Then sayde Raguel: I doubt not but GOD hathe accepted my prayers and C teares in hys syghte: & I truste he caused you to come vnto me for the same intente, yͭ thys daughter of myne myghte be maried in her owne kynred, accordynge to the lawe of Moses.

And nowe, doubte thou not, but I wyll geue her vnto the. Soo he tooke yͤ ryghte hande of his daughter and gaue her into the ryght hande of Tobias and sayde.

The GOD of Abrahã, yͤ GOD of Isahac, & the GOD of Jacob, be wyth you, ioyne you together, and fulfyl hys blessynge in you. And thei toke a letter and made a wrytynge of the maryage: And then made they merye, & praysed GOD.

And Raguel called Anna hys wyfe vnto hĩ, & bad her prepare another chãbre, and thether he broughte Sara his daughter, & she wepte. Thẽ sayde he vnto her: Be of good chere mi daughter, yͤ LORDE of Heauen geue the ioye, for yͤ heauynesse that thou haste suffred.

¶ The Angell byndeth the euyll: Tobias exhortethe hys wyfe to prayer/and they praye thre dayes before they lye together.

Nowe, after that they had supped, they broughte the yonge A man into her. Then thoughte Tobias vpõ yͤ wordes of yͤ Angell: & tooke oute of hys bagg, a pece of yͤ leuer of yͤ fyshe, & layd it vpõ the hote coles. So the Angell Raphael toke holde of the deuyll, & sente hym awaye and bounde hym in the wyldernesse of yͤ hyer Egypte. Then spake Tobias vnto yͤ virgin, & sayde: Up Sara, let vs make oure prayer vnto GOD to daye, tomorowe, & ouermorowe: for these nyghetes wyll we recõsile oure selues wᵗ GOD, & when the thyrde holye nyghte is paste, we shall ioyne together in the dutye of maryage. For we are the chyldren of holye mẽ, and we may not come together, B as the Heathen, that knowe not GOD.

Then stoode they vp bothe together, and besoughte GOD earnestlye, that he wolde preserue them. And Tobias sayde: O LORD GOD of oure fathers, praised be thou of heauen and earth of yͤ seeweles, & floudes, & of all thy creatures yͭ be therein. Thou madest Adam of the *moulde of the earth, & gauest hym Eua for an helper. And nowe LORD thou knoweſt that it is not becauſe of voluptuouſneſſe that I take this ſyſter of mine to wyfe but onelye for the loue of chyldren, in whome thy name be bleſſed for euer. And Sara ſayde haue mercye vpon vs (O LORDE) haue mercye vpon vs: and let vs bothe come hole ād ſounde together to a good aege.

And aboute the cocke crowyuge it happened, that Raguell called hys ſeruaundes, and they wente wyth him to make a graue. For he ſayde it is chaunſed nowe vnto hym paraduenture, as it did vnto the otther ſeuen men, that wēt in vnto her. Nowe when they had made the graue, Raguel came agayne to hys wyfe, and ſayd vnto her: ſende one of thy maidens, to loke yf he be deade, C that I maye burie hym afore yͤ lighte daye: So ſhe ſente a mayden to ſe: whych when ſhe came into the chambre, founde them hole and ſounde, ſlepinge together. And ſo ſhe came a gayne, and broughte good tidynges. Thē Raguel and Anna hys wyfe prayſed the LORDE, and ſayde: Praiſed be thou, O LORD GOD of Iſrael for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thoughte. For thou haſte dealte mercyfully with vs, and put awaye from vs the enemye yͭ perſecuted vs, and haſte ſhewed mercie vnto yonder two beloued. O LORDE cauſe them to magnifie the more perfectlye, ond offer the ſacrifice of thi praiſe, ⁊ of theyr health: that al people maie knowe that thou onelye arte GOD in all the earth.

And immedyatlye, Raguel commaunded his ſeruauntes to fyl the graue that they had made wyth earth afore D it was lyghte, and bad his wyfe prepare a feaſte, and to make ready all thynges that were neceſſarye for meate, to ſuch as went by the waye. He cauſed two fat knye alſo, and foure wethers to be ſlayne and meates tobe prepared for all his neighbours and frēdes. And Raguel charged Tobias to remaine wͭ him two wekes. As for al the good yͭ he had, he gaue Tobias the halfe of it, ⁊ made thys wryttynge, that the halfe whyche remained, ſhulde fall vnto Tobias after theyr deathe.

The .ix. Chapter.

¶ The Angell goeth to Gabelus at the deſire of Tobias / which delyuereth the letter / and receaueth the monye.

THen Tobias called vnto him the Angel whome he thoughte to haue bene a man, and ſaide vnto hym: Brother Azarias, A I praye the herkē vnto my wordes yf I ſhulde geue my ſelfe to be thy ſeruaunte, I ſhall not deſerue thy prouidence. Neuertheleſſe, I beſeche yͤ that thou wylte take the beaſtes and the ſeruauntes, ⁊ go vnto Gabelus in Rages the citie of Meedes, and delyuer hym hys hande wrytynge, and receaue the mony of hym, ⁊ praye hym to come to my maryage. For thou knoweſt thy ſelfe, yͭ my father doth nombre the dayes: ⁊ yf I tarye one daye to longe, he wyll be ſory in hys mynde Nowe ſeyſt thou howe earneſtly Raguel hath required me, ſo that I cannot ſaye hym naye. B

Then toke Raphael foure of Raguels ſeruaūtes, ⁊ two camels, ⁊ wēte vnto Rages yͤ citie of yͤ Meedes: ⁊ when he had foūde Gabelus, he gaue him his hādewrytinge, ⁊ receaued all yͤ monye. He tolde hym alſo of Tobias yͤ ſone of Tobie, howe all thinges had happened ⁊ cauſed hym to come wͭ him to yͤ maryage. Nowe whē he came in to yͤ houſe of Raguell, he found Tobias ſytting at yͤ table: ⁊ he leaped vp, ⁊ thei kyſſed one an other, ⁊ Gabelus wepte, ād prayſed GOD, ⁊ ſaide: yͤ bleſſynge of yͤ GOD of C Iſrael haue thou, for thou arte yͤ ſone of a ryghte vertuous ⁊ iuſte man, ⁊ of one yͭ feareth GOD, ⁊ geueth greate almes. And bleſſing haue thy wyfe ⁊ youre elders, yͭ ye maye ſe youre children ⁊ youre chylders chyldren, vnto yͤ thyrde ⁊ fourth generaciō, ⁊ youre ſeed be bleſſed of yͤ GOD of Iſrael, whyche raygneth worlde wͭ oute ēde. And whē they all had ſayde Amen: they wēte to yͤ feaſte, but wyth yͤ feare of the LORDE helde D they the feaſte of the maryage.

The .x. Chapter.

¶ Tobias and his wyfe are ſad for the taryinge of theyr ſonne. Raguel ſendeth agayne Tobias wyth his wyfe.

NOwe whyle yonge Tobias made longe tarying by reaſon A of the maryage, hys father was full of care and heauyneſſe, and thought what ſhulde be yͤ cauſe, that my ſonne taryeth ſo longe. Or wy ſhulde he be kepte ſo longe there: Paraduenture Gabelus is dead, ⁊ noman wyll geue hym yͤ monye. Thus begãne he to be very ſorowefull, he and Anna hys wyfe wyth hym, and began-ne to weepe bothe together, becauſe B theyr ſõne was not come agayne vnto them at yͤ daye appoynted. As for hys mother, ſhe wepte with diſcomfortable teares and ſayd. Wo is me my ſõne. Oh what ayled vs to ſende the awaye into a ſtraunge cõutrye, thou lyghte of oure eyes, thou ſtaffe of oure age, thou cõfort of oure lyfe, thou hope of oure generacion: Seinge all the thynges that we haue, are onlye in the, we ſhulde not ha ue ſente the awaye from vs.

Then Tobias comforted her ⁊ ſayde: holde thy tonge, and be not dyſcomforted, oure ſonne is hole and ſounde: the man yͤ we ſente hym wythall is fayth-full ynoughe. Neuertheleſſe, ſhe myght in no wyſe be cõforted but daylye wen-te oute, loked aboute, and went aboute al the ſtretes, whereby ſhe thoughte he ſhulde come againe: that (yf it were poſſible) ſhe myghte ſe hym commynge C afarre of. But Raguel ſayde vnto hys ſone in lawe: O tary heare, and I ſhall ſende a meſſenger vnto thy father Tobias to tell hym that thou arte in good health. Tobias ſayde vnto hym: I am ſure, yͤ my father, and my mother count euery day, ⁊ that theyr hertes are ſorie.

So when Raguell prayed Tobias wͭ manye wordes, ⁊ wold in no wyſe heare hym, he delyuered Sara vnto hym, ⁊ the halfe parte of al hys good, in ſeruauntes, in hande maydens, in ſhepe, in Camels, in kine, and muche mony, and ſo ſente hym away from hym wyth peace ⁊ ioye: ⁊ ſayde: The holye Angell D of yͤ LORDE be wyth you in youre iour neye, ⁊ brynge you forth ſafe ⁊ ſounde, yͤ ye maye finde all thynges in good caſe with youre elders, and that myne eyes maye ſee youre chyldrẽ afore I dye. So the elders embraced theyr daughter, kyſſed her, and let her go, exhortynge her to honoure her father ⁊ mother in lawe, to loue her huſbande, to rule wel her houſhold, to kepe her houſe in good order, and to ſhewe her ſelfe fawtleſſe.

The xj. Chapter.

¶Yonge Tobias leuynge hys wyfe and houſholde in the mydwaye, commeth before with the Angel.
The dreame of his mother lokyng after her ſoñe. He is ioyfully receaued of hys father and mother Sara commeth ſeuen dayes after.

AS they were nowe goynge home warde agayne, vpõ the xj. A daye, they came to Charra, whych lyeth in yͤ halfe waye towarde Niniue. And the An gell ſayde: Brother Tobias, thou knoweſt howe thou haſt left thy father, ther fore yf it pleaſe the, we two wyl go before, ⁊ let the houſholde wyth thy wyfe and yͤ catell come ſofte ⁊ fayer after vs.
And when Tobias was contente that they ſhulde go before, Raphael ſaide vn to him: Take of the gaule of the fyſhe wyth the, for it ſhalbe neceſſarye. So B Tobias toke of yͤ gaule, and they went theyr way. But Anna yͤ mother of Tobias ſate daply by the waye ſyde vpõ yͤ toppe of an hyl, from whence ſhe might ſe farre about her. And whyle ſhe was waytinge there, for hys commynge, ſhe loked a farre of and anone ſhe percea-ued her ſonne commynge, and ranne ⁊ told her huſband ſayinge: Beholde thy ſonne cõmeth. And Raphael ſayd vnto Tobias: As ſoone as thou commeſte in to the houſe, immediatly worſhyppe yͤ LORDE thy GOD, ⁊ geue thanckes vnto hym: then go to thy father, and kiſſe hym, and ſtrycke hys eyes ouer wyth yͤ gaul of yͤ fyſhe, that thou haſt brought wyth the. For be ſure, that hys eyes ſhal ſtreyghte waye be opened, ⁊ thy father ſhall ſe the lyghte of heauen, and ſhall reioyce at the ſyghte of the. Then yͤ dog that had bene with thẽ in theyr iourny, ranne before, and came as a meſſenger, and wagged hys tayle for gladneſſe.

So the blynde father aroſe, ⁊ began- C ne to runne ⁊ ſtombled wyth hys feete, and gaue a ſeruaunte his hande, ranne to mete hys ſonne, receaued hym, and kyſſed hym, he and hys wyfe and they beganne to wepe for Joye.

Nowe when they had whorſhypped ⁊ thãcked GOD, they ſate downe. Thẽ toke Tobias of the fyſhes gaul, and an nointed hys fathers eyes: ⁊ taryed hal-fe an houre, and then began yͤ blemyſh to go out of his eies, lyke as it had bene the whyte ſkyn of an egge: whyche To bias toke, and drewe from his eyes: ãd immediatly he receaued his ſyght.

Then they prayſed GOD, he and hys D wyfe and all they that knewe hym. And Tobias ſayd: O LORD GOD of Iſrael, I geue the prayſe ⁊ thanckes, for thou haſt chaſtened me, and made me hole.

And loo nowe I do ſe my ſonne Tobias. After ſeuen dayes, came Sara hys ſonnes wyfe alſo hole and ſounde with al the houſeholde & catel, wyth Camels & muche monye of hys wyues, & wyth the money that he had receaued of Gabelus, & he tolde hys father & hys mother al the benefites, whych GOD had done for hym, by the man that led hym. Achyor alſo & Nabath, Tobias ſyſter ſonnes came, & were glad, and reioyſed wyth hym, by reaſon of all yͤ good that GOD had ſhewed vnto hym. And ſo for the ſpace of ſeuen dayes they made merye, & were ryghte ioyfull euerychon.

The xij. Chapter.

Yonge Tobias rekened vp vnto hys father the pleaſures that the Angell dyd him. He offered vnto the Angel halfe the goodes that he brought wyth him.

A THen Tobias called hys ſonne vnto hym & ſayde: What maye we geue thys holye man, that went wyth the? Tobias aunſwered hys father & ſayde: Father, what rewarde ſhall we geue hym? Or what thynge cā deſerue hys benefites? He hath bene my guyde, and broughte me ſafe agayne: he receaued the mony from Gabelus, he cauſed me to get my wyfe, he droue the euel ſpirite from her, he hath bene an occacion of gladneſſe to her father and mother: he delyuered me, that I was not deuoured of yͤ fiſh, he hath made the to ſe the lyght of heauē, yea, we al haue receaued great good of hym. Howe ſhulde we worthely deſerue theſe thynges vnto hym? But I praye the my father, that thou wylte deſire hym, yf haplye he wyll vouchſafe, to take wyth hym the halfe of all that we haue brought.

So the father and the ſonne called hym, toke hym aſyde, and beganne to praye hym, that he wolde be contente to take in good worth the halfe parte of al that they had broughte.

Then ſayde he ſecretly vnto them. B Prayſe ye the GOD of heauē, and geue thanckes vnto hym before all men lyuynge, for he hath ſhewed hys mercye vnto vs. It is good to hyde yͤ kynges ſecrete, but to ſhewe & prayſe yͤ worckes of GOD it is an honourable thing. Prayer is good with faſtynge, & mercie is better thē to horde vp treaſures of golde. For mercye delivereth from death, clēſeth ſynne, & cauſeth to fynde euerlaſtyng lyfe. But they that do ſinne, are the enemies of theyr owne ſoule.

Wherfore I tell you the truthe, and wyll hyde nothynge from you. C When thou prayedeſt wyth teares, and buryedeſt the dead, and lefteſt thy dyner, and hyddeſt the dead in thy houſe vpon the daye tyme, that thou mighteſt bury thē in the nyght: I offred thy prayer before the LORDE. And becauſe thou waſt accepted and beloued of GOD, it was neceſſarye, that temptaciō ſhuld trye the. And nowe hath the LORD ſente me to heale the and to delyuer Sara thy ſonnes wyfe from the euell ſpirite. For I am Raphael an Angel, one of the ſeuen that ſtande before GOD.

When they hearde thys, they were ſore afrayed, and trembled, and fel downe vpon theyr faces vnto the grounde. Then ſayde the Angell Peace be wyth you, feare not. Where as I haue bene wyth you, it is the wyll of GOD: geue prayſe and thanckes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd *eate and D dryncke wyth you, but I vſe meate yͭ is inuiſible, and dryncke that cannot be ſene of men. Nowe therfore is the tyme that I muſte turne agayne vnto hym, that ſent me: but be ye thanckeful vnto GOD, and tell oute al hys worderous worckes.

*Gen. 18. Iudi. 13.

And when he had ſpoken thoſe wordes, he was taken awaye oute of theyr ſyghte, ſo that they ſawe him nomoare. Then fell they downe flat vpon theyr faces, by the ſpace of thre houres, and prayſed GOD. when they aroſe vp they tolde all hys wonderous worckes.

The xiij. Chapter.

A THen olde Tobias opened his mouth and prayſed the LORDE and ſayde: Greate arte thou O LORD for euermoare, and thy kyngedome worlde wythout ende: for thou ſcourgeſt and healeſt, thou leadeſt vnto hel and bringeſt oute agayne: and there is none that may eſcape thyne hande. O geue thanckes vnto the LORD, ye chyldren of Iſrael, and prayſe hym in the ſyghte of yͤ Heathen. For amōg the Heathē whych knowe hym not hath he ſcatered you, to yͤ intente yͭ ye ſhuld ſhewe furthe his meruelous worckes, and cauſe them for to knowe, that there is none other GOD Almyghtye but he. He that chaſteneth vs for oure myſdedes, and for hys owne mercye ſake ſhall he ſaue vs.

Conſider then, howe he hath dealte wyth you, and prayſe hym wyth feare and drede, and magnifie yͤ euerlaſtyng kynge in your workes. I wyl prayſe hym euen in the lande of my captiuitie, for he hath ſhewed hys maieſty vnto a ſynfull people. Turne you therefore O ye ſynners, and do righteouſneſſe before GOD, and be ſuer, that he wyll ſhewe hys mercy vpon you. As for me, and my ſoule, we wil reioyce in GOD. O praiſe the LORDE all ye hys choſen, holde the dayes of gladneſſe, ⁊ be thanckeful vnto hym, O Jeruſalē thou citie of GOD, the LORDE hathe puniſhed the for the worckes of thine owne hādes. O prayſe yͤ LORD in thy good thynges, ⁊ geue thankes to the euerlaſtynge GOD, yͤ he maye buylde vp hys tabernacle agayne in the, yͤ he maye cal againe vnto the, al ſuch as be in captiuitie, and yͤ thou mayeſt haue ioye for euermore. With a fayer lyght ſhalt thou ſhyne, ⁊ all yͤ endes of the world ſhal honour yͤ. The people ſhal come vnto yͤ from farre, they ſhall bringe gyftes, and worſhyppe yͤ LORDE in the, and thy lande ſhall they haue for a Sanctuarie, for they ſhall call vpon the greate name in the.

Curſed ſhall they be that diſpiſe the, and all that blaſpheme the, ſhalbe condempned: but bleſſed ſhall they be that buylde the vp. As for the, thou ſhalte reioyce in thy chyldren, for they al ſhalbe bleſſed, and gathered together vnto the LORDE. Bleſſed are they all that loue the ⁊ that be glad of thy peace. Prayſe thou the LORDE, O my ſoule, for the LORDE oure GOD hath delyuered hys citie Jeruſalem from all her troubles. I wyll counte my ſelue happye, yf my ſeed remayne to ſhe the clearneſſe of Jeruſalem. The gates of Jeruſalem ſhal be buylded wyth Saphyre, and Smaragde, and all the cōpaſſe of her walles wyth precious ſtones. All her ſtretes ſhalbe paued with whyte marble ſtone, and in all the ſtretes ſhall Alleluia be ſonge. Prayſed be the LORDE, whych hath exalted her, yͤ hys kingdome maye be vpon her for euermore. Amē. And ſo Tobias made an ende of hys talkynge.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶ Tobias prophecieth the deſtruction of Niniue. His ſonne returneth to Raguel after the deceſſe of his father and mother.

A AND after that Tobias had gotten his ſight agayne, he liued. xlij. yeares, and ſawe hys chylders children. Nowe when he was, C. and ij. yeare olde, he dyed: and was buried honourablye in Niniue. For when he was lvj. yeares of aege he loſt the ſyght of hys eyes, and when he was lj. yere olde, he gat his ſyght agayne. The reſidue of his lyfe led he in ioye, and increaſed wel in the feare of GOD, and departed in peace. But in the houre of hys death he called vnto hym hys B ſonne Tobias, and vij. yonge ſpryngaldes hys ſōnes chyldren, and ſayde vnto them: The deſtruction of Niniue is at hande, for the worde of yͤ LORD cannot fayle: ⁊ our brethern that are ſcatered out of the land of Iſrael, ſhal come thether agayne. And the hole lande of it yͤ hath ben waſt, ſhalbe fylled: ⁊ the houſe of GOD that was brent in it ſhalbe builded agayne: ⁊ al ſuch as feare GOD ſhal returne thether: the Heathen alſo ſhal forſake theyr Idolles, and come to Jeruſalem, ⁊ dwel there, and all yͤ kynges of the earthe ſhalbe glad of her and worſhyppe the LORD GOD of Iſrael.

C And therfore my chyldren, heare youre father: ſerue the LORDE in yͤ truth, ſeke after hys wyll, and do the thynge that pleaſeth hym. Commaunde youre childrē that they do ryght: geue almes: be myndefull of GOD, be thanckefull vnto hym in truth, and wyth all theyr power: Heare me nowe therefore my chyldren, and byde not heare: but in what daye ſoeuer ye haue buryed your mother beſyd me, get you from hence. For I ſe that the wyckedneſſe of it ſhal brynge it to deſtruction and ende.

D After the death of hys mother, Tobias departed awaye frō Niniue, with hys wyfe ⁊ chyldren, ⁊ wyth hys chyldres chyldren, and came agayne to hys father and mother in lawe, and founde them hole and in good age, and toke the care of them. And he cloſed theyr eyes, and was heire vnto Ragueles goodes, and ſawe the fyfte generacion, and hys chyldres chyldren. And when he was. cxxvij. yeare of age, he died in yͤ feare of the LORDE, & hys kyinſfolkes buryed hym. And all hys poſterite cōtinued in a good lyfe, & holy conuerſacion ſo that they were loued and accepted both of GOD & man: & of al yͤ people of yͤ lande.

¶ The ende of the booke of Tobias.

The booke of Judith.

The fyrſte Chapter.

A ¶ The buyldynge of Ecbatanis. The victorie of Nabuchodonozor agaynſt Arpharad. The meſſengers of Nabuchodonozor are diſpiſed.

Arpharad the kyng of yͤ Medes ſubdued many people vnto hys dominion, & buylded a noble ſtronge citie, whiche he called Ecbatanis: The walles of it made he of fre ſtone, foure ſquared, ſeuētye cubites hyghe, & thyrtye cubites brode. He made towers there vpon an hundred cubites hye. But vpon the foure corners euerye ſyde was twentye foote broad. He made the portes in the heygth, lyke as the towers. Thys kynge truſted in hys myghtie hooſt, and in his glorious charettes.

B So in yͤ twelueth yeare of hys raygne it happened that Nabuchodonozor the Kynge of the Aſſyrians (whyche raygned in the great citie of Niniue) foughte agaynſte Arpharad, and ouercame hym in the great felde called Ragau, beſyde Euphrates and Tibris, ād Hydaſpis in the felde of Arioth yͤ kynge of the Elymeis.

Then was the kyngedome of Nabuchodonozor exalted, and hys hert was lifte vp: and he ſente vnto al them that dwelte in Cilicia, in Damaſcus, in C Libanus, and vnto the heathen yͭ dwelte in Carmel and Cedar, and to ſuche as dwelte in Galile in the greate felde of Eſdrelom, to all thē toat dwelte in Samarya, and beyond the water of Jordane vnto Jeruſalē and yͤ hole lande of Geſem, vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia. Unto al theſe dyd Nabuchodonozor the kynge of the Aſſyriās ſende meſſengers But they al wyth one conſent wolde not agre vnto him, and ſente the meſſaūgers agayne emptie & put them awaye wythout honoure. Then Nabuchodonozor the kynge, toke indignaciō at all thoſe landes, and ſware by hys throne, and by hys kyngedome, that he wolde be auenged of al thoſe coūtryes. And when he had ſlayne Arpharad in the mountaynes of Ragau he retornid to Niniuen. And there feaſtid his souldiers cxx. dayes.

The ij. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes is ſente of Nabuchodonozor to ſubdue all the worlde, The preparaciō and perſute of Holofernes.

A In the thyrtenth yeare of kynge Nabuchodonozor, vpon the twelue day of yͤ fyrſte moneth, it was deuyſed in the court of Nabuchodonozor the kyng of the Aſſyrians, that he wolde defende him ſelfe. So he called vnto hym all the elders, all hys captaynes, and men of warre and ſhewed them hys ſecrete counſayle, & tolde them that hys purpoſe was, to brynge the hole earth vnder hys dominion. Nowe when they were al contente wyth thys ſayinge. Nabuchodonozor the kynge called Holofernes, the chefe captayne of hys warres, and ſayd vnto hym: Go thy waye forth agaynſt all the kyngedomes of the Weſte, and ſpecially agaynſte thoſe that haue diſpiſed my cōmaundemente. Thou ſhalte ſpare no realme, all ſtronge cities ſhalte thou bringe in ſubiectiō vnto me

B Then Holofernes called together al the captaynes, and rulers of al the power in Aſſyria, and muſtred the souldyers vnto the hooſte (lyke as the kynge commaunded hym) namely an hūdred and twentye thouſande fightyng men vpon foote, and twelue thouſande archers vpon horſebacke. All hys ordinaunce ſente he a fore wyth an innumerable multitude of camels ſo that the hooſte was well prouided for, wyth oxen and ſmall cattell, and that wythout nomber. He cauſed corne to be prepared oute of all Syria for hys hooſte. Muche golde and ſyluer alſo toke he oute of the kynges houſe. So he toke hys iourney, he and all hys hooſt wyth charettes, horſemen, and archars, of whome there were ſo many, ẏ they couered the grounde of the land, lyke the greſhopers.

And when he was gone paſte the borders of ẏ Aſſyrians, he came towarde the great moũtaynes of Ange, whyche lye vpon the lefte ſyde of Cilicia: and ſo he wente vp into al their caſtels, and wanne euery ſtronge holde. As for the welthye citie of Melothus, he brake it downe, and ſpoyled all the chyldren of Charſis, ⁊ the Iſmalytes, whyche laye towarde the wyllderneſſe, and vpõ the South ſyde of the lande of Chelon. He wente ouer Euphrates alſo, and came into Meſopotamia, and brake downe all the highe cities that were there, frõ the broke of Mambre to the ſee: and he tooke the borders in from Cilicia, vnto the coaſtes of Iaphet towarde the South: He caryed a waye all the Madianites, and ſpoyled all theyr goodes, and whoſoeuer wythſtoode him he ſlewe thẽ wyth the ſwearde.

After thys he wẽt downe in to ẏ feld of Damaſcus in the tyme of harueſt, ⁊ brente vp all the corne and all ẏ trees, and cauſed the vines to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fell vpon all them that dwelt vpon the earth.

The .iij. Chapter.

¶ Kynges become wyllyngly ſubiecte to Holofernes. The tyrannie and crueltye of hym.

1 SO the kynges and princes of all cities ⁊ landes ſente theyr Ambaſadours: namelye they of Syria, ⁊ Meſopotamia, Syria Sobal, and Lybia, ⁊ Cecilia which came to Holofernes, and ſayde: Let thi wrath ceaſſe towarde vs It is better for vs to ſerue the greate kynge Nabuchodonoſor wyth oure lyues, and to be ſubiecte vnto ẏ, then that we ſhulde dye ⁊ be ſlaine: ⁊ receaue greate hurte. All oure cities and poſſeſſions, al moũtaynes and hylles, feldes, great and ſmal catell, ſhepe, goates horſes, ⁊ camels, al oure goodes, ⁊ houſeholdes, be in thy power, vnder thy ſubiectiõ beit altogether. We oure ſelues alſo, and oure children wylbe thyne owne, come vnto vs a peceable lorde, and vſe oure ſeruice at thy pleaſure.

Then came Holofernes, downe from the mountaynes wyth horſemen, ⁊ greate power, ⁊ conquered all ſtronge defenſed cities ⁊ all ẏ dwelte in the land B and out of al cities he tooke ſtrõge mẽ and ſoche as were mete for ẏ warre to helpe hym. There came ſuche a feare alſo vpon thoſe countries, that ẏ indwellers of al the cities, the prices ⁊ rulers and the people together wente forth to mete him as he came, ⁊ receaued hym honourably wᵗ garlandes and torches, wᵗ daunces, tabrettes and pypes.

C Neuertheleſſe, thought they did this, yet myght they not ſwage hys rigorous ſtomacke: but he deſtroyed theyr cities, ⁊ hewed downe their woodes. For Nabuchodonoſor ẏ kinge had cõmaunded hym ẏ he ſhulde roote out all ẏ goddes of the land: to ẏ intente ẏ he onelye might be called ⁊ taken for ẏ god of the nacions: which Holofernes wᵗ hys power broughte vnder him. So went he thorowe Syria Soball, ⁊ thorowe all Apamia, ⁊ al Meſopotamia, ⁊ came to ẏ Idumeans, in ẏ lande Geba, ⁊ Scythopolis, ⁊ toke theyr cities ⁊ remayned there thyrtye dayes wherin he cauſed all the hole multitude of hys hooſt to be gathered together.

The .iiij. Chapter.

¶ Iſrael requireth helpe of God/agaynſt Holofernes. They faſte and praye.

A WHen the chyldren of Iſrael ẏ dwelt in Iewry herd thys, they were ſore afrayde of hym. There came ſuche tremblynge alſo ⁊ feare vpon them leſte that he ſhulde do vnto the citie of Ieruſalem, and the temple of ẏ LORD, as he had done to other cities ãd theyr temples. So they ſent into all Samaria round aboute vnto Iericho, to take in and occupye all the toppes of ẏ mountaynes, and make faſte the townes with walles, and prepare corne, for thẽ agaynſte the battayle.

Ioachim alſo the preaſte, wrote vnto all them that dwelte towarde Eſdraelon (whych lyeth ouer agaynſte the great felde by Dothain) and vnto al thoſe by whome men myght haue paſſage vnto them, ẏ they ſhulde takein ẏ wayes of the mountaynes, wherby there myght be any waye and paſſage to Ieruſalem, and that they ſhulde holde diligent watche where anye ſtrayte was betwyxt ẏ moũtaynes. And ẏ chyldren of Iſrael dyd as Ioachĩ ẏ preaſte of ẏ

LORD had commaunded them. And al the people cryed earneſtly, & humbled theyr ſoules wᵗ faſtynges and prayers, they & theyr wyues. The preaſtes put on hery clothes, and laide the yonge babes before the temple of the LORDE, & couered the aulter of the LORD wyth an herye cloth. And wyth one accorde they cryed vnto the LORDE GOD of Iſrael, that theyr chyldren ſhulde not be B geuen into a praye, & their wyues into a ſpoyle, yͤ theyr cities ſhulde not be layed waſte, & yͤ theyr Sanctuarie ſhulde not be vnhalowed, & ſo they to be a ſhame and rebuke vnto the Heathen.

Then Ioachim the hye preaſt of the LORDE wente rounde aboute al Iſrael, & ſpake vnto them ſaying: Be ye ſure that yͤ LORDE wyl heare youre peticions, yf ye continue ſtedfaſte in faſtynges & prayers in yͤ ſyghte of the LORD Remembre Moſes the ſeruaunte of the LORD, whyche ouerthrewe Amelec (that truſted in myghte and power, in his hooſte, hyldes, charettes and horſemē) not wyth weapons, but wᵗ C holy prayers. Euen ſo ſhall all the enemies of Iſrael be, yf ye continue in thys worcke that ye haue begonne. So vpō thys exhortacion, they cōtinued in prayer before the LORD: In ſo much that they whych offered burnt ſacrifices dyd nou offer all maner of offerynges vnto the LORDE, beynge a rayed in herie clothes, and had aſhes vpō theyr heades. And they al beſoughte GOD from theyr hole herte, that he wolde viſet hys people of Iſrael.

¶ Holofernes is diſcontente wyth the Iewes. Achior ſhweth Holofernes the merueles of God done vnto the Iewes/for the which thynge the rulers vnder Holofernes were very āgrye wyth him:

A AND worde came to Holofernes (the price of the warre of the Aſſyrians) yͤ the chyldren of Iſrael prepared thē ſelues to make reſiſtaunce, ād howe they had ſtopped the wayes betwyxte the mountaines. Thē was he exceadynge wroth and called all the princes of Moab, & yͤ captaines of Ammon, and ſayde vnto them: Tell me, what people is thys, that kepeth in yͤ moūtaynes? Or what maner of cities are thei? What is theyr power? Or what maner of hooſte haue they? Who is theyr captaine? And why do they diſpiſe vs (more then all thoſe that dwell in the Eaſte) and come not forth to meete vs, that they myghte receaue vs with peace? Then Achior the captaine of al the Ammonites anſwered, and ſayde: Syr, yf yt pleaſe the to heare, I wyll tel the truth before, that conſerning thys people that dwel in yͤ mountaynes, and there ſhall no lye go out of my mouth.

Thys people is of the generacion of the Chaldees: they dwelt firſt in B Meſopotamia, for thei wolde not folowe yͤ godes of theyr fathers that were in yͤ lande of the Caldees, & ſo for ſoke they yͤ cuſtome of theyr fore fathers (wyche had many goddes) ād worſhypped one GOD, that made heauen & earth: which alſo commaunded them that they ſhulde goo from thence, and dwel at Harā. Nowe, when ther came adearth into yͤ hole land, they wente downe to Egypt and there they dwelte * foure hundred yeares, in yͤ which they multiplied greatly, that theyr hooſte myghte not be nombred. And when yͤ kynge of Egypte oppreſſed them, and ſubdued them in buyldynge of hys cities wyth making of claye & bryke, they cryed vnto GOD theyr LORDE, wyche puniſhed the hole lande of Egypte wyth dyuers plages.

Nowe when the kynge of Egypte let them go theyr waye, and the plage ceaſſed, and then folowed after them, to take them and to brynge them agayne into hys ſeruice, while they were flynge awaye, yͤ GOD of heauē opened the ſee ſo that the waters ſtode faſte vpon bothe ſydes as a wall, and theſe wēte thorowe the botome of the ſee drye ſhod. In the whyche place when an innumerable people of the Egyptiās folowed vpon them, they were ſo ouerwhelmed wyth the waters: that there remayned not one to tell them that came after, howe it happened. So when thys people was paſſed thorowe the red ſee, they came into the wyldernеſſe of moūt Sina, where neuer man myghte dwell afore. There were the bytter waters made ſwete for them, that they myghte drynke, and fortie yeares had they meat frō heauen. Wherſoeuer they went (wythout bowe ād arowe, wythoute buckler or ſwearde theyr GOD foughte for thē, & cauſed them to haue the victorie.

yea, noman was hable to hurte thys people, excepte it were, that they departed vnfaythfully from yͤ worſhyppyng of the LORDE theyr GOD. But as oft as they worſhypped any other beſyde theyr GOD, he gaue thē ouer to be ſpoyled, to be ſlayne, and to be put to confuſion. Neuertheleſſe, as oft as they were ſorye for theyr departynge from yͤ worſhyp of theyr GOD, the ſame GOD of heauen gaue them power and ſtrengthe to wythſtande theyr enemies.

Moreouer, they ſlue the kyng of the Cananites, Jebuſytes, Pherezytes, Hethytes, Euytes, and Amorytes, & al the myghtye in Heſebon & toke theyr lādes and cities in poſſeſſion: and ſo longe as they ſynned not in the ſyghte of theyr GOD, it wente wel wyth thē, for theyr GOD hateth vnryghteouſneſſe. For in times paſte when they wente oute of yͤ waye whych GOD had geuen thē, that they ſhulde walke in it, they were deſtroyed in diuers battayles of many nacions: and many of them were caryed awaye priſoners vnto a ſtraunge contrie. But nowe lately they haue turned them ſelues agayne vnto the LORDE theyr GOD, & are come together agayne out of the countries wher they were ſcatered abroade: & thus haue they conquered theſe mountaynes, & dwell therein: and as for Jeruſalem wher yͤ Sanctuarie is, they haue it agayne in poſſeſſion.

And therfor my LORDE, make diligent inquiſicion, yf this people haue done wyckedneſſe in the ſyghte of theyr GOD, thē let vs goo vp agaynſte them, for doubtleſſe theyr GOD ſhal delyuer them into thy hādes, and ſubdue them vnto thy power: But yf thys people haue not dyſpleaſed theyr GOD, we ſhall not be hable to wyth ſtande them, for theyr GOD ſhall defende them: and ſo ſhall we be a ſhame to all the worlde.

Nowe when Achior had ſpoken oute theſe wordes, all the greate men of Holofernes were wroth, and thought to ſlaye hym, and ſayde one to a nother: What is he, that dare ſay, that the chyldren of Jſraell are hable to withſtāde Nabuchodonoſor yͤ kynge, & his hooſt? where as they are an vnweapened people, wythoute ſtrenghte, or vnderſtandynge of yͤ feates of warre. That Achyor therfore may knowe yͭ he hath dyſceaued vs, we wyll go vp to the mountaynes: when the myghtye mē of them are taken, he alſo ſhalbe ſtyckte wyth yͤ the ſweard, yͭ all people maye knowe, yͭ Nabuchodonoſor is yͤ GOD of yͤ earth, & yͭ there is none other wythoute hym.

The vj. Chapter.

¶ Achior is committed into the handes of the Jewes by Holofernes. The prayer for the people. Achior is comforted of the Jewes.

A SO whē they had lefte of ſpeakynge Holofernes toke ſore indignacion, and ſayde vnto Achior: For ſomuch as thou haſt prophecied vnto vs ſaying: that yͤ people of Jſrael ſhalbe defēded of theyr GOD, J wyl ſhewe the, that there is no GOD but Nabuchodonoſor, yee, when we ſlaye them all (as one man) thou alſo ſhalt periſhe with them thorowe the ſwearde of the Aſſyrias, and all Jſrael ſhalbe deſtroyed wyth the, & then thou ſhalte fele, that Nabuchodonoſor is yͤ Lorde of the whole earth. Then ſhall the ſweard of my knighthode go thorowe thy ſydes, & thou ſhalte fall downe ſtyckte amōge the wounded of Jſrael, and ſhalt not come to thy ſelfe agayne B but be vtterly deſtroied wyth thē. But yf thou thinckeſt thy prophecí to be trewe, why doeſte thou thē change thy coloure, why arte thou afrayde? Thynckeſt thou that my wordes are not able to be perfourmed? But yͭ thou mayſt knowe that thou ſhalte fele theſe thinges wyth them, beholde, frō thys houre forth wyl J ſende the to yonder people, that when the puniſhemente of my ſwearde (whyche they haue worthily deſerued) falleth vpon them, thou mayeſt be puniſhed wyth them.

So Holofernes commannded hys ſeruauntes to take Achior, and carye hym to Bethulia, and to delyuer hym into the handes of the chyldren of Jſrael. Then Holofernes ſeruauntes toke hym, and wente thorowe the playne felde. But when they drewe nygh vnto the mountaynes, the ſlynge caſters came out agaynſte them. Neuertheleſſe, they gat them awaye by the ſyde of the mountayne, and bounde Achior hande and fote to a tree, and ſo left hym bounde wyth wythes, and turned agayne vnto theyr LORDE, Notwythſtandynge, the chyldren of Iſrael went ⁊ downe from Bethulia, came vnto hym, looſed hym, bꝛoughte hym into Bethulia, ſet him in the myddeſte of yͤ people, and aſked hym what the matter was, that the Aſſyrians had lefte hym bounde.

C Ozias, the ſonne of Michma, of the tribe Simeon, ⁊ Charbꝛis (whych is alſo called Gothoniel) were the pꝛincipal rulers at yͤ ſame tyme. Nowe whē Achioꝛ ſtode in the myddeſt of the Senatoures, and befoꝛe them all, he tolde them, what aunſwere he gaue Holofernes to yͤ thyng that he aſked hym, and howe Holofernes people wolde haue ſlayne hym foꝛ ſo ſayinge: ⁊ how Holofernes hym ſelfe was wꝛothe, ⁊ cōmaūded hym foꝛ the ſame cauſe to be deliuered vnto the Iſraelites: yͭ whē he ouercame the chyldꝛen of Iſrael, he myghte commaunde Achioꝛ alſo to be put to deathe wͭ diuers toꝛmentes, becauſe he ſayde the GOD of heauen is theyꝛ defender. And whē Achioꝛ had playnely tolde oute all theſe thynges, al yͤ people fell downe vpon theyꝛ faces, pꝛayſyng the LORDE, ⁊ poured oute theyꝛ pꝛayers together vnto the LORD, wyth a generall complaynte, and weapynge, ⁊ ſayde: O LORDE GOD of heauen ⁊ of earth, beholde theyꝛ pꝛyde: ⁊ loke vpon oure lowlyneſſe, ⁊ conſider howe it ſtādeth wyth thy ſaynctes, ⁊ make it to be D knowne, that thou foꝛſakeſt not thoſe, whych holde them faſte by the, ⁊ howe that thou bꝛyngeſt them lowe yͭ pꝛeſume of them ſelues, ⁊ make theyꝛ boſt in theyꝛ owne ſtrength. So when the wepynge ⁊ pꝛayer of the people (whyche they had made the hole daye lōge) was ended, they comfoꝛted Achioꝛ ſayinge: The GOD of oure fathers, whoſe power ⁊ ſtrengthe thou haſte pꝛayſed, ſhall ſo rewarde the, that thou ſhalte rather ſe theyꝛ deſtruction. When the LORDE oure GOD then ſhal geue hys ſeruauntes thys libertie: GOD be alſo with the amonge vs: ſo that if it pleaſe the, thou wyth all thyne mayeſt dwell wyth vs.

Nowe when Ozias had ended the counſayle he toke hym into hys houſe, and made a great ſupper, called the elders to it: ⁊ ſo they refreſhed them ſelues after the faſtyng. And afterwarde was all yͤ people called together whyche made theyꝛ pꝛayers al the nyght longe in the congregacion, ⁊ beſoughte the GOD of Iſraell foꝛ helpe.

The vij. Chapter.

¶ Bethulia is beſeged of Holofernes. The people requireth helpe of GOD. They of Bethulia wold geue ouer the citie foꝛ want of water, The pꝛayer of the people wyth teares and lamentacion.

THe nexte day Holofernes cōmaunded hys hoſt to go vp A agaynſte Bethulia. There was an. C. ⁊. xx. M. fyghtynge men on foote, ⁊. xxij. M. hoꝛſe men, beſyde the pꝛeparynge of them yͭ were wonne: and came to them on euerye ſyde out of the countryes ⁊ cities wiche he had taken. All theſe pꝛepared them ſelues vnto the battayle agaynſte the Iſraelites, and came on by the hyl ſide, vnto yͤ toppe that loketh ouer agayinſt Dothain, from the place which is called Belma, vnto Chelmon that lyeth towarde Eſdꝛaelon.

Nowe when the chyldꝛen of Iſraell ſawe ſo great a multitude of the Aſſyri- B ans, they fel downe flat vpon yͤ gꝛound, ſtrowed aſhes vpon theyꝛ heades, and pꝛayed wyth one accoꝛde, that yͤ GOD of Iſrael wolde ſhewe hys mercye vpō hys people. And ſo they toke theyꝛ weapens and ſat betwene the mountaynes in yͤ narowe place, and kepte the waye, daye and nyghte But whyle Holofernes was going about, he founde yͤ water ſpꝛyng, which from the South ſyde was conueyed into yͤ citie by a condite: thys commaunded he, to diꝛecte an other waye, and to cut theyꝛ condite in ſonder. There were wels alſo not far from yͤ walles, whych they vſed ſecretlye, moꝛe foꝛ pleaſure thē foꝛ neceſſitie.

Then wente the Amonytes, and the C Moabites vnto Holofernes, and ſaide: The childꝛen of Iſrael truſte nether in ſpeare noꝛ arowe, but haue taken, in ⁊ kepte the mountaynes and hylles that thou mayſt not eaſly ouercome thē, ſet men to kepe the welles, that they dꝛawe no water oute of thē: ſo ſhalte thou deſtroye them wyth oute ſwearde, oꝛ at yͤ leeſt they ſhalbe ſo feble, yͭ they muſt befayne to geue ouer the citie, whych they thincke not hable to be woone: foꝛ ſo much as it lyeth in the mountaynes. Theſe woꝛdes pleaſed Holofernes wel and all hys men of war and he ſet an hundꝛeth at euery well rounde about:

And when thys watch had endured D

twentye dayes, the Ciſterns and all yͭ had water, fayled them yͭ dwelte in the citie of Bethulia, ſo they in yͤ hole citie had not drynke ynoughe for one daye, for the people had water geuen them daylye in a meaſure. Then came yͤ men and wemen, yonge perſonnes and chyldren al vnto Ozias, and ſayde al wyth one voyce: GOD be iudge betwyxte vs and yͤ, for thou haſt delte euell wyth vs: thou woldeſt not ſpeake peceably with the kynge of yͤ Aſſyrians, therfore hath GOD deliuerid vs in theyr handes, and there is no mã to helpe vs where as we are broughte downe before theyr eyes in thyrſte & greate deſtruction. Therefore gather nowe together all yͤ people yͭ be in the citie, yͭ we maie al yelde oure ſelues wyllingely vnto yͤ people of Holofernes, for better it is yͭ we be captiue and prayſe the LORD with oure lyues, then to be ſlayne and periſhe, and to be laughed to ſcorne & ſhamed of euerye man when we ſe oure wyues & chyldrẽ dye before oure eyes. We take heauen and earth thys day to recorde: and the GOD of our fathers (whych puniſheth vs accordynge, to yͤ deſeruynge of oure ſynnes) and gyue you warnynge, that ye giue vp yͤ citie nowe into the power of Holofernes hoſte, that our end maye be ſhorte with the ſwearde, whiche els ſhall endure longe, for want of water and for thyrſte.

When they had ſpokẽ out thoſe wordes, there was a great wepyng & howlynge in yͤ whole congregacion, & that of euery man: and they cryed an hole houre lõge vnto GOD wyth one voyce, ſayĩg: we haue ſinned with our fathers we haue done amyſſe, we haue delte wyckedly. Thou that arte gracious, haue mercye vpon vs, puniſhe our vnryghteouſneſſe, wyth thyne owne ſcourge, & geue not thoſe ouer that knowlege the, vnto a people whych knowe the not, leſt they ſaye amonge the Heathen: were is theyr GOD.

And when they were ſo werye wyth thys cryinge and weppynge, that they helde theyr tonges, Ozias, ſtode vp wͭ watry eyes, & ſayde O take good hertes vnto you, (deare brethren) and be of good cheare, & let vs wayt yet theſe fyue dayes for mercye of the LORDE, paraduenture he ſhall put a waye hys indignacion, and geue glorye vnto hys name. But yf he helpe vs not whẽ theſe fyue dayes are paſte, we ſhall do as ye haue ſayde.

The viij. Chapter.

¶Of the vertuous woman Judith: whych reproueth the auncientes becauſe they tẽpted the LORD She alſo moueth them to encorage and herten the people, and ſheweth her counſell agaynſte the enemies of the Jewes.

A AND it happened when theſe wordes came to the eares of Judith a wyddowe, whych was yͤ daughter of Merari, the ſonne of Idor, the ſonne of Joſeph, the ſonne of Oſia, the ſonne of Elay, yͤ ſonne of Jammor, the ſonne of Jedeon, the ſonne of Raphoim, yͤ ſonne of Achitob, the ſonne of Melchia, the ſonne of Euam, the ſonne of Nathania, the ſõne of Salathiel, the ſonne of Simeon, the ſonne of Ruben. And her huſband was called Manaſſes, whych dyed in yͤ dayes of the barly harueſt. For whyle he was byndyng yͤ ſheues together in the felde the heate came vpon hys heade, & he dyed at Bethulia, hys citie, and there was he buryed beſyde hys father.

Nowe was Judith hys deſolate wyddowe thre yeares and ſyxe monethes. And in the hyer partes of her houſe, ſhe made her ſelfe a preuye chamber, where ſhe dwelt, beynge cloſed in with her maydens. She ware a ſmoke of heare and faſted all the dayes of her lyfe, excepte the Sabbothes, and newe mones: and the ſolemne dayes that the people of Iſrael kepte. B She was a very fayer and bewtyfull perſon. Her huſband alſo had lefte her greate ryches, a plenteous houſholde, greate poſſeſſions and many catel. Thys Judith was a woman of a very good reporte wyth euery one, for ſhe feared the LORDE greatlye, and there was no bodye that ſpake an euell worde of her.

When Judith hearde thys, howe Ozias, had promiſed yͤ people, that after the fyfte daye he wolde geue vp the citie vnto the Aſſyrians, ſhe ſente for yͤ elders Chabrim and Charmim & whẽ they came to her, ſhe ſayde what thing is thys, wherein Ozias hath cõſented, that yf GOD helpe not with in fyue dayes, he wyl geue ouer yͤ citie to the Aſſyriãs: What are ye, yͭ ye tempt yͤ LORD? Thys deuyce optayneth no mercy of GOD, but prouoketh hym to wrathe ⁊ diſpleaſure. Wyl ye ſet the mercye of yͤ LORDE a tyme, ⁊ appoynte hym a daie after your wyl?

C Neuertheleſſe, for ſo muche as yͤ LORDE is paciente, let vs rather repente, pourynge oute teares, and beſechynge hi of grace. For GOD threateneth not as a man, nether wyll he be prouoked vnto wrath as the chyldren of mẽ. And therfore let vs hertely fall downe before hym, ⁊ ſerue hym wyth a meke ſpirite, and wyth weapynge eyes ſay vnto yͤ LORDE that he deale wyth vs accordynge to hys owne wyll and mercye: yͭ lyke as oure herte is nowe vexed, and broughte lowe thorowe the pryde of thẽ, it maye be confoꝛted thorowe hys grace: in ſo much as we folowe not the ſynnes of oure fathers, whiche forſoke theyr GOD, and worſhipped other goddes for the whych ſynne they periſhed with the ſwearde, were ſpoyled ⁊ broughte to ſhame, of all theyr enemyes. As for vs we knowe none other GOD but onely hym, for whoſe mercye let vs tary wyth mekeneſſe. He ſhall require and make inquiſicion for oure bloude, from the vexacions of oure enemies he ſhall brynge downe all the Heathen that ryſe vp agaynſte vs, and put them to diſhonour, euen yͤ LORD our GOD

D Therfore deare breathren, ſeyng ye are yͤ honourable and elders in the people of GOD, vnto whome all the people haue reſpect, and vpon whome the people ſtandeth, lyfte vp theyr hertes with youre exhortació yͭ they maye call to remẽbraũce, howe oure fathers alſo in tymes paſt were tẽpted, yͭ they myght be proued, yf they worſhippid theyr GOD a ryghte. They oughte to remẽbre, howe *our father Abrahã beynge tẽpted, and tryed thorowe manye tribulaciõs, was founde a louer and frẽde of GOD. So was Jacob, ſo was Moſes and all they that pleaſed GOD beynge tryed thorowe many troubles, were founde ſteadfaſte in fayth. Agayne, they that receaued not theyr temptacions wyth the feare of GOD but put them ſelues forth wyth vnpaciencie and murmurynge agaynſte GOD, periſhed of yͤ deſtroyer, and were ſlayne of ſerpentes. And therfore ſhulde not we vndertake to be auenged for the thynge that is done vnto vs, but conſider, yͭ al theſe puniſhementes are farre leſſe then oure ſynnes and myſdedes. Beleuyng alſo that thys correccion commeth vnto vs (as to the ſeruauntes of GOD) for amendemente, and not for oure deſtruccion.

Gen, 22. d.

Then ſayde Ozias, and the elders vnto Judith: All that thou ſpakeſt, is true and noman can reproue thy wordes. Pray thou for vs nowe therfore vnto GOD, for thou arte an holy woman, ⁊ feareſt GOD. And Judith ſayde vnto them: Seing, ye knowe that my wordes are of GOD, then proue my councel and deuyſe, yf yt be of GOD: and beſech GOD that he wyl bring my coũcel to goode end. E

Thus haue I deuyſed: ye ſhall ſtande this nyghte before the porte, and I wyll goo forthe wyth Abra my maydẽ. Praye ye therefore vnto GOD: that he wyll graciouſly remember hys people of Iſrael whithin fyue dayes, as ye haue ſaide. As for the thyng that I go in hande with all aſke ye no queſtions of yt, tyl I opẽ it vnto you my ſelfe: do ye nothynge elles but praye vnto yͤ LORDE youre GOD for me. Then Ozias, the Prince of the people of Juda, ſayd vnto her: Goo thy waye in peace, the LORDE be with the, that we maye be auẽged of our enemies. And ſo thy wẽte frome her agayne.

The.ix.Capter.

¶ The prayer of Judith for the victorie.

NOwe when they were gone theyr waye, Judith wẽt into her cloſet, put on an hearie ſmoke, ſtrawed aſhes vpon her heade, fel downe before yͤ LORD, ⁊ cryed vnto him ſaying: O LORD GOD of my father *Simeon, whych gaueſte hym a ſwearde for a defence agaynſte yͤ enemies that vſed violence and wylfulneſſe, and that rauyſhed the virgine ⁊ put her to dyſhoneſtye. Thou that gaueſt theyr wyues into a praye, ⁊ theyr daughters into captiuitie, and all their praye for a ſpoyle vnto thy ſeruauntes whyche beare a zele vnto the: helpe me, a wyddowe, O LORDE my GOD I beſeche the. For thou haſte done all thynges frõ the begynnyge: and loke what thou haſte taken in hande and deuyſed it came euer to paſſe. For all thy wayes are prepared, ⁊ thy iudgemẽtes are done in thi euerlaſtynge foreknowlege A

Gen. 34

loke

O loke nowe vpon the armyes of the Aſſyꝛians lyke as it was thy pleaſure ſome tyme to loke vpon the hooſt of the Egypcians, when they beynge weaponed, perſecuted thy ſeruaũtes, and put theyꝛ truſte in theyꝛ charettes, hoꝛſemen, and in the multitude of theyꝛ men of warre. But thou lokedeſt vpõ theyꝛ hooſt, caſting a thyke darckeneſſe befoꝛe them: and when they came into the depe, the wateꝛs ouerwelued them.

5 Euen ſo LORDE let it go wyth theſe, that truſte in the power ⁊ multitude of theyꝛ men of warre, in theyꝛ charettes, arꝛowes, ⁊ ſpeares, ⁊ knowe not yͭ thou only arte oure GOD, whyche deſtroyeſt warres from the begynnynge, and yͭ thou arte yͤ LORDE. O lyfte vp thyne arme nowe, lyke as euer frõ the begynnyng, ⁊ in thy power bꝛig theyꝛ power to naughte: cauſe theyꝛ myghte to fall to wꝛath. They make their booſt, that thy wyll vnhalowe ãd defyle thy Sãctuarie, and to waſt yͤ tabernacle of thy name, and to caſte downe the hoꝛne of thyne aulter wͭ theyꝛ ſwearde. Bꝛinge to paſſe (O LORDE) that the pꝛyde of the enemie be cutte downe wyth hys owne ſwearde, that he may be taken wͭ yͤ ſnares of hys eyes in me, ⁊ that thou mayeſte ſmyte hym wyth yͤ loue of my lyppes. O geue me a ſteadfeſt mynde, that I maye diſpiſe hym ⁊ hys ſtrẽgth, and that I maye deſtroy hym.

Thys ſhall bꝛynge thy name an euer laſtynge remembꝛaunce, yf the hande of a womã ouer thꝛowe hym. *Foꝛ thy power (O LORDE) ſtandeth not in the pouwer of men, neyther haſte thou anye pleaſure in the ſtrengthe of yͤ hoꝛſes. There was neuer pꝛoude parſone that pleaſed the, but in the pꝛayer of yͤ humble and meeke hathe thy pleaſure bene euermoꝛe.

O thou God of the heauẽs, thou maker of the waters, ⁊ LORDE of all creatures, heare me pooꝛe woman, callynge vpõ the, and puttynge my truſte in thy mercye. Remembꝛe thy couenaunte O LORDE: ⁊ miniſter woꝛdes in my mouthe, ⁊ ſtablyſhe thys deuyce in my herte that thy houſe maye cõtinue ſtyll in holyneſſe, and that all the Heathen maye knowe that thou arte God, and that there is none other but thou.

The x. Chapter.

¶ Iudith decketh her ſelfe to go to Holofernes, The bleſſinge that the elders gaue Iudith. Holofernes is in loue wyth Iudith.

AND when ſhe had lefte of cryinge vnto yͤ LORD, ſhe roſe vp from yͤ place where ſhe had lyne flat befoꝛe yͤ LORD, ⁊ called her mayden, wente downe into her houſe, layde the hearye cloth from her, put of yͤ garmentes of wyddowhode, waſhed her bodye, anoynted her ſelfe wyth precious thinges, of ſwete ſauoure, bꝛoyded and platted her heare, ſet an houe vpõ her head, and put on ſuch apparel as belongeth vnto gladneſſe, ſlyppers vpon her fette, armeletes, ſpanges, earinges, fyngerrynges, ⁊ decked her ſelfe wyth all her beſte araye. A

The LORDE gaue her alſo a ſpeciall bewtye and fayerneſſe (foꝛ al thys deckynge of her ſelfe, was not done foꝛ anye voluptuouſneſſe and pleaſure of yͤ fleſhe, but of a ryghte diſcrecion ⁊ vertue, therefoꝛe dyd the LORDE increaſe her beutye,) ſo that ſhe was exceadige amiable, and welfauoured in all mens eyes. She gaue her mayde alſo a bottel of wyne, a pott wyth oyle, pottage, cakebꝛeade and cheſe, ⁊ went her way.

Nowe when ſhe came to the poꝛte of the citie, ſhe founde Ozias, ⁊ the elders B of the citie waytynge there. Whyche when they ſawe her, they were aſtonyed, ⁊ maruelled greatlye at her bewtye. Neuertheleſſe, they aſkee no queſtion at her, but let her go, ſayinge: The GOD of oure fathers geue the hys grace, and wyth hys power perfourme all the deuice of thy hert, that Ieruſalem maye reioyce ouer the, and that thy name maye be in the nombꝛe of the holy and ryghteous. And all they that were there, ſayde wyth one voyce: ſo be it: ſo be it. Iudith made her pꝛayer vnto the LORDE, and wente oute at the poꝛte, ſhe and her mayde.

And as ſhe was goinge downe the mountayne, it happened that aboute yͤ ſpꝛynge of yͤ daye, the ſpyes of yͤ Aſſyꝛians met wyth her, and tooke her, ſayinge: whence cõmeſte thou? Oꝛ whether goeſt thou? She aunſwered: I am a daughter of the Hebꝛues, ⁊ am fled frõ thẽ: foꝛ I knowe yͭ they ſhalbe geuẽ vnto you to be ſpoylid: becauſe they thought ſcoꝛne to yelde them ſelues vnto you, that they myghte fynde mercye in youre ſyghte. Therfore, haue I deuyſed by my ſelfe after this maner: I wyll go before the Prince Holofernes, & tell hym all theyr ſecretes, and wyll ſhewe hym, howe he maye come by them and wynne them, ſo that, not one mā of hys hoſte ſhall periſhe.

C And when theſe men had hearde her wordes, & conſidred her fayer face they were aſtoyned (for thei wondred at her excellente bewty) and ſayde vnto her: Thou haſte ſaued thy lyfe by fyndynge out thys deuyce, that thou woldeſte come downe to oure lorde: and be thou ſure, that whē thou commeſt vnto hym he ſhall intreate the well, and thou ſhalte pleaſe hym at the hert. So they broughte her into Holofernes pauilion, and tolde hym of her. Nowe when ſhe came in before hi, immediatly he was ouercome, and taken wyth her bewtye. Then ſayd hys ſeruauntes: who wold diſpiſe the people of the Iewes, that haue ſo fayre wemen? Shuld we not by reaſon fyghte agaynſte them for theſe? So when Iudith ſawe Holofernes, ſittynge in a canapie, that was wroughte of purple, ſylcke, gold, Smaragde, & precions ſtones, ſhe looked faſte vpon him and fell downe vpon ẏ earthe. And Holofernes ſeruantes toke her vp againe at theyr lordes commaundemente.

The xi. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes requireth of Iudith the cauſe of her comynge/whych geueth hym a ſubtel anſwere.

A THen ſayde Holofernes vnto her be of good chere, and feare not in thyne herte, for I neuer hurte mā that wold ſerue Nabuchodonoſor the kynge. As for they people, yf they had not diſpiſed me, I ſhulde not haue lyfte vp my ſpeare agaynſte them. But tell me nowe, what is ẏ cauſe that thou art departed from them, & wherefore art thou come vnto vs.

And Iudith ſayde vnto hym: Syr, vnderſtande the wordes of thy handemayden, for yf thou wylt do after the wordes of thy handmayden, the LORD ſhall brige thy matter to a proſperous effecte: as truly as Nabuchodonoſor ẏ lorde of the lande lyueth, and as truly as his power lyueth, which is in the, to the puniſhemente of all men that go wronge, all men ſhall not onelye be ſubdued vnto hym thorowe the, but all ẏ beaſtes alſo of the feld. For all the people ſpake of thy prudente actiuitie: and it hath euer bene reported, howe thou onelye art good and myghtye in all his kyngedome, and thy diſcrecion is commended in all landes.

B The thynge is manifeſt alſo, ẏ Achior ſpake, and it is wel knowē, what thou commaundeſt to do vnto hym. For this is playne and of a ſuretye, ẏ our GOD is ſo wrathe wyth vs (by the reaſon of oure ſynnes) that he hath ſhewed by hys Prophetes vnto the people, howe that for theyr ſynnes he wyll delyuer them ouer vnto the enemye. And for ſo muche as the chyldren of Iſraell, knowe that they haue ſo dyſpleaſed theyr GOD, they are ſore afrayed of the.

C They ſuffer great hunger alſo, and for want of water, they are dead nowe in a maner. Moreouer, they are appoynted to ſlaye all theyr catel that they maye dryncke the bloude of them, and are purpoſed to ſpende all the holy ornamētes of theyr GOD (which he hath forbydden them to touch) for corne, wyne, and oyle. Seynge nowe that thei do theſe thynges, it is a playne caſe, ẏ thei muſte nedes be deſtroyed. Whych whē I thy handemayden perceaued. I fled from them and the LORDE hath ſente me vnto the, to ſhewe ẏ theſe thynges For I thy handmayden worſhypped GOD euen now here beſyde ẏ, and thy handemayden ſhall go forth, & I wyll make my prayer vnto GOD, and ſhall tell me when he will rewarde thē their ſynne: then ſhall I come and ſhewe the and bryng the thorowe the myddeſt of Ieruſalem, ſo that thou ſhalte haue all the people of Iſrael, as the ſhepe wythout a ſhepeard: there ſhall not ſo much as one dogge bark agaynſte the for theſe thynges are ſhewed me, by ẏ prouidence of GOD: and for ſo much as GOD is diſpleaſed wyth them, he hath ſent me to tel ẏ the ſame.

D These wordes pleaſed Holofernes & all his ſeruauntes, which merueled at the wiſdom of her, and ſayde one to another: there is not ſuche a woman vpon earth, in bewtie and diſcrecion of wordes. And Holofernes ſayde vnto her: GOD hath done well, that he hath ſente the hether before thy people that thou maieſte geue thē into oure hādes.

And for ſo muche as thy promiſe is good, yf GOD perfourme it vnto me, he ſhall be my GOD alſo, and thou ſhalte be excellente & greate in the courte of Nabuchodonoſor, ād thy name ſhalbe ſpoken of in all the lande.

The.xij.Chapter.

¶Holofernes cōmaundeth that Judith be well intreated. She deſireth licence to goo oute in the nighte ceaſon to praye/ ād optayneth it. Bagoas is ſent vnto her/to moue her to come into Holofernes to a bācket/and ſhe cōmeth. Holofernes is droncken.

THen commaunded he her to goo in where hys treaſure laye, & charged that ſhe ſhulde haue her dwellynge there, ād appoynted what ſhulde be geuen her from hys table. Judith anſwered hym and ſayde: As for the meate that thou haſt commaunded to geue me, I maye not eate of it as nowe (leſt I diſpleaſe my GOD) but wyll eate of ſuche as I haue broughte wyth me. Thē ſayde Holofernes vnto her: Yf theſe thynges yͭ thou haſte brought wyth yͤ fayle, what ſhall we do vnto the? And Judith ſaide As truly as thou lyueſt my lorde thy handamayden ſhall not ſpend all thys, tyll GOD haue brought to paſſe in my hande thinges yͭ I haue deuiſed.

So hys ſeruauntes broughte her in to the tent, wher as he had appointed. And as ſhe was goynge in, ſhe deſired that ſhe myghte haue leaue to go forth by nyghte, and before daye to her prayer and to make interceſſion vnto the LORDE. Then commaunded Holofernes hys chamberlaynes, that ſhe ſhulde go out and in at her pleaſure, to praye vnto GOD thoſe thre dayes.

And ſo in the nyghte ſeaſon ſhe wente forth into the vallye of Bethulia, ād waſhed her ſelfe in yͤ well water. Then wente ſhe vp and be ſoughte yͤ LORDE GOD of Iſrael, That he wold ſproſpere her waye for the delyueraunce of his people. And ſo ſhe wente in & remained cleane in her tente, tyll ſhe toke her meate in the euening.

Upon the fourth day it happenned, yͭ Holofernes made a ſupper vnto his ſeruāūtes, & ſayde vnto Bagoe his chamberlayne: Go thy way, and counſel this Hebrueſſe, that ſhe may be wyllynge to cōſente to kepe company with me. For it were a ſhame vnto all the Aſſyrians that a woman ſhulde ſo laughe a man to ſcorne that ſhe were come from hym vnmedled wythall.

Then wente Bagoas vnto Judith, and ſayde: Let not the good daughter be afrayde, to come into my lorde, that ſhe may be honoured before hym, yͭ ſhe maye eate and dryncke wine, & be merye wyth hym. Unto whome Judith aunſwered: Who am I, that I ſhulde ſaye my lorde naye? whatſoeuer is good before hys eyes, I ſhall do it: and looke what is hys pleaſure, that ſhal I thyncke well done, as longe as I lyue.

So ſhe ſtode vp, and deckte her ſelfe wyth her apparell, and wente in, & ſtode before him. And Holofernes herte was whole moued, ſo yͭ he brente in deſire towarde her. And Holofernes ſayde vnto her: Drycke nowe and ſyt downe, and be merye, for thou haſte founde fauoure before me. Then ſayde Judith: Syr, I wyll dryncke, for my mynde is meryer to day, then euer it was in all my lyfe And ſhe toke, & dyd eate and dranke before hym, the thynges yͭ her maydē had prepared for her: And Holofernes was merie wͭ her, & drācke more wyne, thē euer he did afore i al his lyfe. D

¶Holofernes ſleapeth for very dronckennes/ and Judith cutteth of hys heade/ and goeth there wyth to her owne people of whom ſhe is receaued wyth ioye/ Thei geue thanckes vnto God foy theyr deliueraunce. Judith ſpeaketh vnto Achior. Whyche meruayleth at her feate done to Holofernes.

NOwe when yt was late in yͤ night hys ſeruauntes made haſt euery mā to hys lodgynge. And Bagoas ſhutte the chāber doores, & wente hys waye, for they were all ouerladen wͭ wyne. So was Judith alone in the chamber. As for Holofernes he laye vpō yͤ bed al drōken, & of verye dronkennes fell a ſlepe. A

Then cōmaunded Judith her maydē to ſtande wythoute before yͤ dore, ād to waite, And Judith ſtode before yͤ bed, makynge her prayer wͭ teares, ād moued her lyppes ſecretlye, & ſayde: Strēgthen me, O LORD GOD of Iſraell, & haue a reſpecte vnto the workes of my hādes in thys houre, yͭ thou mayeſt ſet vp yͤ citie of Ieruſalē, like as thou haſt promiſed. O graūte yͭ by yͭ I maye perfourme yͤ thynge, whyche I haue deuyſed thorowe yͤ beleue yͭ I haue in the

B And when ſhe had ſpoken thys, ſhe wente to the bedſteade, and lowſed the ſwearde, that hanged vpon it, and drewe it oute. Then tooke ſhe holde of the hearye lockes of hys heade, and ſayd ſtrengthen me, O LORD GOD in thys houre and wyth that ſhe gaue him two ſtrokes vpon the necke, ⁊ ſmote of hys head. Thē toke ſhe the canapie awaye and rolled the deade bodye aſyde. Immediatlye ſhe got her forthe, and delyuered the head of Holofernes vnto her mayden, ⁊ bad her put it in her wallet.

And ſo theſe two wente forth together after theyr cuſtome, as though they wolde praye and ſo paſſed by the poſt, and came thorowe the valley vnto the porte of yͤ citie And Judith cryed a farre vnto the watchmen vpon yͤ walles: Opē the gates (ſaide ſhe) for GOD is wyth vs, whyche hath ſhewed his power vpon Iſrael. And when they hearde her voyce, they called the elders of yͤ citie together. And they came all to mete her: lytle and greate, yonge and olde, for they thoughte not that ſhe ſhulde haue come ſo ſone. So they lyghted cādels, and gathared about her euerychone: but ſhe wente vp into an hye place ⁊ cauſed ſilence to be proclaymed.

When euery man nowe helde hys tōge, Judith ſayde: O prayſe the LORDE C our GOD for he hathe not diſpiſed, nor forſaken them, that put theyr truſte in hym, and in me his handmaydē he hath performed hys mercy, whych he promiſed vnto the houſe of Iſrael: yee, in my hand this ſame night hath he ſlaine the enemei of his people.

And wyth yͭ ſhe toke forth the heade of Holofernes out of the wallet, and ſhewed it them ſayinge: Beholde the heade of Holofernes the captaine of yͤ Aſſyrians, and this yͤ canapi, wher in he laye, in his dronckenneſſe: where the LORDE our GOD hath ſlayne hym by the hand of a woman.

But as truly as the LORDE lyueth, hys Angell hath kepte me goynge thether, remanyng there, and commynge hether agayne from thēce. And yͤ LORDE hath not ſuffered me hys hādemayden to be defyled, but wythoute any fylthynes of ſynne hath he broughte me agayne vnto you: and that wyth greate victorie, ſoo that I am eſcaped and delyuered. O geue thākes vnto hym euerychone, for he is gratious and hys mercye endureth for euer.

So they prayſed the LORDE all together, and gaue thanckes vnto hym. And to her they ſayde The LORD hath bleſſed the in his power, for thorowe yͤ he hath brought oure enemies to naught. And Oſias the chefe ruler of yͤ people of Iſrael, ſayde vnto her: Bleſſed art thou of the LORDE the hye GOD, aboue all wemen vpon earth.

Bleſſed be the LORDE, the maker of D heauen and earthe, whyche guyded the a ryghte to wounde and ſmyte of yͤ heade of yͤ captayne of oure enemyes. For thys day he hath made thy name ſo honourable, yͭ thy prayſe ſhall neuer come oute of the mouthe of men, whyche ſhall alwaye remember the power of yͤ LORDE ſeynge thou haſte not ſpared thyne owe ſelfe, but put the in ieoperdye, conſiderynge the aunguyſhe and trouble of thy people, and ſo haſte helped theyr fall before GOD oure LORD. And all the people ſayde: Amē, Amen.

Achior alſo was called, and he came. E Thē ſaide Judith vnto him: The GOD of Iſrael vnto whome thou gaueſte wytnes, that he wolde be aduenged of hys enemies, euen he hath thys nyghte thorowe my hande: ſmytten of the head of al the vnfaythfull. And that thou mayeſte ſe that it is ſo, beholde, thys is the heade of Holofernes, whiche in his preſumtuous pryde, diſpiſed the GOD of the people of Iſrael, and threatened the with deſtruction, ſayinge: when the people of Iſrael is taken, I ſhall cauſe yͤ alſo to be ſtyckte wyth the ſwearde. When Achior ſawe Holofernes heade, he fell downe vpon his face to the grounde, for verye anguyſhe and feare ſo that he ſounde wythall.

But after yͭ he was come agayne to hi ſelfe, he fel downe before her, ⁊ prayſed her, ſayige: Bleſſed arte thou of thy GOD, in al yͤ tabernacles of Jacob: for all the people yͭ heare of thy name, ſhal praiſe the god of Iſrael becauſe of the.

The xiiij. Chapter.

¶The counſayle of Judith. Achior beinge an Heathen man turneth to God. The Aſſyrians are afrayed of the Jewes.

JUdith ſayde vnto all the people: brethrē, heare me. Stycke vp this heade vpō oure walles and A and when the ſūne aryſeth, take euery man hys weapon, and fall out violent ye, not as thought ye wolde go beſyde them, but to runne vpon them wyth violence. When the ſpyes in the tentes ſe this, they ſhall of neceſſitie be compelled to flye backward, and to rayſe vp theyꝛ captayne to yͤ battayle. So whē theyꝛ captaynes come i to Holofernes pauyliō, ⁊ fynde yͤ dead body wꝛapped in yͤ bloude, fearfulneſſe ſhall fall vpon thē, ⁊ whē ye perceaue yͭ thei flie, folow thē wythout al care, foꝛ GOD ſhall deliuer thē vnto you to be deſtroied.

Then Achioꝛ ſeing yͤ poweꝛ of GOD which he had ſhewed vnto the people of Iſrael, fell of from hys Heathenyſhe belefe, and put hys truſt in GOD, and let hym ſelfe be circumciſed: ād ſo was he nombꝛed amōge yͤ people of Iſrael, he ⁊ all hys poſterite vnto thys daye.

Nowe as ſoune as it was daye, they ſtickte vp Holofernes heade vpon the walles, and euerye man tooke hys weapen, and ſo they wente oute wyth an horible crye. When the ſpyes ſawe yͭ, they ranne vnto Holofernes tente.

And they that were wythin the tente, came befoꝛe hys chamber, and made a greate ruſhinge to wake him vp, becauſe they thought wyth yͤ noyſe to haue rayſed hym. Foꝛ there durſte not one of the Aſſyrians knocke, go in, oꝛ open.

But when the captaynes and pꝛinces: and all the chefe in the kynge of yͤ Aſſyrians hooſt came together, they ſayde vnto the chamberlaines: Go youre waye in, and wake hym vp foꝛ the myſe are crepte oute of theyꝛ hooles, and dare pꝛouoke vs vnto battayle.

Then went Bagoas into his chamber, ſtode befoꝛe the bed, ād clapped wͭ hys handes foꝛ he thought he had bene ſlepynge wyth Iudith.

But when he had herkened perfectly wyth hys eares, ād coulde perceaue no ſterynge, he wente nygher to the bede, and lyfte it vp, and then ſawe he the deade bodye of Holofernes lyinge there without a head, welterd in his bloud vpon the earth. Then cried he wyth lowde voyce, ⁊ wyth wepynge rēte hys clothes, ⁊ wente into Iudiths tente, ⁊ foūde her not: And ſo he lept oute vnto the people and ſayde: one womā of the Iewes, hath bꝛoughte all Nabuchodonoſors people vnto ſhame. Foꝛ loo, Holofernes lyeth vpon the grounde and hathe no heade.

When the chefe of the Aſſyrians hooſte hearde yͭ, they rente theyꝛ clothes, ⁊ there fell an intollerable feare ⁊ trembling vpon them ſo yͭ theyꝛ myndes were ſoꝛe afrayde. And there was an exceadyng great crye in the whole hoſt.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ The flyghte of the Aſſyrians. The perſute of Iſrael after them. Iſrael becommeth rych / by the ſpoyles of the Aſſyrians. Iudith is pꝛayſed of Ioachim / and of the people.

NOwe when all yͤ hooſte heard yͭ Holofernes was headed, theyꝛ mynde and councel fel from them, ⁊ ſuche a feare came vpō them that thei vndertoke to defend thē ſelues by flying away: one ſpake not to āother but hāged downe theyꝛ heades, lefte al behynd them: ⁊ made haſte to eſcape from the Hebꝛues: foꝛ they hearde that they were haſtynge to come after wyth theyr weapens, ⁊ ſo they fled by the wayes of the feldes, ⁊ thoꝛowe all the foote pathes of the dales. A

And when the chyldꝛen of Iſrael ſawe yͭ they fled, they folowed vpon them ⁊ wente downe wyth trompetes blowynge, ⁊ makinge a greate crye after thē. As foꝛ yͤ Aſſyrians, they had no oꝛder, ⁊ kepte not them ſelues togeather but fled theyꝛ waye. Neuertheleſſe, the chyldꝛen of Iſrael fell vpon them with one companye and oꝛder, and dyſcomfoꝛted as many as they myghte get. And Oſias ſent meſſaungers vnto all the cities ⁊ countryes of Iſrael.

So all the regions ⁊ euery citie ſent oute theyꝛ beſt men, after them in harnes, ⁊ ſmot them wͭ yͤ ſwearde, tyll they B came to the vtmoſt parte of theyꝛ boꝛders. And the other yͭ were in Bethulia came into the tentes of the Aſſyrians, ⁊ toke al, that they whych fled had lefte behynd them, and ſo they founde great good. And they yͭ came agayne to Bethulia from the batayle, tooke wͭ them ſuche thynges as had bene theyꝛs, there was no nombꝛe of yͤ catell, ⁊ of yͤ coſtlye Iewelles, ſo that from the loweſt vnto the hygheſte, they were all made ryche of the ſpoyles of them. And Ioachim the hyghe pꝛeaſte at Ieruſalem, came to Bethulia wyth all the elders that they myghte ſe Iudith.

Nowe when ſhe came out vnto them, they began all to prayſe her wyth one voyce, ſayinge: thou worſhyppe of the C citie of Jeruſalem, thou ioye of Iſrael, thou honoure of oure people thou haſte done manly, and thy herte is conforted becauſe thou haſt loued clenlyneſſe and chaſtite, and haſt knowen no man but thine owne huſband: therfore hath the hand of the LRORDE comforted the: & bleſſed ſhalte thou be for euer. And all the people ſayde ſo be it, ſo be it.

In theyr dayes coulde the people of Iſrael ſcarce gather vp the ſpoyles of ỹ Aſſyrians. But all that belonged vnto Holofernes (whether it were of gold, of ſyluer, precious ſtones, clothynge, & all other ornamentes) they gaue it vnto Judith. And all the people reioyſed, bothe wemen, maydẽs, and younge people wyth pypes and harpes.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶ The ſonge of Judith for the victorie. After the victorie optayned the people commeth to Jeruſalẽ to worſhyppe and praiſe God.

A Then ſonge Judith thys ſonge vnto the LORDE: Beginne vnto the LORD vpon the tabrettes, ſyng vnto the LORD vpon ỹ cimbales, O ſynge vnto hym a newe ſonge of thanckeſgeuynge, be ioyeful & call vpon hys name. It is the LORDE that deſtroyeth warres: euen ỹ LORDE is name. Which hath pytched hys tẽtes in the myddeſt of hys people, ỹ he myght delyuer vs from the hande of al our enemies. Aſſyrius came out of the mountaynes of the north in the multitude of his ſtrẽgth. His people ſtopped the water brokes, and theyr horſes couered the walles. He purpoſed to haue brent vp my lande, and ſlaye my yonge men wyth the ſwearde.

He wolde haue caried awaye my chil- B dren and virgins into captiuitie, but ỹ Almyghtye LORDE hyndred hym, and delyuered hym into the handes of a woman, whych brought hym to confuſiõ. For theyr myghtye was not deſtroyed of the yonge men. It was not ỹ ſonnes of Tytan ỹ ſleue hym, nether haue the greate Giauntes ſet them ſelues agaynſte hym: but Judith the daughter of Merary wͭ her feyre bewty hath dyſcõforted hym, & brought hym to naught. For ſhe layde awaye her wyddowes garmente and put on the parell of gladeneſſe to the reioyſinge of the childrẽ of Iſrael. She annointed her face, and bounde vp her heare in an houe to begle hym. Her ſlyppers rauyſhed his eyes her bewetye captiuid hys mynde, wͭ ỹ ſwearde ſmote ſhe of hys necke. The Perſiãs were aſtoined at her ſtedfaſte- C nes, and the Meedes at her boldenes. Then howled the armyes of the Aſſyrians, when my ſimple, (drye of thryſt appered.) The ſõnes of the daughters haue pearſed them thorowe and ſlayne them as fugitiue childrẽ: they periſhed in the battayle, for the verye feare of ỹ LORDE my GOD. Let vs ſynge a ſong of thankes geuinge vnto the LORDE, a newe ſong of prayſe wyl we ſynge vnto oure GOD: LORDE LORDE, thou arte a great GOD, myghtie in power, whõ nomã maye ouercome. Al thi creatures ſhulde ſerue ỹ: for thou ſpakeſt but the worde, ãd they were made: thou ſenteſt thy ſpirite, & they were created, and no man can wythſtande thy voyce. The mountaynes ſhall moue from the fundacions wyth the waters, the ſtonie rockes ſhall melte before the lyke waxe. But they ỹ feare the, ſhalbe great wyth the in all thinges. Wo vnto ỹ people that ryſe vp agaynſte my generacion, for the Almyghtye LORD wyll aduenge hym ſelfe of them, and in the daye of Judgemente wyll he viſet thẽ. For he ſhall geue fyer and wormes into theyr fleſhe, that they maye burne & fele it for euer moare.

After thys it happened, that after ỹ D victorie, all the people came to Jeruſalem, to geue praiſe and thanckes vnto the LORDE. And when they were purified, thei offred al their burnt ſacrifices & theyr promiſe offeriges. And Judith offered all Holofernes weapens, & all ỹ Jewels ỹ the people had geuen her, ãd the canappe that ſhe toke from his bed and hanged them vp vno the LORDE. The people was ioyfull, as the vſe is: & thys ioye by reaſon of ỹ victorie, wyth Judith, endured thre monetes.

So after theſe dayes, euery man wẽte home agayne, & Judith was in greate reputacion at Bethulia, and ryghte honourably takẽ in all the lande of Iſrael. Unto her vertue alſo was chaſtitie ioyned, ſo that after her huſbande Manaſſes, ſhe neuer knewe man all ỹ dayes of her lyfe. Upon the hie ſolemne dayes ſhe went out wyth greate worſhyppe. She dwelte in her huſbandes houſe an hundred and fyue yeare, and lefte her handemayden fre, and dyed: ⁊ was buryed beſyde her huſbāde in Bethulia. And all the people mourned for her vij. dayes. So long as ſhe liued, there was none that troubled Iſraell, and many yeares alſo after her deathe.

The daye wherin thys victorie was gotten, was ſolemlye holden, and rekened of the Iewes in the nombre of yͤ holye dayes, and it is yet greatlye holden of yͤ Iewes euer ſence vnto thys daye.

¶The dreame of Mardocheus.

Mardocheus the ſonne of Iar, the ſōne of Semei, the ſone of Ciſei of yͤ tribe of Beniamin, a Iewe: whiche had his dwellynge in yͤ citie of Suſis, a mā of greate reputacion and excellent amonge all them that were in the kynges court (Neuertheles, he was one of the preſoners, whō Nabuchodonoſor yͤ kynge of Babilon had caryed awaye from Ieruſalē vnto Babylon wyth Iechonias yͤ kynge of Iuda.) In the ij yere of yͤ raygne of great Artaxerxes in the fyrſt day of the moneth Niſan had Mardocheus ſuche a dreame. He thoughte he hearde a great tēpeſte, horrible thonderclappes, eartquakes, and great vproure in the lāde, and that he ſawe ij. great dragons redy to fyght one agaynſt another.

B Theyr crye was greate. At yͤ whych roarynge and crye all yͤ Heathen were vp to fyghte agaynſte the ryghteous people. And the ſame daye was full of darckenes, ⁊ verye vnclear, full of trouble and anguyſhe, yee, agreate fearfulneſſe was there in all the lande. The ryghteous were amaſed, for they feared the plage and euell that was deuyſed ouer them, and were at apoynte wͭ them ſelues to dye. So they cryed vnto GOD: and while they were cryinge: the lytle wel grewe into agreat ryuer and into many waters. And wyth that it was daye and the ſōne roſe vp agayne. And yͤ lowly were exalted, and deuoured the glorious and proude.

Nowe when Mardocheus had ſene thys dreame, he awoke, and muſed ſtedfaſtlye in hys herte, what GOD wolde do, and ſo he deſired to knowe all the matter, and hys mynde was there vpō vntyll the nyghte.

At the ſame tyme dwelte Mardocheus wyth Bagatha ⁊ Tares, in the kynges courte, the kynges chamberlaynes and porters of yͤ place. But when he hearde theyr deuyce, and had diligētly conſidred theyr imaginaciōs, he perceaued yͭ they went about to lay theyr cruel handes vpon the kynge Artaxerxes: and ſo he certified the kynge therof. not with cruelty & wrong to exhalte my ſelfe by yͤ reaſon of my power: but purpoſed wyth equite alway & gentelnes, to gouerne thoſe that be vnder my iuriſdiction, and wholy to ſet them in a peceable lyfe, & therby to bring my kyngdome vnto trãquillite, that men myght ſafely go thorowe on euery ſyde and to renew peace agayne, which all men deſire. Nowe whẽ I aſked my coũcelers B howe theſe thynges myghte be broughte to a good ende, there was one by vs, excellẽte in wyſdome whoſe good will, truth, & faythfulnes hath oft bene ſhewed & proued, whych was alſo the principal and nexte to yͤ kyng Aman by name: whych certified vs howe that in al landes there was ſcatered abroade a rebellious folke, that made ſtatutes ãd lawes agaynſte al other people: and haue alwaye diſpiſed yͤ proclaymed commaundementes of kynges: and how that for thys cauſe it were not to be ſufered that ſuche rule ſhulde cõtinue by you, and not to be put downe.

Seinge nowe we perceaue the ſame, C yͭ thys people alone ar contrarie vnto euery man, vſyng ſtraunge & other maner of lawes, & wythſtãde our ſtatutes & doynges, & go aboute to ſtabliſh ſhrowde matters, yͭ our kingdome ſhuld neuer come to good eſtate & ſtedfaſteneſſe Therfore haue we commaunded, yͭ all they yͭ are appointed in wrytinge & ſhewed vnto you by Aman, (whyche is ordeyned & ſet ouer all our landes, and yͤ moſt principal next vnto yͤ kyng, and in maner as a father (ſhal wͭ theyr wyues & chyldrẽ be deſtroyed and rooted oute wyth yͤ ſwearde of theyr enemies & aduerſaries, and yͭ there ſhalbe no mercy ſhewed, & noman ſpared. And this ſhalbe done the xiiij, daye of yͤ moneth called Adar) of this yeare, that they wiche of olde (and nowe alſo) haue euer bene rebellious maye in one daye wyth violence be thruſte downe into the hell, to thintente that after thys maner oure empire maye haue peace & tranquilite.

But Mardocheus thoughte vpon al D the worckes & noble actes of the LORDE, & made prayer vnto hym, ſainge: O LORDE LORDE, thou valeaunte & Almyghtye kynge (for all thynges are in thy power) & yf thou wylt helpe & delyuer Iſrael, there is no man that can wͭſtande or let yͤ: for thou haſt made heauen and earth, and what wonderous thynge ſo euer is vnder the heauẽ: thou arte LORDE of all thynges, and there is no man that can reſiſte thy maieſtie. O LORDE. Thou knoweſt al thinges, thou woteſt LORD that it was nether of malice, nor preſumpcion, nor for any deſire of glorie, that I wolde not bowe downe my ſelfe, nor worſhyp younder proude preſumpteous Amã for I wolde haue bene contente, and that wyth good wyll, yf it myght haue done Iſrael any good, to haue kyſte euen his foote ſteppes but that I dyd it, becauſe I wolde not ſet the honoure of aman in the ſtede of the glorie of GOD: and becauſe I wolde worſhyp none but only the my LORDE, And thys haue I done in no pride nor preſumcion.

And therefore O LORDE thou GOD E and kynge haue mercye vpon thy people, for they imagin howe they may bryng vs to naught: yea, theyr mynde and deſire is to deſtroye, and to ouerthrowe thy people, that hath ben euer thyne enheritaunce of olde. O diſpiſe not yͤ porcion, whych thou haſte delyuered & broughte oute of Egypte for thyne owne ſelfe. Heare mi praier, & be mercyfull vnto thy people whom thou haſt choſẽ for ã heritage vnto thy ſelfe. Turne our complainte & ſorowe into ioye, yͭ we maye lyue, O LORDE, & prayſe thy name. O LORDE ſuffer not yͤ mouthes of them that praiſe the to be deſtroyed.

All the people of Iſrael in lyke maner, cryed as earneſtlye as they coulde vnto the LORDE: for theyr death and deſtruction ſtode before theyr eyes.

The xiiij. Chapter.

QUine Eſther alſo beyng in the A battayle of death, reſorted vnto the LORDE, layde away her glorious apparel, and put on yͤ garmentes yͭ ſerued for ſyghing and mourning. In yͤ ſted of precious oyntmẽt, ſhe ſcatered aſhes & donge vpõ her head: & as for her bodye, ſhe hũbled it wͭ faſtig, & brought it verylow. Al yͤ places wher ſhe was wõt to haue ioye afore thoſe filled ſhe wͭ yͤ heere yͭ ſhe plucte of her ſelfe. She prayed alſo vnto yͤ LORD GOD of Iſrael wͭ theſe wordes. O my LORD thu only arte our kig, help me deſolate woman, which haue no helper but yͤ, for my miſerie ⁊ deſtruction is hard at my hãd. Frõ my youth vp I haue hard out of yͤ kynred of my father, yͭ thou tokeſt Iſrael from amõg al people (⁊ ſo haue our fathers of theyr forelders) yͭ they ſhuld be thy perpetual enheritaũce ⁊ lo ke what thu dideſt promiſe thẽ, thu haſt mad it good vnto thẽ. Nowe LORD, we haue ſinned before yͤ, therfore haſt thou geuẽ vs into yͤ hãdes of oure enemyes becauſe we worſhipped theyr Gods. LORD, thu art rightous. Neuertheles, it ſatiſfied them not, yͭ we are in bitter ⁊ heuy captiuite ⁊ oppreſſed amonge thẽ, but thou haſt layde theyr hãdes vpon yͤ hãdes of their Gods: ſo yͭ they begin to take away yͤ thig (yͭ thou wͭ thy mouth haſt ordened ⁊ appoynted) ⁊ to deſtroy thyne enheritaũce, to ſhut ⁊ ſtop yͤ mouthes of thẽ yͭ prayſe yͤ, to quẽch yͤ glorie ⁊ worſhyppe of thy houſe, ⁊ thine alter, ⁊ to opẽ yͤ mouthes of yͤ Heathẽ, yͭ they may prayſe yͤ power ⁊ vertue of yͤ gods ⁊ to magnifie yͤ fleſhly kyng for euer.

O LORDE geue not thy ſepter vnto them yͭ be nothing, leſt they laugh vs to ſcorne in our miſerie and fall: but turne theyr deuyſe vpon them ſelues, and puniſhe hym, that hath begonne the ſame ouer vs, and ſet hym to an example. Thyncke vpon vs O LORDE, ⁊ ſhewe thy ſelfe vnto vs in the tyme of oure destreſſe, ⁊ of our trouble. Strength me O thou kyng of Gods, thou LORD of all power, geue me an eloquente and a pleaſunte ſpeach in my mouth before yͤ Lion. Turne hys hert in yͤ hate of oure enemyes, to deſtroy him ⁊ al ſuch as cõſent vnto him. But delyuer vs wͭ thyne hande, and helpe me thy handmayde, whych haue no defence nor helper but onely the LORD, thou knoweſt al thynges, thou woteſt that I loue not yͤ glorie and worſhyp of the vnryghteous, and that I hate, and abhorre yͤ bed of the vncircumciſed, and of al Heathen.

Thou knoweſte my neceſſite, that I hate the token of prehemynence ⁊ worſhyp whych I beare vppon my heade, what tyme as I muſt ſhewe my ſelfe and be ſene, and that I abhore it an an vncleane cloth, and that I were it not when I am quiete and alone by my ſelfe. Thou knoweſt alſo, that I thy handemaiden haue not eaten at Amans table, and that I haue had no pleaſure nor delite in yͤ kynges feaſte, that I haue not droncke the wyne of the dryncke offeringes and that I thy handemaydẽ haue no ioye ſence the daye that I was brought hether, vntyl this daye, but onely in the LORDE. O thou GOD of Abraham, O thou myghtye GOD aboue all, heare the voyce of them, that haue none other hoope, and delyuer vs oute of the hande of the wycked, and delyuer me oute of my feare.

¶ Mardocheus moueth Eſther to go into the kynge and make interceſſion for her people: and ſhe perfourmeth hys requeſte.

A MArdocheus alſo bad Eſther goo in vnto yͤ kynge, and praye for her people, ⁊ for her countrye. Remember (ſayth he) yͤ dayes of thy lowe eſtate, how thou waſt noryſhed vnder my hande: For Aman whych is nexte vnto the kyng, hath geuen ſentence of death agaynſt vs. Call thou therefore vpon the LORDE, and ſpeake for vs vnto the kynge, ⁊ delyuer vs frõ death. And vpõ yͤ thyrde day it happened, yͭ Eſther layde awaye the mourninge garmentes, ⁊ put on her glorious apparell, and decte her ſelfe goodly (after yͭ ſhe had called vpon GOD, which is the beholder ⁊ ſauiour of all thynges) toke two handemaydes wyth her: vpõ yͤ one ſhe leaned her ſelfe, as one yͭ was tender: yͤ other folowed her, and bare the trayne of her veſture. The ſhyne of her bewtye made her face roſe coloured. The ſimilitude of her face was chearful and amyable, but her herte was ſorowfull for greate feare. She wente in thorowe all yͤ doores, and ſtoode before the kynge. The kyng ſat vpon the throne of hys kyngedome, and was clothed in hys goodly araye, al of gold, and ſet wyth precious ſtones, and he was verye terible: He lyfte vp hys face, that ſhone in the clearneſſe, and looked grymly vpõ her. Then the Quene fel downe, was pale ⁊ faynte and leaned her ſelf vpon the head of the mayd, that went wyth her.

B Neuertheles, GOD turned the kyndes mynde that he was gentile, that he leaped oute of hys ſeate for feare, ⁊ gat her in hys armes, and helde her vp tyll ſhe came to her ſelfe agayne. He gaue her louinge wordes alſo, ⁊ ſayde vnto her:Eſther,what is yͤ matter:I am thy bryther, be of good cheare, thou ſhalte not die:for oure cõmaũdemẽt toucheth the comons and not the. Come nie. And wyth that he helde vp hys golden rod, and leyd it vpon her necke, ⁊ embraſed her frendely, and ſayde talke wyth me. Then ſayde ſhe: I ſawe the (O lorde) as an Angel of GOD, ãd my herte was troubled, for feare of thy maieſtie and clearneſſe. For excellente and wonderfull arte thou (O Lorde,) and thy face is full of Amite. But as ſhe was thus ſpeakynge vnto hym, ſhe fell downe agayne for fayntneſſe for the whych cauſe the kynge was afrayde, and all hys ſeruauntes comforted her.

The xvj. Chapter.

¶The copye of the letters of Artaxerxes, wherby he reuoketh thoſe whych he fyrſte ſente forth.

A THe greate kyng Artaxerxes, whych raygneth from India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and ſeuen and twentye landes, ſendethe vnto yͤ Princes and rulers of the ſame landes, ſuch ue hym, hys frendly ſalutacion. Ther be manye that for the ſondrye fryrdeſhyppeis and benifites diuerſly done vnto them for theyr worſhyppe, be euer the more proude and hye mynded, and vndertake not onely to hurte theyr ſubiectes (for plenteous benifites maye they not ſuffer, ⁊ begynne to imagine ſome thinge agaynſte thoſe that do thẽ good, and take not onely all vnthanckefulneſſe awaye from men) but in pryde ⁊ preſumpcion (as they that be vnmyndefull and vnthanckfull for the good deades) they go about to eſcape the iudgement of GOD, that ſeyth al thynges, whyche iudgemente, hateth and puniſhethe all wyekedoeſſe: It happeneth ofte alſo, yͭ they whyche be ſet in office by the hyer power, and vnto whom the buſyneſſe ⁊ cauſes of the ſubiectes are committed to be handled, waxe proude, and defyle them ſelues wyth ſeadynge of innocente bloude, whych bryngeth them to intollerable hurt. Whych alſo wyth falſe and deceyteful wordes and wyth lyinge tales, dyſceaue and betray the innocente goodneſſe of Princes.

B Nowe is it profitable and good, that we take hede, make ſearch therafter, ⁊ conſider, not only what hath happened vnto vs of old: but the ſhamfull, vnhoneſt, and noyſome thynges, that the debities haue nowe taken in hande before our eyes, and therby to beware in tyme to come, that we maye make yͤ kyngdome quiet and peaceable for all men: and that we myghte ſometyme drawe it to a chaunge: and as for the thynge that nowe is preſente before oure eyes, to wythſtande it, and to put it downe, after the mooſt frendly maner.

What tyme nowe as Aman, the ſonne of Amadathu yͤ Macedonian (a ſtraunger verely of the Perſians bloude, and farre from our goodneſſe) was come in among vs as an aleant and had optayned the frendeſhyppe that we beare towarde all yͤ people, ſo that he was called oure father, ⁊ had in hyghe honoure of euery mã, as the nexte and principall vnto the kynge, he could not forbeare hym ſelfe but hys pryde hath vndertaken, not onely to robbe vs of the kyngedome, but of oure lyfe.

Wythmanyfolde dyſceate alſo hath he deſire to deſtroie Mardocheus oure helper and preſeruer, whych hath done vs good in all thynges: and innocente Eſther the lyke partaker of oure kyngedome, wyth all her people. For hys mynde was (when he had taken them C oute of the waye, and robbed vs of thẽ) by thys meanes to tranſlate the kyngdome of yͤ Perſians vnto them of Macedonia, but we fynde that the Iewes whyche were accuſed of the wycked, yͭ they myghte be deſtroyed are no euell doers, but vſe reſonable and ryght lawes, and that they be the chyldren of yͤ mooſte hygh lyuyng GOD, by whome yͤ kingdome of vs ⁊ our progenitoures haue bene well ordred hetherto. Wherefore, as for the letters and commaũdementes that were put forthe by Aman the ſõne of Amadathu, ye ſhall do well, yf ye holde them of none effecte: : for he that ſet them vp and inuented them, hangeth at Suſis before yͤ porte, wyth al his kynred: and GOD, (whyche hath all thynges in hys power) hath rewarded hyin after hys deſeruynge.

D And vpon thys ye ſhall publiſhe and ſet vp the copye of this letter in all places, that the Iewes maye frelye and wythoute hyndraũce hold them ſelues after theyr owne ſtatutes, ãd that they maye be helped, and that vpon the thre and twentye daye of yͤ twelue moneth Adar, they maye be aduenged of them, whyche in the tyme of theyr anguiſhe ⁊ trouble, wolde haue oppreſſed thē. For the GOD yͭ gouerneth al thynges hath turned to ioye the daye, wherein yͤ choſen people ſhulde haue periſhed.

Moreouer, amonge the hyghe ſolemne dayes that ye ſhal haue, ye ſhall holde thys alſo wyth all gladneſſe, that nowe ⁊ in tyme to come, thys daye maye be a remembraunce to good for al ſuche as loue the proſperitye of the Perſiās: but a remembraunce of deſtruction to thoſe that be ſedicious vnto vs.

All cities and landes yͭ do not thys, ſhall horribly periſhe and be deſtroyed with the ſwearde and fyre, and ſhal not onelye be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhorred alſo of the wylde beaſtes and foules.

¶The ende of the reaſt of the booke of Eſther.

The booke of wyſedome.

The fyrſte Chapter.

¶Howe we oughte to ſearch and enquire after GOD, and who be thoſe that fynde hym. Of the holy ghoſt. We ought to flye from backbytyng and murmurynge. ⁊c.

Set youre affection vpō ryghteouſneſſe, ye that be Iudges, of the earth. Haue a good opinion of the LORD, and ſeke hym in the ſyngleneſſe of hert For he wyll be found of them that tempte hym not, ⁊ appereth vnto ſuch as put theyr truſt in hym. As for froward thoughtes, they ſeperat from GOD: but vertue (if it be alowed) refourmeth the vnwyſe, And why? wyſedome ſhall not enter into a frowarde ſoule, nor dwell in the body that is ſubdued vnto ſynne. For the holy Gooſt abhorreth fayned nurtour, ⁊ wythdraweth hym ſelfe from yͤ thoughtes that are wythout vnderſtandynge, ⁊ where wyckedneſſe hath the vpperhande, he flyeth from thence, for the ſpirite of wyſdome is louynge, gentle and gratious, and wyl haue no pleaſure in hym that ſpeaketh euell wyth hys lyppes. For GOD is a wytnes of hys raynes, a true ſearcher out of hys hert, ⁊ an hearer of hys tong. For the ſpirite of the LORDE fylleth the round compaſſe of the worlde: and the ſame that vpholdeth al thynges, hath knowlege alſo of the voyce.

Therefore, he that ſpeaketh vnryghteous thynges, can not be hyd: neyther maye he eſcape the iudgement of reprofe. B And why? inquiſitiō ſhalbe made for the thoughtes of the vngodlye, and the reporte of hys wordes ſhall come vnto GOD, ſo that thus wyckedneſſe ſhalbe puniſhed. For yͤ eare of yͤ gelouſe heareth all thynges, and the noyſe of the grudgynges ſhall not be hyd. Therefore beware of murmerynge whych is nothynge worth: and refrayne youre tonge from ſlaundder. For there is no worcke ſo darcke and ſecrete, that it ſhall go for noughte, and yͤ mouth that ſpeaketh lyes, ſlayeth the ſoule.

O ſeke not your owne death in the errour of youre lyfe: deſtroye not your ſelues thorowe yͤ worckes of youre owne handes. For GOD hath not made C death, neyther hathe he pleaſure in the deſtruction of yͤ lyuing. For he created all thynges, yͭ they myghte haue theyr beynge: yea, al yͤ people of yͤ earth hath he made that they ſhulde haue health, yͭ there ſhulde be no deſtructiō in them, and that the kyngedome of hell ſhulde not be vpon earth (for ryghteouſnes is euerlaſtynge ⁊ inmortall, but vnryghteouſneſſe bryngeth death.) Neuertheleſſe, the vngodlye call her vnto them both wyth wordes and worckes: and whyle they thyncke to haue a frende of her they come to noughte: for yͤ vngodlye that are confederate wyth her and take her parte, are worthye of death.

¶The imaginacions and deſires of the wicked, and theyr counſayle agaynſte the faythfull.

FOr the vngodlye, talke ⁊ imagin thus amonge them ſelues, A but not ryght. The tyme of oure lyfe is but ſhorte and tedious: and when a man is once gone, he hath nomore ioye nor pleaſure, nether knowe we any mā that turneth agayne from death: for we are borne of nought, and we ſhalbe herafter as though we had neuer bene. For our breath is as ſmoke in oure noſtrels, and yͤ wordes as a ſparke to moue oure hert. As for our body, it ſhalbe very aſhes that are quenched, and oure ſoule ſhall vanyſhe as the ſoft ayre. Oure lyfe ſhall paſſe away as the trace of a cloude and come to naught as the myſt that is dryuen awaye wyth the beames of the Sunne, and put downe wyth the heate thereof. Oure name alſo ſhalbe forgotten by lytle, and no man ſhall haue oure workes in remembraunce.

For oure tyme is a verye ſhadowe ẏ B paſſeth awaye: and after oure end there is no returnynge, for it is faſt ſealed: ſo that no mā commeth agayne. Come on therfore, let vs enioye the pleaſures ẏ there are, ⁊ let vs ſone vſe the creature lyke as in youth. Let vs fyl oure ſelues wyth good wyne and oyntmēte, and let there no floure of ẏ tyme go by vs. Let vs crowne our ſelues wyth roſes afore they be wethered. Let there be no fayre medowe, but oure luſte go thorowe it. Let euery one of you be partaker of oure volupteouſneſſe. Let vs leue ſome token of our pleaſure in euery place, for ẏ is oure porciō, els get we nothyng. Let vs oppreſſe the poore ⁊ ryghteous: Let vs not ſpare ẏ wyddowe nor olde man let vs not regarde the heades that are gray for age. Let the lawe of vnryghteouſneſſe be oure auctoritie, for ẏ thynge ẏ is feble is nothyng worth. Therefore let vs defraude the ryghteous: and why? he is not for oure profyte: yea, he is cleane cōtrarye to oure doynges. He checketh vs for offendynge agaynſte ẏ lawe, ⁊ ſlaundreth vs as tranſgreſſoures of al nurtoure. He maketh hys boo C ſte to haue ẏ knowlege of GOD: yea he calleth hym ſelfe GODS ſonne. He is ẏ bewraier of our thoughtes: It greueth vs alſo to looke vpon hym, for hys lyfe is not lyke other mens, hys wayes are of another facion. He counteth vs but vayne perſons, he wyth draweth hym ſelf from oure wayes as frō fylthynes, he commendeth greatlye the latter end of ẏ iuſt, ⁊ maketh hys booſt that GOD is hys father. Let vs ſe then yf his wordes be true, let vs proue what ende he ſhal haue. For yf he be the true ſonne of GOD, he wyll receaue hym: ⁊ delyuer hym from the handes of hys enemyes. Let vs examin hym with diſpiteful re D buke and tormentynge, that we maye knowe hys dignitye and proue his pacience. Let vs condemne hym wyth mooſt ſhamfull death: for lyke as he hath ſpoken, ſo ſhall he be rewarded.

Suche thynges do ẏ vngodly imagin ⁊ go aſtraye, for theyr owne wyckedneſſe hath blynded them. As for the miſteries of GOD they vnderſtāde thē not: they nether hoope for the reward of ryghteouſneſſe, nor regarde the worſhyp that holy ſoules ſhall haue. For GOD creatid man to be vndeſtroyed: yea, after ẏ * image of hys owne lykeneſſe made he hym. Neuertheleſſe, thorowe enuy of the deuell, came death into ẏ worlde: and they that holde of hys ſyde do as he doth.

The iij. Chapter.

¶ The conuerſacion and aſſuraunce of the ryghteous. The rewarde of the faythful.

But the ſoules of the ryghteous are in the hand of GOD A and the payne of death ſhal not touche them. In ẏ ſyghte of the vnwyſe they appeared to dye, ⁊ theyr ende is taken for very deſtruction. The waye of the ryghteous is iudged to be vtter deſtructiō, but they are in reſte. And though they ſuffer payne before men, yet is theyr hope full of immortalitye. They are puniſhed but in fewe thynges, neuertheleſſe, in manye thynges ſhall they be well rewarded. For GOD proueth them, ⁊ findeth them mete for hym ſelfe: yea, as the golde in the fornace, doth he trye them: ⁊ receaueth them as a burnt offrynge, ⁊ when the time cōmeth, they ſhalbe loked vpō. B

The ryghteous ſhall ſhyne as the ſparkes that runne thorowe the red buſhe. They ſhall Iudge the nacions, and haue dominion ouer the people, ⁊ their LORDE ſhall raygne for euer. They that put theyr truſte in hym, ſhall vnderſtande the truth, and ſuche as be faythfull, wyll agre vnto hym in loue: for hys choſen ſhall haue gyftes ⁊ peace. But the vngodlye ſhalbe punyſhed accordyng to theyr imaginacions, for they haue diſpiſed the ryghteous: and forſaken the LORDE.

Whoſo diſpiſeth wyſedome and nurtour he is vnhappye: C and as for ẏ hoope of ſuche, it is but vayne: theyr laboures vnfrutefull, and theyr workes vnprofytable. Theyr wyues are vndyſcrete, and theyr chyldrē mooſte vngodlye.

lye. Theyr creature is curſed. Bleſſed is rather the barrẽ ⁊ vndefyled, whych hath not knowne ẏ ſynfull bed: ſhe ſhal haue fruyte in the reward of the holy ſoules. And bleſſed is the gelded, wyche wͭ his handes hathe wroughte no vnrighteouſneſſe, nor imagined wycked thiges a gaynſte GOD. For vnto hĩ ſhalbe geuẽ the ſpeciall gyfte of fayth, ⁊ ẏ moſte acceptable porcion in the temple of GOD. For glorious is ẏ fruite of good laboure, ⁊ the roote of wyſedome ſhall neuer fade awaye.

As for ẏ chyldren of aduouteres, they ſhal come to an ende, ⁊ ẏ ſeed of an vnrighteouſbed ſhalbe rooted out. And though they lyue long, yet ſhall they be nothynge regarded, ād theyr laſte age ſhalbe wythoute honoure. Yf they dye haſtyle, they haue no hope, nether ſhall they be ſpoken to in the daye of knowlege. For horrible is the death and ende of the vnrighteous,

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ Of the chaſte generacion of the faythfull/and of theyr felicite. Of the death of the ryghteous, and of the condemnacion of the vnfaythfull.

O How fayre is a chaſte generacion wͭ vertue: The memorial thereof is immortal, for it is knowen with GOD ⁊ wyth men. When it is preſente, mẽ take exāple therat, ād if it go away, yet they deſire it. It is alway crowned ⁊ holden in honoure, ⁊ winneth ẏ rewarde of the vndefyled battayle. B But the multitude of vngodly childrẽ is vnprofitable: and the thynges ẏ are plāted wͭ whoredome ſhall take no depe rote, nor laye any faſt fundacion. Thoughe they be grene in ẏ braunches for a tyme, yet they ſhalbe ſhakẽ wͭ the wynd: for they ſtand not faſt, ⁊ thorowe ẏ vehemencie of ẏ wynde they ſhalbe roted out. For ẏ vnperfect braũches ſhalbe brokẽ, theyr frute ſhalbe vnprofitable ⁊ ſower to eat: yee, mete for nothyng. And why? al ẏ chyldrẽ ẏ are borne of wycked, muſt beare recorde of ẏ wyckedneſſe agaynſte their fathers and mothers when thei be aſked. C But thoughe ẏ ryghteous be ouertaken wyth death, yet ſhall he be in reſte.

Age is an honourable thyng: neuertheles it ſtandyth not onelye in ẏ lẽgth of tyme, nor in the multitude of yeares: but a mans wyſedome is the graye heare, and an vndefyled lyfe is the olde age. He pleaſed GOD, and was beloued of him: ſo that where as he lyued amonge ſynners, he tranſlated hym. * yea, ſodenlye was he taken awaye, to ẏ intẽte ẏ wyckedneſſe ſhulde not alter hys vnderſtāding, and that hypocriſie ſhulde not begyle hys ſoule. For the craftye bewytchynge of lyes make good thynges darke, the vnſtedfaſtneſſe alſo and wyckedneſſe of volupteous deſire, turne aſyde the vnderſtandynge of the ſimple. Thought he was ſoone dead, yet fulfylled he muche tyme. For his ſoule pleaſed GOD: therefore haſted he to take hym away from amonge ẏ wicked. Thys the people ſe, ⁊ vnderſtāde it not: they lay not vp ſuch thynges in theyr hertes, howe that the louynge fauoure and mercye of GOD is vpon hys ſayntes, aud that he hath reſpecte vnto hys choſen.

Gene.5.c.

C Thus the ryghteous that is deade, contemneth the vngodly wyche are lyuynge: and the youth that is ſoune broughte to an ende, the longe lyfe of the vnryghteous. For they ſe the ende of ẏ wyſe, but they vnderſtande not what GOD hath deuyſed for hym, ⁊ wherefore the LORDE hath taken hym awaye. And why? they ſe hym and diſpiſe hym, therfore ſhal GOD alſo laugh them to ſcorne: So ẏ they them ſelues ſhall dye heareafter (but withoute honoure) yea in ſhame amõge the deade for euermoare. For wythoute anye voyce ſhall he burſte thoſe ẏ be pufte vp, ⁊ remoue thẽ from ẏ fundacions, ſo ẏ they ſhalbe layde waſte vnto the hygheſte. They ſhall mourne, ⁊ theyr memoriall ſhall periſhe. So they beynge afrayde, ſhall remember theyr ſynnes: and theyr owne wyckedneſſe ſhall bewraye them.

The v. Chapter.

¶ The conſtauntneſſe of ryghteous before theyr perſecuters. The hope of the vnfaythfull is vndurable ād vayne. The bleſſedneſſe of the ſaynctes ād godlie

A Then ſhall the ryghteous ſtand in great ſteadfaſteneſſe agaynſte ſuche as haue dealt extreamely wythe them, and taken awaye theyr laboures. When they ſe it, they ſhalbe vexed with horible feare, and ſhall wondre at the haſtineſſe of the ſodayne health: gronynge for very deſtreſſe of mynde, ⁊ ſhall ſaye wythin them ſelues, hauynge inwarde ſorowe, and mournynge for verye anguyſhe of mynd. These are they, whō we ſomtime had in diriſion, ⁊ ieſted vpō. We fooles thought theyr life very madnys: ⁊ their ende to be wythout honour. But lo, howe they are coūted among yͤ chyldrē of GOD, ⁊ theyr porcion is among yͤ ſayncts. Therfore we haue erred frō yͤ way of truth, yͤ lyght of righteouſneſſe hath ſhyned vnto vs, ⁊ the Sunne of vnderſtandyng roſe not vpō vs. We haue weryed oure ſelues in yͤ waye of wyckedneſſe and deſtruction. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but as for the waye of the LORDE we haue not knowne it.

What good hath oure pryd done vnto B vs? Or what profyte hath the pompe of richeſſe broughte vs? All thoſe thynges are paſſed awaye lyke a ſhadowe, ⁊ as a meſſenger runnynge before: as a ſhyppe that paſſeth ouer the waues of the watyr, whych when it is gone by, yͤ trace therof cannot befounde, nether yͤ path of it in the floudes. Or as a byrde that flyeth thorowe in yͤ ayre, ⁊ no mā can ſe any token where ſhe is flowen, but onely heare yͤ noyſe of her wynges, beatynge the lyght wynde, partynge the ayre thorowe the vehemēcie of her goynge, ⁊ flyeth on ſhaking her wiges, where as afterwarde no token of her waye can be founde. Or as whē an arowe is ſhot at a marke it parteth yͤ ayer, whych immediatly commeth together agayne, ſo yͤ a man can not knowe where it went thorowe. Euen ſo nowe in lyke maner as ſone as we were borne, begāne immediatly to drawe to oure end, ⁊ haue ſhewed no token of vertue, but are cōſumed in our owne wyckedneſſe.

Suche wordes ſhall they that haue ſynned ſpeake in the hell: for the hoope of the vngodlye is lyke a drye thyſtle C floure (or duſte) that is blowne awaye wyth yͤ wynde: lyke a thyne ſcome that is ſcatered abroade wyth the ſtorme, lyke as the ſmooke whyche is diſperſed heare and there wyth the wynde, and as the remembraunce of a ſtraunger, that taryethe for a daye, and then depateth. But the ryghteous ſhall lyue for euermoare: theyr rewarde alſo is with the LORDE: and theyr remembraunce with the Hygheſte. Therfore ſhall they receaue a glorious kyngedome, and a bewtyefull crowne of the LORDES hande: for wyth hys ryghte hande ſhall he couer them: and wyth hys owne holye arme, ſhal he defende them. Hys gelouſye alſo ſhall take awaye the harneſſe, and he ſhall weapon the creatur to be aduenged of the enemies. He ſhall put on ryghteouſneſſe for a breſtplate, and take ſure Iudgemente in ſteade of an helmete. The inuincible ſhylde of equite ſhall he take, hys cruele wrathe ſhal he ſharpen for a ſpeare, and the whole compaſſe of the worlde, ſhal fyghte wᵗ hym agaynſte the vnwyſe.

Then ſhall the thonderboltes go oute of the lyghtnynges, and come out of the raygne bowe of the cloudes to the D place appoynted: out of the harde ſtony indignacion, there ſhall fal thycke hayles, and the water of yͤ ſee ſhalbe wroth agaynſt them, and the floudes ſhal rūne roughly together. yea, a myghty wynde ſhall ſtande vp agaynſt thē, and a ſtorme ſhall ſcater them abroade. Thus the vnrighteous dealyng of thē, ſhall brynge all the land to a wylderneſſe, and wyckedneſſe ſhall ouerthrowe the dwellynges of the myghtye.

The vj. Chapter.

¶ The callynge of Kynges, Princes and iudges: which are alſo exhorted to ſearch wyſdome.

A WYSEdome is better then ſtrength, ⁊ a man of vnderſtandynge is more worth then one that is ſtronge. Heare therfore (O ye kynges) ⁊ vnderſtande: O learne ye that be Iudges of the endes of yͤ earth. Geue eare ye that rule the multitudes, and delite in much people. For yͤ power is geuen you of the LORD, and the ſtrength from the Hygheſt: whych ſhall trye your workes, and ſearche oute your imaginacions: Howe that ye beyng officers of hys kyngdome haue not executed true Iudgemente, haue not kepte yͤ lawe of ryghteouſneſſe, nor walked after the wil of GOD. B Horrible, and that ryghte ſone ſhall he appeare vnto you: for an hard iudgemente ſhall they haue that beare rule. Mercye is graunted vnto the ſimple, but they that be in auctorite ſhalbe ſore puniſhed. For GOD whych is LORDE ouer all, ſhall excepte nomans perſon, neyther ſhall he ſtande in awe of anye mans greatneſſe. For he hath made the ſmal ⁊ greate, ⁊ careth for al like. But yͤ myghtie ſhal haue yͤ ſorer puniſhemēte Unto you therfore (O ye kynges do I ſpeake that ye maye learne wyſedome, and not go amyſſe. For they that kepe hys ryghteouſneſſe, ſhalbe ryghteouſlye Judged, ād they that are learned in ryghteous thynges, ſhall fynde to make anſwere. Wherefore, ſet youre luſt vpon my wordes, and loue them, ſo ſhall ye come by nurtoure.

Wyſedome is a noble thynge and neuer fadethe awaye: yea, ſhe is eaſelye ſene of them that loue her, and foūde of ſuch as ſeke her, ſhe preuenteth thē yͭ deſire her, yͭ ſhe maye fyrſte ſhewe her ſelfe vnto thē. Whoſo awaketh vnto her by tymes, ſhal haue no greate trauayle for he ſhall fynde her ſyttinge readye at dores his. To thyncke vpon her, is perfect vnderſtādynge: ⁊ who ſo watcheth for her, ſhalbe ſafe: ⁊ that ſone. For ſhe goeth about, ſekynge ſuch as are mete for her, ſheweth her ſelfe cherfully vnto them in theyr goynges, and meteth thē wyth al diligence. For the vnfayned deſire of reformacion is her begynninge: to care for nurtour is loue, and loue is the kepyng of her lawes. Now the kepyng of the law is perfection, ⁊ an vncorrupt lyf: and an vncorrupt lyfe maketh a mā familier wyth GOD. And ſo yͤ deſire of wyſedome leadeth to yͤ kyngedome euerlaſtyng. yf youre delyte be then in royall ſeates and ſepters (O ye kynges of yͤ people) ſet youre luſte vpō wyſedome, yͭ ye maye raygne for euermore. O loue the lyghte of wyſedome, all ye that be rulers of yͤ people. As for wyſdome, what ſhe is, ⁊ howe ſhe came vp, I wyll tell you: and wyll not hyde yͤ miniſteries of GOD from you: but will ſeke her oute from the begynnynge of the natiuitie and brynge the knoulege of her into lighte, ⁊ wyll not kepe backe the truthe: Neyther wyll I haue to do wyth cōſumynge enuye, for ſuche a mā ſhal not be partaker of wyſedome. But the multitude of the wyſe, is the welfare of the worlde, and a wyſe kynge is the vpholdynge of the people. O receaue nurtoure then thorowe my wordes, and it ſhall do you good.

Wyſedome oughte to be preferred aboue al thīges.

I MY ſelfe am alſo a mortall man, lyke as all other, and am come of the earthye generaciō of hym that was fyrſte made, A and in my mothers wombe was I facioned to be fleſh: In the tyme of ten monethes was I broughte together in bloude thorowe the ſeede of man, and yͤ commodious appetite of ſlepe. When I was borne I receaued lyke ayre as other men, ⁊ fell vpon the earth (whych is my nature) cryinge and weping at yͤ fyrſt as al other do. I was wrapped in ſwadling clothes, and brought vp with greate cares. For there is no king that had any other begynnyng of byrth. All men thē haue one entraunce vnto lyfe, and one goynge oute in lyke maner.

B Wherefore I deſired, ⁊ vnderſtāding was geuen me: I called and the ſpirite of wyſedome came vnto me. I ſet more by her, then by kyngedomes and royall ſeates, and counted rycheſſe nothynge in compariſon of her. As for precious ſtone I compared it not vnto her: for al golde is but grauell vnto her, ⁊ ſyluer ſhalbe conted but clay before her ſight. I loued her a boue welfare ⁊ bewtye, ⁊ purpoſed to take her for my lyght, for her lyght can not be queuched. All good thynges come to me wyth her, ⁊ innumerable rycheſſe thorowe her handes. I was glad in thē all, for thys wyſedome wente before me, and I knew not yͭ ſhe is yͤ mother of al good thynges. Nowe as I my ſelfe learned vnfaynedlye, ſo do I make other men partakers of her, ⁊ hyde her richeſſe frō nomā: for ſhe is an infinite treaſure vnto men, which who ſo vſe, become partakers of yͤ loue ād frendſhyppe of GOD, ⁊ are accepted vnto hym for the gyftes of wyſedome.

C God hath graunted me to talke wyſelye, ⁊ conueniently to handle yͤ thynges that he hathe graciouſlye lēte me. For it is he, yͭ leadeth vnto wyſdome, ⁊ teacheth to vſe wyſedome aryghte. In hys hande are both we and oure wordes: yea, al our wyſdome, our vnderſtādyng and knowlege of al our worckes. For he hath geuen me the true ſcience of theſe thinges, ſo that I knowe, howe the worlde was made, and yͤ powers of the elementes: the begynnynge, endynge, ⁊ myddeſte of the tymes: howe the tymes alter, howe one goeth after another, and howe they are fulfilled: yͤ courſe of the yeare: the oꝛdinaunces of the ſtarres:the nature ⁊ kyndes of beaſtes:the furiouſneſſe of beaſtes: the power of yͤ wyndes: yͤ imaginacions of men:yͤ diuerſities of yong plantes:the vertues of rootes, ⁊ all ſuche thynges as are ſecrete and loked foꝛ,haue I learned. D Foꝛ yͤ woꝛckemaſter of all thynges hath taught me wyſdom. In her is the ſpirite of vnderſtandynge whych is hoyle,manyfolde,one onely,ſubtyl,curteous,diſcrete,quicke,vndefyled,playne, ſwete, louing that is good, ſharpe, whyche foꝛbyddeth not to do well, gentyle,kynde,ſtedfaſt,ſure, fre,hauige all vertues, circumſpecte in all thynges: receauinge all ſpirites of vnderſtandinge,beinge cleane and ſharpe. Foꝛ wyſdome is nymbler then all nymble thynges:ſhe goeth thoꝛowe and attayneth to all thynges becauſe of her cleaneſſe. Foꝛ ſhe is yͤ bꝛethe of yͤ power of GOD and a pure cleane expꝛeſſynge of the clearneſſe of Almyghtye GOD. Therfoꝛe can no vndefiled thynge come vnto her foꝛ ſhe is the bꝛynghteneſſe of the euerlaſtynge lyghte,the vndefyled myꝛoure of yͤ maieſtye of GOD, ⁊ yͤ image of hys goodneſſe. E And foꝛ ſo muche as ſhe is one ſhe maye do all thiges,⁊ beynge ſtedfaſt her ſelfe, ſhe renued all:and among yͤ people conuayeth her ſelfe into yͤ holye ſoules, She maketh GODS frendes ād Pꝛophetes:foꝛ GOD loueth nomā but him in whome wiſdome dwelleth. Foꝛ ſhe is moare bewtyfull then yͤ Sūne, and geueth moꝛe lyghte thē the ſtarres,and the daye is not to be compared vnto her: foꝛ vpon the daye commeth nyght. But wyckedneſſe cannot ouercome wyſdome:and folyſheneſſe maye not be wyth her.

Wyſedome reacheth frome one ende to another mightely, A and louyngely doth ſhe oder all thinges. I haue loued her,and laboured foꝛ her,euen from my youth vp: I dyd my diligence to marye my ſelfe wyth her, ſuche loue had I vnto her bewtie. Who ſo hath yͤ companye of GOD, commendeth her nobilitie:yea, the LORDE of all thynges,hym ſelfe loueth her. Foꝛ ſhe is the ſcolemaſtreſſe of yͤ nourtoure of GOD and the choſer oute of hys woꝛckes. yf a man wolde deſiꝛe rycheſſe in thys lyfe,what is rycher then wyſdome, that woꝛcketh all thinges? Thou wylte ſaye:vnderſtandynge woꝛcketh. What is B it amonge all thynges, yͭ woꝛketh moare then wyſedome? yf a man loue vertue aud righteouſneſſe,let him laboure foꝛ wyſdome, foꝛ ſhe hath greate vertues. And why? ſhe teachech ſoberneſſe pꝛudēce,ryghteouſneſſe, and ſtrength: whyche are ſuch thynges as men can haue nothinge moꝛe pꝛofitable in their lyfe. Yf a man deſire muche knowlege, ſhe can tell the thynges that are paſte, and dyſcerne thynges foꝛ to come: ſhe knowethe the ſubtiltes of woꝛdes, and can expounde darcke ſentences. She can tell of tokens,and wonderous thiges oꝛ euer thy come to paſſe,and yͤ endes of all times ⁊ ages. So I purpoſed after thys maner: I will take her vnto my company, and comune louyngely with her:no doubte, ſhe ſhall geue me good counſayle,and ſpeake comfoꝛtably vnto me in my carefulneſſe ⁊ greefe. Foꝛ her ſake ſhall I be well and honeſtly taken amonge the commens ād loꝛdes of the counſayle. Thought I be yong,yet ſhal I haue ſharpe vnderſtādynge, ſo yͭ I ſhalbe meruelous in the C ſyghte of great men,⁊ the faces of pꝛinces ſhall wonder at me: when I holde my tonge, they ſhall abyde my lyſure: when I ſpeake,they ſhal loke vpon me: ād if I talke much,they ſhal laye theyꝛ handes vpon theyꝛ mouth.

Moꝛoeuer,by yͤ meanes of her I ſhal obtayne immoꝛtalite, ⁊ leaue behīd me an euerlaſtynge memoꝛiall amoge thē yͭ come after me. I ſhall ſet the people in oꝛder, ⁊ the nacious ſhalbe ſubdued vnto me. Hoꝛrible tyrauntes ſhalbe afrayde when they do but heare of me, amonge the multitude I ſhalbe counted good,⁊ myghtye in battayle. When I come home,I ſhall fynde reſte wyth her:foꝛ her companye hath no bytterneſſe,and her feloweſhippe hath no tediouſneſſe, but myꝛthe and ioye.

Nowe when I conſidꝛed theſe thynges by my ſelfe,and pōdꝛed them in my herte,howe that to be ioyned vnto wyſedome is immoꝛtalitie,and greate pleaſure to haue her frendeſhyppe, howe yͭ in the woꝛckes of her handes are infinitie richeſſe:howe that,who ſo kepeth company with her ſhalbe wyſe, ⁊ that he whyche talketh wyth her, ſhal come to honoure: I went a bout ſekyng, to gather her vnto me: For I was alad of arype wyt, ⁊ had agood vnderſtandig Bnt whē I grewe to more vnderſtādinge I came to an vndefyled bodye. Neuertheleſſe, whē I perceaued yͭ I coulde not kepe mi ſelfe chaſte, except GOD gaue it me, (⁊ yͭ was a pointe of wyſdome alſo) to knowe whoſe gyfte it was I ſtepped vnto the LORDE: ⁊ beſought hym and wyth my whole hert I ſayd after this maner.

The.xi.Chapter.

¶The myracles done for Iſrael. The vengeaunce of ſinners. The greate power and mercye of God.

A Exod.1 She ordred theyr workes in yͤ hādes of thy holye Prophete * ſo that thei wente thorowe the wyldernes that was not inhabited, and pytched theyr tentes in the waſte deſerte. They ſtode agaynſte theyr enemies, and were auenged of theyr aduerſaries. Exodi.7 Num.1 * When they were thryſtye, they called vpon the, and water was geuen them oute of the moſt hye rocke, and theyr thryſte was quenched oute of the harde ſtoone. For by yͤ thynges, were with theyr enemies were puniſhed, were the chyldren of Iſrael helped in theyr nede to theyr comforte. For vnto the enemies thou gaueſte mans bloude in ſteade of liuinge water. And where as they ſuſtayned ſcarneſſe, & rebuke, when yͤ chyldren were ſlayne, thou gaueſt vnto thyne owne a plenteous water vnloked for: declaryng by yͤ thirſte (yͤ was at yͤ tyme) howe thou woldeſt bryng thyne owne vnto honoure, & ſlaye theyr aduerſaries.

B Deu. *For when they were tryed and nortured wͭ fatherly mercye, they knowledged how the vngodly were iudged, ād puniſhed thorowe yͤ wrath of GOD These haſt thou exhorted as a father, & proued them: but vnto the other thou haſte bene a boyſterous kynge, layde harde to theyr charge, and condēpned them. Whether they were abſente or preſente, theyr puniſhemente was alyke. For theyr grefe was double: namely, mournynge, and the remembraunce of thynges paſt. But when they perceaued that theyr puniſhemētes dyd thē good, they thoughte vppon the LORD, and wondered at the ende. For at the laſt they helde much of hym, of whome in the outcaſting they thought ſcorne, as of an abiect. Neuertheleſſe, the righteous dyd not ſo when they were thryſtie: but euen lyke as the thoughtes of the folyſhe were, ſo was alſo theyr wyckednes C Sap Ro * Where as certayne men nowe (thorowe erroure) dyd worſhyp dome ſerpentes and vayne beaſtes thou ſendeſt a multitude of dome beaſtes vpon them for a vengaunce, yͤ thei myghte knowe, that loke where whithal a man ſynneth by the ſame alſo ſhal he be puniſhed. Neuertheles thou ſparedeſt them alſo (as men) and ſendeſt the forerũners of thyne hooſt euen hornettes to deſtroye them out by lytle ⁊ lytle. Not yͭ thou waſt vnhable to ſubdue the vngodly vnto the ryghteous in battaile: or with cruel beaſtes, or wᵗ one though or worde to deſtroye them together: * But thy mynde was to dryue them oute by lytle ⁊ lytle, geuynge them tyme and place to amende: knowinge well, that it was an vnrighteous nacion, ⁊ wycked of nature ⁊ yͭ theyr thoughte mighte neuer be altered. For it was a curſed ſede frõ yͤ begynnige ⁊ feared noman. Yet haſt thou pardoned theyr ſynnes. For who wyll ſaye vnto the: why haſte thou done that? Or who wyll ſtande agaynſte thy iudgemente? 1.Pet.5.a

For ſo muche then as thou arte ryghteous they ſelfe, thou ordreſt all thynges ryghteouſlye * and to puniſhe hym yͭ hath not deſerued to be puniſhed thu takeſt it for a ſtrannge and aliene thynge in thy lande ⁊ power. For thy power is the begynnynge of ryghteouſneſſe: and becauſe thou arte LORDE of all thynges, therefore arte thou gracious vntto all.

Iob,9.a

When men thyncke the not to be of a full ſtrẽgthe thou declraieſt thy power and boldly delyuereſt thou them ouer yͭ knowe the not. But thou LORDE of power iudgeſt quietly, and ordreſte vs wyth greate worſhyppe, for thou mayeſt do as thou wylte.

D By ſuch worckes nowe haſte thou taughte thy people, yͭ a man alſo ſhulde be iuſte and louynge: and haſte made thy chyldren to be of a good hope: for euen when thou iudgeſte, thou geueſt rowme to amende from ſynnes.

For in ſo much as thou haſt puniſhed and wyth ſuch diligence delyuered the enemyes of thy ſeruauntes, whiche were worthye to die, (where thorowe thu gaueſt them tyme and place of a mendemēt that they myght turne from theyr wyckednes) with howe greate diligēce then puniſheſt thou thyne owne childrē vnto whoſe fathers thou haſte ſworne and made couenauntes of good promiſes: So where as thou doeſt but chaſten vs, thou puniſheſt oure enemies diuerſe waies, to the intent that when we puniſh we ſhuld remēber thy goodnes: and when we our ſelues are puniſhed to put our truſt in thy mercy.

Wherefore, where as men haue lyued E ignorauntly and vnrighteouſly thou Sapl.11.c. Roma.1.c haſt puniſhed them ſore, euen thorowe the ſame thynges yͭ they worſhypped * For they went aſtraye very longe in yͤ waye of erroure, and helde the beaſtes (whych euen theyr enemyes diſpiſed) for good lyuyng, as chyldren of no vnderſtandyng. Therfore haſt thou ſent a ſcornefull puniſhemente a monge the chyldren of ignoraunce. As for ſuch as wold not be refourmed by thoſe ſcornes and rebukes, they felt the worthy punyſhemente of GOD. For the thynges that they ſuffered they bare them vnpaciently, beinge not contente in thē but vnwyllynge. And when they periſhed by yͤ ſame thynges that they toke for goddes, they knowleged then, yͭ there was but one true GOD whome afore they wolde not knowe: therefore came yͤ ende of theyr dāpnacion vpon thē

The xiij. Chapter.

¶ All thynges be vayne / excepte the knowlege of GOD, Idolatres and Idols are moked.

A Roma.1.b, Vayne are al mē, whyche haue not knowlege of GOD ‡ as were they that out of the good thynges whych are ſene, knewe not hym yͭ of hi ſelfe is euerlaſtig. Nether toke they ſo much regarde of the workes yͭ are made, as to knowe, who was the crafteſman of thē but ſome toke yͤ fyre, ſome yͤ wynd or ayre, ſome yͤ courſe of yͤ ſtarres ſome yͤ water, ſome toke Sūne ⁊ Mone, or yͤ lyghtes of heauen whyche rule yͤ earth for gods. But thought they had ſuch pleaſure i theyr bewtye, yͭ they thoughte thē to haue bene goddes yet ſhulde they haue knowen, howe muche more fayrer heis that made them.

For the maker of bewty hath ordeyned al theſe thynges. Or yf they meruayled at the power and worckes of them B they ſhuld haue perceaued ther by, yͭ he whych made theſe thinges, is myghtyer then they. For by yͤ greatneſſe ⁊ bewte of the creature, yͤ maker thereof maye playnelye be knowen. Notwythſtandynge they are the leſſe to be blamed, that ſeke GOD, and wolde fynd hym ⁊ yet myſſe. And why: for ſo much as they go aboute in hys worckes and ſecke after them, it is a tokē, that they regarde and holde muche of his worckes yͭ are ſene, howebeit they are not wholy to be excuſed. For yf theyr vnderſtādynge ⁊ knowlege be ſo greate: yͭ they can deſerne the worlde and the creatures, why do they not rather fynde oute the LORDE thereof.

But vnhappye are they, and a monge yͤ dead is theyr hope, that cal thē gods which are but the worckes of mens hādes: golde, ſyluer, and the thynge that is founde out by connynge, the ſimilitude of beaſtes, or any vayne ſtone that hathe bene made by the hande of olde.* Eſ.4 Iere. Or as when a carpenter cutteth downe a tre out of the woode, and pareth of the barcke of it connyngly: and ſo wͭ the one parte maketh a veſſel to be vſed and dreſſeth meat with the reſydue. As for the other parte that is profitable for nothyng (for it is a croked peace of wod and full of knobes) he carueth it C diligentlye thorowe his vanyte, and accordyng to the knowlege of his cōning he geueth it ſome proporcion, facioneth it after yͤ ſimilitud of a man, or maketh it like ſome beaſt, ſtraketh it ouer wͭ red ⁊ paynteth it, ⁊ loke what foule ſpotte is in it he caſte ſome coloure vpon it.

Then maketh he a conuenient tabernacle for it, D ſetteth it in wall, ⁊ maketh it faſt with yron, prouiding ſo for it, leſt it happen to fall: for it is well knowen, yͭ it can not helpe it ſelfe: And why: it is but an Image, and muſt of neceſſite be helped. Then goeth he ⁊ offereth of his goodes vnto it, for hys chyldren, ⁊ for his wyfe: he ſeketh helpe at it, he aſketh counſell at it: he is not aſhamed to ſpeake vnto it that hathe no ſoule: for health, he maketh petició vnto hym yͭ is ſyke: for lyfe, he prayeth vnto him that is dead he calleth vpon hi for helpe yͭ is not hable to helpe him ſelfe: & to ſēde hi a good iourneye, he praieth him yͭ maye not goo. And in all yͤ thynges yͭ he taketh in hande (whether it be to optayne anye thyng or to worke) he prayeth vnto hym, yͭ can do no maner of good.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

¶The deteſtacion and abominacion of images. A curſe of them/and of hym that maketh them. The euilles that come of Idolatrie.

AGaine, another mā purpoſyng to ſayle, & begynnynge to take hys iournye thorowe yͤ ragyn ſee, calleth for helpe vnto a ſtocke yͭ is farre weaker thē the tree that beareth hym. For as for it, couetouſnes of monye hath founde it oute, and the crafteſman made it wyth hys conninge.

But thy prouidence, O father gouerneth all thynges from the begynnynge for thou haſte made awaye in the ſee, and a ſure path in the myddeſt of yͤ waues: declarynge thereby that thou haſt power to helpe in all thinges, yea though a man wente to yͤ ſee wythout ſhippe. Neuertheleſſe, that the worckes of thy wyſdome ſhuld not be vayne, *thu haſt cauſed an Arke to be made: & therfore do men cōmit theyr lyues to a ſmale peace of woode, paſſynge ouer the ſee in a ſhyppe, and are ſaued.

*For in the old tyme alſo when yͤ proude gyauntes periſhed, he (in whome yͤ hope was lefte to increaſe the worlde) wēte into the ſhip wich was gouerned thorowe thy hande, and ſo lefte ſeede behynde hym vnto the worlde, For happye is the tree where thorowe ryghteouſnes cōmeth: but curſed is yͤ idol yͭ is made wͭ handes, *yea both it & he yͭ made it. He becauſe be made it, & it becauſe it was called good, where as it is but a frayle thing. *For yͤ vngodly & his vngodlynes are bothe lyke abominable vnto GOD. Euē ſo the worcke and he yͭ made it alſo ſhalbe puniſhed together. Therefore ſhall a plage come vpon the Idolles of the Heathen: for out of the creatures of GOD they are become abominacion, a temptacion vnto the ſoules of men, and a ſnare for the fete of yͤ vnwyſe. And why: the ſekynge out of Idolles is yͤ beginynge of whoredome and the bryngyng vp of them is the deſtruction of lyfe. For they were not frō the begynnyng, nether ſhal they continue for euer. The welthi Idelnes of mē hath founde them out vpon earth, therfore ſhall they come ſhortly to an ende When a father mourned for hys ſonne that was taken a waye from hym, he made hym an Image in al the haſt of hys dead ſonne: and ſo beganne to worſhyppe hym as a god, which was but a dead man, and ordeyned hys ſeruauntes to offer vnto hym. Thus by proces of tyme and thorow an vngracious cuſtome, thys errour was kept as a lawe and tyrauntes compelled men by violence to honoure images. As for thoſe that were ſo farre of, that men myghte not worſhippe them preſētly, theyr picture was brought from farre lyke the image of a kynge whome they wolde honoure to the intente that wyth greate diligence they myghte worſhyppe hym whych was farre of, as though he had bene preſente.

Agayne the ſynguler connyng of the crafteſman gaue the ignoraunte alſo a greate occaſion to worſhyppe images. For yͤ worckeman wyllynge to do hym a pleaſure that ſet hym a worcke, laboured wyth all hys connynge to make yͤ image of the beſt facion. And ſo (thorowe the bewtie of the worcke) the commen people was deceaued, in ſo much that they toke hym nowe for a GOD, whych a lytle afore was but honored B as a man. And thys was yͤ erroure of mās life, when men ether for to ſerue theyr owne affection, or to do ſome pleaſure vnto yͤ kinges aſcribed vnto ſtones & ſtockes the name of GOD, whych oughte to begeuen vnto no man.

Moreouer, this was not ynought for them yͭ they erred in the knowlege of GOD: but where as they lyued in greate warres of ignoraunce, thoſe many & great plages called they peace. For ether *they ſlue theyr owne chyldren, & offered them, or did ſacrifice in yͤ night ſeaſon or els helde vnreaſonable watches: ſo yͭ they kepte nether lyfe nor mariage cleane: but ether one ſlue another to death maliciouſlye, or elles greued his neighboure wͭ aduoutrie. And thus were al thiges myxte together, bloude māſlaughter, thefte, diſſimulacion, corruptiō, vnfaithfulneſſe, ſediciō, periurei diſquietige of god mē, vnthāckfulneſſe defylynge of ſoules, chaungynge of byrthe, vnſtedfaſtneſſe of maryage, myſorder of aduoutrye and vnclenneſſe. And why: yͤ honouringe of abominable images is yͤ cauſe of yͤ begynnynge and ende of all euel. For they that worſhyppe Idoles: ether they be mad when they be mery, or prophecye lyes, or lyue vngodlye, or elles lyghtlye for ſweare them ſelues: For in ſo much as theyr truſte is in the Idol (whych haue nether ſoule nor vnderſtādynge) though they ſweare falſelye yet they thyncke it ſhall not hurte them.

Therefore cōmeth a great plage vppō them and that worthely, for they haue an euell opinion of GOD, geuynge hede vnto Idolles ſwearynge vniuſtlye to deceaue, and diſpiſyng ryghteouſnes. For theyr ſwearynge is no vertue but a plage of them that ſynne, and goeth euer wͭ yͤ offence of the vngodlye.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶The voyce of the faythful, prayſynge the mercye of GOD for whoſe graces ſake they ſerue not Idoles.

A BUt thou (O oure GOD arte ſwete, longe ſufferynge, and in mercye ordreſte thou all thynges. Thought we ſynne yet are we thine, for we knowe thy ſtrenght. yf we ſynne not, then are we ſure that thou regardeſt vs. For to knowe yͤ, is perfecte ryghteouſnes. yea, to knowe thy ryghteouſnes and power is the rote of immortalite. As for the thynge that men haue founde out thorowe theyr euell ſciēce, it hath not diſceaued vs as the payntyng of the picture (an vnprouitable labour) and carued image, wyth diuers coloures, whoſe ſight entyſeth the ignoraunte: ſo that he honoureth ⁊ loueth the picture of a deade image that hath no ſoule.

Neuertheleſſe, they yͭ loue ſuch euell B thynges, are worthye of yͤ death: they yͭ truſt in thē, they yͭ make thē, they yͭ loue thē, ⁊ they yͭ honoure thē. The potter alſo taketh ⁊ tēpereth ſofte earth, laboureth it, ⁊ geueth it the facion of a veſſel, whatſoeuer ſerueth for oure vſe: and ſo of one pece of claye he maketh ſome cleane veſſel for ſeruice, and ſome contrari. But where to euery veſſell ſerueth, yͭ knoweth yͤ potter hym ſelfe. So wyth hys vayne laboure he maketh a GOD of yͤ ſame claye: this doth euē he, which a lytle afore was made of earth hym ſelfe, ⁊ wythin a lytle whyle after (whē he dieth) turneth to the earthe agayne.

Notwythſtandynge, he careth not yͤ more becauſe he ſhall laboure, nor becauſe hys lyfe is ſhorte: but ſtryueth to excell goldeſmythes, the ſyluerſmithes and coperſmythes, and taketh it for an C honoure to make vayne thinges. For his herte is aſhes, his hope is but vayne earth, and hys lyfe is more vile then claye, for ſo much as he knoweth not hys owne maker, yͭ gaue hym his ſoule to worcke, ⁊ brethed in hym yͤ breth of lyfe. They counte oure lyfe but a paſtyme, and oure conuerſacion to be but a markete, and that men ſhulde euer be gettinge, and that by euel meanes. Nowe he that of earth maketh fraile veſſelles and images knoweth hym ſelfe to offende aboue al other.

All the enemies of the people that holde thē in ſubiection, are vnwyſe, vnhappye, and exceadynge proude vnto theyr owne ſoules: for they iudge all the idolles of the Heathen to be goddes, which nether haue eyeſyghte to ſe, nor noſes to ſmel, nor eares to heare, nor fingers or handes for to grope: and as for their fete, they are to ſlowe to go. For man made them, ⁊ he yͭ had but a borowed ſpirite, facioned them. But no man make a GOD lyke vnto hym: for ſeynge he is but mortall hym ſelfe, it is but mortal that he maketh wyth vnrighteous handes. He hym ſelfe is better thē they whome he worſhypped, for he lyued thoughe he was mortall ſo dyd neuer they. yea, they worſhypped beaſtes alſo, whyche are mooſte miſerable: for cōpare thynges, yͭ can not fele vnto thē, and they are worſe then thoſe.

yet is there not one of theſe beaſtes, that wyth hys ſyghte can beholde any good thynge neyther haue they geuen prayſe or thanckes vnto GOD.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶The puniſhemente of Idolatrers/and the benefites done vnto the faythfull.

FOr theſe and ſuch other thinges haue they ſuffered worthy puniſhemente and thorowe yͤ multitude of beaſtes are they roted out. In ſtead of the which puniſhemētes thou haſt graciouſly ordred thine owne people and geuen thē theyr deſire that they longed for: a newe and ſtraunge taſt, *preparing them quayles to be theyr meat: to the intent that (by the thinges which were ſhewed ⁊ ſente vnto them) they that were ſo gready of meat, myght be wythdrawen eue̅ from yͤ deſire that was neceſſarie. But theſe within ſhorte tyme were brought vnto pouerte, ⁊ taſted a newe meate. For it was requiſite yͭ without excuſe deſtruction ſhulde come vpo̅ thoſe which vſed tyrannie, ⁊ to ſhewe only vnto yͤ other howe their enemies were deſtroyed.

*For when the cruell woodneſſe of yͤ beaſtes came vpon them, they periſhed thorowe yͤ ſtynges of cruell ſerpentes. Notwithſtanding thy wrathe endured not perpetuallye, but they were put in feare for a litle ſeaſon, yͭ they myght be reformed, hauynge a token of ſaluacion, to remember the commaundeme̅te of thy lawe. For he that co̅uerted, was not healed by the thynge yͭ he ſawe, but by yͤ, O ſauioure of al. So in thys thou ſhewdeſt thine enemies, that it is thou, whych delyuereſt from all euell. As for them *when they were bytte̅ with greſhopers ⁊ flyes, they died, for they were worthy to periſh by ſuch: But neyther yͤ teth of drage̅s nor of venemous wormes ouer came thy chyldre̅, for thy mercye was euer by them, and helped them Therfore were they puniſhed to reme̅ber thy wordes, but haſtelye were they healed agayne, leſt they ſhulde fall into ſo depe forgetfulneſſe, that they mighte not vſe thy helpe. It was nether herbe nor plaſter yͭ reſtored the̅ to health, but thy worde O LORDE whyche healeth all thynges, It is thou O LORDE that haſte power of lyfe ⁊ death: *thou leadeſt vnto deathes dore, ⁊ bryngeſte vp agayne. But man thorowe wyckednes ſlayth his owne ſoule ⁊ whe̅ his ſpirite goeth forth, yt turneth not agayne, nether may he cal agayn the ſoule that is taken away. It is not poſſible to eſcape thy hande. For yͤ vngodlye that wolde not knowe the, were puniſhed by the ſtrength of thyne arme: with ſtraunge waters, hayles and raynes were they perſecuted, and thorowe fyre were they conſumed. For it was a wonderous thynge that fyre myghte do more then water whyche que̅ched al thynges but the worlde is the aduenger of the righteous. Some time was yͤ fyer ſo tame, that yͤ beaſtes whych were ſent to puniſh the vngodly, brent not: ⁊ yͭ becauſe they ſhulde ſe ⁊ knowe, that they were perſecuted wyth the puniſhemente of GOD. And ſometyme brente the fyre in D the water on euery ſyde, yͭ it myght Exo.16.d. deſtroye the vnryghteous nacion of the earth. *Agayne thou haſte fed thyne owne people wyth Angels fode, ⁊ ſente them breade redy fro̅ heauen withoute theyr laboure beynge very pleaſunt ⁊ good of taſte. And to ſhewe thy ryches and ſwetneſſe vnto thy chyldren, thou gaueſte euery one theyr deſire, ſo yͭ euery man myghte take what lyked hym beſt. But the ſnowe and yſe abode the violence of the fyre ⁊ melted not: yͭ they myghte knowe, yͭ the fyre burnynge in hayle ⁊ rayne, deſtroyed yͤ frute of yͤ enemyes: the fyer alſo forgat hys ſtrength agayne: that the ryghteous myghte be noriſhed. For the creature that ſerueth E the (whiche arte the maker) is fearſe in puniſhynge the vnryghteous, but it is eaſye and gentyle to do good vnto ſuch as put theyr truſt in the. Therfore dyd all thynges alter at the ſame tyme, and were al obedient vnto thy grace, which is the nurſe of al thynges, accordynge to the deſire of them yͭ had neade thereof: yͭ thy chyldren O LORD who̅ thu Deu.8.a. loueſte, myghte knowe, *that it is not Mat.4.a. the nature ⁊ the growynge of frutes yͭ feadeth men, but that it is thy worde, whych preſerueth them that put theyr truſte in the. For loke what might not be deſtroyed wyth yͤ fyre, as ſoone as it was warmed with a lytle ſunne beame, it melted: that all men myghte knowe that thanckes ought to be geuen vnto the before the ſunne ryſe, and that thou oughtſt to be worſhypped before a day ſpryng. For the hoope of yͤ vnthankeful ſhal melte awaye as yͤ wynter yſe and periſhe as water yͭ is not neceſſarie.

The xvij. Chapter.

¶ The iudgementes of GOD vpon the Egyptians.

GReate are *thy iudgeme̅s O B LORDE and thy counſels ca̅ Roma.11.f not be expreſſed: therfore me̅ do erre, that wyll not be refourmed wyth thy wyſedome. *For Exo.10.c. when yͤ vnrighteous thought to haue thy holy people in ſubiection, they were bounde with the bandes of darckenes, and longe nyghte, ſhut vnder the rofe, thynckynge to eſcape the euerlaſtynge wyſedome. And whyle they thoughte to be in the darckenes of theyr ſynnes, they were ſcatered abrode in the very myddyſt of the darcke couerynge of forgetfulneſſe, put to horrible feare & wonderous trouble for they had no corner where they myght kepe them frō feare because yͤ ſound came downe & vexed them: yea, many terrible and ſtraunge viſions made them afrayed.

B No power of the fyre myghte geue them lyghte, nether myght the cleare flammes of the ſtarres lyghten yͤ horrible nyght. For there appeared vnto thē a ſodayne fyre, verye dredfull. At the which (when they ſawe nothinge) they were ſo afrayde, that they thought the thyng whych they ſawe, to be the more fearefull. *As for yͤ ſorcerie & enchauntement yͤ they vſed, it came to deriſion, & the proude wyſdome was broughte to ſhame. For they that promiſed to dryue awaye the fearfulnes and drede frō the weake ſoules were ſicke for feare them ſelues, and that wyth ſcorne. And thoughe none of the wonders feared them, yet were they afrayed at the beaſtes whych came vpon them, and at the hyſſynge of the ſerpentes. In ſo much that wyth tremblynge they ſowned, & ſayde they ſawe not the ayre, whych no man yet maye eſcape. Exo.7.b.

C For it is an heuye thīge when a mās owne cōſience beareth recorde of hys wickednes & condempneth him. And whyr a vexed & woũded cōſciēce, taketh euer cruell thynges in hande.* Fearfulneſſe is nothyng els, but a declaring that a man ſeketh helpe and defence, to anſwere for hym ſelfe. And looke howe much leſſe the hoope is within, yͤ moare is the vncertaynte of the matter, for yͤ which he is puniſhed. But they that came in the myd nyghte, ſlepte the ſlepe yͤ fell vpon them from vnder and from aboue: ſometime were they afrayde thorowe the feare of the wonders, and ſometyme they were ſo weake that they ſowned withal: for an haſtye & ſodayne fearfulneſſe came vpon them. Pſal.47.a.

D Afterwarde, yf anye of them had fallen, he was kepte and ſhut in preaſon, but wythout chaynes. But yf any dwelte in a village, yf he had ben an hearde or huſbandeman, he ſuffered intollorable neceſſite: for they were all bounde wyth one chayne of darckeneſſe.

Whether it were a blaſſynge wynde, or a ſwete ſonge of the byrdes amonge yͤ thycke braunches of the trees, or the vehemēcie of haſty runninge water, or greate noyſe of the fallynge downe of ſtones, or the playinge & rūninge of beaſtes whom they ſawe not, or yͤ myghtie noyſe of roarīge beaſtes, or yͤ ſound that aunſwereth agayne in yͤ hye mountaines: it mad thē ſowne for very feare. For all the earth ſhyned wyth cleare lyghte, & no man was hyndered in hys laboure. Onelye vpon them there fell an heuye nyght, an image of darckenes that was to come vpon them. yea, they were vnto them ſelues the mooſte heauye and horrible darckeneſſe.

The xviij. Chapter.

¶ The fyre lyghte that the Iſraelites had in Egypt. The perſecution of the faythful. The LORD ſmote all the fyrſte borne of Egypt. The ſynne of the people in the wildernes. Aaron ſtode betwyxte the lyue and the dead, wyt hys cenſoure.

A Neuertheleſſe, thy ſayncte had a very great lyghte and yͤ enemies hearde their voice but they ſawe not the fygure of them. And becauſe they ſuffered not the ſame thynges they magnified yͤ: ād they yͤ were vexed afore (becauſe they were not hurte nowe) thancked yͤ, and beſought the (O GOD) yͤ there myghte be a difference. *Therfore had they a burning pyller of fyre to leade them in the vnknowen waye, and thou gaueſt them the Sunne for a fre gyfte wythout any hurte. Reaſon it was yͤ they ſhulde wante lyghte, and be put in the preiſon of darckeneſſe, whyche kept thi chyldren iu captiuite, by whome the vncorrupt lyghte of the lawe of yͤ worlde was for to be geuē. Exo.

B *Whē thei thought to ſlaye the babes of yͤ ryghteous (one beynge layde out, and preſerued to be leader vnto the other,) *thou broughteſte oute the whole multitude of the chyldren and deſtroyedeſte theſe in the myghtye water. Of yͤ nyghte were oure fathers certified afore, yͤ they knowīg vnto what othes they had geuē credēce, myghte be of good cheare. Thus thy peaple receaued yͤ health of yͤ righteous, but yͤ vngodly were deſtroyed. For lyke as thou haſte hurte oure enemies, Exod. Exod.

haſt thou promoted vs whom thou calledeſte afore. For the righteous children of the good men offered ſecretly, and ordred the lawe of righteouſnes vnto vnite: that the iuſte ſhulde receaue good and euell in lyke maner, ſyngynge prayſes vnto yͤ father of al men. Agayne, there was heard an vnconueniente voyce of yͤ enemies, ⁊ a pyteous crye for the chyldren yͭ were bewayled. The maſter and the ſeruaunte were puniſhed in lyke maner. For they altogether had innumerable yͭ died one death. *Neyther were the lyuynge ſufficiente to burye the dead, for in the twyncklyng of an eye the nobled nacion of thē was deſtroyed. As ofte as GOD helped them afore, yet wolde it not make them beleue: but in the deſtruction of the fyrſte borne they knowleged, that it was the people of GOD. For whyle al thynges were ſtill and when yͤ nyghte was in yͤ middeſt of her courſe, thy Almyghtye worde O LORDE leapt downe frō heauen oute of thy royall throone, as a roughe man of warre, in the myddeſt of the lande that was deſtroyed: and thy ſharpe ſwearde perfourmed thy ſtrayte commaundemente ſtandynge ⁊ fyllynge all thynges wyth deathe: yea, it ſtoode vpon the earthe and reached vnto the heauē. Then the ſyghte of yͤ euell dreames vexed them ſodenlye, and fearfulneſſe came vpon them vnawares.

Then laye there one here, another there halfe dead, halfe quycke, and ſhowed the cauſe of hys death. For the viſions that vexed them ſhewed thē theſe thynges afore: ſo that they were not ignoraunte wherfore they periſhed.

Then temptacion of deathe touched the ryghteous alſo, and amonge yͤ multitude in the wyldernes there was inſurrection, but thy wrath endured not longe. For the blameleſman wente in all the haſt, and toke the battayle vpon hym, brought forthe the weapen of hys miniſtracion: euen prayer and the cenſoures of reconſilinge: ſet hym ſelfe agaynſte the wrath, and ſo broughte the miſerie to an ende: declarynge thereby that he was thy ſeruaunte. For he ouercame not the multitude wyth bodelye power, nor wyth weapens of myghte: but with the word he ſubdued him that vexed hym, puttynge them in rememebraunce of the othe ⁊ couenaunt made vnto the fathers. For when the deade were fallen downe by heapes one vpon another, he ſtode in the middeſt, pacified the wrath, and parted the waye vnto yͤ lyuynge. *And why: in hys longe garment was all the bewty, and in yͤ foure rowes of the ſtones was the glorie of yͤ fathers grauen, and thy maieſtye was wrytten in the crowne of hys heade. Unto theſe the deſtroyer gaue place ⁊ was afrayed of them: for it was onelye a temptacion worthye of wrathe. Exod. 28. a.b.c.

The xix. Chapter.

¶The death of the Egypcians, and the greate ioye of the Hebrues. The meate that was geuen at the deſire of the people. The elementes ſerue not onelye to the wyl of GOD, but alſo to the wyll of man.

A AS for the vngodlye, the wrath came vpon thē wythoute mercy vnto the ende. For he knew before what ſhulde happen vnto them, how that (when they had conſented to let them go, and had ſente oute wyth greate diligence) they wolde repente and folowe vpon them. *For when they were yet mournynge Exod. 14. d and makinge lamentacion by yͤ graues of the deed, they deuyſed another folyſheneſſe: ſo that they perſecuted them in theyr flyinge, whome they had caſte oute afore wyth prayer. Worthye neceſſite alſo broughte them vnto thys end, for they had cleane forgotten the thynges that happened vnto them afore. But the thynge that was wantinge of theyr puniſhemente, was requiſite ſo to be fulfylled vpon them wyth tormentes, that thy people myghte haue a maruelous paſſage thorowe, and that theſe myghte fynde a ſtraunge deathe.

B Then was euery creature facioned agayne of newe, accordynge to the wil of theyr maker, obeynge thy commaundementes that thy chyldren myghte be kepte wythoute hurte. For the cloude ouer ſhadowed theyr tentes, and yͤ drye earthe appered, where afore was water: ſo that in the red ſee, there was a waye wythoute impedimente: and the greate depe became a greane feld: where thorowe all the people wente yͭ were defended wyth thy hande ſeynge thy wonderous and meruelous workes.

For as the horſes ſo were thy fed, ⁊ leaped lyke lambes, prayſynge the O LORDE which haddeſt delyuered thē:

And why: they were yet myndefull of the thynges that happened whyle they dwelte in the lande: howe the grounde brought forth the flyes in stead of catell: ⁊ howe the ryuer scrauled wyth yͤ multitude of frogges in stead of fyshes.

C *But at the laste they sawe a newe creation of byrdes, what tyme as they were deceaued wyth luste, and desired delicate meates. For when they were speaking of theyr appetite, the quayles came vp vnto them from the see, and punishementes came vpon yͤ synners not wythoute the tokens whyche came to passe afore by the vehemencie of yͤ streames, for they suffered worthely accordynge to theyr wickednes, they dealt so abominably ⁊ churlyshely wͭ straungers. Some receaued no vnknowen gestes, some broughte the straungers into bōdange that dyd them good. Besyde all these thynges there were some, that not onlye receaued no straungers with theyr willes, but persecuted those also, *and dyd them muche euell, that receaued them gladlye. Therfore were they punished wyth *blyndenesse, lyke as they yͭ were couered wyth sodayne darckenesse at the doores of the ryghteous, so that euerye one soughte the entraunce of hys doore.

Thus the elementes turned into thē selues, like as when one tune is chaunged vpon an instrumēte of musyke, and yet all the residue kepe theyr melodye, whiche maye easelye be perceaued, by yͤ syghte of yͤ thinges yͭ are come to passe.

The drye lande was turned into a water and the thynge that afore swāme in the water, wēte nowe vpon drye gronde. The fyre had power in the water, contrary vnto hys owne vertue: ⁊ the water forgat hys owne kynde to quenche. Agayne, the flames of noysome beastes hurte not the fleshe of them that wente with them, neyther melted they the yse, whyche els melteth lyghtely. In al thinges hast thou promoted thy people (O LORDE) ⁊ broughte thē to honour: thou haste not dyspised them but alwaye, and in all places hast thou stande by them.

C The ende of the booke of wysedome.

The booke of Jesus the sonne of Sirach / called Ecclesiasticus.

The Prologue.

Many and greate men haue declared wysdome vnto vs oute of the lawe, oute of the Prophetes, and oute of other that folowed them. In the which thynges Israell ought to be commended, by the reason of doctrine and wysedome. Therefore, they that haue it and reade it: shulde not onelye them selues be, wyse thorowe it: but serue other also wyth teachynge and wrytynge.

After that my graundefather Jesus had geuen diligent laboure to reade the lawe, the Prophetes, and other bookes that were lefte vs of oure fathers, and had well excercised him selfe therin: he purposed also to wryte some thynge of wysedome and good maners, to the intent that they which were wyllynge to learne and to be wyse myght haue the more vnderstandynge, and be the more apte to leade a good conuersacion. Wherefore, I exhorte you to receaue it louyngly, to read it wyth diligence, and to take it in good worth though oure wordes be not so eloquent as the famous oratours. For the thyng that is wrytten in the Hebrue toung, soundeth not so wel when it is translated into another spech. Not only thys booke of myne, but also the lawe, the Prophetes, and other bokes sounde far otherwyse, then they do when they are spoken in theyr owne language. Nowe in the xxxviij. yeare when I came into Egypt in the time of Ptolomy Euerges: and continued there all my life, I gat liberte to rede and wryte many good thinges. Wherfore I thought it good and necessary, to bestowe my diligēce and trauayle to interpret this booke. And consideringe that I had tyme, I laboured and dyd my beste to perfourme thys booke, and to bringe it vnto lyghte: that the straungers also whiche are disposed to learne, myghte apply them sylues vnto good maners and lyue accordyng to the lawe of the LORDE.

Eccleſiaſticus.

The fyrſte Chapter.

¶Wyſdome proceadeth and commeth of GOD. A prayſe of the feare of GOD. Ryghteouſneſſe is a degre to come by wyſedome.

ALl wyſedome * cōmeth of GOD the LORDE, ⁊ hath ben euer with him and is before all tyme. Who hath nombred the ſande of the ſee, yͤ droppes of the raygne, and the dayes of tyme? Who hath meſured the heyght of heauē, the bredthe of the earth, and the depenes of the ſee? who hath ſoughte oute the grounde of GODES wyſedome whych hath bene afore all thynges?* Wyſdome hath bene before all thynges, ⁊ the vnderſtandynge of prudence frō euerlaſtinge. GODDES worde in the heyghte is the well of wyſedome, and yͤ euerlaſtynge commaundementes are the entraunce of her.

B Unto whom hath the roote of wyſdome bene declared? Or who hath knowne her wyt? Unto whom hath the doctrine of wyſdome ben diſcouered and ſhewed? and who hath vnderſtande the manyfolde entraunce of her.

There is one: euen the hygheſte, the maker of all thynges, the Almyghtye, yͤ kinge of power (of whom men oughte to ſtāde greatly in awe) whyche ſytteth vpon hys throne beynge a GOD of dominion: He hath created her thorow yͤ holy gooſt: he hath ſene her, nombred her, and meaſured her, he hath proured her out vpon all hys worckes, and vpō all fleſhe, accordyng to hys gyfte: he geueth her rychely vnto them that loue hym: The feare of the LORDE is worſhype and triumphe, gladneſſe ⁊ a ioyfull crowne: The feare of the LORDE maketh a merye herte, geueth gladnes ioye and longe lyfe. Who ſo feareth the LORDE, it ſhall go well wyth hym at the laſte, that in the day of hys deth he ſhalbe bleſſed.

C The loue of GOD is honorable wyſdome, looke vnto whome it appeareth, they loue it for they ſe what wōderous thynges it doth. * The feare of yͤ LORD is the begynnynge of wyſedome, ⁊ was made wyth the faythfull in yͤ mothers wombe: it ſhall go wyth the choſen wemen, ⁊ ſhalbe knowne of yͤ ryghteous and faythfull. The feare of the LORDE is the ryghte ſeruiſe of GOD that preſerueth and iuſtifieth the hert, ⁊ geueth myrth and gladneſſe. Who ſo feareth the LORDE ſhalbe happy, and whan he hath nede of comfort, he ſhalbe bleſſed. To feare GOD is wyſedome yͭ maketh rych, and bryngeth all good wyth her. She filleth the whole houſe wyth her gyftes, and the garners wyth her treaſure. The feare of the LORD is yͤ crowne of wyſedome, and geueth plenteous peace and health. He hath ſene her and nombred her: knowlege, and vnderſtādynge of wyſedome (wiche are the gyftes of GOD) hath bene poured out as rayne, and them that helde her faſte, hathe he broughte vnto honoure.

D The feare of the LORDE is the roote of wyſdome, ⁊ her braunches are lōge lyfe. In the treaſures of wyſedome is vnderſtandyng and deuocion of knowlege, but wyſedome is abhorred of ſynners. The feare of the LORDE dryueth oute ſynne, for he that is without feare cannot be made ryghteous, ⁊ hys wylfull boldenes is hys owne deſtruction. A paciente man wyll ſuffer vnto the tyme, and then ſhal he haue the rewarde of ioye. A good vnderſtandynge wyll hyde hys wordes for a tyme, and many mens lyppes ſhall ſpeak of hys wyſedome. In the treaſures of wiſdome is the declaracion of doctrine, but the ſinner abhorreth the worſhippe of GOD. My ſonne yf thou deſire wyſdome, kepe her commaundemēte, and GOD ſhall geue her vnto the: for the feare of the LORD is wyſedome ⁊ nurtour, he hath pleaſure in fayth and louynge mekenes, and he ſhal fyl the treaſures therof. Be not obſtinate and vnfaythfull to the feare of the LORDE, and come not vnto hym wyth a double hert. Be not an ypocrite in yͤ ſyghte of men, and take good hede what thou ſpeakeſt. Marke well theſe thynges, leſte thou happen to fall and bringe thy ſoule to diſhonour ⁊ ſo God diſcouer thy ſecretes, and caſt the downe in the myddeſte of the congregacion: becauſe thou woldeſt not receaue yͤ feare of GOD, and becauſe thy herte is full of faynednes and dyſceate.

The ij. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth the ſeruauntes of God to ryghteouſneſſe, loue, vnderſtandynge, and pacience. A curſe vpon the ſetle, fearce, and impacient of herte.

A My ſonne,* yf thou wylt come into yͤ ſeruice of GOD, ſtande faſt in ryghteouſneſſe and feare, and arme Math.4.a. 2.Tim.3.c. thy ſoule to tẽptacion: ſetle thyne herte ⁊ be pacient, bowe downe thine eare receaue the wordes of vnderſtandynge, and ſhryncke not awaye, whan thu arte entyſed. Holde the faſte vpõ GOD, ioyne thy ſelfe vnto him, and ſuffre that thy lyfe maye encreaſe at yͤ laſt. What ſoeuer happeneth vnto the, receaue it: ſuffer in heuyneſſe, and be paciente in thy trouble. * For lyke as gold and ſyl Sapi.3.a. Pro.17.a. uer are tryed in the fyre, euen ſo are acceptable men in the fornace of aduerſite, Beleue in GOD, ⁊ he ſhall helpe the: order thy waye aryghte, and put thy truſte in hym. Holde faſte his feare and growe therein. O ye that feare yͤ LORDE take ſure hold of hys mercye: ſhrincke not awaye from him, that ye fal not. O ye that feare the LORDE, beleue him and youre rewarde ſhal not be emptie. O ye that feare the LORDE, put youre truſte in hym, and mercye ſhall come vnto you for pleaſure. O ye that feare the LORDE, ſet youre loue vpon hym, and your hertes ſhalbe lyghtened,

B Conſider the olde generacions of mẽ O ye chyldren and marcke them well: Pſal.31.a. Eſaia.26.b. *was there euer anye one confounded, that put hys truſte in yͤ LORDE? Who euer continued in hys feare, ⁊ was forſaken? Or whome dyd he euer diſpiſe, yͭ called faythfully vpõ hym? For GOD is greacious and mercifull, he forgeueth ſynnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that ſeke him in the truthe. Woo be vnto them that hath a double herte, wycked lyppes ãd euel occupyed handes and to the ſinner that goethe two maner of wayes. Who be vnto them that are looſe of herte, which put not theyr truſte in GOD and therefore ſhall they not be defended of hym. Woo be vnto them that haue loſt pacience, forſaken the righte wayes, and are turned backe into froward wayes. What wyll they do whan the LORDE ſhall begynne to viſet them?

C They that feare the LORDE wyl not myſtruſte hys worde, and they that* loue hym, Io wyl kepe hys commaundemente. They that feare the LORDE, wyll ſeke oute the thynges that are pleaſaunte vnto hym,* and they that loue hym, Ro ſhall fulfyll hys lawe. They that feare the LORDE wyll prepare theyr hartes, and humble theyr ſoules in hys ſyght. They that feare the LORDE, kepe hys commaundemẽtes, and wyl be paciente tyll they ſe hym ſelfe ſayinge: *better 2.R it is for vs to fall into the handes of the Su LORDE, then into yͤ handes of men: for hys mercye is as greate as hym ſelfe.

¶ To oure father and mother oughte we to geue double honoure. Of the bleſſyng and curſe of the father and mother. No man ought ouer curiouſly to searche out the ſecretes of GOD.

THe chyldren of wyſedome are A a congregacion of the ryghteous, and theyr excercyſe is obediẽce and loue. Heare me your father O my deare chyldren ⁊ do there after that ye maye be ſafe* For yͤ LORDE Exo Deu wyll haue the father honoured of yͤ chyldren: Ephe ⁊ looke what a mother commaundeth her chyldren to do, he wyll haue it kept. Who ſo honoureth hys father, hys ſynnes ſhalbe forgeuen hym: * ⁊ he yͭ honoureth hys mother is lyke Ephe one that gathereth treaſure together. Who ſo honoreth hys father, ſhall haue ioye of his owne chyldren, ⁊ whẽ he maketh hys prayer he ſhalbe hearde. He yͭ honoureth hys father, ſhal haue a lõge lyfe: ⁊ he yͭ is obedient for yͤ LORDES ſake, hys mother ſhall haue ioye of hym.

He that feareth the LORDE, honoureth B hys father ⁊ mother, ⁊ doth them ſeruice, as it were vnto yͤ LORDE hym ſelfe. Honoure thy father in dede, in worde and in al pacience, that thou mayeſte haue GODDES bleſſynge, and his bleſſynge ſhall abyde wyth yͤ at yͤ laſte.

*The bleſſynge of yͤ father buyldeth Gene vp the houſes of the chyldren, but yͤ mothers curſe roteth out the fundacions. Reioyſe not when thy father is reproued, for it is not honoure vnto the, but ſhame. For the worſhyppe of a mans father is his owne worſhippe, and where the father is wythout honoure, it is the diſhoneſtye of the ſonne. My ſonne, make muche of thy father in hys age, and greue hym not as longe as he liueth. And yf his vnderſtandinge fayle, haue pacience wyth hym, & deſpyſe hym not in thy ſtrength. For the good dede that thou ſhewest vnto thy father, ſhall not be forgotten, & whan thou thy ſelfe wanteſt, it ſhalbe rewarded the, ād for thy motheres offence thou ſhalt be recompenſed wyth good, yee, it ſhalbe founde for the in ryghteouſnes, & in the daye of trouble thou ſhalte be remembred: thy ſynnes alſo ſhall melte awaye, lyke as the yſe in the fayre warme wether.

C He that forſaketh hys father ſhall come to ſhame: and he that defyeth hys mother, is curſed of GOD. My ſōne perfourme thy worckes wyth louyng mekeneſſe, ſo ſhalte thou be loued aboue other men. The greater thou art, the more humble thy ſelfe in all thynges, and thou ſhalte fynde fauoure in the ſyghte of GOD. For greate power belongeth onelye vnto GOD, and he is honoured of the lowlye.

*Seeke not oute the thynges that are aboue thy capacite, and ſearche not the grounde of ſuch thynges as are to mighty for ẏ: but loke what GOD hath commaunded the, thyncke vpon that alwaye, and be not curious in manye of hys worckes. For it is not nedefull for the to ſe wyth thyne eyes the thynges that are ſecrete. Make not thou to much ſearch in ſuperfluous thynges & be not curious in many of hys workes: for manye thynges are ſhewed vnto ẏ alreadye, whyche be aboue the capacite of men. The medlynge with ſuche hath begyled many a man, ād tangled theyr wyttes in vanite. Nowe he that loueth parell ſhall periſhe therein.

D And harde harte ſhall feare euell at the laſte and he that loueth daunger, ſhal periſhe there in, an hert that goeth two wayes, ſhall not proſpere: and he ẏ is frowarde of herte wyll euer be worſe and worſe. A wycked herte ſhalbe laden wyth ſorowes, and the vngodlye ſynner wyll heape one ſynne vpon another. The councell of ẏ proude hath no health, for ẏ plante of ſynne ſhalbe rooted oute in them, and not knowen. The herte of hym that hath vnderſtandynge ſhall perceaue hye thynges, & a good eare wyll gladly herken vnto wyſedome. An herte that is wyſe & hath vnderſtandynge, wyll abſtayne from ſyn and encreaſe in the worckes of ryghteouſneſſe. Water quencheth burnynge fyre, ‡and mercye reconcileth ſynnes. Pſal.12.a. GOD hath reſpecte vnto hym that is thāckeful: he thyncketh vpō him agaynſte ẏ tyme to come: ſo that when he falleth, he ſhall fynde a ſtronge holde.

The iiij. Chapter.

¶ Almes muſt be done wyth all mekenes. The ſtudies of wyſdome and her frute. A iudge ought to be mercyfull. An exhortacion to eſcheue euell and to do good.

My ſonne, *defraude not ẏ poore of hys almes, and turne not away thyne eyes from hym that hath nede. A Deu.15.d. Diſpiſe not an hōgrye ſoule, and defye not the poore in his neceſſite: greue not the herte of hym that is helpleſſe, and wythdrawe not thy gyfte frome the nedeful. Refuſe not the prayer of one that is in trouble, turne not awaye thy face from the nedye. Caſte not thyne eyes aſyde from the poore, for any euell wyl, that thou geue hym none occaſion to ſpeake euell of the. For yf he complayne of the, in the bitternes of hys ſoule, hys prayer ſhalbe heard euen he that made him ſhal heare him. Be curteous vnto the company of poore: humble thy ſoule vnto the elder, and bow downe thy head to a man of worſhyppe. Let it not greue the to bowe downe thyne eare vnto the pore, but pay thy dette, and geue hym a frēdlye aunſwere, and that wyth mekeneſſe.

*Delyuer hym that ſuffreth wronge from the hande of ẏ oppreſſour, and be not faynt herted whan thou ſytteſt in iudgement. B Gene.14.d. Be mercifull vnto ẏ fatherles as a father, & be in ſteade of an huſbande vnto theyr mother: ſo ſhalt thou be as an obediente ſonne of the Hyeſt: & he ſhall loue the more then thy mother doth. Wyſedome bretheth lyfe into her chyldrē, receauethe them that ſeke her, and wil goo before them in the waye of ryghteouſnes. He ẏ loueth her, loueth lyfe, and they that ſeke diligently, ſhall haue great ioye. They ẏ kepe her, ſhall haue the heritage of lyfe: for where ſhe entreth in, there is ẏ bleſſynge of GOD. They that honoure her, ſhalbe the ſeruauntes of the holye one: and they that loue her, are beloued of GOD. A He taketh a burthen vpon hym, that accompanyeth a more honorable man than him ſelfe. Therfore kepe no familiarite wyth one that is rycher then thy ſelfe. Howe agre the ketel and the pot together? for yf the one be ſmitten agaynſt the other it ſhalbe broken. The ryche dealeth vnrighteouſlye and threateneth wyth all: but the poore beynge oppreſſed and wrongefully dealt with all, ſuffereth ſcarceneſſe, & geueth fayre wordes. Yf thou be for hys profite, he vſeth the: but yf thou haue nothinge, he ſhal forſake ÿ. As longe as thou haſte anye thing of thine owne he ſhal be a god felowe wt ÿ: yea, he ſhal make ÿ a bare man, & not be ſorye for ÿ.

Yf he haue nede of the, he ſhall defraude the: and wyth a preuye mocke ſhall he put the in an hoope, and geue ÿ all good wordes, and ſaye: what wanteſt thou? Thus ſhall he ſhame the in hys meate, vntyl he haue ſupte the cleane vp twyſe or thryſe, and at the laſte ſhall he laughe the to ſcorne. Afterwarde when he ſeithe that thou haſte nothynge, he ſhall forſake the, & ſhake his heade at ÿ. Submit thy ſelfe vnto GOD and wayte vpon hys hande.

Beware that thou be not diſceaued and broughte downe in thi ſimpleneſſe. B Be not to humble in thy wyſedome: leeſte whan thou arte broughte lowe, thu be diſceaued thorowe foolyſhenes. If thou be called of a myghtye man, abſente thy ſelfe, ſo ſhall he cal the to hym ÿ more ofte. Preſſe not thou vnto hym, ÿ thou be not ſhut oute: but go not thou farre of, leeſt he forget the. Wythdrawe not thy ſelfe from hys ſpeach, but beleue not his many wordes. For wyth muche comunicacion ſhal he tempte the, & with a preui mock ſhall he queſtion ÿ of thy ſecretes. The vnmerciful mynde of his ſhal marcke thy wordes, he ſhal not ſpare to do the hurt, and to put the in priſon. Beware and take good hede to thy ſelfe, for thou walkeſte in parell of thy ouerthrowinge.

Nowe when thou heareſt his wordes make ÿ as though thou wereſt in a dreame, and wake vp. Loue GOD all thy lyfe longe, & call vpon hym in thy nede.

Euery beaſte loueth hys lyke, euen ſo let euery man loue hys neyghboure. Al fleſhe wyll kepe companye wyth ſuche as he is hym ſelfe. But as the wolfe agreeth wyth the lambe, ſoo doth the vngodly wyth the ryghteous. * What felowſhyppe ſhulde an holye man haue with a dogge? Howe can the riche ⁊ the poore agre together? The wilde Aſſe is the lyons praye in ẏ wyldernesse, euen ſo are pore men the meat of the ryche. Lyke as ẏ proude maye not away wͭ lowlynes, euen ſo do the ryche abhorre ẏ poore If a rych mã fal, his frẽdes ſet hym vp agayne: but when the poore falleth, hys acquayntaunce forſake hym. If a ryche man fall into an erroure, he hath many helpers: he ſpeaketh proud wordes, and yet men iuſtifie hym.

But yf a poore man go wronge, he is puniſhed: yea though he ſpeake wyſelye, yet can it haue no place, When the rych man ſpeaketh, euery man holdeth hys tonge: ⁊ looke what he ſayeth, they prayſe it vnto the cloudes. But yf the poore man ſpeake, they ſaye: What felowe is thys? ⁊ yf he do amiſſe, they ſhall deſtroye him. Ryches are good vnto hi that hath no ſynne in hys conſcience, ⁊ pouerte is a wycked thinge in the mouthe of ẏ vngodlye: The herte of a man chaungeth hys coũtenaunce, whether it be in good or euel. A chearful countenaunce is a token of a good herte, for els it is an hearde thynge to knowe the thoughte.

BLeſſed is ẏ man * yͭ hath not fallen wͭ the word of his mouth ⁊ is not prycked wyth ẏ conſcience of ſynne. Happye is he that hath no heuynes in hys mynde, and is not fallen from hys hope. It becommeth not a couetous man and a neygarde to be ryche: ⁊ what ſhulde a nigarde do wyth gold? He that with al his carefulnes heapeth together vnrighteouſly, gathereth for other folkes, ⁊ another mã ſhall make good cheare wͭ hys goodes. He yͭ is wycked vnto hym ſelfe, howe ſhuld he be good vnto other men? Howe can ſuch one haue any pleaſure of hys goodes? There is nothynge worſe, then when one diſſauoreth him ſelfe ⁊ this is a rewarde of his wykednes. yf he do ani good he doth it not knowyng therof, ⁊ agaynſte his will, ⁊ at ẏ laſte he declareth his vngraciouſnes. A nigarde hath a wicked eye he turneth away his face, ⁊ diſpiſeth his owne ſoule. *A couetous mãs eye hath neuer ynough in ẏ porciõ of wickedneſſe, vntil ẏ tyme yͭ he wyther a waie, ⁊ hath loſte his owne ſoule.

¶Of correction and repentaunce. Of the gyfte of the wyſe man: and of the foole. Of lyinge.

A SOme man * reproueth hys neyghboure ofte tymes, but not in due ſeaſon: Agayne, ſome man holdeth hys tonge ⁊ he is wyſe and dyſcrete. It is much better to geue warnynge and to reproue, then to beare euell wyll: for he yͭ knowlegeth hym ſelfe openly, ſhalbe preſerued from hurte and deſtruction. Lyke as when a gelded man thorowe deſire and luſte defyleth a mayden, euen ſo is it wyth hym that vſeth violence: ⁊ vnryghteouſnes in yͤ lawe. O howe good a thynge is it, a man that is reproued to ſhewe openly hys repentaunce: for ſo ſhalt thou eſcape wylfull ſynne.

He yͭ vſeth many wordes ſhall hurte hys owne ſoule and he that takethe autorite vpon hym vnryghteouſlye, ſhalbe hated. Some man hath ofte tymes proſperite in wycked thynges: Agayne ſome man getteth much, and hath harme and loſſe. There is ſome gyfte, that is nothynge worthe: Agayne, there is ſome gyfte, whoſe rewarde is double. Some man getteth a fall fyr beynge to proude, and ſome commeth to worſhyppe from lowe eſtate. Some mā byeth muche for a lytle pryce, and muſte paye for it ſeuen folde.

B *A wyſe man wyth hys wordes maketh him ſelfe to be loued, but the fauoure of fooles, ſhalbe poured out. The gyft of the vnwyſe ſhall do the no good, for hys eyes are ſeuenfold. *He ſhal geue lytle, and ſaye he gaue much: he openeth hys mouth and cryeth oute, as it were one yͭ cryeth oute wyne. To daye he lendeth, to morowe aſketh he agayne, and ſuch a man is to be hated. The foole ſayth I haue no frende, I haue no thancke for all my good dedes: yea, euē they yͭ eate my breade, ſpeake no good of me. O howe ofte, ⁊ of how many ſhal he be laughed to ſcorne: he taketh a more perlous fall by ſuch wordes then yf he fel vpon the grounde: euen ſo ſhall yͤ falles of the wycked men come haſtely In the mouthe of hym yͭ is vntaughte, are many vnconueniente and vnmete wordes. in good but the vnwyſe man abundeth in wyckednes: and where bytterneſſe is, thre is no vnderſtandynge. The knowlege of the wyſe ſhall flowe lyke water that renneth ouer, and hys counſell is lyke a fountayne of lyfe.

C The herte of a foole is lyke a broken veſſell, he can kepe no wyſdome. When a man of vnderſtandynge heareth a wyſe worde, he ſhall cõmende it, and make much of it. But yf a voluptous man heare it, he ſhal haue no pleaſure theri, but caſte it behynde hys backe. The talking of a foole is like an heuye burthen by the waye but to heare a wyſe man ſpeake, it is a pleaſure. Where a doubte is in the congregacion, it is aſked at yͤ mouth of the wyſe, and they ſhal põder his wordes in theyr hertes. Lyke as is a houſe that is deſtroyed, euen ſo is wyſedome vnto to a fole. As for the knowlege of the vnwiſe, it is but darcke wordes. Doctrine is vnto hym that hath no vnderſtandinge, euen as fetters about hys fete, and lyke manycles vpon hys ryghtehande.* A foole lyfteth vp hys voyce wyth laughter, but a wayſe man ſhall ſcarſe laugh ſecretlye.

Learnynge is vnto a wyſe man a Jewel of golde, and lyke an armelet vpon hys ryghte arme. A foolſhe mans fote is ſoone in hys neyghboures houſe, but one that hath experience, ſhalbe aſhamed at the perſonne of the myghtye. A foole wyll pepe in at the wyndowe into the houſe, but he that is wel nourtered, wyll ſtand wythoute. A foolyſhe man ſtandeth herkening at yͤ dore, but he that is wyſe wyll be aſhamed.

The lyppes of the vnwyſe wyll be tellynge folyſhe thynges, but the wordes of ſuch as haue vnderſtandinge, ſhalbe wayed in the balaunce. The hert of foles is in theyr mouth, but the mouth of the wyſe is in theyr hert. When the vngodly curſeth yͤ blaſphemer he curſeth hys owne ſoule. *A preuye accuſer of other men ſhall defyle hys owne ſoule, and behated of eueryman: but he that kepeth hys tonge and is diſcrete, ſhall come to honour.

The xxij. Chapter.

¶The purgacion of the ſlouthfull. Of the foolyſhe ſone and daughter, we muſt haue diſcretiõ howe ād whome we oughte to preach ſorowynge vpon the deed. A fole is not to be much talked withal. Iniuries, and wronges do breake frendeſhyppe ād amite

A A Slouthful bodye is moulded of a ſtone of claye, and euery man wyll ſpeake to hys diſprayſe. A ſlouthfull body is made of the dong of oxen, ⁊ euerye one that toucheth hym muſt waſh hys hãdes agayne. A mis nurtered ſonne is the dyſhonoure of yͤ father. A foolyſh doughter ſhalbe lytle regarded. A wyſe daughter is anheritage vnto her huſbande: but ſhe that cõmeth to diſhoneſtye, bringeth her father in heuineſſe. A daughter that is paſte ſhame, diſhonoureth both her father ⁊ her huſband, the vngodly ſhall regard her, but they both ſhall dyſpice her. The playing of muſike is not mete wher heuines is, euẽ ſo is yͤ correctiõ an doctrine of wyſdome euer vnpleaſaunte vnto fooles.

B Who ſo teacheth a foole, is euẽ as one that gleweth a potcherde together: as one that telleth a tale to hym yͤ heareth hym not and as one that rayſeth a man oute of an heuye ſlepe. Who ſo telleth a foole of wyſedome, is euen as a man, whych ſpeaketh to one that is a ſlepe. When he hath tolde his tale, he ſayeth: what is the matter? Whẽ one dyeth, lamentacion is made for hym: becauſe yͤ lighte fayleth hi, euẽ ſo let men mourne a foole: for he wanteth vnderſtãdynge. Make but lytle weapynge becauſe of the deed: for he is come to reſt, but the lyfe of the foole is worſe then yͤ death. Seuen dayes domen mourne for him that is deed, but the lamentacion ouer the vnwyſe and vngodlye ſhuld endure all the dayes of theyr lyfe.

C Talke not much wyth a foole, and go not wyth hym that hath no vnderſtandynge. Beware of hym leeſte it turne yͤ to trauayle, and thou ſhalte not be defyled wyth hys ſynne. Departe from him, and thu ſhalte fynde reſte and ſhalt not be drawen backe into hys folyſhenes. What is heuyer then leade? And what ſhulde a foole be called eles but leade? *Sande, ſalte, and a lumpe of yron is eaſyer to beare, then an vnwyſe, foolyſhe, ⁊ vngodlye man. A wauerynge herte in yͤ imaginacion of a foole wyll not euerſtand in awe, but he that abydeth in cõmaundementes of GOD, wyll alway feare. He that nyppeth a mans eye bringeth forth teares ⁊ he that prycketh yͤ herte, bryngeth forthe meanynge and thought. Whoſo caſteth a ſtone at the byrdes, frayeth them awaye: ãd he that blaſphemeth hys frend, breaketh the frendeſhyp: thoughe thou draweſte a ſwearde at thy frende yet deſpere not, for thou mayeſt come agayne to thy frend. yf he ſpeake ſowerly, feare not, for ye maye be agreed together againe, excepte it be that thou blaſpheme hym, dyſdayne hym, open hys ſecretes and wounde hym traytoruſly for all ſuch thynges ſhall dryue awaye afrende.

And they that remayne, ſhal knowe, that ther is nothynge better then yͤ feare of GOD: ⁊ that there is nothynge ſweter then to take hede vnto the commaundementes of the LORD. A great worſhyppe is it to folowe the LORDE, for longe lyfe ſhalbe receaued of hym.

¶ The prayſe of a good woman. Of the feare of thre thynges, and of the fourth. Of the ielous and droncken woman. Of two thynges that cauſe ſorowe, and of the chyldre whych moueth wrath.

Happye is the man that hath a verteous wyfe, for the nõber of hys yeres ſhalbe double. A An honeſt womã maketh her huſbande a ioyfull man, ⁊ ſhe ſhall fyl the yeres of hys lyfe in peace. A verteous woman is a noble gyfte whyche ſhalbe geuẽ for a god porciõ vnto ſuch as feare GOD: Wether a man be ryche or poore he maye haue euer a merye herte, ⁊ a cherful coũtenaũce. There be thre thynges yͤ my herte feareth, ⁊ my face is a frayde of yͤ fourth. Treaſon in a citie, a ſedicious people, ⁊ noyſome tõges, all theſe are heuyer thẽ death. But when one is gelous ouer his wyfe, it bringethe paine ⁊ ſorowe vnto yͤ harte ⁊ a woman yͤ telleth oute al thynges, is a ſcourge of yͤ tonge. When one hath an euell wyfe, it is as when an vnlike payre of Oxen muſte drawe together: he yͤ getteth her, getteth a Scorpion. Iudi.16.a A droncken woman is a great plage, for ſhe cannot couer her owne ſhame.

An honeſt and manerly woman is a gifte aboue other gyftes, ⁊ there is no weyghte tobe compared vnto a mynde yͤ can rule it ſelfe. Lyke as the Sunne when it aryſeth, is an ornamente in the hyghe heauen of the LORDE, ſo is a verteous wyfe the beutye of all her houſe. Lyke as the cleare lyghte is vpon the holye candelſtycke, ſo is the bewtye of the face vpon an honeſte bodye. ¶We oughte not to deſire vengeaunce, but to forgeue the offence. Of the vices of the tonge, and of the dangers thereof.

HE that ſeketh vengeaunce, ſhall fynde vengeaũce of the LORDE, whyche ſhal ſurelye kepe hym hys ſynnes. Forgeue thy neyghbour yͤ hurte yͭ he hath done to yͤ, & ſo ſhall thy ſynnes be forgeuen yͤ alſo, when thou prayeſt. A man yͭ bereth hatred agaynſte another, howe dare he deſire forgeueneſſe of GOD? He that ſheweth no mercye to a mã which is lyke hym ſelf, howe dare he aſke forgeueneſſe of his ſynnes? yf he that is but fleſhe, beareth hatred and kepe it, who wyl intreate for his ſynnes? Remember the ende, and let enemitye paſſe, whyche ſeketh death and deſtruction, and abyde thou in the commaundementes. Remember the commaundementes ſo ſhalt thou not be rigorous ouer thy neighboure. Thyncke vpõ the couenaunte of the Hygheſte, and forgeue thy neyghbours ignoraunce. * Beware of ſtryfe and thu ſhalte make thy ſynnes fewer. For an angry man kyndleth variaunce, & yͤ vngodlye diſquiet frendes, and puteth diſcorde amonge thẽ that be at peace.* The more wood there is, the moar wehemente is the fyre: and the myghter that men be, the grater is the wrathe, and the longer yͤ stryfe endureth, the moare it burneth.

An haſty braulynge kyndleth a fyre, and haſtye ſtryfe ſheddeth bloude. A tõge alſo that beareth falſe wytneſſe bringeth death. yf thou blowe the ſparke, it ſhall burne. yf thou ſpet vpon it, it ſhall go forth: and both theſe out of the mouth.*The ſlaunderer and doble tõged is curſed, for manye one that be frendes ſetteth he at variaunce. The thyrde tonge hathe diſquieted manye one, and dryuen them from one land to another. Stronge cities, of the rych hathe it broken downe, and ouerthrowen the houſes of greate men. C Wel is hym that is kept from an euel tonge and commeth not in yͤ angre thereof, whyche draweth not the yocke of ſuche, and is not bounde in the bandes of it. For the yocke thereof is of yron, & yͤ bande of it of ſtiele. The death thereof is a very euel death: hell were better for one then ſuche a tonge. But the fyre of it maye not oppreſſe them that feare GOD, and yͤ flamme thereof maye not burne them. Such as forſacke the LORDE, ſhall fall therein: & it ſhal burne them, and no man ſhalbe halbe to quench it. It ſhall fall vpon them as alyon, & deuoure thẽ as a leopard. Thou hedgeſt thy goodes wͭ thrones: why doeſte not thou rather make doores & barres for thy mouth? Thou weyeſte thy golde & ſyluer, why doeſte thu not weie the wordes alſo vpon the balaunce? As for hym that ys but fayned, he wylbe offended thereat. They that feare the LORDE ſhall fynde the Iudgement and theyr ryghteouſneſſe ſhalbe kyndled as a lyghte. An vngodlye man wyll not be refourmed, but can helpe hym ſelfe wyth the example of other in hys purpoſe. A man of vnderſtandynge diſpiſeth no good counſayll: but a wylde and proude bodie hath no feare. yee, euen when he hathe dealte raſhly with another man, but his owne doynges ſhalbe rebuke. My ſonne, do nothynge wythoute aduiſement, ſo ſhall it not repente yͤ after the dede. Go not in the way where thou mayeſt fall, nor wher thou mayeſt ſtumble agaynſte yͤ ſtone. Geue not thy ſelfe into a laborious ſlyppery waye, and beware of thy chyldren, and take hede of them that be thyne owne houſholde. In all thy workes put thy truſte in GOD, from thy whole hert, for that is the kepynge of yͤ commaundementes, who ſo beleueth GODDES worde taketh heade to the commaundementes: & he yͭ putteth hys truſt in yͤ LORDE, ſhall wãt nothinge.

The xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ The delyueraunce of hym that feareth GOD. The anſwere of the wyſe. The lytle diſcrecion of a foule Man is in the hande of God, as the earth is in the hande of the potter. We ought not to diſpoſe oure ſelues to be come ſubiect to other.

THere ſhall no euyl happen vnto hi that feareth GOD: but A when he is in tentacion, the LORDE ſhall delyuer hym, & kepe him from euell. A wyſe mã hateth not yͤ lawe, but an ypocrite is as a ſhip in araginge in raging water. A man of vnderſtandyng giueth credence vnto the lawe of GOD, and the lawe is faythfull vnto hym. Be ſure of the matter, then talke thereof: Be firſt well inſtruct, then mayeſt thou gyue anſwere. The hert of yͤ folyſhe is lyke a cartewhele; and hys thoughtes runne about lyke an axel tree. Lyke as a wild horſe yͭ neieth vnder euery one that ſytteth vpon hym, ſo ys it wyth a ſcornefull frende. Why doth one day excel an other, ſeynge al yͤ dayes of yͤ yeare come of yͤ Sune? The wyſdome of the LORDE hath ſo parted them a ſondre, and ſo hath he ordeyned the tymes, ⁊ ſolemne feaſtes. Some of them hath he choſen ⁊ halowed before other dayes. And al men are made of yͤ grounde, ⁊ out of yͤ earth of Adam. In yͤ multitude of ſciēce hath the B LORDE ſondred them, ⁊ made their wayes of dyuers facions. Some of them hath he bleeſſed, made muche of thē, halowed them, and claymed them to him ſelfe. But ſome of them hath he curſed brought them lowe, ⁊ put them oute of theyr eſtate. Lyke as yͤ clayes in yͤ potters hande, and all yͤ ordrynge thereof at hys pleaſure: ſo are men alſo in yͤ hāde of hym yͭ made them, ſo yͭ he may geue them as lyketh hym beſt.* Agaynſte euel is good, ⁊ agaynſt death is lyfe: ſo is the vngodly agaynſt ſuch as feare GOD. Behold, theſe are yͤ worckes of yͤ hygheſt, ⁊ there are euer two agaynſt two, and one ſet againſt another. I am awaked vp laſt of al, as one that gathereth after in harueſt. In the gyftes of GOD ⁊ in his bleſſyng I am increaſed ⁊ haue filled my wynepreſſe, lyke a grape gatherer. ‡ Beholde howe I haue not laboured onelie for my ſelfe, but for al ſuch as loue nourtour ⁊ wiſdome.

C Heare me o ye great men of the people, and harken wyth your eares ye rulers of the congregacion. Geue not thy ſonne and wyfe, thy brother and frende, power ouer the, whyle thou lyueſt: ⁊ geue not awaye thy ſubſtaunce and good to a nother, leſt it repente yͤ ⁊ thu be fayne tobeg therfore thy lelfe. As lōge as thou lyueſte ād haſt breth, let no man chaunge the: For better it is that thy chyldren to praye yͤ, then that thou ſhuldeſt be fayne to loke in their hādes In all thy worckes be excellente, that thyne honoure be neuer ſtayned. At the tyme when thou ſhalte ende thy dayes ⁊ finiſh thy lyfe, diſtribute thyne enheritaunce. The fodder, the whyppe, and the burthen bolongeth vnto yͤ aſſe: Meat, correction ⁊ worcke vnto thy ſeruaunt. Yf thou ſet thy ſeruaunt to labour, thou ſhalt fynde reſt. But yf thou let D hym go ydle, he ſhall ſeke libertie. The yocke ⁊ yͤ whyp boweth downe the harde necke: but tame thou thy euel ſeruaunt wͭ bondes ⁊ correction. Send hym to laboure yͭ he go not yldle. For ydlenes, bryngeth muche euel. Set hym to worcke, for yͭ belongeth vnto hym, and becommeth hym well. yf he be not obedient, bynd hys fete: but do not to much vnto him in any wyſe, ⁊ wythout diſcrecion doo nothynge.* yf thou haue a faythful ſeruaunt, let hym be vnto yͤ as (Eccle. 7. c.) thyne owne ſoule: intreat hym as a brother, for in bloud haſt thou gotten hym yf thou haue a ſeruaund, holde hym as thy ſelf: for thu haſt nede of hī as of thy ſelfe. yf thou intreat him euell, ⁊ kepeſt him hard, ⁊ makeſte him to be proude, ⁊ to runne awaye from the, thou cāſt not tell what waye thou ſhalte ſeke hym.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Of dreames, diuinacions and enchauntmentes. We aught to confute vayne hope, and lyinge. The prayſe of them that feare God. Of diuerſe workes of men. God doth not alowe the worckes of an vnfaythfull man.

VNwiſe people begile them A ſelues with vayne and diſceatfull hope, ⁊ fooles truſte in dreames. Whoſo regardeth dreames, is lyke hym yͭ wil take hold of a ſhadowe, and folowe after yͤ winde. Euen ſo is it wͭ the apperynges of dreames. Before yͤ face, is yͤ lynkenes of a face. Who can beclenſed of yͤ vncleane? Or what truth can be ſpokē of a lyer? Sothſaying, witchrafte, ſorcerye ⁊ dreamynge is but vanitie: lyke as when a woman traueleth wͭ chylde, ⁊ hath many fantaſies in her herte. Where as ſuche viſions come not of GOD, ſet not thyne herte vpon them. For dreames haue diſceaued many a man, ⁊ fayled them that put theyr truſt therein.

The lawe ſhalbe fulfylled wythoute B lyes, and wyſdome is ſufficient to a faytfull mouth. What knowledg hath he that is not tryed? A wiſe man yͭ is well iſtrnct, vnderſtādeth much, ⁊ he yͭ hath good experience can talke of wyſdome

Forget not thy fryude in thy mynde ⁊ thyncke vpō hym in thy rycheſſe. Seke no counſail at thy kynſman, ⁊ hyde thy counſail from ſuche as beare the no good wyll. Eccle.8.c. and.9.c. *Euerye coūſeler bryngethe forthe his counſayl. Neuertheleſſe, there is ſomme that counſeleth, but for hys owne profit: Beware of the counceler and be aduyſed afore whereto thou wylte vſe hym, for he wyll counſayl for hym ſelfe. Leſt he caſte the lot vpon the and ſaye vnto the: Thy waye ⁊ purpoſe is good: and afterwarde he ſtande agaynſt the, and looke what ſhall become of the.

B Aſke no coūſayle at hym, that ſuſpecteth the for an enemie, ⁊ hyde thy counſayle from ſuche as hate the. Aſke no counſayl at a woman concernynge the thynges that ſhe longethe for: nor at a fearfull and faynte herted body, in matters of warre: or at a marchaunt, howe deare he wyl cheape thy wares towarde hys: or at a byer of ſellinge: Or at an enuyous man, of thanckes geuyng: Or at the inmercifull, of louyng kyndnes: or at an vnhoneſt mā of honeſty. Or at the ſlouthfull, of worckyng. Or at an hyrelyng which hath no houſe, or profite, of welthe. An ydle body wold not gladly heare ſpeack of much labour. Take no ſuche folkes to coūſayl: but be diligente to ſeke coūſayl at a verteous man yͤ feareth GOD, ſuche one as thou knoweſt to be a keper of yͤ commaundemētes, which hath a minde after thine owne mynde, ⁊ is ſorye for yͤ whē thou C ſtumbleſt. And aboue al this, praye yͤ Hyeſt yͤ he wyll leade thy waye in faythfulnes ⁊ truth. Before all thy worckes aſke counſayl fyrſt: ⁊ or euer thou doeſt any thynge, be wel aduiſed. Ther be four thynges yͤ declare a chaūged hert, wherout there ſpringeth euel and good: deathe ⁊ lyfe, ⁊ a maſterfull tonge that bableth much. Some man is apte ⁊ well inſtructe in many thynges, ⁊ yet very vnprofitable vnto hym ſelf. Some man there is, that can geue wyſe and prudent counſayl, ⁊ yet is he hated, ⁊ cōtinueth a begger: for yͤ grace is not geuē him of GOD to be accepted. Another is robbed of al wiſdome, yet is he wyſe vnto hym ſelf ⁊ yͤ frute of vnderſtandinge is cōmendable in his mouth.

A wyſe man maketh hys people wiſe, D and the frutes of hys wyſedome fayle not. A wyſe man ſhalbe plenteouſlye bleſſed of GOD: and all they that ſe him ſhall ſpeake good of hym. The lyfe of man, ſtandeth in the nomber of dayes, but yͤ daies of Iſrael are innumerable.

A wyſe man ſhall optayne faythfulneſſe ⁊ credēce amōge his people, ⁊ hys name ſhalbe perpetual. My ſōne, proue thy ſoule in thy lyfe: and yf thou ſe anye euell thynge, geue it not vnto her. *For al thinges are not profytable for al mē, nether hath euery ſoule pleaſure in euery thing. The xxxviij. Chapter.

¶ A Phiſicion in ſyckenes ought we to pray, and to fynd a Phiſicion whyche healeth by prayer. For Sadnes, wyſdome Artificers or craftesmen.

Heuynes ⁊ pouertie greueth yͤ hert in temptacion ⁊ offence. Take no heuyneſſe to herte, dryue it awaye, and remember the laſte thinges. forget it not, for there is no turnynge agayne. Thou ſhalte do hym no good, but hurte thy ſelfe. Remember his iudgemente, thyne alſo ſhalbe lykewyſe: vnto me yeſter daye vnto the to daye.

*Let the remembraūce of the deede ceaſſe in hys reſte, ⁊ comforte thy ſelfe agayne ouer hym, ſeynge hys ſpirite is departed from hym. The wyſedome of the ſcribe is at conueniente tyme of reſte: and he that ceaſſeth from excerciſe and laboure ſhalbe wyſe.

D He that holdeth yͤ plough, and hath pleaſure in proddynge, and dryuinge yͤ oxen, and goeth about wͭ ſuch worckes he can ſpeake of oxē: He ſetteth his hert to make forowes, ⁊ is diligente to geue the kyne fodder. So is euery carpēter alſo and worckemaſter that laboureth ſtyl nyghte ⁊ daye: he carueth, graueth, cutteth oute, ⁊ hys deſire is in ſondrye cōnynge thynges, hys herte imagineth howe he maye cōnyngly caſt an image, hys diligence alſo and watchynge performeth the worcke. The yronſmithe, in lyke maner bideth by hys ſtythe, and dothe his diligence to laboure the yron. The vapour of yͤ fyre burneth hys fleſh and he muſte fyghte wyth the heate of the fornace. The noyſe of the hammer ſoundeth euer in hys eares, and hys eyes loke ſtyll vpon the thynge that he maketh. He hath ſet his mynde thereupon, that he wyl make out hys worke, and therfore he watcheth, how he may ſet it out, and brynge it to an ende.

So doth the potter ſyt by his worcke E he turneth the whele about wyth hys fete, he is diligent ⁊ carefull in al doynges, and hys labour ⁊ worcke is wythout nombre. He facioneth the claye wͭ hys arme, and wyth hys feete he tempereth it. His herte imagineth howe he maye make it pleaſaunte, and hys diligence is to clenſe the ouen. All theſe hope in theyr handes, ⁊ euery one thyncketh to be connynge in hys worcke. Wythout theſe may not the cities be mayntayned, inhabited, nor occupied: and they come not hye in the congregacion, nether ſyt they vpon yͤ iudgemēte ſeates: they vnderſtande not the coueṅaūte of the lawe: they cannot decleare equite ⁊ iudgement: they cannot fynde out the darcke ſentences, but thorow them ſhal the creature of the worlde be mayntayned, theyr prayer concerneth onely the worcke ⁊ laboure of cōnyng.

HE that aplyeth his mynde to the vnderſtandyng of yͤ lawe A of GOD, doth diligently ſeke out the wyſedome of them of the olde tyme, and excerciſeth hym ſelfe in the Prophetes. He kepeth yͤ ſayinges of famous men, and preaſſeth to the vnderſtandynge of darcke ſentēces of wyſedome. He ſeketh out the miſterie of ſecrete ſayinges, ⁊ excerciſeth hym ſelfe therein continually. He doth ſeruice amonge greatmen and appereth before the Prynce. He goeth into a ſtraunge countrye, and trauayleth thorowe it: lokeſt what good or euel is amōg men, he proueth it and ſeketh it oute. He purpoſeth in his herte, to reſorte earlye vnto the LORD that made hym ⁊ to praye before the Hyeſt GOD. He openeth hys mouth in prayer, ⁊ prayeth for hys synnes. When the great LORDE wyll, he ſhalbe fylled with the ſpirite of vnderſtandyng yͭ he may then pour out wyſe ſentẽces, ⁊ geue thãckes vnto yͤ LORD B in his prayer. He ſhal order hys deuice, ⁊ leade hys knowledge a ryght: ⁊ geue hym vnderſtandyng of ſecrete thinges. He ſhall ſhewe forth the ſcience of hys learnynge, ⁊ reioyce in yͤ couenaunt of the law of yͤ LORD. The whole congregacion ſhall cõmend hys wyſdome ⁊ it ſhal neuer be put out. The remẽbraũce of hym ſhall neuer be forgotten, ⁊ hys name ſhall cotinue frõ one generacion Ecc.44.b. to another* Hys wyſdome ſhal be ſpoken of amõg yͤ people, ⁊ yͤ whole cõgregacion ſhall openly declare hys prayſe, while he liueth he hath a greater name thẽ a thouſand beſide: ⁊ after his death, the ſame name remayneth vnto hym. Yet wyl I ſpeake of moo men of vnderſtandynge, For I am full as the mone.
